Germany Is Preparing For Another Great Strategic Retreat

Enemy May Be Forced to Evacuate the Ypres Salient Up to Comines—Retreat Has Already Been Accomplished in Part—Most of German Heavy Artillery Has Been Moved Back.

ANOTHER POWERFUL OFFENSIVE

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, June 15.—The great "strategic retreat" which Germany is preparing around what used to be the Ypres salient was the subject of the keenest speculation in military circles to-day. It was accepted as a foregone conclusion that with Field Marshal Haig's tightening squeeze of the triangle of ground between Ypres and the little canal on the one side and the River Lys on the other, the Germans would be forced very soon to evacuate all this territory up to Comines. Some battlefront despatches to-day hinted such a retreat was already accomplished in part. This is the section in which Haig reported a relinquishment of first line positions by the enemy yesterday. Unofficial news detailed that particularly the only German artillery fire was very long range guns, hinting that most of the German pieces have been moved back.

London expects now to see another powerful offensive thrust by the British along the River Lys. It has been part of Field Marshal Haig's strategy in recent months to drive along the course of some great river like the Scarpe and the Sensee. The Valley of the Lys is likewise peculiarly adapted to Haig's operations.

Ontario Would Furnish Seven Men To Quebec's Four

OTTAWA, June 14.—Government figures from the census of 1911 show that in that year there were in Canada slightly over one million and a half males between 20 and 45—the ages included in Sir Robert Borden's Military Service bill. The Government believes that thede have since been additions to the male population which offset the number who have enlisted so that conditions on the whole to-day are numerically somewhat similar to 1911, though this will not hold true for some Provinces. This belief, however, is assuredly modified by the fact that the soldiers who have gone overseas—about 360,000 including reservists—were men physically fit, while only a percentage of the additions to population have been in this category. The figures for 1911 included 286,068 men of foreign birth, of whom only about 115,000 had been naturalised. The remainder would, therefore, be unavailable for military service. Supposing that 300,000 of those sent overseas were between 20 and 45, excluding Americans who came to Canada to enlist, the total of 1911 is reduced as follows:

Less men not naturalized	171,062
	1,412,487
Less men sent overseas	300,000
	1,112,487
Less men already rejected	50,000
	1,062,487
Less Mennonites, Doukhobers, etc.	62,487
	1,000,000

STILL FURTHER REDUCTIONS

That leaves a million men, plus whatever additional male population between 20 and 45 which has accrued to Canada since 1911. But this "over-a-million" is subject to further reductions as follows:

1. Men exempt because physically unfit. The standard of acceptance is lower than it was earlier in the war, but this is offset by the reduced average of physical fitness due to the number of fit men who have already left Canada as troops. Even A. R. men will have to be re-examined under the Borden Act, but the total of rejections among these and other classes is bound to be large.

2. Men exempt because of "exceptional financial or business obligations of domestic position." These will aggregate a substantial number.

3. Men exempt because it is "expedient in the national interest" to keep them home. Nobody knows how large this class will be, for the local tribunals (as regulated by the Cabinet) have to decide whether agriculturists, munition workers, miners, fishermen, etc., will be included. But exemptions on this score are bound to be many.

4. Clergy. They are specifically exempted from service.

The "over-a-million" men are therefore available only in theory. If 300,000 of them are left after providing for exemptions, Canada will be doing wonderfully.

ONLY 100,000 WANTED.

The Government, however, wants only 100,000 men, and hopes to get them from the first three classes mentioned in the bill. These are:

Class 1. (Unmarried), age 20-23.
Class 3. (Unmarried), age 29-34.

In other words, it is hoped that no married men will have to be taken. Classes 4, 5 and 6 are made up of married men of ages corresponding to those in Classes 1, 2 and 3. It is interesting to note what figures for the first three classes (unmarried men, ages 20-34) are available from the census of 1911.

In that year, there were 686,718 single men of that age in Canada. Just as he 1,583,749 were reduced to 1,000,000 by various specific causes already enumerated as the 686,718 must be reduced to about 400,000. That is, the 1911 figures furnish an expectation of 400,000 men in 1917 plus additions to population and minus exemptions for physical unfitness, financial obligations, necessity for work at home, etc. Can Canada get 100,000 out of the "over-400,000"? That is the question.

THE FIGURES BY PROVINCES

Here are the figures of 1911 divided Provincially. The first two columns show the total of single and married men between the ages of 20 and 45, while the column to the right enumerates the men in the first three classes of the Borden bill, from whom it is hoped to get the entire draft of 100,000.

	20-45 Single	20-45 Married	20-34 Single
P.E.I.	8,051	6,791	6,706
N. S.	42,687	45,984	35,610
N. B.	28,056	33,199	23,370
Quebec	143,540	208,679	123,831
Ontario	243,060	289,247	201,400
Man.	55,990	57,372	48,636
Sask.	81,314	66,691	70,571
Alberta	64,263	50,716	53,979
B. C.	89,729	61,305	70,354
Yukon	3,062	1,019	1,705
N. W. T.	722	2,000	594
Total	760,453	823,096	636,746

QUEBEC HAS ADVANTAGE

The figures for Ontario and Quebec are particularly interesting, though they are now modified, for comparative purposes, by Ontario's much larger participation in the war.

It will be noted, for instance, that in 1911, the single men of military age in Quebec and Ontario were in the ratio of about 2 to 3 1-2 while the married men were in the ratio of about 2 to 2 3-4. In other words, Quebec has a tremendous advantage when only unmarried men are taken, as a far greater proportion of those in that Province are married. The actual figures as to how this would work out on the 1911 figures for the first three classes (unmarried) and the second three classes (4, 5, 6, married), are available as follows:

	Ont.	Que.
First three classes	201,400	123,831
Second three classes	148,024	112,310

ONTARIO'S 7 TO QUEBEC'S 4

A glance at these figures shows that if only the first three classes are called out, Ontario is likely to furnish about seven men to Quebec's four, though on the second three (married) classes, Ontario would be called on to furnish only about five men to Quebec's four.

A comparison of men in the two Provinces in 1911 between 20 and 34 (single), or, in othre words, those of the first three military classes, is given by origin as follows:

	Ontario	Quebec
Canadian	140,673	107,405
British	36,593	7,573
Foreign	24,134	8,833
Total	201,400	123,881

These figures show that in these classes Quebec had one British to fifteen Canadians, while Ontario had one British to four Canadians. Such statistics to some degree bear out Quebec's contention that Ontario would naturally contribute a larger proportion of men to an expeditionary force.

Gal Two—Ontadio would.

NEED FOR REINFORCEMENTS

As the number of men required by Canada for reinforcements, statistics from the front are rather unsatisfactory. Here are some of the figures from recent official returns and statements:

Canada has enlisted	411,000
Canada sent overseas	360,000
Or, excluding reservists	326,000
Casualties to date	100,000
Men in France, about	130,000
Men in trenches, about	88,000

It is impossible to deduce from these figures the number of Canadian troops in England, which are estimated by some authorities at 100,000. About 60 per cent. of the casualties are said to be finally restored to the fighting line. Of the men sent overseas, a large number have been rejected in England, or transferred to non-combatant units. Besides the four divisions in the trenches, Canada is required to keep a large number of men in reserve, building railways, etc.

COMPARE CASUALTIES AND ENLISTMENTS.

The way to judge the need of men is to compare casualties with enlistments. From June 30, 1916, to June 5, 1917, Canada enlisted 74,510, of whom many men would finally be rejected or sent to do non-combatant work. Her casualties were 65,000. For April and May of this year, the figures are even more startling, namely:

Enlistments	11,790

Of the enlistments many were in construction units.

Sir Robert Borden says Canada's resources at the front are sufficient for "several months." And enlistment has nearly ceased, while casualties are piling up. That is why conscription is necessary.

Only 14,000 French Canadians Enlisted

Of These Nearly Half Were Recruited Outside the Province of Quebec—English Speaking Native Born Canadians Overseas Total 125,245—Of the First 33,000 Only 1,237 Were French-Speaking Canadians.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 14.—The Quebec argument that relatively as many French as English speaking native born Canadians have enlisted for overseas service is knocked into a cocked hat by the return tabled this afternoon by Sir Edward Kemp. Out of the whole force there are only 14,100 French and nearly as many French-Canadians from outside Quebec enlisted as in the province. The return asked for by Lancot, Liberal member for La Patrie, turns out to be a boomerang. It shows:

Quebec Enlistments.

French-Canadian soldiers, commanded by officers speaking the French language serving with units organized in the Province of Quebec, 5,443.

Soldiers speaking the French language, commanded by officers speaking the English language, belonging to units organized in Quebec, 1,536.

Soldiers speaking the French language, serving in units organized in other provinces, 5,904.

In First Contingent.

The above figures do not include soldiers speaking the French language serving in units of the first contingent. Owing to all the members of that contingent having been re-attested at Valcartier, it is impossible to state their original place of enlistment. The total number in the first contingent is 1,237.

The total number of Canadian soldiers speaking the French language from all parts of Canada who have proceeded overseas, is 14,100.

British and Canadian-Born.

The number of members of the Canadian forces speaking English and born in Canada is 125,245.

The number of British subjects born outside Canada is 155,095. No figures are available on the number of naturalized British subjects.

Golden Text: Now hath Christ been raised from the dead, the first fruits of them that are asleep. 1 Cor. 15:20.

1. Verse 1. Who came first to the sepulchre? (See Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:2; Luke 24:1.)

2. Who had taken away the stone from the sepulchre? (See Matt. 28:2).

3. Verses 2-10. Why did none of these faithful disciples of Jesus expect him to be resurrected?

4. Seeing Jesus had clearly told them that he was to be put to death, and that he would rise again the third day, how can you explain that they did not understand him?

5. Verse 3. Why ought Mary not have wept, if she had known all the facts?

6. Why would you say or not, that there is never any reason for a Christian who can interpret the mind of God to weep?

7. Verse 12. What reason is there to believe that angels are always at the new tomb of a Christian?

8. Verse 3. Why ought Mary not to have been in doubt concerning the absence of Jesus' body from the tomb?

9. Verse 14. What were the changes either in Mary, or Jesus, that she did not know Jesus when she saw him?

10. What examples can you give of our looking at Jesus to-day, and not knowing it to be him?

11. Why does God in these days sometimes hide, himself from his children?

12. Verse 15. What would you say was Mary's highest expectation concerning Jesus at this moment?

13. Which generally prevails, that our faith and expectations are higher, or lower, than God has provided for us?

14. Verse 16. At what stage in our agony and perplexity does God generally reveal himself to us?

15. Verse 17. Is it probable that Mary had eben in the habit of caressing Jesus? (See Luke 7:37, 38; John 12:3-8.)

16. Why is purely spiritual communion between intimate friends better than the pleasure derived from the sense of touch? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club).

17. So far as it is the range of our experience to judge, why do spirits not need the sense of touch to enhance the joys of companionship?

18. Jesus had not yet ascended to heaven, would you say, or not, and why, that there is always a period of time, after death, before the spirit leaves the earth?

19. Verse 18. Mary, with other women, immediately went and told the disciples of Christ's resurrection; how did they receive the information? (See Luke 24:10-11).

20. What is the evidence which proves the resurrection of Jesus from the dead?

21. What is the supreme evidence that Jesus and his religion are of God?

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Anseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HASTINGS, June 13.—The infant child of Mr. and Mrs.. Owen Philips died on Thursday, of pneumonia, aged two and one-half months. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon. Interment was made in Warkworth cemetery.

Much sympathy is expressed for the parents in the loss of their only child.

Mr. B. Jones, of Percy, died on Friday last, in his 83rd year. The funeral was held on Sunday morning to the R.C. Church for service, after which the cortege wended its way to the cemetery, where interment was made. Mr. J. Jones, of town, is a son of the deceased.

Sacramental services were held in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev.. D. A. Thomson, officiating.

Rev. Mr. McEachern, of Keene, conducted preparatory services on Friday afternoon.

Rev. Mr. Mearing, of Norwood, occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church on Sunday at both services.

Rev. Isaac Snell is attending the sitting of the Bay of Quinte Conference at Picton.

We are pleased to learn that Mr. Lloyd Hess, who is at present in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, is improving daily.

Pte. W. Coles, returned soldier, is recuperating at the home of his brother, Mr. Fred Coles, near town.

Quite a number attended the excursion from Gore's Landing on Tuesday, and all seemed to be enjoying themselves.

Miss Alice Learmouth has returned from a visit in Peterborough.

Lawyer Guise-Bagley has opened an office in town, to be here every Tuesday and Friday.

Mr. Fred Henry, an employee in the local branch of the Toronto Bank, has been removed to Gananoque.

One evening before his departure, a number of young people assembled at the Clarendon House and presented him with a set of military brushes.

Mr. Henry, during his stay here, was quite popular and the best wishes of a host of friends will follow him to his new field of labour. He is succeeded by Mr. Hogg, of Toronto.

Mr. L. Kelly has purchased Mr. Al. Parsons' implement shop near the bridge and has taken over the Massey-Harris agency.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. English left during the week on a trip to Buffalo.

Dr. Hess was in Oshawa on Friday and brought home a new motor car.

Mr. and Mrs. German, of Oak Hills, spent a short time last week with friends here.

Miss Jessie Wilcox has returned from a pleasant visit with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Alex. Smith spent Wednesday in Peterborough.

Mrs. Phillips of Warkworth, has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Philips.

Mr. W. Hill of Peterborough, spent the week end in town.

Mr. W. Baker has purchased a new motor truck for collecting eggs.

A fine barn is being erected on Mr. Ed. Fleming's farm, to take the place of the one which was destroyed by fire last fall.

The Town Council met on Friday, June 1st, and reviewed the business of the past month.

Mr. Wm. Lowe, of Warkworth, called last week.

Had Headache For Two Years

BARRIE, Ont., June 1. — For two long years the writer of this letter was subject to severe headaches. The nervous system got run down, digestion failed and there was continued loss of weight.

The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food changed all this, and now with scores of other Barrie people Mr. Nader is recommending the use of this food cure as the best means of building up the system and curing headaches, indigestion and all the annoying symptoms of a run-down condition.

Mr. John Nader, 38 Penetang St., Barrie, Ont., writes:

"During the last two years I had an attack of indigestion, accompanied by severe headaches. I suffered from loss of appetite, and my system became run down. I also lost considerably in weight. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and as they helped me I continued using this treatment for some time. My condition is now greatly improved, my headaches are gone and my health is much better. I can cheerfully recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to those suffering from nervousness of any kind."

As a spring tonic and restorative to overcome tired, languid feelings and build up the vitality at this time of year there is nothing to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

In Re-conquered French Territory

LONDON, June 14.—An English officer, writing of his arrival in one of the villages abandoned by the Germans, in the great retreat, says:

It all smells of the Boche, you cannot mistake it. It is awful passing through this desolation, villages still smouldering, churches blown up, cemeteries everywhere desecrated, the furniture of the peasants scattered about outside the ruins of their cottages. Now and again you may see a peasant searching over the pile of bricks that was once his house in the hope of discovering hidden valuables. These folks are very reticent and do not like to talk about their experiences.

All males between fifteen and sixty, as well as all robust women were carried off. All men were compelled to salute the Hun officers by removing their caps and lowering them to the level of the elbow. There were frequent roll-calls and as each man answered his name he had to file past the Boche officer with uncovered head, 15 metres before reaching him and 15 metres after passing him. There are a lot of Boche babies about, and many women left with the Huns when they retired. Last night a party of Boches arrived here, and the news spread rapidly through the village. Everyone collected in the square around the Huns and hooted and yelled at them. "Ah, les sales Boches, meurtriers! incendiaries! Ah, les salots, les voleurs, les assassins, les cochins." One old woman spat in the face of a particularly arrogant-looking Boche officer and exclaimed: "Ah, sal Boche, you have told the truth for the first time in your life. You said we should see you back and sure enough we have." Much merriment was caused this afternoon when a party of German prisoners were told off to clean up some of the filthy mess they made, the inhabitants gathering around and jeering at them all the while.

It was rather pathetic in church last Sunday. The poor old Cure—an old fellow of about sixty years—was held by the Boches as hostage for two years, and only returned here a week ago; his people were using the church for the first time for two years. The poor Cure was quite overcome by emotion and everybody in the church sobbed when he described the burning of the villages, and of his fear for the safety of his own parish.

I went to a place where they had never seen the English before, and you can imagine their excitement when I rolled into the town on my Douglas. "Est-ce un Anglais?" you could hear them saying, and a big crowd quickly collected when I stopped to repair a small defect in my bike. I sleep in a bed until recently occupied by a Hun officer. There is a beautiful piano there also, which gave forth the strains of "Deutschland uber Allies," but now it resounds to the tune of "If you were the only girl." Several bombs were fund in the grates of the fire stoves, and there were other similar traps, but I am glad to say no one has been blown up.

Attributes Payne's Death to Suicide

JURORS SUPPOSE HE USED HAT BADGE ON THROAT, STONE ON HEAD.

LONDON, Ont., June 14. — The death of Gunner Payne of the 63rd Battery, whose body was found in a bush on the Shosbottom farm, north of London, on June 4th, was declared by Coroner McNeil's jury on Tuesday night to have been due to suicide.

The inquest held at Arva produced no new evidence, except that the man's hat had been found and it was supposed that part of the badge from it had been used to cut his throat, and this badge had been found in his pocket.

The wound that caused his death was one on the skull, a heavy stone found eleven feet away being the instrument.

Payne's former employer, Mr. Creighton of St. Mary's, testified that the soldier had been downhearted and it was chiefly on this evidence, and the fact that Payne had only been seen alone, that the verdict was given as suicide. Provincial Inspector Henry Reburn, of Toronto, made the investigation.

ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONIST IMPRISONED.

NEW YORK, June 14.—Louis Kramer, self-confessed anarchist, was yesterday sentenced to two years in Atlanta prison and ordered to pay a fine of $10,000 for conspiracy to distribute anti-conscription literature. He also received a year in jail for failing to register.

HAD BOILS
FOR SIX MONTHS
B. B. B. DROVE THEM AWAY

When the blood becomes impure the very first symptoms which manifest themselves are a breaking out of various forms of skin trouble such as boils, pimples, sores, etc., and to get rid of these troubles you must cleanse the blood thoroughly with a good blood remedy.

Thousands of people from one end of Canada to the other have used it during the past forty years, and have nothing but words of praise for its cleansing properties.

Mr. Rufus Bourn, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I want to say a few words about your medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters. I had boils for over six months and sometimes was so bad I could not work. I tried lots of cures but nothing would drive them away for good until I took B.B.B. In a short time I was all better. It is a family medicine. I keep it in the house all the time."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., and as well and favourably is it known that there are many imitations on the market see that our name appears on the wrapper.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos of anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy, lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Ordered 50 Taxicabs and 60 Shirts

F. Case King of Jacksonville, Ill., registered at the Morrison Hotel in Chicago last Wednesday. For several days he did nothing to attract attention except to lounge about the lobby and look distinguished. In his black frock coat and gray trousers, with immaculate linen and all sartorial accessories of the latest design, he was suspected of being a foreign nobleman.

He called a bell boy to his room on the fourteenth floor on Saturday morning and ordered a drink. When the boy brought it Mr. King handed him a cheque for $.00 as a tip.

"Order me fifty taxicabs," remarked Mr. King casually. "I have a mind to drive about Chicago."

"Send them to the fourteenth floor of the Morrison," he said. "I have the entire floor."

The first sent a salesman to the hotel with shirt patterns. Mr. King had changed his mind and threw the salesman out of his apartment.

The hotel people investigated these strange doings.

"There is nothing to marvel at," said Mr. King. "I am the Carburetor King. By an invention of my own I can make gasoline for automobiles which will sell for nine cents a gallon. I am a millionaire. If I choose to give $500 tips and buy 60 shirts at a time, that is my affair."

It occurred to the hotel people that there is an asylum for the insane at Jacksonville. They wondered if Mr. King had escaped from there. They notified the police and the "Carburetor King" was taken to the Central detail police station. The police wired to Jacksonville in an effort to learn his identity.

The prisoner had $300 in his pockets. He said he was an Elk and a member of the Mystic Order of Bagdad.

HOPE NAVIES WILL HUNT GERMANS OUT

American Ships Ready To Take An Active Part, Arthur Pollen Says

WOULD TIGHTEN BLOCKADE.

LONDON, June 7. — Land and Water publishes this week an American number devoted to articles on the entry of the United States into the war. Arthur Pollen, writng on American naval co-operation and discussing the possibility that the German submarine warfare may bring Norway in on the side of the Allies, says:

"With eighteen battleships, whose aggregate gunpower is vastly superior to that of the whole German battle and battle cruiser fleet, the Americans are in a position, should Norway elect for belligerency, to establish a North Sea base directly threatening both the Sound, Heligoland and the exits of the German fleet, which would have a far more profound effect on North Sea strategy than the mere menace of the German battle fleet implies. For it must not be forgotten that one of the main advantages that the enemy has derived from the neutrality of the Scandinavians is his liberty to use their territorial waters, either for running cargoes directly into his own harbors or into those of countries powerless to resist his demand that contraband should be shipped through to him.

"With Norwegian territorial waters no longer neutral, and with the Sound no longer an open passage, the problem of a closer blockade is entirely revolutionized. Add to this that American belligerency gives to the alliance a new power of checking the shipping of supplies ultimately destined for the enemy, and an entirely new situation is created.

"But there is another question to which attention has been directed here more than once during the last six months, and that is the possibility of direct offensive operations against German bases. I am still of the opinion that such operations cannot be undertaken with any hope of success without special preparations, which may take six months or more to complete. The character of those preparations, the special construction which they will involve, the demands which they will make on the shipbuilding, gun-making and munition producing capacities of the older and new belligerents, need not be specified; but it is clear that here again the whole character of the problem is changed by the fact that the American navy is ready to take a most active part."

Another article in Land and Water by "An Onlooker in America," dealing with American unpreparedness for war, says:

"Superficially the parallel between England in 1914 and conditions in the United States to-day is as striking as it is depressing. There is the same amateurishness in government circles, the same 'life as usual' atmosphere, somewhat disturbed by hysteria, throughout the country. One looks in vain for a sign of any great national impulse; one realizes that the American public, like the British public before the war, has had its moral and physical energies dulled by a too steady peace and too assidous worship at the altars of a sheltered individualism. The United States, in fact, is suffering from too much liberalism of the pacifist domestic reform variety.

"The United States has not yet got a war government, any more than Great Britain had one at the start, and long after the start. There is much confusion in Washington. The department spirit is willing but the organization is weak. Professional politicians and bureaucrats jostle each other hopelessly. The War Department, with its pacifist Secretary and its sometimes rather superannuated soldier chiefs of divisions, has yet to get down to business. The Navy Department, with a politician of the Bryan type at its head, while it has a better instrument to work with, has not yet laid its plans for co-operation with the Allies as they would have been laid in Utopia. It may be doubted in fact, whether, outside of finance, the immediate result of the Balfour and Viviani missions will be quite what an enthusiastic press expects."

In its editorial article, however, Land and Water does not support these views. It says:

"As a nation the United States has thrown its full force into this struggle for righteousness. Its destroyers open a lane of security for our food ships; its stupendous wealth is placed at the disposal of its allies, and the financial future rendered free from harrassing doubt. The organisation of its food supplies has been taken in hand, and it will not be long before the first companies of its armies are training in those wonderful schools of war that have been formed in France. * * *

"It is now nearly two months since America took up arms and already she has made her power apparent on the sea, and the first signs of it on land are visible. There has been no waste of time, but as all fighting nations have found to their cost—Germany among them—war cannot be rushed if victory be the goal."

One feature of the Land and Water American number is a full page cartoon entitled: "Damn the torpedoes! Go ahead!" reproduced by courtesy of the New York Times. This, says Land and Water, "promises to become a classic among cartoons, for it so exactly hits off the spirit in which the United States has entered the war. Germany is to be taught what the 'freedom of the seas' really means — a phrase which she only adopted in order to abuse and misapply."

WIFE GETS BURGLAR AS HUSBAND SLEEPS

Mrs. Delphine Cavagnaro awakened with a start in her bedroom on the third floor of 170 Adams street, Brooklyn, at 12:30 o'clock in the morning by the sound of muffled footsteps in the front room of her apartments. Her year-old baby, Alfred, was beside her, as was her husband, Stephen, who was fast asleep. Delphine tried to awaken her husband by whispering to him poking him in the ribs, pulling his hair and slapping his face, but he did not stir. Then she picked up her baby and went to the window in the rear, climbed out of it with the child in her arms and got to the ground floor, where her father-in-law lives. She tapped at the rear window of his rooms, but could not get him awake. So she climbed back, up the three flights of fire-escape ladder to her own apartment to see if her husband was yet asleep. He was still snoring away in bed, and she went back down the fire escape again, still hugging little Alfred, with the intention of finding a policeman.

She discovered Patrolman Barnard of the Poplar street station, on the street. Barnard went back up the fire-escape with her and captured the intruder, who was still looking for loot. The burglar was in his stocking feet. He proved to be Joseph Graham, a graduate of the House of Refuge, 19 years old.

Mr. Cavagnaro slept on.

"I got him awake finally," said the policeman, "but it was a tough job."

"Poor man," explained the young wife, commiseratingly, "he needed the rest, for he had been working every night during the week."

Italian Spy in Deserter Role Tricks Austria

ROME.—Naval Lieut. Giuseppe X. of the Italian forces is a smart naval gunner. In the hot days of last year's "frightful expedition," when men went down like flies in and around Monfalcone, when fighting was so fierce that Austrians and Italians butchered each other over the counter of the local shipping offices, he was up in the Devil's tower, just outside the city, directing the Italian artillery fire and bearing, so the Austrians thought, a charmed life.

The "frightfulness" was driven back; Cadorna's troops took Gorita. Autumn turned into winter, and Giuseppe found time hanging somewhat heavily on his hands. So he hatched the plan that forms the burden of this tale.

LAYS PLAN BEFORE COMMANDER.

One day he sought out his commanding officer. The commander, whose name may not be told, is a fatherly looking man, and he beamed upon Giuseppe. Good gunners are apt to be favourites in modern warfare.

"Well, Giuseppe, what's the news?" he asked.

"I've got a plan for laying my hand on every spy now in Austrian pay in Italy," he answered. And he set forth his ideas.

The commander was not keen about the plan when he first heard it. He was loath to lose so good a gunner on such a dangerous errand. But Giuseppe is eloquent, and finally he persuaded the older men to promise he would lay the plot before his own superior officer, Giuseppe's plot was approved.

Details were prepared with every precaution to insure secrecy. And one day, after a bit of a scrap, Giuseppe was seen to walk toward the enemy's trenches.

"I've had enough of it," he shouted back, and walked on.

The Austrians also were watching the "deserter" with intense interest. At first they thought it was some joke. But when the Italians opened fire on Giuseppe they saw he was really trying to desert and they welcomed him warmly. Taken before the Austrian commander, he talked quite freely of the ennui of trench life and his desire for change of air—and occupation.

BARES SECRETS OF ITALY

"If you make it worth my while," he remarked," I can give you some rather good information." Then he proceeded to tell the Austrians things about the Italian forces, the position of bateries, and other matters which made the listeners' hearts rejoice. The information seemed so good that they could not believe it was true till they had verified the young gunner's statements, and everything he told them proved to be correct enough.

They were more than pleased. Many a long day had passed since they had culled any such information. He was allowed to remain with the general staff, and they frequently referred to him when they wanted to worry the Italians. One day, he went up to the commander.

"I've told you all I know about the Isonzo front," he said. "But if you send me to Vienna I can tell your naval people things they might find useful."

TIPS OFF NAVAL SECRETS.

And to Vienna they sent him. He proved quite useful there, knowing a great deal about the Italian matters far more than the Austrians suspected. And meanwhile he was learning a good deal about both the Austrian army and the Austrian navy.

One day he went to the man in charge of a certain branch of the intelligence department at the Ballplatz.

"If you send me to Zurich and pay me well," he said, "I can put you in communication with people in Italy who will be even more useful than I am."

After some parley they let him go to Zurich to work under the Austrian consul general in that city. This Swiss town has become about as German as Berlin, being the center of the German-Swiss and of thousands who took out papers of Swiss citizenship when war broke out.

SENT TO WORK IN ZURICH

Giuseppe was therefore "attached" to the Austrian consulate in Zurich. His work consisted of treating with new spies who were willing to work in Italy for the benefit of Germany and Austria. At first his employers had him watched more carefully. Every time he went to a cafe, a barber shop, to church, or to walk, his steps were dogged. But he behaved so well that after a few weeks vigilance was relaxed.

"Give me," she demanded, "a couple of expert burglars from Rome. They must be Italians and thoroughly up to date. I want them as soon as possible."

SAFE BLOWERS IN PLOT.

Presumably the Italian minister had heard about the woman and expected her visit. He procured two expert criminals from Rome, men who had been convicted for them in hotels and other fashionable places and whose reputations—from a professional viewpoint—were beyond reproach.

The Austrian consul general in Zurich is such a busy man that he has had to turn over the spying immediately connected with the war to an army officer sent for that purpose from Vienna. He has also had to enlarge his offices of late, so that this officer has an office of his own in the Bahnhofastrass, in a fine new building which might have come straight from Berlin.

In his office stands a safe. In this safe were the papers connected with the men and women who have been spying for Austria in Italy. For a long time Giuseppe tried to get those papers. But the officer kept them so carefully locked up and was so watchful with the key that he could never find a chance.

SAFE RIFLED OF PAPERS.

It was Sunday. The Austrian consulate was closed. A dentist who lived overhead thought he heard noises in the office below in the afternoon, but he put it down to the carnival jollifications and thought no more about it.

Monday morning, when the military officer entered his office, a strange sight met his gaze. His safe stood open, it was empty. Every scrap of paper he had put there and locked up so carefully on Saturday night was gone. Gone, too, were several thousand francs' worth of bills with which he intended to pay some spies that day.

He called in the Swiss police. They, too, were astounded, for they soon saw that the robbery had been committed in a way distinctly unusual in Switzerland, with tools and solvent used only by modern expert thieves. The outer doors of the safe had been opened with false keys, though the Austrian consul found them too intricate to copy.

SEARCH IN VAIN FOR SPY.

His first thought was for Giuseppe. They hunted for him at his hotel, his favourite barber's, his favourite cafe. But in vain. That Sunday night, immediately after the theft, he had crossed the Swiss frontier into Italy with a diplomatic pouch containing the papers stolen from the safe.

The haul has enabled the Italian police to lay their hands on no less than seventy men and women who were spying here for Austria's benefit. They are of all classes, high and low. Some are the Austrian wives of Italian civilians and officers; one keeps a sacred image shop, another is a journalist; others are civil servants employed on the frontier.

Giuseppe has returned to the front. Little did the Austrians think that the shots fired at his deserting figure were blank shots, or that the information he gasne and they verified was given with the full knowledge and approval of his commanding officers.

MESSINES WAS BRITAIN'S BEST EFFORT TO DATE

Every Single Objective Marked in the Preliminary Plans Was Attained.

LONDON, June 15.—The Messines offensive was the most successful attack which the British have yet made, every single objective that was marked in the preliminary plans having been attained, said Major-General F. B. Maurice, chief director of military operations at the War Office, in his weekly talk with the Associated Press.

Comparing this assault with the Somme battle, General Maurice stated that the British gained on the first day more than twice the ground captured in the first four days of the great conflict along the Somme, while the British casualties at Messines, using the same periods for comparison, were only one-fourth what they were in the Somme fighting.

General Maurice was most optimistic in his talk to-day. Remarking that the British successes were steadily growing greater, he added: "We still have the undeveloped resources of America behind us, which gives us complete confidence in the future."

NO U. S. ATHLETES CLAIM EXEMPTION

NEW YORK, June 12.—The patriotism of the athletes of New York was further exemplified to-day when it was officially stated that not a single boxer or athlete of prominence had claimed exemption from military service on June 5, when the nation enrolled the names of more than ten million men between the ages of 21 and 31 under the conscription act passed by Congress. Other sections of the country have done just as well, so far as the athletes are concerned, and some sections have gone further in that numerous men whose names are well known in the sporting world have already donned Uncle Sam's uniform to fight beside their Canadian brothers in France.

Among the best known of the boxers is Jack Dillon, the great middleweight fighter, who has enlisted in the navy. Henry Leonard has decided to enlist for naval service, too.

Among the famous athletes who are now in the same service is J. E. Malcolmson of Seattle, national hurdling champion in 1909. He is a doctor in the naval reserves. After fulfilling his athletic ambitions he studied medicine and surgery and enlisted a few weeks ago to do his bit in the war. Pookey McFarland has registered, with no claim for exemption, and many other men of equal prominence are ready to do their bit.

GERMAN DYE HEALS WOUND

LONDON, June 14.—A new antiseptic has been discovered by a British physician and, according to the Daily Mail, many firms have applied in the patents court for license to take a German patent and manufacture what is described as the most important specific for the treatment of wounds which has come to light since Lister's introduction to the antiseptic method.

The most interesting fact about the invention is that the German patent was registered and used only as a dye. It was left to Dr. C. H. Browning and other doctors to discover its great antiseptic value.

The substance comes originally from coal tar. Its name is "Trypaflavine," and it is said to have the advantage over other wound antiseptics because it has no destructive effect on tissues, and, instead of reducing the power of the phagocites in the blood to reple disease, it increases it. In a case where a piece of skin the size of a man's hand had been removed from the head of a patient under operation by this specific the wound was entirely healed in five days.

THE LITTLE NATIONS.

By Mr. Lloyd George.

The world owes much to little nations and to little men. All the world owes much to the little five-foot-high nations. The greatest art of the world was the work of little nations. The most enduring literature of the world came from little nations. The greatest literature of England came from her when she was a nation of the size of Belgium, fighting a great empire. The heroic deeds that thrill humanity through generations were the deeds of little nations fighting for their freedom. Ah, yes, and the salvation of mankind came through a little nation. God has chosen little nations as the vessels by which He carries the choicest wines to the lips of humanity, to rejoice their hearts, to exalt their vision, to stimulate and to strengthen their faith, and if we had stood by when two little nations were being crushed and broken by the brutal hands of barbarism, our shame would have rung down the everlasting ages.

Distant Fields.

A wealthy lady in Grand Rapids, Mich., went to New York to purchase furniture, believing she would thus get better designs and fashions.

When the furniture arrived, she found that it had been manufactured in Grand Rapids, a few blocks from her home.

Distant fields look green, but if you will refer to our advertising columns, you will find that you can supply your wants right here, quite as well as by sending your money to mail order or other out-of-town houses. Give your own towns people a chance first, anyway.

CURRIE OF VICTORIA RANKER TO GENERAL

Very Canadian Career of Western Officer—Familiar with Both Infantry and Artillery—Trusted by Hughes

General Sir Arthur W. Currie, K.C., M.G., had a very remarkable military career. That he gained the rank of major-general at the age of 37 or 38 is in itself an illustration of his unusual military ability. While colonel of the 5th Canadian Garrison Artillery the different batteries of that brigade won the highest awards given by the Canadian Artillery Association. During the three years he commanded the brigade the two Garrison Artillery batteries took first and second awards each year; the batteries competing with alternating success for the premier place. The moveable armament battery, which competed in the same class as field artillery, each year won first place.

Record Before the War

On account of Sir Arthur's splendid record for organization and efficiency he was called upon to form a new Highland regiment, and while another unit had been trying to organise for three years and had only succeeded in enroling 120 men, he raised the regiment, the 50th Gordon Highlanders, to full strength within six months. The Highland regiment, under his command, became a splendid force, and every officer of it is believed to have gone overseas. Garnet Hughes, who has made a splendid record in France, was the second in command of the regiment.

When war broke out the first appointment offered by the minister of militia was to the then Col. Currie, and was contained in the following telegram: "Will you accept command of the First Canadian Brigade? Consider you one of the finest officers in Canada. (Signed) Sam Hughes."

In view of the fact that Sir Arthur is a Liberal, this was considered to be strong and sincere praise. The colonel accepted the appointment, but went overseas in command not of the first, but of the second brigade.

Held the Line of Ypres

At St. Julien, General Currie's brigade had just been relieved after a period of action in the front line trenches at another part of the line, but when the Canadian line was extended and thinned out at St. Julien, where the gas was first used, the general took his brigade to the weakened place and held the trenches for three days. "Sir Arthur Currie," said a Victoria man, "entered the service as a private in the ranks and has won his promotions and honors by hard, efficient and brilliant work."

BATTLESHIP'S CLOTHES

Dreadnought Requires Entire Under Suit of Cellulose

Although it may look very strong, a battleship is really a very delicate monster. Its vital parts have to be protected by several coverings of a material chiefly obtained from cocoanuts. This is to prevent certain portions becoming either too cold or too hot. For instance, it will be seen that the results would be exciting if the powder magazines became overheated. A dreadnought is entirely clothed in a suit of underwear to protect it from fire and water. The actual construction of the material is a secret, but it is known to be for the most part cellulose, which is obtained from the fibrous rind of the cocoa-nut. Cellulose swells when it touches salt water. Therefore, if a hole should be made in the ship's side, say by a shot, this cellulose expands and covers the opening, so preventing an inrush of water. The cellulose is also treated to make it fireproof.

Mineral wool is a material used upon the latest type of battleship. It looks like wool, but is really composed of snowy threads of a sort of glass. The men who pack mineral wool have to wear masks to prevent the metallic particles from being inhaled. It is a remarkable non-conductor of heat and is used to cover the refrigerators and cold storage chambers, and also the explosive stores. The bolts and nuts and screws of a dreadnought's hull "jackets," in order to prevent waste of fuel. Sometimes these "jackets" are of mineral wool, sometimes wood, and sometimes ordinary blanketing.

BIRDS WARN SOLDIERS

Gas Noticed by Birds Before It Is Detected in Trenches

One of the favourite characters in the folk-lore of all nations is the kindly-disposed fish, or bird, or frog, or rabbit, who heaps benefits upon the hero, coming to his rescue in moments of peril at the very nick of time. This pretty fairy-tale is coming true for the heroes of the trenches, whenever these grim troubles have been dug near a forest or orchard. For the birds overhead give warning of the approach of the noxious fumes of asphyxiating gas before it is perceptible to the senses of the soldiers. Dr. Calmette, writing in Les Oeuvres Libres, says that the birds are warned from their instincts before the odour of the gas has been detected in the trenches, and at once begin to make a noticeable clamour by chirping loudly from their perch to the rear, thus warning the men behind the guns to don their gas-masks and be ready for the deadly vapours too.

Balfour: Velvet and Jade

The following pen picture of Arthur James Balfour was taken from the London Daily Chronicle: His silken whiskers and reddish, his personality exhales a fragrance that captivates even his political opponents. His gracious manners have an almost feminine softness and grace. Beneath his pellucid affection and this flowing courtesy lies a will of iron and a high, proud spirit. He is an eloquent speaker, but has none of the arts of popular appeal, and could not for the life of him practise the tricks of platform oratory.

It was announced from Budapest that an Hungarian lady, in Hungary, a pig that robbed $1,000.

Somehow a man derives a lot more pleasure from shocking other people than he does from being shocked by them.

AS PUGILIST SAW WAR

Germans All Dirty Fighters—Must be Punished

Georges Carpentier, the famous pugilist, wrote from the French front as follows: This war is a fight to the finish, the winner the party who can deliver the knockout punch. And the league of nations fighting Germany has it. Not that I mean to have you think that Germany is on the point of dropping in her corner and taking the count. But she is like the boxer who after a long period of training steps into the ring, strong and resourceful, and scores points one after the other, only in the end to drop from the one smashing blow of his opponent, who has waited the time when his strength would be the greater. We are forcing the fighting, and the Boches are gradually giving way as our powerful attacks show them only too plainly that we are the stronger.

I am an aviator now and know our superiority just as well as I know how matters stand when I am in the ring with a boxer who gives way at every step I take, at every blow I deliver. The English and the French soldiers in the trenches know it—know that the price of victory will be theirs—and this knowledge in itself means added strength. On the battlefield this confidence is the morale of winning; in the ring it is the spirit that gets new life into tired muscles. Just as long as there is a German to be knocked out I am going to fight—unless a German bullet makes me take the count. The German aviators as a whole are clean fighters, but the Boche soldier, the Boche officer, breaks the rules of warfare continually. Similar dirty tactics in the ring would not be tolerated by any group of boxing fans in the world. The Boche, not satisfied with hitting his opponent below the belt, strikes over the ropes at the weak and inhocent non-combatants.

To see what sort of fighter the German is, all you need to do is to look at the women, children in that part of France which the Germans have evacuated. Every French soldier feels as I do. We feel that the Germans, from the soldier in the trenches to the Kaiser, must be punished for their "dirty work," to use the favorite expression of an American aviator. So enormous are the crimes of the Germans that if some all powerful referee could end the fighting by disqualifying the Germans and letting them withdraw unpunished from France, as a boxer who commits a deliberate foul leaves the ring, there is not a Frenchman who would not insist that the war continue so justice could be meted out to the Boches.

"ONE BOER ESCAPED"

Amusing Incident in Career of Great Leader

General Smuts, speaking once at a dinner in his honor in London, told the following amusing story: "On one occasion," he said, "I remember, I was surrounded in a very nasty block of mountains by Lord French. I was face to face practically with disaster. Nothing was left me but the most diligent scouting to find a way out. I did some of the scouting myself, with a small party. I ventured into a place which looked promising, and which bore the appropriate name of 'Murderer's Gap.' I am sorry to say I was the only man who came out alive from that gap. In an account which I saw subsequently of this incident I saw the remark made that only Boer escaped—but he probably had so many bullets in him that he would be no further danger." This anecdote caused great laughter and cheering, so faintheartedly was it told.

BADGES FOR DISCHARGED

Several Classes of Recognition Granted for Canadians

The badges in class A are issued to members of the C. E. F. who have been active soldiers in the present war in England or at the front and who have been honorably discharged from the C. E. F. on account of old age, wounds, or sickness, which are would render them unfit for further military service, provided their claims are duly approved." The requisite conditions for badges in Class B are the same as the foregoing except that the words "in England or at the front" are struck out. The badge for Class A, which is of silver, is issued by the Imperial authorities. The others are described as "metal buttons with shank and back."

Was "First Man Over"

Mr. and Mrs. S. Hopkins of South Vancouver, received a letter from their son, William Hopkins, in which he stated that after having been through some severe fighting he was in hospital in France suffering from a severe attack of—boils! He incidentally stated that Allan Skerton, another South Vancouver boy, had the good luck to be the first man over the top and into the German trenches in one of the big advances.

"Winging" Rims to Pyjamas

The late Captain Bell once remarked: "To bring down a lot of Huns you have to be patient and practically live in the air. Of a few occasions I haven't had time to put my clothes on, and I've gone up in my pyjamas! It was jolly cold, unfortunately I can't pretend I have ever brought down a machine when dressed like that."

Crop Estimates Are Increasing

Crop Conditions Are Improving Every Day—The Cattle Market

Reports of weather and growing crop conditions were so strongly optimistic yesterday that prices were inevitably borne downward, in spite of every attempt to force them up. Chicago July option closed 6c lower, while the September closed 7 1-2c lower than Tuesday's close. Winnipeg October close was forced 3 5-8c. The coarse grains were similarly affected, with crop estimates steadily increasing under the favorable weather conditions.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards — Receipts, 46 cars, with 159 cattle, 344 calves, 2,058 hogs and 145 sheep and lambs.

Cattle men were puzzled yesterday at the action of the market. After a slight show of activity Tuesday, which promised well for a good clean up for the week the tone of the market suddenly changed yesterday to the lowest yet. In fact scarcely a sound could be heard from some of the packers, as they refused to bid anything at all, and evidently were not in present need of cattle. The result was that, though the run was very light, many of the cattle had perforce to be carried over. Prices held barely steady.

RUSSIAN COUNCIL DECIDES NOT TO DISENFRANCHISE EX-CZAR

PETROGRAD, via London, June 15.—After a prolonged debate in the Council, which is now sitting for the purpose of drawing up rules governing elections to the constituent assembly and considering the eligibility of voters, it was decided to allow Nicholas Romanoff, the former Emperor, and members of the former Imperial family, the privilege of voting. A majority of the speakers argued that to deprive Nicholas of the franchise would be construed as an act of political revenge.

HELPING RUSSIAN HARVEST.

America Sends Binder Twine and Machinery for New Crops.

While the United States is making extraordinary efforts to raise bumper crops here this year a statement given out by D. B. Casey, agent in charge of the New York office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, indicates that this country had "done its bit" to insure the successful harvesting of Russia's crops by furnishing adequate supplies of binder twine and harvesting machinery.

"Based on requirements for binder twine in previous years," the statement reads, "it is estimated that a sufficient quantity of American twine has been, or is now being shipped to Russia to provide amply for the coming crops. The approximate quantity of twine used annually in Russian territory prior to the war, has been estimated by a large agricultural machinery company in Petrograd at about 30,000,000 pounds. The consumption of binder twine probably will not be augmented during the war.

"It is estimated that 95 per cent. of the binder twine used in Russia is of sisal fibre and that most of this must be imported. How important is the supply of American twine for the successful harvesting of the Russian crop may be readily seen when it is shown that 85 per cent. of all the imported twine used in Russia is of American origin. England has derived a limited trade in binder twine in Russia, and previous to the war the American twine is mostly sisal, the Manila fibre having little market in Germany, claimed a small market in Russia.

"The supply of American harvesting machinery in Russia is likewise dependent upon for the successful harvesting of the coming crop. Counting the estimate to the class of machines that use twine, and reckoning the life of a machine at five years, the largest dealer in Russia in American harvesting machinery of this class places the number of machines used in Russia at 120,000, of which 100,000 are American and 20,000 foreign-made. Investigations proves that American harvesting machinery has likewise been sufficiently provided to care for the Russian crops this year."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

READ IN THE FLAMES

... By Mary Wood

Mr. and Mrs. Bergen believed in higher education for women, or, as they told each other, "We will give Katie the chances we didn't have."

Katie was a wild, awkward slip of a girl who wept salt tears when her destiny was unfolded. She never, never would go off to that eastern college. She would die of homesickness. Mrs. Bergen quite melted at the picture, but her husband was firm. It was best for her to go, and go she did.

But the energy that had made her childhood a perilous one flowed readily into the new channels. The first month found her contented, the second enthusiastic. The letters which told of quizzes, exams and profs grew more and more unintelligible to the two old people. She was living in a world into which they could not enter. Even as they thrilled with pride in her attainments they felt a strange pang, as if their firstborn were being gradually stolen and a changeling left in her place.

What with the weary length of the four winters, the brevity of the summer vacations and their inevitable absorption in visits to college chums they felt that the week after commencement brought her back to them almost a stranger.

She was certainly no longer the little Katie who had gone away in tears. Miss Katharyn Bergen was a tall, self possessed young woman who wore eyeglasses and clothes of a masculine cut.

Mr. Bergen was secretly aggrieved at sight of the eyeglasses. "When she had the makin' of such a pretty girl," he said mournfully to himself, "an' mother an' I havin' such good sight at our age!" He felt that it was a high price to pay for learning.

Mrs. Bergen was shocked by her daughter's taste in clothes. Her stiff collars and hideous vests, the scantiness and brevity of her skirts and her pronounced fancy for shoes of the most broad toed and thick soled variety were all thorns in the motherly bosom. She was, however, a woman of discretion. She recognized in her daughter much of a certain obstinacy which long familiarity with Mr. Bergen had taught her to respect. So she made no comment on the distressing changes.

What she did not say Scotville did. Katharyn was more than a nine days' wonder; she was a perpetual volcano. She had lost none of her original energy; rather it had increased by practice. The town needed to be uplifted, and her hand was ready for the work.

So Scotville was introduced to that new creation, a woman with a purpose, and was not overpleased. Her old girl friends detected an undercurrent of patronizing in all her advances and refused to enthuse over her. The men who had been boon companions in her tomboy days declared that a jolly good fellow had been changed into a prig and voted her schemes for elevation as all tommyrot. She scandalized the old minister who had baptized her when a baby by her open avowal of agnostic beliefs.

Jack Selwyn tried in vain to stem the rising tide of antagonism, but then every one knew it was only because he was too loyal to desert his old sweetheart. Jack had not been able to go to college. There were the young brothers and sisters to whom he had to play a father's part. So he had turned to work as an antidote for longing for the unattainable and was now Mr. Bergen's right hand man. It was even whispered that his employer would have been glad to welcome a nearer relationship.

It seemed, however, that Katharyn had no memory of the promises whispered by a certain Katie. To be sure, there had been a look in her face when he greeted her on her day of homecoming that had sent his heart up into his throat. Perhaps it was not as he had feared; she had not grown beyond his reach. But the succeeding days had brought only disillusionment. The girl, smarting under the almost universal rebuffs of her well meant efforts, classed him ruthlessly among the ranks of her opponents.

If she missed their old time confidences, their happy talks on men and books, she gave no sign. Instead she withdrew more closely into herself.

Her rooms were on the ground floor of the Bergen homestead. There she sat and read or mused bitterly long after she had said "Good night." From her windows the lawn sloped down gently to the river. Often when her head grew weary she would slip out quietly to breathe the freshness of the night.

One evening the moonlight had lured her from her books. The strains of a violin came, softened by distance. All Scotville was at a dance—all but she, and she had refused. Her paltry excuse had been that she and her mother had promised to spend the night at an old aunt's in the country during her father's absence on a business trip, but sudden indisposition had kept them from going, and now Katharyn hurried down the river path, as if to escape the witching sound.

She had wandered farther than she knew when a cry broke the stillness: "Fire! Fire!" She turned and ran back dizzily. Swift intuition told her that the column of smoke and flame rose from her own home. Scotville thought all the family were away. There would be no one to waken and save her mother.

As she panted up the lawn she saw confusedly a string of people. They were passing buckets. These girls in

SOLICITOR'S SAVING STUNT

Hugh Black, solicitor, Cumnock, was charged before Sheriff Fyfe, in Glasgow Sheriff Court, with having in the restaurant of Lang's Limited, Queen street, consumed food to the value of 2s. 9 1-2d. and tendered payment of 1s. 7 1-2d., and pretended that he had only consumed articles to the value of that amount. He pleaded not guilty.

Evidence was to the effect that he had been observed by several of the attendants taking the articles specified in the charge—two helpings of steak and kidney pie, a sausage and extra potatoes, three cakes, two sandwiches and a lemon squash—but his defence was that certain of the articles were of indifferent quality, and he did not eat them. On a previous occasion he had complained to an attendant, who had said that he did not require to pay for articles which he did not consider of good quality, and on this occasion he had paid on that principle. He believed he had paid the value of what he had consumed.

Sheriff Fyfe convicted him of the charge which, he said, was not only a fraud upon Lang's, but was a very nasty reflection upo nthe honour of their customers generally. It was as mean a form of fraud as it was possible to conceive and he would impose the highest penalty allowed by the statute—£25, with the alternative of 30 days' imprisonment. An appeal to the High Court was intimated.

VISITORS TO NEW YORK.

They Crowd the Natives Off Broadway and Into the Side Streets.

It has often been remarked by visitors from Denver and other scientific investigators that New York's Broadway is apparently patronized by people from all over the world except the native resident of New York. And it is probably true that Seattle knows its way about the Rialto at least as well as does East Seventy-second street, and the cafarets along the great white way rob more money from Des Moines than from Amsterdam avenue.

The fact of the matter is that the out of town visitor, descending upon the metropolis trained to the minute, with the express intention and determination of taking in Broadway, succeeds largely in crowding the native off the walk.

Hence it has come about that other New York streets which never attain more than a local fame have become pleasure grounds for the real New Yorker, who leaves the streets and the restaurants of world reputation to the hordes of the invader. Such a street, for instance, is One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, often called by its inhabitants the "uptown Broadway." One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street lies in the apartment house section, about in the middle of the long, narrow city that is modern New York. From here to the Battery is a long ride on the elevated trains, and from here to the Bronx of New York, up beyond the Bronx, is a longer ride by local. The dweller in this section rarely takes either of these rides. He goes down to the office in the morning and in the evening returns to his own little side street. If he craves amusement he strolls down One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.—New York Letter.

Fightened.

"I understand that Mr. Pinchpenny has been operated on for appendicitis," remarked Miss Cayenne.

"Yes. It's the first time any one was known to get anything out of him."

A Genius.

"Your mother-in-law never pays you a long visit," said one man to another. "How is that?"

"She did once, but I got my mother to come on a visit at the same time."

Never Idle.

"Makes hay while the sun shines, eh?"

Captain Opens Up Anonymous Grave; His Son's

Exhumed the Body and Reburied it Under Shell Fire.

LONDON, June 14.—One of the most poignant stories of the war—how a father found on the battlefield the grave of his flying son, who had been "missing" for eight weeks—has just reached here.

On March 19 Capt. Eldred Wolferstan Bowyer-Bower, East Surrey and Royal flying corps, went up to make a reconnaissance. Eyewitnesses state that he had passed from five to seven miles behind the then Hindenburg line when he was attacked by six enemy airmen. His machine was seen to descend.

Came Weeks Later.

The British advance came weeks later. In the vanguard was a detachment of Royal Engineers, which included the missing airman's father, Capt. T. Bowyer-Bower. The father heard that not far away was a grave marked by a cross made from pieces of a wrecked aeroplane, which bore in pencil the words: "Two unknown captains of the flying corps."

Knowing that his son had been brought down close by, he determined to inspect the grave. The number on the remains of the aeroplane convinced him that his son lay buried there. And stuck on to the primitive cross with a piece of mud was the tag of a tunic bearing the name of the London tailor who had made his son's uniform.

Exhume Body.

Permission was obtained to exhume the body, and the father found that it was that of his son. It was buried with the body of the observer. The clothes had been stripped of all valuables and the identification disks had been removed. The bodies were removed to the cemetery of a little village a few miles away, and while they were being placed in coffins on the battlefield the Germans shelled and sniped the men engaged in the task.

Capt. E. W. Bowyer-Bower was at Sandhurst when the war started, and, joining the East Surrey regiment, without waiting to pass his examination, he went through Loos, Hulluch, and the second gas attack on Ypres before passing into the R. F. C. in April, 1916. He was the only son of Capt. T. and Mrs. Bowyer-Bower of 30 Brantham gardens, South Kensington, London, and Ashanti Gold Coast, and grandson of Maj. Gen. Henry Bower, who went through the Indian mutiny and the Burmese war. His father came home to fight when the war broke out.

SHE GAINED 16 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness and sinking spells, and was in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave medicine, but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 16 pounds in weight.

The prince of the realm has fallen in love with Evelyn, a circus girl, and plans to elope with her, but is prevented by the sudden death of the king and his accession to the throne. Her lover, who had been willing to renounce his kingdom for the sake of the girl he loves, is told that Evelyn and their child have been drowned and marries a woman of royal blood. Evelyn becomes a wanderer and finally joins a travelling circus. Through all the hardships she subsequently endures, Pete, a trained chimpanzee, is her devoted friend. One day Pete, realizing that Evelyn is mourning for her child who has died, determines to secure one for her. So he climbs over the palace wall, snatches the king's baby from the royal crib and runs with it to the top of a 360-foot chimney. Evelyn decides to save the king's heir. Reaching the top of the chimney, she tears the baby from Pete's grasp and hurls the monkey to his death. Later, during a spectacular performance for the king, in which Evelyn is to appear, the circus catches on fire. In the panic that ensues the queen dies of shock. In the end the king gives up his crown and weds the girl who has been so faithful and devoted.

Clara Kimball Young in "THE DARK SILENCE"

When any director undertakes the making of a love story combined with the thrilling incidents of the European War, he realizes that he is up against a hard proposition. Such pictures do not lack interest, but they strain every faculty of the director's mind in order that numerous details may be mastered above criticism. The famous director, Albert Capellani, left nothing for the imagination in the production of "The Dark Silence," lest it be the ending of the story. The suspense is tremendous and those who first see the picture await the final scene with a fast-beating pulse only to find themselves agreeably surprised.

However, "The Dark Silence" with its war scenes never impresses you as a war story; the thread of romance is too strong. The photography is unexcelled, settings rich, and Clara Kimball Young's personality dominates every minute of the play.

If you have become tired from seeing pictures with the similarity of plot and circumstance, this is an opportunity to refresh your mind with something new.

German Traps for British Soldiers

LONDON.—There should be an interesting story to tell some day of the innumerable booby-trap which the ingenious German mind appears to have planted thickly over the ground from which they have been driven.

One just recorded takes the form of a comfortable bed invitingly displayed in a partially-destroyed house. A tired soldier, about to throw himself on it, was checked by a companion, and it was found on examination that pressure on the bed would have exploded a charge of high explosive.

In similar fashion houses and dugouts which have apparently been missed by the retreating destroyers, and which amid the general desolation offer themselves as inviting residences are found to have been carefully mined, and to be ready to go up on some trivial provocation.

Certain of these seem to have been specially left in the hope of attracting officers of the Staff, though by this time old campaigners are much too wary to be caught by simple tricks of the kind.

Coney Island Opens in Short Skirts

War may be what General Sherman said, and enforced economy resulting therefrom is not pleasant, and yet—it has its bright side, according to the New York Evening Telegram and some of the men in the throng of 250,000 persons who went to Coney Island for its official Memorial Day opening.

"Hot dogs" now turned out by machinery are higher. Beverage dispensaries have not changed their prices but they have bought much smaller glasses. But—whisper!

The girls have been forced to economize in their bathing costumes! At least they say they have been forced to. They have economized any way whether they have had to or not.

The results are—well, interesting at least, and in some cases startling. Stockings are worn shorter, and the skirts come to a sudden stop above the knees.

Said one thoughtful, middle-aged observer of serious mien:

"I am glad these young women are economizing. Such economy will provide many comforts for our brave boys in the trenches."

"Yes," said his companion, looking over his shoulder. "And comfort for the boys who are too old to go to the trenches."

The bathers found that the fierce winter storms had been working for their benefit, as the surf has built up an entirely new beach as far as Far Rockaway and Edgemere.

Several hundred "went in" and pronounced the water "not so cold." Other hundreds put on their bathing suits but preferred to take "sun baths." And really it would have been a pity to have got those new bathing dresses (what there was of them) all wet and draggled.

Bishop's Wife Wins in Letter Case

Judgment for Lord William Cecil, Bishop of Exeter, and his wife, Lady Florence Cecil, with costs, was awarded in the King's Bench Division in the libel action brought against them by Mr. Walter Bailey, a G.P.O. servant.

The action arose out of a letter written by Lady Florence Cecil, when her husband was rector of Hatfield, to the mother of a Miss Daisy Gould. Mr. Bailey, whose married life had not been happy, wished to engage Miss Gould to look after his home and children, following an agreement with his wife to separate.

Lady Florence in her letter to Mrs. Gould, stated that Mr. Bailey was deceiving her daughter and making love to her; that he had treated his wife abominably, and that her daughter would have nothing but misery unless she broke it off at once.

The judge said that it might seem strange that Lord William Cecil, who had nothing to do with the letter, should be a defendant in the case. But such was the law, and it had come down to them from the date when in law husband and wife were regarded as one in the person of the husband.

"When women have votes," said His Lordship, "I hope they will assume responsibility of their acts; but until then we unfortunate mortals must suffer for their delinquencies."

The judge had previously ruled that the letter was written on a privileged occasion, and the only question for the jury, he said, was whether Lady Florence was actuated by malice. The jury returned their verdict without leaving the box.

Boy's Death Caused by Peculiar Accident

BRANCH BROKE, CAUSING HIM TO FALL BEFORE MOTOR, WHICH KILLED HIM.

LONDON, Ont., June 13. — Douglas ("Happy") Milliken aged twelve, died on Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's Hospital as the result of an automobile accident attended by unusual circumstances. Tuesday afternoon while riding his bicycle along a driveway of the Kingsmill farm toward the public road, as the boy saw a motor car approaching, in order to wait until it passed, he seized an overhanging branch. Mr. A. M. Smart, driving the auto, had no warning of any danger, and just as he neared the driveway the branch the boy held broke, precipitating him in front of the car, both wheels of which passed over his chest. The victim was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Milliken of 80 St. James street, and his nickname indicated his popularity at St. George's school. No inquest will be held.

Newspaper Convicted of Reliable News

At the Mansion House, London, before Sir William Treloar, the Sunday Pictorial newspaper, Limited, and Frederick Raymond Sanderson, of Bouverie street, were summoned for having on March 25th unlawfully and without authority published in the Sunday Pictorial information in respect of the movements of some of the forces of His Majesty calculated to be directly or indirectly useful to the enemy, contrary to the Defence of the Realm Regulations.

Mr. R. D. Muir prosecuted for the Director of Public Prosecutions, and Mr. C. F. Gill, K.C., and Sir A. H. Bodkin defended. A plea of not guilty was entered.

Mr. Muir said that Mr. Sanderson was editor of the newspaper, and the prosecution was in respect of a paragraph which appeared in the newspaper. It read: "An eye to the north. And just by way of a hint I heard a very strong tip from one of the well informed ones yesterday to watch closely happenings in front of the British lines, north from Arras."

It was not necessary, said counsel, to say that that being published on March 25 it was fifteen days before the great attack on Vimy Ridge. That was close by Arras, and to the north of it.

On April 2 that paragraph was brought to the attention of General Cockerill, who was chief of the Intelligence Department at the War Office, by headquarters in France, that was to say, seven days before the event.

Mr. Muir said that this paragraph was not submitted to the censor. In the light of subsequent events it was easy to see what its meaning was. What coming event on that date could be in the minds of people in Britain except the event which happened? When such a forward movement of troops as took place on April 9 was in preparation, preparations must extend over a long period and must be known to a large number of people.

"There are those," continued counsel, "who for the sake of babbing and chattering, and who, being in possession of information, desire the gratification of their own vanity by imparting it. There are those who, being in possession of news of good saleable value, are anxious to turn its value into money. Of such are the well-informed ones whose communications get into the newspapers." He contended that the only meaning of the paragraph was that the British were going to attack.

To a police inspector the editor said that he passed the paragraph and accepted responsibility, although he was not the writer.

Brigadier-General G. K. Cockerill, Sub-Director of Military Intelligence at the War Office, said that the first accurate knowledge of the intended movement which he had heard reached him through this newspaper on April 6. Practically all the British papers that were available were read by the Germans. The interpretation which he put upon the paragraph was that an offensive was about to be directed by the British troops north of Arras, and he could scarcely conceive of information more likely to be useful to the enemy. Even if it indicated the German intention to retreat, it would also be of use to the enemy.

In answer to Mr. Gill he agreed that this was shortly after the time of the great German retreat, and that the great topic was whether Hindenburg would say where he was on that line or withdraw further.

Mr. Gill: There was a question that he might counter-attack?—Yes.

Witness also agreed that it was well at that time that the public should not take too optimistic a view of the retreat.

Mr. Gill, addressing the court, said that the last thing in the minds of those connected with the newspaper was to do anything to which exception might be taken. The paper had always been conducted without complaint and had rendered enormous service to the country in connection with recruitng, the war loan, etc. It was astonishing that journalists might not speculate or publish information as to what the enemy might do. One surmise at the time was that the Germans might attack at this point above Arras, and this was discussed everywhere. No one on the paper had the slightest idea that the British attack was impending. Far from being of good saleable value, the paragraph was the sort of thing that might be written from the talk of two people who were discussing the situation. The page on which the paragraph appeared was mere gossip, and was not the sort of thing to which the Germans would turn for valuable information. It was not in the public interest that this should be magnified in the way that it had been. Mr. Bagster wrote the paragraph which was passed by Mr. Ritchie, barrister, employed to read everything that was intended for publication in the newspaper.

Mr. Sanderson, giving evidence said that the first he knew of any British attack at this point was when it appeared in the official communique. Several papers had been discussing what might happen.

Mr. Muir: Who was the well-informed one?—The Press Bureau.

Do you find anything from the Press Bureau that indicates a possible attack at this time?

Witness was about to refer to a document when Mr. Muir asked that the court might be cleared.

When the public were re-admitted, Sir William Treloar said: "I find the charges proved, but having regard to the trivial nature of them I shall inflict no punishment, but shall dismiss the summonses under the Probation Act."

PUBLIC OPINION

A POOR SOLDIER.

(Buffalo Commercial.)

John Barleycorn has received notice that his absence is more to be desired than his company in Uncle Sam's fighting forces. He never made a good soldier.

ASK THE WOMEN.

(Hamilton Herald).

Can anyone explain why at a time like this, when the price of leather is higher than it has been within the memory of man, fashion should decree that women must wear boots half way up to their knees?

THE NURSES IN THE WAR.

(London Daily Telegraph).

The story of the nurses' part in the war constitutes a fresh page in the annals of a race which is not without its glorious memories. It was once declared that "Woman is like a reed. Which bends to every breeze. But breaks not in the tempest." This war has submitted British womanhood to the test of a storm of fury unparalleled in the history of the world. How magnificently the nurses have stood up against this blizzard of hatred, the fruit of increasing despair, the official records of the matron-in-chief of Queen Alexandra's Imperial Military Service could reveal. But the organization maintains a silence comparable with that which the navy has relentlessly imposed upon itself. Only very occasionally, and partially, is the veil lifted to reveal a little group of nameless heroines, pathetic and yet majestic figures, confronting, unmoved by personal fears, horrors calculated to make strong men blench.

BLESSINGS OF TAXATION.

(The New York Republic)

During the twelve months ending March 31st the revenue of the British government from taxation was nearly $2,600,000,000, almost $1,800,000,000 more than for the last year preceding the war. This additional taxation has not affected the business of the country unfavorably. It has not proved a damper on business motives for thrift; not only so, but the taxes have proved positively advantageous. While the standard of life of no class in the community has been seriously lowered, individual consumption of comforts and luxuries has been materially reduced, thus setting free labour and capital for war purposes. Another, and even more important, advantage has also been secured through the imposition of additional taxation. The evident justice of taxing heavily those whose incomes have risen since the beginning of the war has stimulated the people generally to wholehearted exertion in every field of economic activity.

The only building remaining intact in all the region of Chauny and as far north as Saint Simon, in France, after the retreat of the Germans, was a wooden pavilion built upon a rise of ground between that was once the burg of Faillouel and the ruins of Flavy le Martel. A rustic fence around the building bears "Eitel Friedrich Schantz" (Eitel Frederick Redoubt.)

There is no evidence of the place having been fortified, and the supposition is that it served as an observatory or resting place for the Prince.

The building comprises a single room, papered in skyblue with gilt ornaments and furnished with rustic chairs and tables. The verandah commands a view of ruin and desolation. Nowhere in the zone evacuated by the German troops was the country more completely desolated.

The first positive traces of Prince Eitel Frederick in this region were found in Avricourt, where he occupied the chateau of Avricourt, belonging to Count Balny, in October, 1915. French aviators got the bearings of his headquarters there, and he left suddenly in 1916 for Fretoy le Chateau, where he occupied the property of M. Dubois. He took with him all the furniture, dishes and plate of the Count Balny.

Russian prisoners of war were brought there to dig deep underground shelter from airplane bombs for the Prince.

Prince Eitel was seen every morning at Fretoy spading in the garden, a physical exercise designed to reduce his corpulence. French aviators surprised him at this exercise in July last year. Their bombs demolished the headquarters of the army telephone service, and did other damage, whereupon Prince Eitel and his staff moved hurriedly to other quarters.

The second division of the guard appeared on the Somme in September, 1916, and Prince Eitel established himself in the chateau of Templeux la Fosse, about five miles from Peronne. After a fortnight's sojourn there the Prince and his staff were saluted one day by about a hundred shells, so well aimed that the evacuation of the place became advisable.

The next trace of the Prince was again at the chateau of Fretoy, where he established his headquarters, though he lived at a spacious farmhouse nearby. There he had his sleeping room connected by a subterranean tunnel with a concrete armoured shelter from bombs.

At Fretoy, according to revelations by inhabitants who passed the entire period of the occupation there, the men of the second division of the guard made a clean sweep of everything in sight that was transportable and even spaded up all the gardens of the town for hidden objects, a work which is said to have paid quite well.

Haig Strikes Huns Another Rapid Blow

ADVANCES ON SEVEN MILE FRONT

BRITISH GAIN NEW GROUND IN DRIVE SOUTH OF YPRES

Between Ypres and Comines General Haig's Forces Advance on Seven Mile Front Gaining All Objectives and Capturing a Number of Howitzers and Seven Machine Guns---"Enemy Was Quickly Overcome" Says General Haig's Special Message

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, June 15.—Field Marshal Haig drove forward in another rapid blow at the German lines in the "bottleneck" between Ypres and Comines, gaining "all objectives," according to his report to-day. One hundred and fifty prisoners and a number of howitzers with seven machine guns were captured and an advance made on a front of seven miles to a depth of from five hundred to one thousand yards.

"South and east of Messines, astride the Ypres-Comines Canal, we attacked yesterday. The enemy was quickly overcome," says the report. The Ypres-Comines Canal, along which Haig has achieved this "follow up" victory to that of Messines Ridge, forms the northern angle line of a triangle at which Comines is the point. At Comines the canal joins with the River Lys, along which Haig has already been steadily advancing. The two waterways make a slowly converging "bottleneck" and cut the inclosed German troops off from quick mobility.

"We now occupy the German front trenches from the River Lys to Warneve," Field Marshal Haig continued, "advancing between five and ten hundred yards on the whole front from Varnave and Klein-Zillebeke—a distance of seven miles."

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES AFIELD, June 15.—French aviators have been able to distinguish far behind the German front lines certain indications that a series of intermediate works has in some places been begun, and in others completed, in view probably of a further retirement by the German army to another line.

This retirement when it takes place will be a voluntary one, but will be the result of pressure by the French army.

MONTREAL, June 15. — La Croix, which circulates almost solely amongst the French-Canadian clergy, and which bears the cross, with "In hoc signo vinces" on the title page, is out boldly for the destruction of confederation. The editor-in-chief, Joseph Begin, writes that the confederation has been fatal for fifty years to French Canadians. "We have been exploited and bled white, as a political machine in the hands of the English majority. From being the pioneers of this beautiful country, we have become the valets of a race which pretends to be "superior" but which is nothing more than the modernized product of the rapacious jew.. What advantage minimum though it be have we got from confederation? How sweet it would be, in fact to live in a lower Canada separated from upper Canada, yet subject as at present to the British Crown?"

BUENOS AIRES, June 15.—Another outbreak of the revolutionary movement in the Chile was reported from Ascuncion to-day. Details were not received.

LONDON, June 15. — Since the war started England has captured 76,067 prisoners, and since July, 1916, has retaken 600 square miles of territory from the enemy, and captured on the West front alone 434 guns, according to estimates read in the House of Commons to-day by J. I. MacPherson, M.P. He said of the prisoners listed 10,900 alone had been taken in Mesopotamia since July, 1916.

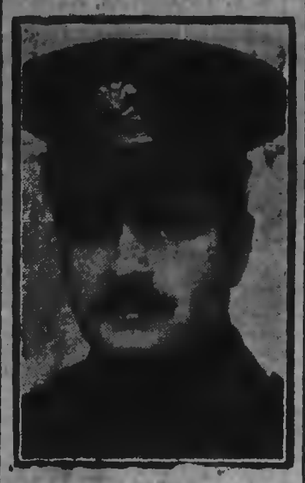
WASHINGTON, June 15.—Secretary of Treasury McAdoo this afternoon officially announced that the Liberty Loan is greatly oversubscribed.

LONDON, June 15.—The armed merchant cruiser Avenger was torpedoed and sunk in the North Sea Wednesday night, the Admiralty announced to-day. All except one of those aboard were saved.

LONDON, June 15.—General amnesty to Irish political prisoners was officially announced in the House of Commons to-day by Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law. The prisoners are mainly those concerned in the Dublin riots and the Sinn Fein plots of recent months.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—In addition to drafting men for the new national army the Government will probably have to draft additional forces to fill up the regular army and National Guard. This view was expressed by high military authorities this afternoon, following returns showing only one thousand enlistments in the army yesterday, one of the lowest amounts since April 5. Recruiting has been on a slump for several days.

PARIS, June 15.—Four French ships of more than 1,600 tons, one under that size, and three fishing boats were sunk by mines or submarine during the week ending June 14.



LIEUT.-COL. C. H. ROGERS, who is officially reported wounded. He was formerly commanding officer of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons.

LIEUT.-COL. ROGERS.

Lieut.-Col. C. H. Rogers who before the war was commanding officer of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, Peterborough and who left here in August, 1914 with a draft from that corps is officially reported wounded. Lieut.-Col. Rogers went overseas as second in command of the 2nd Battalion and afterwards was given the command of a battalion. His home is in Grafton.

PTE. FRANK MELVILLE.

Pte. Frank Melville who enlisted here in September 1915 with the 93rd Battalion unit is officially reported wounded in to-day's list. He had only recently returned to the trenches after undergoing an operation. No particulars have been received as to the nature of his injuries.

PTE. C. POWERS

Pte. C. Powers who enlisted in Peterborough with the 93rd Battalion and after going overseas was transferred to the Mounted Rifles is officially reported wounded. His relatives are in Quebec.

PTE. F. J. LEETHER

Mrs. Madeley, 108 Lansdowne street has received official word this morning that her son, No. 195186, Pte. Frank J. Leether, late of the 93rd Battalion has been slightly wounded in the head and was admitted to General Hospital, Boulogne on June 6th. Pte. Leether was with the 5th C.M.R. at the front. His wife resides at 108 Lansdowne Avenue.

HELPFUL CONFERENCE OVER THE PROBLEM OF THE RETURNED SOLDIER

Great War Veteran's Association and Soldiers' Aid Commission Have Long Discussion Over Matter--Educational Classes Planned---93rd Battalion Casualties--To-day's General Military News.

The problem of absorbing the returned soldiers into the industrial and business life of the city was the subject of an earnest conference between the executive of the Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association and Ald. Dobbin and Mr. G. H. Logie, representing the Soldiers' Aid Commission, last night. As a result of the meeting there promises to be a closer co-operation between the two bodies in the interests of the men who have held the line for Canada overseas. A suggestion from the War Veterans that their body should be represented at the Commission's meeting was warmly welcomed by the representatives of the Soldiers' Aid.

The many angles of the problem were discussed frankly and freely. Mr. Logie pointed out the desirability of placing the returned men in permanent positions, where in the event of expected hard times during the period of readjustment they would be protected. Positions such as munition inspecting were at best but temporary positions and when the business of shell making came to an end the inspectors would not have learned anything that would be of use to them afterward.

With a view to fitting the returned men, as far as possible, for permanent positions, the War Veterans' Association and the Soldiers' Aid are planning, if possible, the establishment of night classes. A start has already been made in this respect, and for a number of weeks a number of the veterans have been attending a brushing-up class under the direction of Mr. Clarke.

Mr. Logie announced that Mr. C. E. Jamieson of the Collegiate Institute staff had offered his services for the next six weeks to assist any of the veterans who wished to take a refresher course in commercial work. It is likely that this kind offer will be taken advantage of.

The lack of a technical school in Peterborough is being felt in planning for classes for the War Veterans next term, but an effort will be made to arrange for a certain amount of technical training. The War Veterans' Association will go into the matter thoroughly during the summer, and will decide on what classes are needed. Afterwards, backed up by the Soldiers' Aid Commission, they will ask the Board of Education for assistance, and there is no doubt that the educational authorities will co-operate, gladly.

Mr. Dobbin explained some of the difficulties he has experienced in finding suitable positions for returned men, and these points were discussed at considerable length and a number of suggestions made that should prove beneficial.

The conference was a most helpful one and harmonious, sincere work between the two bodies should be the result.

It will be of interest to many people in Peterborough to learn that Lieut.-Col. C. B. Worsnop, Canadian Infantry, mentioned in Sir Douglas Haig's despatch of 1st June is the only surviving son of a native of this city, his mother having been Mary Benson, a daughter of the late Lieut. Col. John R. Benson. His aunts are: Mrs. A. M. Brock and Miss Benson, both residents here. "Charlie" Worsnop as he is known in Vancouver, and in fact, all through British Columbia, has already won the coveted Distinguished Service order for his good work at the taking of Regina trench in November last and it was for his conduct at the capture of Vimy Ridge, that he is now mentioned in dispatch. His father is Lieut.-Col. C. D. Worsnop, of Vancouver, B. C., who is a veteran of the North West Rebellion, 1885, when he was a captain in the famous Winchester battalion, Middleton's 'Little Black Devils.'"

CANADIANS IN HOSPITAL.

Ottawa, June 14.—The Military Hospitals Commission to-day received from the Director of Medical Services in London a return showing the number of members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in hospitals in the United Kingdom on May 18. The total 23,544 showed an increase of 595 for the week. The number in Canadian primary and special hospitals, however, had fallen from 5,161 to 4,995, while the number in Canadian convalescent hospitals had risen from 4,633 to 5,049. The number in non-Canadian hospitals had also risen from 12,198 to 12,462. There were 68 men in the sanatoria for tuberculosis.

London, Ont., June 14.—A new patriotic movement to give recognition to the mothers of Canada is being lauched by the Associated Kin of C., E. F. President Gordon Wright, in an open letter in The Kinsman, to be issued to-morrow, explains that the purpose is to present to each mother who has given or lost a son in the war a token commemorative of her sacrifice and of her son's heroism. A Mothers' Recognition Committee has been formed, and has the design well under way, but the announcement is made that the plan is of such a comprehensive nature that trustees are to be named, one in each Province.

ANOTHER LOCAL BOY DECORATED

Pte. Ernest Abraham, Formerly Sergeant in the 93rd Battalion Wins Military Medal

Word has been received here that Private Ernie Abraham, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, had been awarded the Military Medal for brave conduct on the battlefield. Private Abraham went overseas as Sergeant in the 93rd and reverted to the ranks in order to get to the firing line. He has already been presented with the ribbon by the Colonel of the 4th Battalion, to which unit he is now attached, and was promoted to the rank of Sergeant on the field. He will in due course be presented with the medal by the King at Buckingham Palace. His many friends will be pleased to hear of this as he is the first of the 93rd boys to win this distinction. Sergeant Abraham is a son of Sergeant James Abraham, late Paymaster Sergeant of the 93rd. His wife and mother reside at 179 Rubidge street.

Things Are Quiet On The French Front

PARIS, June 15.—This afternoon's official statement follows:—"Artillery fighting continued during the night. In the region of Hurtebise and Craonne these actions were rather violent. South of Juvincourt, brief and severe bombardments were carried out by enemy batteries.

"German reconnoitring parties were caught by our fire near Hill 304 in the Chevaliers Wood, on the heights of the Meuse and in the vicinity of Bionecourt, in Lorraine and were unable to approach our lines. Everywhere else the night was calm."

Will Make Grants To The Railways

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., June 15.—The impression is growing that the government will resort to the old, old line of least resistance method of dealing with the railway problem. It is rumoured that $16,000,000 will be handed over to the Canadian Northern, and $8,000,000 to the Grand Trunk Pacific. Certain nominations will be made to the gifts, including probably the appointment of several directors representing the government. With elections a probability, the government does not desire to eliminate the railways from the realm of private enterprise.

Organized Labour Is Against The Bill

Must Have Proof From Government That Conscription is the Only Effective Measure Says President J. C. Watters

PTE. F. L. LEETHER, late of the 93rd Battalion, who is officially reported wounded.

ISSUES WARNING

OTTAWA, June 14.—"Until the Government gives proof that conscription is, in the words of the Prime Minister, the only effective method to preserve the existence of the State and of the institutions and liberties which we enjoy,' organized Labour has every warrant in seeking its defeat by both their economic and political power."

Labour's reply to the conscription of man-power measure brought down by Sir Robert Borden as made in a statement issued by Mr. J. C. Watters, President of the Dominion Trades and Labour Congress, to-night, concluded with the above sentences.

"If the Government is sincere in its determination to 'consecrate the power of the nation' to the cause of the allies and democracy, the conscription of man-power will follow, and not precede that of wealth and the nationalization of every industry necessary for the prosecution of the war," the statement further says.

Promised to Consult Labour.

"Up till the time the Prime Minister left for London we had repeated assurances that conscription was not contemplated by the Government. On the 27th of December last, while discussing with him the registration scheme of the National Service Board he stated, in connection with the adoption of conscription, in the hearing of Vice-Presidents Simpson and Rigg, Secretary Draper and myself, that he would consider it his duty to consult organized Labour before undertaking to act on a matter of such grave importance.

"The intimation I had was in the daily press, and no official of our Congress was consulted."

No Reason to Warrant Change.

"We were not consulted, but the Congress Executive sought an interview with the Prime Minister after his pronouncement on May 18 last to learn his reasons for his changed attitude. There was not the shadow of a reason revealed at the interview to warrant a change from voluntary to compulsory service. On the contrary, the statements made by the Prime Minister, taken in conjunction with the information I gleaned while in Washington the week previous, all went to demonstrate that the need of the hour was not men at the front so much as food for the people in our motherland, France and Italy, the means of transportation of the same by overcoming the submarine menace, and the manufacturing of all war supplies and building of ships.

Greatest Service From Canada.

"The greatest service that Canada can render the allies, therefore, is to conscript (not borrow) the wealth of the nation, to take over and operate the mines, railroads, munition works and other establishments necessary to the prosecution of the war (including the banking system), to eliminate the last vestige of profiteering, thus giving the nation the benefit, instead of the profiteer, of the work done.

"The conscription of 50,000 to 100,000 men to send to the front, where they are of comparatively minor importance, looks pathetically inadequate along side of the tremendous service which could be rendered the Empire by setting at naught the established order of things and consecrating the whole power of the nation to win the war.

Warns Organized Workers.

"I consider it my duty to sound a note of warning to the organized workers not to permit themselves to be shackled with the chains of conscription. In the event of its being established, any effort on the part of the workers to ameliorate conditions can be frustrated by simply calling them to the colours and placing them under military discipline, when orders must be obeyed on pain of punishment meted out by court-martial. The experience of the railway workers in France should be an object lesson in that regard."

AGREEMENT HAS BEEN SIGNED BY A RAILWAY COMPANY

Deputation Receive Assurance That Trent Canal Will Be Ready For Navigation Next Year—The Campbellford Bridge

PETERBORO' REPRESENTED

OTTAWA, June 15.—A deputation consisting of members of the Peterborough City Council, also representatives of municipalities bordering on the route of the Trent Canal, swept into the Capital this morning and subsequently met a number of the Cabinet Ministers, and also the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals. The speakers for the deputation which was one of a number that in the past few years have visited Ottawa on a similar mission, were insistent in their demand to know why the Government had so far failed to facilitate the opening of the Trent Canal from Lake Simcoe to Lake Ontario. This portion of the canal has been completed with the exception of an overhead bridge to be erected at Campbellford for the convenience of the Grand Trunk Railway. When this bridge is completed the canal will be open for navigation. Previous attempts to remove this obstacle have failed and some days ago it was decided to visit Ottawa and have another conference with the politicians.

The Reply.

The deputation was advised that the Grand Trunk Railway Company had signed an agreement to complete the bridge this year or forfeit to the Government the amount required to make all necessary arrangements for its completion. In this respect the Government has pledged itself to see that the canal is open for navigation by next year. The deputation was assured that the Government would complete the canal to the present depth of six feet and that the remainder will be completed at the first opportunity for resuming public work other than war work.

Among those who went from Peterborough were His Worship Mayor Duffus, Aldermen Smith, Duncan and McIntyre, Mr. J. J. Turner, President of the Board of Trade; Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Transportation Committee of the Greater Peterborough Association, and Mr. R. R. Hall, mover of the resolution passed at a public meeting held in Peterborough a few days ago when it was decided to take the matter to Ottawa.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Wiskin, 280 Thomas street, desire to thank their many friends for their kind expressions of sympathy in their recent sad bereavement, in the loss of their only child, Pte. J. D. Wiskin, who was killed in action May 9th.

Isn't it strange that men who brag always brag about something that doesn't interest you in the least.

REFERENDUM AMENDMENT TO BE MOVED

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., June 15. — It appears likely that a referendum policy is the one on which luke-warm conscriptionist Conservatives and anti-conscriptionist Liberals and Labour representatives will try to get together. Some Liberals are now talking of the referendum as "a way of avoiding trouble in Canada," and will evidently support it. The referendum of course threatens to wreck the compulsion bill. A referendum amendment will probably be moved by Alphense Verville, Labour representative. . . . . It is therefore obvious that unless a substantial body of Liberals vote against Verville's plebiscite there is genuine danger of a government defeat."

Then there would be an election, but not likely a referendum. If the government were returned they could get on and enforce conscription. But if the Liberals were returned they would be bound to take a referendum.

A feature of the conscription debate will probably be a demand by the Liberals for more accurate information as to the reserves in England.

New Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Business

The store premises, No. 350 George street, north of Market Arcade, has been leased by Mr. J. Friedman, former manager of The Toronto Ladies Tailoring Co. Mr. Friedman is having the premises fitted up for a Ladies Ready-to-Wear store, which he expects to open about the first week of July. It is the intention to carry a select stock of ladies' wearing apparel and other lines, and to embrace the most fashionable styles of garments as they appear each season. Mr. Friedman has had long experience in this line of business and his business connection in Peterborough has been satisfactory.

Probably no other genius ever stirred up as much trouble for mankind in general as the man who invented the lawn mower.

Rev. H. J. Keith Is In The City

Rev. H. J. Keith, former pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, is in the city to-day. Mr. Keith is on his way back to Edmonton after spending a few days in Montreal attending the meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly. Mrs. Keith, who has been east for about three months, will also return.

CHURCH UNION DEFERRED.

Although the Presbyterian General Assembly may not be better of the commendation, it is to be congratulated on the decision to drop the question of church union from its agenda, for the present at least. Men's minds are too much engrossed in the problems due to the war, to give due attention to the problematically practicable problem of church union, which does not seem to be a very pressing one for settlement. The churches concerned in the proposed union have had a splendid history of achievement in their separate status, and there is reasonable room for doubt that the advantages of union will compensate for the disadvantages incidental to, and in some ways, inseparable from, such a union—one of which is, as far as the Presbyterian Church is concerned, a danger of disunion—a split—resulting from the propaganda of the Presbyterian Church Association, which carries with it no inconsiderable justifiable opposition to union, and a large numerical element of the church, leading and lay. There is a large element of the Presbyterian Church strongly opposed to the church merger, which would not be opposed to deferring the question of church union to the Greek kalends.

CAN'T AND WON'T TRY.

We seem to be doomed to grin and bear the hardships of the food situation. Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, declares the government can't solve the high cost of living problem. "It is absolutely folly to suppose," Sir George says "that you can appoint a Food Controller to fix prices without reference to the law of supply and demand;" that is, the Borden government can not do what the Food Controller of Great Britain is doing every day. The government won't do it, because it doesn't try. It has appointed a Controller of Fuel; and is it "absolute folly" to suppose that he can do what a Food Controller, according to the government, cannot do? The Fuel Controller is a real official with power to do something in the matter of fuel supply. The government has appointed an "honorary" governmental—Board of Grain Commissioners to control the prices at which wheat shall be sold, etc. An honorary president has no duties, and an honorary Board of Grain Commissioners are in the same class—a striking example of the no-interest government takes in the matter of food supply, as related to the high cost of living.

The Minister of Labour, criticised for failing to do anything in the matter of the high cost of living, is no worse than the government which says it can't do anything.

AN UTOPIAN AMBITION.

The Financial Post is talking to the "idle winds." It is demanding that our political methods be overhauled, and that brains and business ability should be the first conditions of cabinet capacity, and representation in parliament. It pleads for a broader policy than political exploitation to get the best material in our government. It declares that what is wanted most is not conscription of manhood but conscription of wealth and men; conscription of the best brains of the country. The Post's contention is expressed in these words:

> The greatest problem in Canada to-day is leaders, not conscription. Give us the right leaders—the proved executive—the men who have built up, and are successfully directing the great industrial armies—the men whose leadership the people would unhesitatingly follow. Conscript leaders, and we may not need to conscript the masses.

This is a fine theory, but like many other fine theories, it is not practicable. How is it to be accomplished? We need leadership to conscript the leadership that is demanded, and that would doubtless be a splendid thing for the country. In our present political make-up, no political leader is going to efface himself by associating with himself bigger men than himself. The proposal of the Post argues absence of political or, rather party, considerations in the conscription of leaders—in getting the best material for an ideal national executive; it argues the necessity of as much patriotism as partisanship in Canada, and that we have not at present, and it does not seem that that millenial condition is in sight even of the largest optimism. Still the predominance of patriotism and exaltation of the country's good alone, as elements of government policy, is an ambition worth aiming at, a goal worth striving for.

In place of having the best brains and business ability embodied in and consecrating the national executive to the most effective service, we have partisan considerations paramountly handicapping the comparatively mediocre ability that the partisan system and party expedience thrusts into positions of tremendous responsibility.

If at this time of emergency and, indeed, of crises, Sir Robert Borden, who at present is, at least, the titular leader of the country, would call as the Post demands, the best minds, the best trained intellects—trained in the work of achieving great industrial and commercial successes—he would be doing what the rulers, the leaders, of the greatest nations are doing, or have done. The Post points out that Germany would not have achieved the malignant success of its policy of brutality and destruction, without the help of great business leaders. A similar thing was done in Britain and the United States, where wonderful accomplishments have been effected.

Now, that King Constantine of Greece has "retired" to private life, he'll get it. The Kaiser's sister, his wife, will be able to concentrate petticoat domination.

NEW SOURCE OF COAL FUEL.

This war is a grievous thing; but its effects are not, and will not be, all bad; and its influence will be beneficial to the extent to which its demands help us to find ourselves, to do things; to meet emergencies. The fuel situation, it is declared, promises to be disastrous. If the Research Council does not do anything more than to make the possibility of utilizing the inexhaustible stores of western lignite, it will justify its existence and justify the Borden government creating it. Professor Ruttan of the Advisory Council of Scientific Research, told the Manufacturers' Association meeting in Winnipeg that means of utilising lignite as practicable fuel had been devised. Lignite can by the process discovered, be turned into briquettes for fuel purposes at two-thirds of the cost of anthracite coal delivered in the west, and he adds that pound for pound these briquettes contain as much fuel power as anthracite coal.

This, if true, is a very important statement. There are endless deposits of lignite in the north-west outcropping or near the surface, and easily mined. Lignite is a form of coal between peat and bituminous coal, and if an economical means has been found to make it equal in fuel value, "pound for pound" with anthracite coal, we can draw a breath of relief, for our fuel supply will not be at the mercy of the coal barons to the south of us.

This situation demands further attention by the government, and it is to be hoped the new fuel dictator, Mr. McGrath, will see that its potentiality be practically tested. If we can get these lignite briquettes in commercial quantities, then we must have our railway transportation made equal to moving it to the head of the lakes. And once there we should have the Trent Canal opened so that the new fuel can be laid down in Peterborough at the lowest cost. Thank goodness, if western crops come and western coal is made available, we shall neither starve nor freeze—get no "raw deal," either in the matter of food supply or preparation.

Mr. Burnham's recantation, depending upon the government's conscription of wealth, seems to be founded on a nebulous statement of the Minister of Finance that the government would next year—perhaps after the war—take steps to "conscript" wealth by an income tax.

GALLANT CANADIAN SOLDIER'S CAREER CLOSES AT VIMY RIDGE

There was killed the other day, a gallant soldier, who was as daring as he was picturesque. Major T. O. Callaghan, D.C.M., was killed on the 9th instant while leading his men against the Germans. "Casey" Callaghan, as he was nicknamed, was well known in both eastern and western Canada, and his earlier exploits during the Boer War were widely written about, both in Great Britain, the United States, and Canada. In his scouting in South Africa, where he did valuable work, he adopted the old Indian tactics, which he was so familiar with, and was marvellously successful in every thing he undertook.

In his day Callaghan had no superior in the west as a cattleman, horseman, rifle shot, and hunter. When the Boer War broke out he applied for enlistment, and finally landed in South Africa with the men from the west, and advanced rapidly becoming in short time a famous scout. He was one of the best known scouts from Canada, Major Ross being the other. The young Canadian, who was born and brought up in Toronto, to trek west later on, first attracted attention when he surprised eight Boers in a farmhouse and captured them single-handed. He was soon promoted to the rank of Corporal, and held that rank when he first came under the attention of Gen. French. General French having received information that 400 Boer transport carts could be easily captured, [illegible] through the enemy's lines to General Smith-Dorrien's army, a distance of 70 miles. Nine men offered to carry the despatch, each by different routes. Of the nine, five were captured, three were shot dead, and Corp. Callaghan was the only one to get through after a desperate effort. General Smith-Dorrien sent out a detachment and captured the transports. For this feat the Corporal was promoted by General French to the rank of lieutenant, and was awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal. After a short period he assumed command, at the request of General Kitchener, of a body of surrendered Boers, who wished to become Scouts. This body of men wwho did good service, were known as Callaghan's Scouts. A short time before the close of the war he was promoted to the rank of captain, though at the time he was little more than a boy.

After the close of the war he settled in San Francisco, where he became an expert as an aeronaut. In the earthquake he escaped from the ruins of an hotel in which forty people were killed. Of late years Major Callaghan was engaged in mining in Stewart and Granby, B.C., with Gen. and Col. Leckie. On the outbreak of the present war he came east to take out his commission. He left for England with the Canadian Mounted Rifles, from Victoria, and reverted from the rank of major to the rank of lieutenant in order to get to the front.

HALF-PENNY FARES PREVAIL IN GLASGOW

Made Municipal Tramway System a Great Success.

There was recently celebrated in Glasgow the extinction of the debt of the Glasgow, Scotland, Corporation Tramways, says the Montreal Gazette. The Glasgow tramway service is said to be unique, in the sense that it provides adequate accommodation at reasonable rates. In fact, Sir James Bell, who was Lord Provost when the tramways were taken over by the municipalities in 1894, boasted that Glasgow had a service not surpassed, nor equaled, in the world. Last year 362,000,000 fares were collected, and of the people paying these fares about two-thirds were carried at a halfpenny. Said Sir James Bell: "The earnings last year amounted to £1,149,000, and out of that not less than £458,000 was gathered in halfpenny fares. If they had not instituted the halfpenny fare there would have been half a million more out of the pockets of the people, and he questioned if the tramways would have been so successful and the service so much a boon to the community as they had been." And he continued:

"They were backed up by the people of Glasgow, who were satisfied with the service, and they continued to improve it until £3,836,000 had been spent on capital account. In addition to that £464,080 had been paid into the Common Good and they carried forward £119,000 to renewal and depreciation. Altogether, the tramway system of Glasgow had drawn £4,600,000 over and above the expenditure. In twenty-three years that was an enormous sum, and it had enabled them not only to square all accounts, but, with every debt extinguished, their capital account extinguished, they started afresh as if they were beginning the tramway system with £119,000. They had given to the city a means of egress and ingress such as no city ever possessed. To crown all, when the nation came to demand money for the nation's needs the Corporation came forward and gave the largest donation he knew of any municipality in the kingdom. That £2,000,000 was founded on the tramway system, and would ever go to the honour and credit of Glasgow."

SWEDEN INFESTED WITH SPIES WHO OPERATE BOLDLY

AGITATORS FROM THE UNITED STATES TALK GERMAN ON THEIR WAY TO RUSSIA, AMERICANS REPORT.

STOCKHOLM, via London. — In reply to verbal interpellations in Parliament touching on the activities of spies in Sweden, O. F. von Sydow, Minister of the Interior, said to-day that the government was fully alive to the dangers threatening the country from this source. Many suspected persons already had been expelled from Sweden, he said, and new measures which were in contemplation would the government believed, facilitate ridding the country of these agents.

The Minister explained that it was difficult to procure evidence. Nevertheless the government was taking every possible measure. There is no doubt the government is doing all in its power to put a stop to the espionage from which Sweden, in common, with the other Scandinavian countries, has suffered greatly. All of these lands are infested with spies. Great importance is attached to the operations of these agents, numbers of whom work here.

A typical example has just come to light with the expulsion from Sweden of a man calling himself Joseph Klein, who passed as a Russian patriot. He had made the mistake of confiding in men whom he believed to be Russian anarchists. They led him on to disclose his intentions, which are said to have included among other things, the murder of Sir George Buchanan, the British Ambassador to Russia, and the destruction of the presses of the Petrograd newspaper, Rech. Klein exhibited to printers, a patriotic circular in Russia:

"Englishmen are dragging our Fatherland down into an abyss. The accursed Englishmen are speedily drinking the Russian people's blood. Down with the Englishmen! With their gold they have driven the whole world into opposing camps. Rulers! We have now had enough robbery and murder of our peasants. Down with meaningless bloodshed. We demand immediate peace."

Russian paper money on which was anarchistic inscriptions were written, was discovered. The matter was brought to the attention of the police and Klein was arrested and expelled. It was learned later that Klein, although he signed his name on the hotel register in Russian characters, and posed as a Russian patriot, in reality is an Austrian subject.

An unfortunate feature of the situation is that men of this stamp find plenty of material to work on among the Russians returning to this country from Switzerland, America, and England. Many of these are patriots who are going back to assist their country in establishing stable government and bringing the war to a favorable termination. Many others, however, are anarchistic agitators, enemies of all law and order, who do not hesitate to express themselves to that effect as soon as they are safely away from the harbor.

A well known American who has just arrived from the United States, expressed to the correspondent the greatest surprise at the character and frankness of the conversation of a great number of Russians on board the ship, who did not hesitate to say they were returning to Russia to take up the work of anarchistic agitation where they were compelled to drop it years ago. Similar amusement was expressed by another prominent American who has arrived here from London.

"There were Russians in large numbers aboard our vessel," he said, "but little conversation in the Russian language was heard. Almost all of them talked nothing but German among themselves. I understand German, and the nature of their conversation made me indignant. Those men, on board a British ship, were discussing openly in German the necessity of immediate peace at any price, and were elaborating their scheme for opposing the provisional government to the utmost."

Information has been received here from private sources indicating that some of the returned exiles, especially those from Switzerland, who went through Germany, played a prominent part in the Kronstadt uprising. In conclusion two facts may be stated for what they are worth: First, the Russian Consulate at Haparanda, Sweden, has a staff of two persons, one of whom was added recently, whereas the German Consulate there has a staff of ten. (Haparanda is on the north coast of the Gulf of Bothnia, at the Russian border.) Second, one of the Russian delegates to the Stockholm Socialist conference, will be Alexandra Kollontay, a woman agitator, who was expelled from Sweden in 1914, and had to obtain the king's permission to attend the conference here.

Economy Conserves Britain's Food, No Fear of Famine

LONDON, June 13.—Changes in England are not startling in three months' time, but on the whole England is much more confident of victory than when I saw it in February.

People will not tell you how or when, but that the Allies will win they are unshakably certain.

Whereas three months ago both press and public had their doubts about President Wilson, they are now really un-British in their superlatives and generally accord him first place among the world's statesmen.

The first feeling noticed here is the relief over the submarine situation. England is as far from famine as on March 1. Whatever diminution in food supply has been caused by the submarines has been made good by general co-operation in economy. Signs in front windows of private houses announce that the dwellers are in honour bound to the rationing system.

General good faith has been practiced with the result that the food supply has been conserved. Potatoes were unattainable for a while, but now the use of seed potatoes only is prohibited and a new crop is available, the only question being the price.

At Ranelagh Club on Saturday they gave the American Ambassador, a guest, only three tiny lumps of sugar for two portions of tea. People are learning to use less sugar, and to their own advantage. The bread ration of three pounds a week is made by a Government recipe. It is a great improvement on the former bread and saves white flour, wholewheat being utilized.

Vegetables and fruits are dear but comparatively plentiful, and there is enough meat for everybody if used in moderation. Owing to the general and profitable employment, the high prices are not burdensome. A greater area of land was planted, but there is much fallow land. Owing to labour shortage numbers of women are working the land. If the danger of a reduction of England by the submarine exists, one encounters no sign of it anywhere.

Just now there is considerable buoyancy on account of the Messines victory, but even aside from that conditions are cheerful. The streets are crowded, trade is good, the darkening of cities has been modified and what remains is no longer depressing, as it is daylight until ten o'clock.

Lord Northcliffe's absence creates a relaxing atmosphere. One imagines that there is less bite in that portion of the press. I learn that he was most reluctant to drop the reins and accept the mission offered him, much as he enjoys visiting America.

General Perishing and his staff are getting a typical British welcome, just the sort the General himself likes for its quietness and restraint. To compare the Pershing demonstration here to the welcomes to Joffre and Balfour in New York is to liken a summer zephyr to a Kansas cyclone. Everybody, from the King down, has saluted General Pershing and his party with becoming and appriate courtesy, but the fact is that the English do not know how to yell.

A like comment applies to Mr. Balfour's return. No popular demonstration awaited him. The papers all gave him editorial approval for the success of his mission and about sticks of matter, under a two-line head in the news columns.

Pigeons need salt. If you have a box of salt in a convenient place, notice how often they will come to it.

Red Cross Column

At the regular monthly executive meeting of the local Red Cross Society, held Monday afternoon, June Eleventh, most gratifying reports were given by the convenors of the various committees. In view of the continued severe fighting with heavy casualties, and in answer to an urgent appeal from headquarters, a special effort had been made, not only to avoid a cessation of work during this summer, but to assure an increase in the supplies, which are so seriously needed. A magnificent response had been made by all the auxiliaries to this call, for each one had voluntarily pledged itself to increase its work substantially and to concentrate on those articles, which are most urgently asked for. In fact, in most of the societies, this special effort had been already instituted with excellent results. It will no doubt be a source of comfort to most of us, to feel that, while our brave boys are fighting during these commonly-called vacation months, the women at home are likewise doing their bit and doing it gladly to make things a little easier for the men in the trenches and to add to the comfort of the sick and wounded.

The convener of the Supplies committee reported that a sufficient supply of yarn and materials to carry on the work for the remainder of the year had already been purchased. This, in view of the probable scarcity and even famine in some lines, was a matter of congratulation. Mrs. Scott has most generously undertaken to cut out all dressing gowns required, and any auxiliary or individual worker desirous of making these, may procure the material now from Mrs. Scott.

The convener of the Sock committee reported for May a total of 574 pair of socks, of which 368 pair were machine knit and 129 pair hand knit. Of these latter 77 pair were donations from the following auxiliaries and societies: Murray street 14 pair, Lakehurst 45 pair and St. Paul's 18 pair.

3 dressing gowns, 15 jackets.
122 pair pyjamas.
558 pair socks, 126 pair C.W.C.A.
540 sheets.
1,046 towels.
272 pillow cases.

The following societies and branches had contributed: St. Andrew's P. S., Berean Bible Class, Buckhorn, Murray street Baptist church, St. Paul's Auxiliary, Y.M.C.A. Mothers' Club, Trinity Methodist church and St. Peter's P. S.

It is a matter for sincere thankfulness that all shipments up to date had left Montreal and that an official report of the safe arrival of the ship in England had been received.

In view of the present discussion and agitation over the establishing and equipping of a convalescent home in this city, the following extract from a communication, received by the local society from headquarters should be of considerable interest: "The Executive committee of the Canadian Red Cross has entered into arrangements with the Army Medical Corps and the Military Hospitals Commission, whereby the society shall assist in the work of caring for sick and wounded soldiers in Canada as well as overseas—such work being within the scope laid down by the charter.

After correspondence with the departments and a conference with representatives of the Army Medical Corps and the Commission it was arranged that the society should invite the commanding officers of military hospitals to "indent" (or requisition) on the Red Cross in Canada, as is done overseas, with the object of rendering the military hopitals in Canada more home-like and efficient by providing extra comforts and equipment not included in the stores issued by the government. In an emergency the Red Cross might also be required to assist the hospitals by providing further necessaries for a sudden increase in the number of patients for whom ordinance stores are not immediately available and who might suffer if required to wait for an issue from the government stores. "Extra" and "Emergency" are two words which give a clue to the kind of service from which the military hospitals should look to the Red Cross and which the Red Cross is prepared to supply.

Many still ask, 'what is the Red Cross doing for our boys at the front, and does it reach any, save those in the hospitals?' It is interesting here to note some extracts from a little story told in connection with the third battles of Ypres by Col. E. B. Hardy, D.S.O., who signs himself rightly, "One Who Knows": "Picture the battle going on for days, a most terrific rain of shells, nerve-wrecking cannonading and continuous rifle and machine gun fire. Every now and then a brilliant charge by our brave boys and more ground gained. It was not easy, far from it, and many were the casualties, with never a groan or a regret. Each man fought on until exhausted. A few miles in the rear was a field ambulance, acting as a rest station for slightly wounded and worn out, exhausted troops. We had room for only 200, but as the battle went on, we arranged accommodation in barns, stables and sheds until more than 600 were in our care. What do we do for them and how did the Red Cross help us? As each lorrie drove up, the men tumbled out, tired, exhausted and nerve-shaken, and then a big bowl of soup or a hot drink of Red Cross cocoa was given each man. Then into the doctor's hands they went, where their wet, mud-covered clothing was removed and any necessary dressings fixed up with Red Cross dressings. Then a good shower bath, with Red Cross soap, dried on a Red Cross towel and into a suit of Red Cross pyjamas and a pair of Red Cross slippers. Now for a good hot meal, army rations, supplemented by Red Cross jam, Red Cross biscuits, Red Cross fruits, washed down by Red Cross cocoa. Then a Red Cross cigarette and rolled up into a couple of blankets and off to sleep for twenty-four hours or so. That is how we helped to have many a poor fellow from breaking down completely for the nerve strain was awful and that is how we helped to prevent disease brought on by exposure and exhaustion.

And if you take away the Red Cross comforts, what could we do for them? Why you would take away all that which fills in the gap between the necessaries of life, as provided by the army, and the state, which one might term 'reasonable comfort.' Ladies of Canada, for it is you we think of as the backbone of the Canadian Red Cross, let me assure you that your efforts have brought back the smile of hope to many a poor wounded man in the border line between life and death, and just added sufficient weight to turn the scale in the right direction."

Black Eagle Flees The Dynasty Dies

Historic Royal Bird's Disappearance From Prussia Forerunner of Hohenzollern Doom.

A simple fact looked upon as a phenomenon, has startled Germany, according to a letter from Zurich, Switzerland.

It is this: The Prussian black eagle, from the first founding of the Prussian kingdom the symbol of power, has forsaken its haunts, on the crags of the Suabian Alps, where towers the castle of the Hohenzollerns!

For ten centuries these great black eagles have made their homes on the gigantic cliffs of the lower Alps which shelter this cradle of Hohenzollern royalty.

This is the first year they have disappeared. The cause of their going is a mystery, but to the peasants of the Black Forest and to many others it signifies the passing of the Hohenzollerns, the hereditary Prussian kings.

When the grim old elector of Brandenburg was crowned king of Prussia in 1701, he founded the military Order of the Black Eagle, and incorporated the king of birds into the imperial seal. Beneath it were the words "Suum Cuique"—"To each his own."

With the passing of the black eagle of German royalty, say the peasants, will come the surrender of the sceptre of Prussian power.

These eagles have been protected from molestation by imperial decree for centuries. Edicts innumerable safeguarded their home and made them the most familiar things in the rugged and majestic vistas outspread before the towers of the Hohenzollern.

According to reports that have reached Switzerland, there is many a German who believes that Kaiser Wilhelm, having violated the terse legend of the insignia of the imperial seal—"to each his own"—is bringing upon his head the wreck of the Hohenzollern dynasty.

Press Comment on China's Uprising

Brooklyn Eagle:—"A country claiming to be a republic, even though working under forms rather English than American, cannot tolerate arbitrary substitution of the will of the executive for that of the Parliament. This is as true of China as of Greece, where like despotism has caused like rebellion."

"SEES HAND OF JAPAN."

Philadelphia Press:—"No Occidental can clearly gauge the intricacies of Chinese politics, but it is fairly safe to assume that the hand of Japan is somewhere concerned in the new revolt."

WILL SUPPORT WAR ON GERMANY.

Troy Record:—"The fact that number of the important provinces of China refuse to further recognize the authority of the Pekirg government does not mean that they are ready to set up a separate government. If they can secure a new administration which will declare war against Germany, they probably will be ready to support it in its acts."

FOOLISHNESS SEEMS INCREDIBLE.

Albany Argus:—"It is altogether likely, as charged, that a lot of the militarists are bent on restoring the Manchu Empire. It seems incredible that China can be so foolish to seek escape in this way from difficulties that are far from insoluble."

EXPRESSION OF UNREST.

Boston Globe:—"As far as we know, these Chinese revolutions are not very sanguinary, but, nevertheless, they are the expression of the great unrest in China and the desire for progress, and change, and a form of government that will be respected at home and abroad."

MAUDE'S FIGHTING FAMILY.
(New York Sun.)

More laurels for General Frederick Stanley Maude. He has the habit of victory. At last the British have a strategist in Mesopotamia who can outwit and outfight the Germanized Turks. The passage of the Shatt-el-Adhem was another of Maude's surprises. He excels in swift attack. Taking 1,217 of the enemy, his casualties were only 73

Maude came of a fighting family, his father, General Sir F. Maude, V. C. The son has done little else than fight for his country since he entered the army in 1884. He distinguished himself in the Soudan and in the Boer war. He has also been very much in demand as a staff officer. He was assistant director of the territorial forces for three years. A well educated and experienced officer, famous for his personal bravery, Maude was ready when the call to Mesopotamia came.

Civic Incinerators Can Produce Potash

Vladimir G. Simkhovitch, an agricultural expert, writes as follows in the New York Times: In talking to farmers large and small, I find a growing disinclination to use this year any commercial fertilizers.

The reason is obvious. Since the outbreak of the war there have been practically no complete fertilizers on the market. Nitrates are expensive being used for ammunition and imported from Chili. As for potash its scarcity makes its price beyond the farmers Phosphates, of course, we have, but they can make up for the lack of nitrogen and potash in the fertilizer formulas, and yet it is worth while to remember that the plant food contained in the soil in the least amount is the element that controls and checks the development of the plant.

Of course the problem of supplying nitrates is not so important, for though expensive, they are not beyond reach; besides, nitrogen in large quantities are daily produced on our farms by the bacteria in our clover fields and supplied by our barnyard manure. It is different with potash and yet I am inclined to believe that a tremendous amount of potash is being wasted in this country through sheer thoughtlessness.

Most cities have incinerators. What are they doing with the ashes? As a rule they are using them to fill in swamps and waste land. It so happens that city refuse produces ashes peculiarly rich in potash.

I am sorry to say that most of such ashes in this country go to waste—nor are hardwood ashes utilized here. We are allowing our sawmills, whether of hard or soft wood, to pollute the rivers and choke the streams with the sawdust, seldom requiring the installation of incinerators. The potash content of hardwood ashes is also very high and even soft wood ashes are a most valuable fertilizer.

As potash becomes almost invaluable, and nitrate became very expensive, our fertilizer companies did not go out of business; they were preparing fertilizers of slight agricultural value that they were palming off on the farmer. Having spent a great deal of money on fertilizers that have not done him much good the average farmer of to-day is so disheartened that he is likely to plant this year's crops using little or no fertilizer. This is bound to result in a substantial decrease in the amount harvested.

It would be difficult for the government to manipulate and regulate the most decentralized business in our country—that of farming—but it would not be so difficult to take over for the duration of the war our fertilizer plants, and run them for the benefit of the farmer, i.e., the nation at large.

30,000 MEN IN EACH CAMP

Sixteen Camp Sites For New National United States Army Chosen.

WASHINGTON, June 14. — The War Department to-day announced the following cities as sites for cantonment camps for the new national army: Rockford, Ill.; Petersburg, Va.; Annapolis Junction, Md.; Yaphank, South Haven, L.I.

With the selection to-day of the four camp sites, the War Department completed the selection of the sixteen cantonments for the national army. Each of the sixteen will be of a semi-permanent nature, constructed of wood. The camps will be constructed to house about 30,000 men each.

Dear Mary:—

I think that many people who entertain make the mistake of not having their extra furniture LIGHT. It is so much easier to move around. And then willow chairs are so "cumfy." Then you can buy them on such easy payment terms.

Mrs. W—. was so mortified yesterday. While visiting her I snagged my pretty blue silk dress irrepairably on an old chair. My dress was worth half a dozen new chairs. It was hard for me to smile and impossible for her.

Amiably notwithstanding — HELEN.

HOW THE INCOME TAX WILL WORK OUT IN CANADA

OTTAWA, June 14.—Some surprise is expressed at the capital over the reported conversion of the Government to the principle of income tax. No longer ago than May 23, Sir Thomas White said in the House: "I have given this matter of income taxation my most careful consideration and I have reached the conclusion, which I believe is sound, that at present it is not desirable to impose an income tax." The Minister gave as his reason that such a tax on the scale adopted in the United States, would not raise over $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 per year, and would be very costly to collect.

He also thought it would result in diminishment of givings to Red Cross and other patriotic projects. He said, however, "We may find it necessary to resort to an income tax and if we find it necessary, for my part, I will not hesitate to resort to it." If the Government now adopts the principle, it will probably date the commencement of the tax some distance in advance.

CANADA'S WAR TAXES.

Canada is already imposing war taxes which net approximately $65,000,000 per year. The present annual receipts from these extra taxes are about as follows:

Excess Profits Tax	$15,000,000
War Tariff	37,000,000
Bank Tax	1,000,000
Loan Companies	400,000
Spirit, Tobacco	7,000,000
Extra Postage	6,000,000
Total	$67,000,000

Exact figures are not available. The excess profits tax raised $13,500,000 for the first year and may go as high as $20,000,000 the second. The war tariff tax does not represent the difference in customs collections for the fiscal year 1916 and 1917, but only that paid of the difference which is due to tariff increases made specially for war purposes. Total tariff collections have been as follows: 1915, $79,500,000; 1916, $108,000,000; 1917, $147,000,000.

HOW IT WOULD AFFECT TORONTO.

How an income tax on the United States scale plus the existing municipal income tax would affect Toronto incomes over $3,000 may be gathered from the following table. Smaller incomes would be exempt.

	Municipal Tax.	Federal Tax.
[illegible] 2	$38	$20

Coal Scarcity At Mines Artificial

Made Possible by Transportation Difficulties—Owners Independent

NEW YORK, June 14.—Creation of an artificial scarcity of coal during the summer months, when prices should be low, is made much simpler by a shortage of railway cars. Lack of adequate transportation facilities is helping along the present alleged insufficiency of anthracite.

Purchase of large quantities of coal in bulk at the present tie is impossible. The mine owners in Pennsylvania and Ohio won't sell that way, and the railways say they can't carry it fast enough to meet the demand. Steel has doubled in price, and the railway companies will not build new coal-carrying cars unless they are allowed to raise their freight rates.

DEMAND TO CONTINUE.

Huge demands for coal make the mine-owners independent. They know people must have coal. If sales are delayed until the frost begins to nip, then people will be more ready to pay higher prices. The demand will be sharpened by the frost. Under the stress of keen necessity there will be no way of evading the coal bills. Consequently the owners are not concerned about supplying the market just now.

Additional consumption, because of war conditions, of course, has made the coal market brisk. There is less competition. On the other hand, no evidence exists that the supply from the mines would not be sufficient for the needs of all if properly handled and kept moving. The Federal Trade Commission, says there is enough coal for all purposes. While war helps to create unique conditions which seem to help out the owners, there is a general feeling that the "because of the war" cry is being overworked by those in a position to hold up prices. There is a general feeling in the eastern states in favour of the Government taking over and operating all the coal mines.

Many individual retail dealers in different cities are also shareholders in mines. Purchase of supply direct from the mines is thus made doubly difficult. The owners will not sell direct when there is a chance of making a double profit by selling through the retailer. The mine owner gets his and the retailed adds on his.

The railway situation, both in Canada and in the United States, is said to be as bad now as it was last January. There is a possibility of improvement so far as Toronto is concerned. The T. H. & B. has purchased a tract of 53 acres on the western border of Bridgeburg, opposite Buffalo, for a yard. From this it is presumed that the T. H. & B. is preparing to handle some of the traffic which the recent report of the Royal Commission investigated Canadian railroads showed the G.T.R. was unable to handle. Last winter the latter road had great difficulty in bringing supplies of coal into Toronto.

DYING PRINCE TOLD OF HIS LAST FLIGHT

Frederich Karl of Prussia Described in Letter Home His Battle in the Air

WAS SHOT AFTER LANDING

BERLIN, via London. — In his last letter to his parent, dated "Barcen Lazarette, Albert, March 30th," Prince Friedrich Karl of Prussia, who was shot down in his flying machine, and died later, says:

"Now, something about my air flight. You know I started with Walse's squadron. We cruised along the front for a long time without seeing anything. We went as far north as Arras and south in the direction of Bapaume and Peronne and flew very low. On our return to the boundary we all of a sudden discovered some 900 or 1,000 meters below six or eight Vickers monoplanes. Our leader immediately went for them, and I followed, not willing to leave him alone, the enemy numbering so many more machines. That our other fliers did not follow can only be explained by assuming that they did not discover the enemy in the low dark clouds.

"How we went for them! I sometimes lost sight of the German leading machine, but always managed to find it again. Suddenly one enemy flier came my way and I attacked him. He fled and I after him. Thus I lost my only comrade.

"The enemy fliers around me increased still more in numbers. They must have noticed the dangerous condition of the men I was chasing. Meanwhile I had succeeded in manoeuvring my opponent pretty close to earth, when all of a sudden I heard the tack tack of a machine gun behind me, and the next moment my motor stopped. The enemy behind me kept tack-tacking with the result that soon I was wounded in the right foot. Thank Heaven, the steering levers remained intact.

"Gliding over badly battered villages and trenches, I succeeded in landing, as the Australians who captured me said afterwards, not far from the German lines. I should have liked to have destroyed the machine, but the enemy gunfire prevented it. My second thought was to reach our lines, but the enemy at once directed his fire at me. Still I seemed to have luck until finally a bullet pierced my spine and came out at the right of my stomach. I went down like a log.

"When finally the Australians found me, they treated me very tenderly. I had lost so much blood and was freezing with cold. Two soldiers kindly offered their great coats, and covered me with them. They carried me an endless stretch until we found a physician, but they were very careful about it."

Popular "Oh! Cecil" Musical Comedy Here Monday

When the biggest success of the present London season "Oh! Cecil" comes to the Grand Opera House on Monday, June 18, it will be sure to find a capacity audience awaiting it, if the advance sale is anything to go by. The fame of this clever musical comedy has preceded it, and there will be no cause to doubt the interpretation which will be given it when the galaxy of Stars are considered. First and foremost is that big favourite here, Mr. Vera Dushayne, who will be well and favorably remembered for his wonderful and screaming impersonation of the "Johnny" in "Peg O' My Heart."

In "Oh! Cecil" Mr. Dushayne has a real London "Knut" role and nothing so funny has been seen here. The company is a big one, and carry a car load of scenery and effects.

Seats are on sale at the Theatre to-day and as the demand is likely to be larger than usual, reservations had better be made without delay. 'Phone orders will only be kept until six o'clock Monday evening.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT S. A. TEMPLE

Lieut.-Col. Hargrave, of Toronto, will conduct special services at the S. A. Temple, Chamberlain street, Brownton, next Saturday evening and all day on Sunday. All are cordially invited.

THE LOYALTY OF QUEBEC.

Premier Gouin Refers to It in Addressing Governor-General.

QUEBEC, June 14.—At the official reception to the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire last evening, Premier Gouin said: "You may rest assured, your Excellency, that in no part of Canada will you find subjects of the Empire entertaining greater respect for British traditions, more Loyal to His Majesty or devoted to the person of his representatives."

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

Recruits Stream To Join Kilties Now in Boston

BOSTON, Mass., June 11.— James F. Allen, bare-kneed and kilted stood up before the congregation of the Clarendon street Baptist church last night and sang a solo. With John Gray MacIvor, and several other attendants at the church, he is about to join the 236th New Brunswick Kilties. As the Rev. and Mrs. William Allen and many of the congregation are Scots, the church is interested in this regiment, which the mens class voted yesterday to make the beneficiary of their appropriations for war relief.

The Kilties conducted an open-air recruiting rally at the stand in Scollay Square last night, at which nine recruits were received for the British Army and seventeen sent to the office of the United States Army.

The party opened with a concert by the band, after which speeches were made by Col. Guthrie and Captains Rand, McNalley, Goldenrath and Black.

Saturday night Colonel Guthrie and Captain Goldenrath took four pipers and two drummers and made short visits to Chelsea and east Boston They were gone scarcely more than an hour and they returned with fifteen recruits for the Canadian Army and twelve Americans who were aroused to action by their speeches and desired to join the American colours. Ninety-nine men is their record for yesterday.

The band attended the Red Sox-Detroit game yesterday afternoon and the reception they were given by the fans was nothing short of an ovation. They were followed about the streets and cannot venture out without Canadians and British subjects as well as Americans following them. Nearly every fan when he comes in reports having got recruits Last night they had secured well above 250 recruits in the few days they have been here.

Thursday night and last night the band appeared at Keiths and the Boston Theatre and thought they appeared before the regular performance at Keiths, many men who had paid their admission to see the show followed the Kilties out and about twenty enlisted. It was the same at the Boston.

Staid Boston people marvel at their energy, their enthusiasm and they also wonder what there is about the Kilties that has so gripped old Boston and shaken her to such a frenzied enthusiasm over recruiting. The 236th Canadian Overseas Battalion is working wonders and if they are given sufficient time they should considerably swell the ranks not only of the Canadian army but the British also.

The Boston Post editorially says:

"The streets of Boston have been enlivened the past few days by the sight of the Kilties from Canada, with their stirring music, their natty tread and their general air of serviceability. And to some purpose, we are sure, for the recruiting they are undertaking in this city is bound to bear good fruit for the cause in which we are all engaged.

"How unthinkable it seems have been only a few years ago to expect ever to see British recruiters marching around the streets of this Yankee town enlisting their countrymen for service in the British army. Now it is entirely the proper and friendly thing, so vast have been the changes made by a war against humanity and liberty.

"Success to the Kilties. They give us a pleasant touch of the picturesque and a dash of enthusiasm that are not amiss at this time."

A Wedding Too.

Wedding bells are to ring in Boston this week for the Kilties, when Piper "Jimmy" Cameron takes his bride in a downtown Presbyterian church with Colonel Guthrie and his international recruiting officers on hand in all their MacLean plaid dignity. The first Hub girl to claim the honour of "joining" the Overseas Battalion by the marriage route is Miss Beatrice Carwell, Mattapan.

STILL SEARCHING FOR BODIES AT DRAG LAKE

The search for the bodies of Lee Lindsay and John Laking, who were drowned in Drag Lake some weeks ago, is still kept up.

Reeve John Clark, of Galway, who is in Peterborough serving on the Grand Jury at the County Court, when asked as to the probability of the finding of the bodies of the two men drowned in Drag Lake, stated that he did not think they ever would be recovered owing to the great depth of water in the lake. He referred to a previous drowning two or three years ago near the same spot when a man and woman were drowned and not a trace of the bodies was ever found.

Recital At The Conservatory

One of the best piano and vocal recitals of the many that have been held at the Conservatory of Music during the past season, was that given last evening by the pupils of Miss Jeanette Killmaster. A well-selected programme was provided for the occasion and each of the numbers was well received. Credit is due the pupils for the able manner in which they handled the difficult parts. The programme follows:

Serenade .....
Eleanor Eastwood.
Sonatina Op. 36, No. 2. .....
Margaret Denne.
Gypsy Rondo .....
Marjory Turner.
The Rose .....

TSARITSYN BREAKS AWAY

Reign of Terror Rules When Separate Republic Proclaimed.

LONDON, June 14.—A Petrograd despatch to the Mail says that there seems to be a reign of terror in Tsaritsyn, where a separate republic has been declared and the town is entirely in the hands of the extremists. The despatch says that the situation is serious because Tsaritsyn is a great railroad centre and an important point for traffic on the Volga River.

Separate republics have also been declared at Kherson and Kermanova, but the situation is said not to be serious at either place.

Minnie Burns, A Dope Fiend Committed Forgery To Get Money For Supply of Drugs

The way of the drug fiend leads inevitably to shame, and in extreme cases to the scrap heap of moral and physical wrecks. Minnie Burns, of Marmora, presented a pitiful example of the ravaging effects of this habit as she admitted to Judge Huycke this morning that she had used morphine for twenty-five years. A jury had declared her guilty of forging the name of Mrs. M. Arnold, a soldier's wife, to a registered mail receipt book by which she had obtained a registered letter containing Mrs. Arnold's military allowance.

Mr. Joseph Wearing, who appeared for Miss Burns, stated that she had apparently been abandoned by her relatives and friends who had not shown the slightest interest in her fate. She had three brothers in Marmora, but neither they nor any other relatives had appeared to assist her. From the outset, he continued, he was convinced that she was guilty, and had urged her to make that plea. But she had refused, and Mr. Wearing stated that he had done the best he could for her.

He requested Judge Huycke to consider the fact that this woman was a "dope fiend." "She has been a dope fiend for years," said Mr. Wearing, offering an explanation of her crime, "and to a graver extent than is found among that class of persons. She can take eight one-quarter grains of morphine at once, while a small piece of one tablet would kill a man. She drinks a two ounce bottle of laudanum as readily as one would take lemonade. Her moral sense has been undermined, with the result that she was not responsible for what she said or did. What she needs most is a medical treatment where she can be cured of this habit."

Judge Huycke heard Dr. Morgan, who gave expert information of the demoralizing effects of morphine and laudanum. He also stated that at the Mercer reformatory a drug patient would receive decreasing allowances as a method of restoring him to the condition in which the craving ceased and a permanent cure was made possible.

His Honour then sentenced Miss Burns to twenty months in the Mercer reformatory, and stated that he would recommend that if she were cured before that time had elapsed that she be given her freedom. He was moved by the sole desire to help her shake off the influence and appeal of habit to which she had become enslaved, and told her that she must try to help herself in that respect.

While in custody here, Miss Burns had received a tablespoon of laudanum every four hours, and in the County Court this morning she gave every evidence of the need of another dose. Before court opened she was seized with slight convulsions, and afterwards her whole frame shook as nerves that called for their accustomed sedative.

Judge Huycke addressed the woman in the kindliest manner, and after she had moved away she fell to the floor sobbing and altogether a pitiful sight. She was carried from the court room by Mrs. McElhiney and Chief Thompson.

Pay day comes slowly to the man who watches the clock.

Local Manufacturers Elected To Office

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in Winnipeg, yesterday, Mr. W. R. Breyfogle of the De Laval Company, and Mr. T. F. Matthews of Matthews-Blackwell & Co., were elected to the Executive Council, Ontario Division. Mr. Breyfogle was also made a member of the Transportation Committee.

Rev. J. H. Callander Buys Gibson Island

Yesterday, at twelve o'clock, the Stony Lake property belonging to the estate of the late Rev. John Gibson, was sold at the auction rooms of C. M. Henderson and Co., Toronto. A number of interested buyers were on hand, and the property was disposed of at satisfactory figures. A Brooklyn, N.Y., man secured the cottage home on its neat little island. J. H. Callander was the buyer of the vacant wooded island, and a Mr. Scott purchased the launch. This will mean that the cottage will likely again be occupied this season after being idle last summer, and it is likely a new cottage will be erected on the large island secured by Mr. Callander in the near future. Mr. Scott, who is connected with the Agricultural College, Guelph, will spend his vacation at Stony Lake, and expects to enjoy it all the better by reason of his newly acquired motor boat.

CAN'T BEAT DEVIL AT HIS OWN GAME

Billy Sunday Emphasizes David's Prayer To Be Saved from Presumptuous Sins

"Billy Sunday would be of no account to us if he weren't filled with the spirit," said the Rev. Dr. Cressy, who led in prayer at the New York Tabernacle Friday afternoon.

"There are 1,000,000 of us who are of no account," he added, "and there are 4,000,000 who are. Bless Billy Sunday, and may he imbue us all with the spirit."

Mr. Sunday took his text from Psalms xix, 3: "Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins."

"The Church fathers have told us," said the evangelist, "that there are two kinds of sins—the sins committed ignorantly and the sins committed presumptuously. The Bible teaches that there are two kinds of sins—the sins of omission, the things we should have done and did not do; the things we forgot to do; and the sins of commission, which are forbidden in the Commandments, as 'Thou shalt not steal,' 'Thou shalt not kill,' and others. But it does not matter what kind of sin it is, they must all be repented of through faith in the Lord.

"I don't care a rap who you are. Every sin is great. It isn't a small sin because it is a sin of omission.

"The devil has more power than you. No man or woman has the right to trifle with sin. No man is an outcast or a drunkard of himself, but because of the power of the devil.

"A girl once asked her father, a friend of mine, to let her go to a certain place, and he responded, 'I won't allow you to go. It is questionable, and I forbid it.' But she replied, 'I want to go through curiosity; if I can only go once, I will be satisfied.' Her father was amased at her conduct.

"A coal fell from the fire and he told her to throw it back into the grate. She complied with his command. 'Did it hurt?' he asked. 'No, it was burned out.' He told her to look at her finger, and she discovered there was a mark upon it. Sin will leave its mark!

"Don't trifle with God. Don't presume upon your own strength of character. When I cry out against sin, against gambling, against drunkenness, you tell me, 'You are unduly excited. I'll quit when I want to.' You can't. I know men in New York, unless they give their hearts to God, in one year they will be bankrupt. I can name them in person.

"'I can drink and let it alone,' you say. You lie. You never leave it alone. You are playing into the hands of the devil when you talk like that. That man don't live who intended to be a drunkard. He never started out to blight his home and destroy the happiness of his wife and children.

"There was a contractor in this city who had accumulated quite a fortune, when suddenly reverses came and he lost it. He and his family were paupers. A millionaire friend invited him into his office, showed him the blueprint and specifications for a house. 'I wish you would build me a house according to these plans and specifications,' he said. 'I have an estimate of what it will cost and I have deposited that amount in a bank. When you are through come and give me the key.'

"The contractor accepted the work and said to himself, 'Here's my chance.' He hired incompetent men, he used cheap and shoddy material, and when the building was completed he found he had not used all the money. He went to the millionaire and said, 'Here's the key. I have built the house. And the millionaire told him, 'I have heard of your misfortunes; how your wife and children has suffered, and you have built that house for yourself.

"'Take the key for yourself—here's the deed. And the other man exclaimed, 'What a fool! Had I known it was to be my house I would have built it better.' You have to live in that house. Why have diseased bodies and suffer from insomnia and other ailments. God wants you to have the best.

"'Don't get big-headed or chesty' over yourself. Give Jesus a chance, and he will lead us to victory. Just try to work without God and you will get your bumps. I have slipped many times, but I have never taken the count."

Billy likened our thoughts to the words of a gang of cutthroats who were run to earth by means of a dictaphone. On their trial they were presented with their own language, which they knew was never uttered outside their own councils.

"We may do things in secret," Sunday explained, "and be surprised on the last day by having our own words and deeds thrust back on us. Everything is kept on record. How much easier it is for God to keep track of us than a dictaphone.

At this point the evangelist illustrated with a handkerchief how he could suspend the laws of gravity by the strength of his fingers tightly clasping it.

"The devil is constantly trying to pull you downward," said Billy, but Jesus Christ is a stronger power than the devil, and he is able to keep you from falling. The devil is stronger than your will power, but the devil is not stronger than God.

"Now you will understand what David meant when he prayed the prayer, 'Keep back Thy servants from presumptuous sins.'"

A SPECIAL MATINEE FOR LADIES

Dr. Zell Hunt Will Be at the Grand To-morrow Afternoon

Another big audience was amused and entertained by Dr. Zell Hunt at the Grand last night, the hypnotic experiments proving even more laughable than on the previous nights. Dr. Hunt will be at the Grand again to-night and to-morrow night with new experiments and new subjects. To-morrow afternoon there will be a special matinee for ladies only. There will be lady ushers and attendants and none of the sterner sex will be admitted. Dr. Hunt will answer any questions that may be asked of him. During his visit here he has many requests for private interviews which he has been unable to grant.

WILL ASK CANDIDATES TO PLEDGE THEMSELVES

TORONTO, June 15.—Delegates from all over Ontario met in Toronto yesterday for a conference of the Win-the-War and National Unity League, called to determine the attitude of members of the league in this province towards any bye-election or a general election if one be forced upon the country. After a lengthy discussion of the situation developing out of the Government's proposals regarding conscription the following resolution was passed:

"Resolved, that in the event of a bye-election or a general election for the Dominion Parliament, the Ontario branch of the Win-the-War and National Unity League pledges itself to oppose the election of any candidate who does not publicly agree to support every measure calculated to bring the full strength of the country in men, money and resources into effective use for winning the war, and in the event that no candidate in a constituency meets this requirement will itself nominate and support a candidate of its own."

As to the Military Service Act itself the delegates agreed unanimously to the adoption of a general resolution as follows:

Resolved, that this meeting

(1) Endorses the general principles of the Military Service Bill of 1917.

(2) Considers that in addition a further Act is necessary for organizing and utilizing the wealth resources and man and woman power of the country to win the war; and

(3) Urges that a way be found to conduct the affairs of the country during the war through a non party Government without the distraction of an election.

The delegates then decided to institute a campaign of education throughout the province and it was announced that public meetings would be held at Brampton, Port Credit, Bolton, Streetsville, Cooksville, Clarkson, Caledon, Sandhill, Mono Mills, Snelgrove, Inglewood, Alton, Pembroke, Renfrew, Arnprior, Dundas, Waterdown, Burlington, Grimsby Welland, Georgetown, Milton, Acton, Newmarket, Aurora, and several others in North York, five places in Norfolk, Peterborough and vicinity.

The delegates comprised men and women of all political creeds and partizanship was set aside in place of an unanimity of purpose to back up the boys at the front.

Mr. R. B. Rogers of Peterborough was the representative from this district.

Strike Of Foreigners At Port McNicholl

TORONTO, June 15.—The strike of 150 freight handlers, mostly Bulgarians and Austrians, employed at the docks at Port McNicoll, the C.P.R. lake terminus, is assuming threatening proportions, and the militia, it is stated, have been requisitioned to avoid trouble.

There are about 700 men employed by the C.P.R. at Port McNicoll, of whom 300 are Chinese, 150 Bulgarians and Austrians, and the balance Canadians.

On Wednesday the Bulgarians and Austrians went on strike in a body for higher wages, not being satisfied with 27 cents an hour they have been receiving.

The Fire Hall nine deny that the Auburn nine defeated them, as given in Wednesday's Examiner, they only playing the Auburn nine a practice game, as the team on schedule defaulted by not putting in an appearance. Neither team had their right players on the field, the positions being filled up with spectators, and no track of the score was kept at all. If, however, the Auburn nine desires a game the Fire Hall nine will be glad to accommodate them.

LAUGH AS TIME TURNS THE PAGES OF SPORT SHEET

Going back about twenty-five years reveal some baseball gems of the past that in the light of history take on unusual interest, says the New York Sun. Items which then were jotted down as idle gossip, to be forgotten the next day, make more interesting reading to-day than accounts of modern pitching duels or slugging matches.

We find that at one time Billy Sunday, the big league evangelist, confided to some buddies that when he got through playing baseball he would start a pool and billiard parlor.

We also find old Hankus Pankus O'Day grumbling at the umpires who never gave him a square deal, and Hank always pulled rough stuff on them. A little quip says what Hank thinks of the "umps" is not fit to print. It perhaps cheers up Hank's old days to know that during the last dozen years many worthy athletes have felt the same way toward him.

And then we find the paragraph taking a whack at John Kinley Tener for giving up an easy job which netted him anywhere from $1,500 to $2,000. But J. Kinley just kept plugging along, became a bank president, director in numerous corporations, member of congress, governor of Pennsylvania, and finally president of the National league.

BAN JOHNSON'S BIG JOKE

We also find that Ban Johnson rejoiced when the Brotherhood collapsed and wrote in his baseball column in the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette that the smashup of the Brotherhood meant that never again would there be an attempt to establish a second major league.

Then old Charley Comiskey is accused of being a "sucker" at least for any pitcher who fed him a high curve on the inside, but just the same Charley owns one of the finest baseball parks in the United States and next to the Giants has the biggest following.

The worst knock is aimed at poor old Connie Mack. Connie, the only manager in the game who ever won six league pennants and three world's pennants, is always spoken of as having been a wise old bird behind the plate in his younger days. But this scribe of the '90s didn't think so. While conceding Connie could throw the ball around a bit, he accused him of lacking generalship, but still thought there was a little hope for him. He expressed an opinion that Manager Buckenberger of Pittsburg might teach Connie to think a bit if he worked him hard enough. That cure is going a few at the astute Cornelius, now known as the shrewdest man in baseball.

KEELER TOO LIGHT FOR MAJORS.

Then we hear of such kids as Muggsy McGraw an Willie Keeler breaking in. McGraw is admitted to be a good prospect, but poor Keeler is passed over as being too light for fast company. After pitching two years Cy Young's failure already was predicted. He was curving them too much and only two more seasons were given as his limit. Yet Cy lived to pitch until he was 43 and twirled his third no-hit game in 1903.

Lave Cross, who played on the Brooklyn champions of 1899 and 1900 and captained Mack's Athletic champions of 1902 and 1905, during which years he linked with the greatest third basemen in baseball, was being shipped to the minors in the middle '90s.

Here are the gems:

Baltimore critics say that Third Baseman Muggsy McGraw has made good and will cover the position regularly.

Brooklyn has offered Center Fielder Mike Griffin to Cleveland for Jimmy McAleer, but Pat Tebeau will not consider the offer.

Baseball is growing. Nearly 10,000 were at the Polo grounds when Amos Rusie shut out Boston. Extra ticket windows were opened.

A critic predicts that Cy Young, the youthful phenom of the Cleveland team, will not last two more seasons because he is curving himself to death. There is much wisdom in this assertion.

Pop Anson is almost 35 years old, but he can still hit. The big fellow rapped Theodore Breitenstein for two singles, a double, and a triple in the recent series.

NO TIME FOR "RAH RAH" BOYS.

Manager Bill McCloskey of the Louisville team has issued a denial that he was going to sign a certain college pitcher of an eastern university. Bill says he has no time to bother with the "rah, rah" boys, and everybody agrees with him.

Charles Nicholas of the Boston team is a wonderful pitcher, but few fans think he is worth $2,500 a season. This is the salary he held up Boston for.

Connie Mack is catching regularly for the Pittsburg team now. This tall chap has a good whip, but does not seem to be much of a general behind the plate. Manager Al Buckenberger is working hard to make a thinking ball player out of him.

It is reported that the Phillies are going to let out Lave Cross, who, no doubt, will go to the minors.

Chicago has offered $4,000 for Al Selbach, the star outfielder for the Washington team. This was a tempting offer, but Washington decided to keep him.

Outfielder Billy Sunday says he will open a pool and billiard room when he is through with baseball.

TENER PASSES UP EASY MONEY

Tener, the big pitcher of the Chicago team, has quit baseball. Foolish move, when he could have picked up from $1,500 to $2,000 of easy money for several more years to come.

Pitcher Hank O'Day of the Washington team complains that he is getting a raw deal from the umpires. What Hank thinks of umpires would not look fit in print.

Ban Johnson, sporting editor of the Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, writes that the collapse of the Brotherhood means that never again will there be any attempt to establish a second major league. Johnson is right.

First Baseman Charley Comiskey is said to be a sucker for a curve high on the inside.

IRELAND PUTS ON STEAM.

The Dublin correspondent of the Associated Press cables that all Ireland appears to be engaged in one vast ploughing match. Ploughs are being drawn by every available type of animal, while men and women who never put their hand to a plough before have learned to do the work in the submarine emergency. The Irish Department of Agriculture has thrown all its executive machinery into the effort to increase the tillage enormously and has obtained a decree under the Defence of the Realm Act making a certain minimum percentage of extra tillage compulsory on every farmer in Ireland holding more than ten acres of land.

This novel law requires that every farmer must till at least ten per cent of the arable part of his holdings in addition to whatever amount he tilled last year, unless he is already cultivating fifty per cent. of his land, in which case he is not obliged to do more. There are 350,000 holdings to which this regulation applies, with an arable area of 14,500,000 acres.

The Department's county committees which have for years been organized in every county of Ireland, have stopped all other work and put their experts and administrative staffs on the sole work of food production. They have organized special committees in every parish and are modifying all the available supplies of seeds, manures and implements. Machinery for saving labour is to be made to go as far as possible by a system of local exchange.

Few people realize what a tremendous asset Ireland has been to England during the war as a reservoir of foodstuffs.

In the year before the war England's imports of foodstuffs from her leading sources of supply were as follows: United States, £33,000,000; Ireland, £33,000,000; Argentina, £30,000,000; Denmark, £31,000,000; India, £18,000,000; Canada, £16,000,000.

The war has disturbed this balance somewhat, bringing in greater supplies from America, but Ireland has also increased her output, and the imports of food from that island in 1915, the latest figures available, show a total of £46,000,000.

Mrs. (Rev.) Sawers Passes Away

Deep sorrow was felt in Peterborough at the news received this morning of the death in Cobourg of Bertha Harding Smythe, beloved wife of Rev. F. J. Sawers, rector of St. Peter's Church, Cobourg. The earnest sympathy of the city and community will go out to Rev. Mr. Sawers and the family and friends in this city in the loss that has come to them. Mrs Sawers was, previous to her marriage, a resident of Montreal, daughter of Mr. Charles Smythe of that city, where she met Mr. Sawere, when he was curate to Rev. Dr. Symonds of Christ Church Cathedral. After her marriage she resided some time in Lakefield, later removing to the rectory, St. Luke's, Ashburnham. During her three years' residence here, though as a invalid, her life was retired, she attracted a very large circle of friends who will learn with keen sorrow of her passing away. After her removal to Cobourg Mrs. Sawer's condition of health did not improve and the end came on Thursday. The funeral service will take place in Cobourg at 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 16th.

Social and Personal

Yesterday the closing tea for the season of the 57th Chapter, I.O.D.E. was quite the most successful tea of the season. The room was exquisitely decorated with a profusion of flowers, quantities of lillies of the valley, iris, tulips and pansies. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. Clegg, Mrs. Walker and Miss N. Davidson, Mrs. J. C. Davidson (Toronto), poured tea, and was assisted by Mrs. Gemmell and the Misses Maud Rush, Florence Gladman, Florence Rubidge, Flora Collins and Nina Berridale. During the afternoon vocal solos by Mr. Evans, accompanied by Miss Gladman, were greatly enjoyed. About $13 was realized.

Mr. Fred Brown, Lakefield, is in the city to-day.

Miss Norman Miller, who has been visiting Col. and Mrs. Miller, returned this week to her home in Toronto.

Mrs. Sterndale Murphy, Toronto, (nee Miss Mona O'Shea) is in the city visiting her mother, Mrs. O'Shea. Captain Murphy is overseas.

Rev. Mr. White, St. Luke's church, East City, has returned from Toronto, where he attended the Synod.

Col. Grafton and Col. Gwynn, Dundas, motored to the city yesterday in Col. Grafton's magnificent new car.

Miss Wallace, of the Collegiate Staff is in Bewdley for a few days and will leave shortly for Toronto.

Mr. A. H. Stratton went up to Toronto yesterday.

Miss Agnes Eastwood who spent her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Eastwood returned yesterday to Toronto.

Mrs. Perks, 583 Water street is in Toronto visiting her daughter, Mrs. Carl Baldwin.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith, Lakefield motored to the city to-day.

Mrs. D. R. Flemming, Boswell avenue, was called to Cobourg this morning owing to the sudden death of her mother, Mrs. McIntosh, of that town.

All Saints' Woman's Guild met in Jackson Park on Wednesday afternoon for tea and to have a pleasant time with two of their members, Mrs. Cole and Miss Clare, who are leaving the city shortly. All felt sorry at losing them, but felt their loss was some one else's gain.

Prospective Munition Orders for Winchester Arms.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 14.—In anticipation of the awarding of work for the United States Government, the Winchester Arms Company is preparing to call in 10,000 hands to its plant. This will make the working force about 20,000 in the munition plant.

J. E. Otterson, general manager of the Winchester Arms Company, who has virtual authority through an agreement between the War Department, its Munition Board and the Munition Board of the Council of Defence and some munition makers, to handle an order for 1,320,000,000 small arms cartridges, says he will be ready to distribute the order as soon as conference matters involving administration appropriation have been settled.

The huge order will be distributed among several of the big manufacturers. The cartridges to be turned out will fit the regular army Springfield rifle and the modified Enfield rifle with which the American troops going to France will be equipped.

The purchase of the munition is to be made for the War Department by the Council of National Defence through the board of which Mr. Otterson is a member.

In turning out this work for the United States Government, Winchesters will follow the method that has been carried on with regard to the present work for the allies. The Government will pay for the cost of production. On this basis there will be a margin of 5 or 110 per cent. profit. The company will finish its work for the allies under the present arrangement by July 1.

PRELIMINARY ESTIMATE OF THE AREAS SOWN TO GRAIN CROPS THIS SPRING

Decrease in the Crop Average as Compared With Last Year ---Areas and Conditions of Other Crops---The Outlook in the West.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES BACKWARD

OTTAWA, June 16.—The Census and Statistics Office issued to-day a preliminary estimate of the areas sown to grain crops this spring, with a report of their condition on May 31, as compiled from the returns of crop correspondents. The reports from the prairie provinces state that the spring there is very backward, and seeding is consequently late. At the end of May severe frosts cut down the growing wheat plant; but rapid recovery was anticipated. Rain was needed for the germination of the later sown crops, and of wheat sown on stubble.

Area and Condition of Wheat.

It is estimated from the reports of correspondents that the total area sown to wheat for 1917 is 13,460,200 acres, as compared with 14,997,000 acres, the area sown, and with 12,900,600 acres, the area harvested in 1916. Thus, the area sown this year, whilst nearly 10 per cent. less than the area sown for 1916, is about 4 per cent. more than the area harvested for 1916. In arriving at these figures revised returns of the Census of 1916 have been included for Manitoba; for Saskatchewan and Alberta similar revisions have not yet been completed. As compared with the areas sown for 1916, the returns this year indicate small increases under wheat in each of the Atlantic provinces and in British Columbia and an increase of 26,000 acres in Quebec; but for each of the remaining provinces decreases are reported to the extent of 156,000 acres in Ontario, 284,000 acres in Manitoba, 927,000 acres in Saskatchewan and 158,000 acres in Alberta. Of the total area under wheat 600,200 acres were sown last fall, and 12,861,000 acres were sown this spring. In the three prairie provinces the total area sown to wheat is estimated at 12,497,550 acres, comprising 2,476,850 acres in Manitoba, 7,606,700 acres in Saskatchewan and 2,415,000 acres in Alberta.

Average Condition.

The average condition on May 31 in per cent. of the standard representing a full crop is for all wheat for Canada 84 per cent, as compared with 90 per cent. on May 31 last year and with 91 per cent. the average condition, on the corresponding date for the seven years ended 1916. In the prairie provinces the condition of wheat is 87 per cent. of the standard in Manitoba, 80 per cent. in Saskatchewan and 92 per cent. in Alebrta. Converted into a standard of 100 as representing the average condition at the end of May of the past seven years 1910-16 the condition for the whole of Canada of fall wheat is 86, of spring wheat 94, and of all wheat 93 per cent. Thus, according to its reported condition on May 31, the anticipated yield per acre of wheat this year is 7 per cent. less than the average of the seven years 1910-16.

Area and Condition of Other Crops.

The decrease in the area sown to wheat this year is partly due to the curtailment of the seeding season by the lateness of the spring, and efforts were therefore apparently directed towards an increase in the areas sown to other crops. For oats, the acreage is 11,781,800 acres as compared with 11,376,346 acres, the area sown, and 9,875,346 acres, the area harvested last year. Barley is sown to 1,954,100 acres, as against 1,827,789 acres, the area sown, and 1,681,180 acres, the area harvested in 1916. Rye has a sown area of 159,470 acres, as compared with 147,170 acres in 1916; peas 152,465 acres, compared with 159,660 acres; mixed grains, 558,250 acres, as compared with 410,726 acres; hay and clover 7,661,800 acres ,against 7,802,932 acres; and alfalfa 84,900 acres, against 89,478 acres. The condition of these crops in per cent. of the standard representing a full crop is for oats 89 per cent. compared with 80 p.c. last year and 93 p.c., he average at the end of May for the seven years 1910-16; for abrely 87 p.c. as against 89 p.c. last year and 93 p.c., the seven years' average; for rye 86 p.c. against 91 p.c, last year and 88 p.c., the average; for peas 88 p.c. compared with 89 p.c. last year and 91, the average; for mixed grains 86 p.c. both this year and last year and 93 p.c., the average; for hay and clover 80 p.c. compared with 98 p.c. and 93 p.c., the average.

Conditions in Alberta.

A telegram from the Alberta Department of Agriculture dated June 12 states that the general season is somewhat late, especially between Wetaskiwin and Crossfield. The weather is cool, but crops are doing well. No frost has been reported since June 5. All grains for threshing is sown, but there is 40 p.c. for green feed yet to sow. There is plenty of moisture in all parts.

Iron For the Blood and Phosphorus For the Nerves

Weak, anaemic, run-down, nervous persons will be glad to know that they can be restored back to their youth vigor by the discovery of this new drug called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron.

It is spring time now and every person needs something to build them up. Now you know as well as any doctor will tell you, the curse of spring time is impure blood. It takes many people to their grave, ruins health, makes you weak, runs you down and finally you are a physical wreck.

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus. The iron gets directly on the blood while the phosphorus soothes and strengthens the nerves. You start today and take two or three tablets of Bonised Phosphorus with Iron after meals and in 5 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent. stronger.

This drug does not act like other iron tonics you have taken, but instead, it does not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach or make you constipated. This new drug is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Wather dispenses it for Peterborough.

Mr. Clayton Telford Elected President Yesterday, Succeeding Mr. J. A. McGregor—Beef and Dairy Cattle Judging a Feature of the Meeting—Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Mann and Family Were Splendid Hosts — Speeches and Supper.

At the annual meeting of the West Peterborough Board of Agriculture held on Friday afternoon at "The Hawthornes," the beautiful home of Mr. G. W. Mann, on the eighth line Smith, Mr. Clayton Telford of Ennismore was elected president for the current year. Not only was the appointment a deservedly popular one, but the honour it bears falls upon worthy shoulders. One of the younger members of the Board and a thoroughly practical farmer, Mr. Telford has for years been actively identified with the general agriculture affairs of this district. Judging by the evidences he has given of his deep interest in the welfare of the Board of Agriculture it may be confidently predicted that under his presidency it will continue to wield the beneficial influence it has exerted under the supervision of Mr. J. A. McGregor and his predecessors of the old Farmers' Institute. Mr. Telford may depend upon the co-operation of the members of the Board and look forward to a year of successful service.

Mr. Gordon Mann was elected vice-president, and Mr Allan B. Mann was again returned to the position of secretary-treasurer. A word of encouragement is due the energetic secretary for his faithful attention to his duties and his continued efforts to keep the Board before the farmers of this district.

A few years ago, it was decided by the gentlemen who had carried the Institute along for a decade or more to make room for the younger generation. To-day the change is all but complete. The older members give their support to the Board of Agriculture, but the principle offices are held by young farmers who have thrown a new enthusiasm into the movement, and who are, above all, deeply interested in the new spirit of progressive agriculture.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

The financial statement audited by Mr. John Riddell and Mr. John Buckham was presented by Mr. Mann as follows:

WAS LARGELY ATTENDED

Yesterday's meeting was as usual largely attended especially by farmers from Smith and Ennismore. The number of city visitors probably showed a slight decrease. Among those present were: Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., and Mrs. Gillespie, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. McGregor of Peterborough, Mr. G. A. Brethen of Norwood, Mr. F. C. McRea, district representative, Norwood, Mr. J. P. Sackville, Guelph, Rev. P. J. McGuire, Ennismore, Mr. Bert Mann, Peterborough, Mr. C. E. Moore, [illegible] Garbutt, Rev. John Galt, [illegible] Memorial church, Mr. Nesbitt, Keene, Reeve McKee, Mr. J. H. Graham and many others.

REV. P. J. McGUIRE'S ADDRESS

Mr. J. A. McGregor made a brief address in opening the session of the Board and called upon Rev. Father McGuire who was as interesting and witty as usual. He expressed the hope that the young men who were needed on the farms would remain there, and put into their work the pluck and perseverance their grandsires had possessed. Not so long ago the young men of Ontario's farms had sought the western provinces to make their futures, but it was as true to-day as ever that no province was more beautiful, prosperous and happy than Ontario.

MUST CONTINUE THE WAR

Discussing the progress of the war Father McGuire said he believed that the United States would doubtless play no ordinary part in the days ahead of us. It was not a war to annihilate any nation, but to maintain the freedom of the world. Great Britain has had her troubles including the menace of the submarine, but Germany could never storm England into submission while she had the aid of the United States and over seas dominions. The great slaughter the war was causing was deplorable, said Father McGuire. Our own boys have been reduced in numbers and it must not be said that there were none to come to their assistance. If this nation had done well, it was still our duty to continue to the very end. We have been a nation in union with the Mother Country, and we have the freest and happiest country on the face of the earth.

Father McGuire alluded to the long residence of the Mann family on the old homestead. "In such a delightful spot and with such a beautiful home I hope the name of Mann may remain here for centuries."

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE.

Agriculture, Mr. Gillespie remarked, had been neglected in the past. To-day through the Board of Agriculture the farmers could discuss their difficulties and present them with more weight to the provincial Department of Agriculture.

"I believe agriculture has entered upon a new life," he continued. "The people of the cities have been brought to realize that they are really dependent upon the farmers. Prices are high to-day, but the farmer is not receiving more than his produce is worth. After the war I trust that people will appreciate the fact that farmers have to put up with great inconveniences and difficulties that are not met with in the city, and will be willing to pay fair prices for farm products."

The Department of Agriculture was now headed by the Premier of the province who, Mr. Gillespie said he believed had taken that position for the benefit of agriculture in order that he might bring the Department to the highest state of efficiency. Commissioner Groelman seemed to be effectively working with the farmers, a condition, Mr. Gillespie said he had always hoped to see realized.

REV. JOHN GALT.

"I have the greatest respect for the farmer as I have for every other honest man," said Rev. John Galt, of Gilmour church. "After all, every man is doing honest and necessary work who is co-operating with the great Creator and Owner of everything that is and that can be." In that respect the farmer was in a special position. The fields he owned fit, but also for all mankind. Hence the responsibility of brotherhood should not be forgotten. When we join in the most sacred of all prayers we say "Our Father," reminding us that other men are our brothers and our neighbours. At the present time munitions were a great necessity, but food production was the primary necessity for the world.

CATTLE JUDGING.

While the ladies were at supper, the men heard two instructive object lessons in dairy and beef cattle judging. Mr. G. A. Brethen had charge of the former. Three Holstein cows, owned by Mr. Fred Mann were used to illustrate the desirable qualities of the dairy cow. With three short-horn cattle, including a registered bull, of the Hawthorne stables. Mr. Sackville indicated the demands of the beef cattle market. Both addresses were brief, but decidedly instructive.

SUPPER WAS EXCELLENT.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Mann, extended a hospitality that was cordial and unstinting. Assisted by the ladies, they served supper at a long table set on the lawn, that was completely bordered four times by the guests, whose appetites had been sharpened by the lake breeze. It was a delightful close to an annual meeting that looked only the smiles of the June sun to chronicle it as an unalloyed success.

AGED DIED OF FRIGHT DURING THE AIR RAID

LONDON, June 16.—From the stories told in the coroner's court at the inquest in the cases of victims of Wednesday's air raid some idea may be gained of the manner in which the German raiders left death and destruction in their path. Besides those actually killed by bombs, there were a number of cases of old men and women who died of fright.

A story of the destruction of a school with the death of a score of children was told by the teachers. One bomb had dropped on a house immediately opposite the school and another nearby, giving the teachers a warning which caused them to assemble the children and keep them under cover. However, a bomb dropped directly on the building, piercing the roof and the two upper floors without claiming victims. It burst in a room on the ground floor, in which thirteen children, hardly more than infants, were killed. Some of these were blown to pieces, hardly a trace of their bodies being found. Others were identified by means of marks on the bodies, a trinket about the neck, or an odd button sewed on by the mother. Arrangements are being made for a public funeral for the children, whose bodies will be buried in one grave. A monument will be erected over it.

"The Postmaster's Daughter"

By LOUIS TRACY

CHAPTER I.

THE FACE AT THE WINDOW.

John Menzies Grant, having breakfasted, filled his pipe, lit it, and strolled out bare-headed into the garden. The month was June, that glorious rose month which gladdened England before war clouds darkened the summer sky. As the hour was nine o'clock, it is highly probable that many thousands of men were then strolling out into many thousands of gardens in precisely similar conditions, but, given youth, good health, leisure, and a fair amount of money, it is even more probable that few among the smaller number thus roundly favored by fortune looked so perplexed as Grant.

Moreover, his actions were eloquent as words. A spacious French window had been cut bodily out of the wall of an old-fashioned room, and was now thrown wide to admit the flower-scented breeze. Between this window and the right hand angle of the room was a smaller window, square-paned, high above the ground level, and deeply recessed—in fact just the sort of window which one might expect to find in a farm house built two centuries ago, when light and air were rigorously excluded from interiors. The two windows told the story of The Hollies at a glance. The little one had served the needs of a "best" room for several generations of Sussex yeoman. Then had come some iconoclast, who hewed a big rectangle through the solid stone-work, converted the oak-panelled apartment into a most comfortable dining room, built a new wing with a gable, changed a farmyard into a flower-bordered lawn, and generally played havoc with Georgian utility while carrying out a determined scheme of landscape gardening.

Happily, the wrecker was content to let well enough alone after enlarging the house, laying turf, and planting shrubs and flowers. He found The Hollies a ramshackle place and left it even more so, but with a new note of artistry and several unexpectedly charming vistas. Thus, the big double window opened straight into an irregular garden, which merged insensibly into a sloping lawn bounded by a river-pool. The bank on the other side of the stream rose sharply and was well wooded. Above the crest showed the thatched roofs or red tiles of Steynholme, which was a village in the time of William the Conqueror, and has remained a village ever since. Frame this picture in flowering shrubs, evergreens, a few choice firs, a copper beech and some sturdy oaks shadowing the lawn, and the prospect on a June morning might well have led out into the open any young man with a pipe.

But John Menzies Grant seemed to have no eye for a scene that would have delighted a painter. He turned to the light, scrutinised so closely a strip of turf which ran close to the wall that he might have been searching for a lost diamond, and then peered through the lowermost left-hand pane of the small window into the room he had just quitted.

The result of this peeping was remarkable in more ways than one.

A stout, elderly, red-faced woman, who had entered the room soon after she heard Grant's chair being moved, caught sight of the intent face. She screamed loudly and dropped a cup and saucer with a clatter on to a Japanese tray.

Grant hurried back to the French window. In his haste he did not notice a long shoot of a Dorothy Perkins rose which trailed across his path, and it struck him smartly on the cheek.

"I'm afraid that I startled you, Mrs. Bates," he said, smiling so pleasantly that no woman or child could fail to put trust in him.

"You did that, sir," agreed Mrs. Bates, collapsing into the chair Grant had just vacated.

Like most red-faced people, Mrs. Bates turned a bluish purple when alarmed, and her aspect was so distressing now that Grant's smile was banished by a look of real concern.

"I'm very sorry," he said contritely. "I had no notion that you were in the room. Shall I call Minnie?"

Minnie, it may be explained, was Mrs. Bates's daughter and assistant, the two, plus a whiskered Bates, gardener and groom, forming the domestic establishment presided over by Grant.

"Nun-no, sir," stuttered the housekeeper. "It's stupid of me. But I'm not so young as I was; an' me heart jumps at little things."

Grant saw that she was recovering though slowly. He thought it best not to make too much of the incident, but asked solicitously if he might give her some brandy.

Mrs. Bates remarked that she was "not so bad as that," rose valiantly, and went on with her work. Her employer, who had gone into the garden again, saw out of the tail of his eye that she vanished with a half-laden tray. In a couple of minutes, the daughter appeared, and finished the slight task of clearing the table; meanwhile, Grant kept away from the small window. Being a young man who cultivated the habit of observation he noticed that Minnie, too, cast scared glances at the window. When the girl had finally quitted the room, he laughed in a puzzled way.

"Am I dreaming, or are there visions about?" he murmured.

Urged, seemingly, by a sort of curiosity, he surveyed the room a second time through the same pane of glass. Being tall, he had to stoop slightly. Within, on the opposite side of the ledge, he saw the tiny brass candlestick with its inch of candle, which he had used overnight while searching for a volume of Scott in the book-case lining the neighboring wall. Somehow, this simplest of domestic objects brought a thrill of recollection.

"Oh, dash it all!" he growled good-humoredly. "I'm getting nervy. I must chuck this bal habit of working late, and use the blessed hours of daylight."

Yet, as he sauntered down the lawn toward the stream he knew well that he would do nothing of the sort. He loved that time of peace between ten at night and one in the morning. His thoughts ran vagrom then. Fantasies took shape under his pen which in the cold light of morning looked unreal and nebulous, though he had the good sense to restrain criticism within strict limits, and corrected style rather than matter. He was a writer, an essayist with no slight leaven of the poet, and had learnt early that the everyday world held naught in common with the brooding of the soul.

But he was no long haired dreamer of impossible things. Erect and square shouldered, he had passed through Sandhurst into the army, a profession abandoned because of its hum-drum nature, when an unexpectedly "fat" legacy rendered him independent. He looked exactly what he was, a healthy, clean-minded young Englishman, with a physique that led to occasional bouts of fox-hunting and Alpine climbing, and a taste in literature that brought about the consumption of midnight oil. This latter is not a mere trope. Steynholme is far removed from such modern "conveniences" as gas and electricity.

At present he had no more definite object in life than to watch the trout rising in the pool. He held the fishing rights over half a mile of noted river, but by force of the law of hospitality, as it were, the stretch of water bordering the lawn was a finny sanctuary. Once, he halted, and looked fixedly at a dormer window in a cottage just visible above the trees on the opposite slope. Such a highly presentable young man might well expect to find a dainty feminine form appearing just in that place, and eke return the greeting of a waved hand. But the window remained blank—windows refused to yield any information that morning—and he passed on.

The lawn dipped gently to the water's edge, until the close-clipped turf gave way to pebbles and sand. In that spot the river widened, and deepened until its current was hardly perceptible in fine weather. When the sun was in the west the trees and roofs of Steynholme were so clearly reflected in the mirror of the pool, that a photograph of the scene needed close scrutiny ere one could determine whether or not it was being held upside down. But the sun shone directly on the water now, so the shelving bottom was visible, and Grant's quick eye was drawn to a rope trailing in the depths, and fastened to an iron staple driven firmly into the shingle.

He was so surprised that he spoke aloud.

"What in the world is that?" he almost gasped; a premonition of evil was so strong in him that he actually gazed in stupefaction at a blob of water and a quick-spreading ring, where a fat trout rose lazily in mid-stream.

Somehow, too, he resisted the first impulse of the active side of his temperament, and did not instantly tug at the rope.

Instead he shouted:—

"Hi, Bates!"

An answering hail came from behind a screen of laurels on the right of the house. There lay the stables, and Bates would surely be grooming the cob which supplied a connecting link between The Hollies and the railway for the neighboring market-town.

Bates came, a sturdy block of a man who might have been hewn out of a Sussex oak. His face, hands and arms were the color of oak, and he moved with a stiffness that suggested wooden joints.

Evidently, he expected an order for the dog cart, and stood stock still, when he reached the lawn. But Grant, who had gathered his wits, summoned him with a crooked forefinger, and Bates jerked slowly on.

"What hev' ye done to yer face, sir?" he inquired.

Grant was surprised. He expected no such question.

"So far as I know, I've not been making any great alteration in it," he said.

"But it's all covered wi' blood," came the disturbing statement.

A handkerchief soon gave evidence that Bates was not exaggerating. Miss—or is it Madam?—Dorothy Perkins, can scratch as well as look sweet, and a thorn had opened a small vein in Grant's cheek which bled to a surprising extent.

"Oh, it is nothing," he said. "I remember now—a rose shoot caught me as I went back into the dining-room a moment ago. I shouted for you to come and see this."

Soon the two were examining the rope and the staple.

"Now, who put that there?" said Bates, not asking a question but rather stating a thesis.

"It was not here yesterday," commented his master accepting all that Bate's words implied.

"No, sir, that it was not. I was a-cuttin' the lawn till night bed time an' it wasn't there then."

Grant was himself again. He stooped and grabbed the rope.

"Suppose we solve the mystery," he said.

"No need to dirty your hands, sir," put in Bates. "Let I haul 'un in."

"Good Gawd!" he wheezed. At the end of the rope was the body of a woman!

There are few more distressing objects than a drowned corpse. On that bright June morning a dreadful apparition lost little of its grim repulsiveness because the body was that of a young and good-looking woman.

If one searched England it would be difficult to find two men of differing temperaments less likely to yield to the stress of even the most trying circumstances than Grant and Bates, yet, during some agonized moments the one, of tried courage and fine mettle, was equally horrified and shaken as the other, a gnarled and hard-grained rustic. It was he from whom speech might least be expected who first found his tongue. Bates, who had stooped, straightened himself slowly.

"By gum!" he said, "this be a bad business, Mr. Grant. Who is she She's none of our Steynholme lasses."

Still Grant uttered no word. He just looked in horror at the poor husk of a woman who in life had undoubtedly been beautiful. She was well but quietly dressed, and her clothing showed no signs of violence. The all-night soaking in the river revealed some pitiful little feminine secrets such as a touch of make up on lips and cheeks, and the dark roots of abundant hair which had been treated chemically to lighten its color. The eyes were closed, and for that Grant was conscious of deep thankfulness. Had those sightless eyes stared at him he felt he would have cried aloud in terror. The firm, well-molded lips were open, as though uttering a last protest against an untimely fate. Of course, both men were convinced that murder had been done. Not only were arms and body bound in a manner that was impossible of accomplishment by the dead woman herself, but an ugly wound on the smooth forehead seemed to indicate that she had been stunned or killed outright before being flung into the river.

And then the rope and the staple suggested an outlandish, maniacal disposal of the victim. Here was no effort at concealment, but rather a making sure, in most brutal and callous fashion that early discovery must be unavoidable.

The bucolic mind works in well-scored grooves. Receiving no assistance from his master, Bates pulled the body a little farther up on the strip of gravel so that it lay clear of the water.

"I mum fetch t' police," he said.

The phrase, with its vivid significance, seemed to galvanise Grant into a species of comprehension.

"Yes," he agreed, speaking slowly, as though striving to measure the effect of each word. "Yes, go for the police, Bates. This foul crime must be inquired into, no matter who suffers. Go now. But first bring a rug from the stable. You understand? Your wife, or Minnie, must not be told till later. They must not see. Mrs. Bates is not so well to-day."

Bates was recovering from the shock, and prepared once more to take an interest in the minor features of existence. Among these he counted the ability to eat as a sure sign of continued well-being in man or beast.

Grant, too, was slowly regaining poise.

"I hardly know what I am saying," he muttered. "At any rate, bring a rug. I'll mount guard till you return with the policeman. There can be no doubt, I suppose, that this poor creature is dead."

"Dead as a stone," said Bates with conviction. "Why, her's bin in there hours," and he nodded toward the water. "Besides, if I knows anythink of a crack on t'head, her wur outed before she went into t'river.... But who i' t'world can she be?"

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

THE DAY'S FOOD: Every human being should at this time of world shortage in food seek not only to produce but to conserve food and get the greatest percentage of value in the way of substantial nutriment from the least amount and least expensive products of the soil. Without food money is valueless. Food, raiment and shelter constitute true wealth. In order to help all to the best possible daily food that is nutritious and palatable, food that will appeal to gustatory enjoyment and physical well being, the Department of Agriculture has given us in the excellent paper entitled Farmer's Bulletin No. 808, a detailed estimate for the needs of an average family:

"A man who does fairly hard muscular work would be likely to get the food which his body needs if supplied daily with such a combination of foods as the following:

1 1-4 pounds of bread, having about the same food value as 1 pound of such cereal preparations as wheat or rye flour, oatmeal, cornmeal, rice, etc., 2 ounces or 1-4 cup of butter, oil, meat drippings or other fat, 2 ounces of 1-4 cup of sugar, or 1-3 cup of honey, or syrup or an equivalent amount of other sweet; 1 1-4 pounds of food from the following: Fresh fruits and green or root vegetables; 12 ounces of food from a class which may be called 'meats and meat substitutes,' that is, moderately fat meats, poultry, fish, eggs, cheese, dried legumes (beans, peas, lentils, cowpeas and peanuts). Milk also belongs among these foods but because of the large amount of water it contains half a glass or four ounces of it would be required to equal an ounce of any of the others.

"A man who works out of doors all day probably would need more food than this, and one who sits all day at his desk would need less. The amounts given are suitable for a man who, like a salesman in a store, walks about more or less and does more or less of such work as lifting. A family consisting of a man and a woman who do moderately hard muscular work and three children—say between 3 and 12 years of age—would get the food they require if supplied daily with:

"6 1-2 pounds of bread, having the same food value as 3 pounds of wheat or rye flour, oatmeal, cornmeal, or hominy or rice; or about 3-4 pounds of cereals, and 5 or 6 medium-sized potatoes; 3-4 cup of fat (butter or butter with oil, beef drippings, or other fat), a weekly allowance of 2 1-2 to 3 pounds. A little more than 1 cup of sugar or a weekly allowance of 4 pounds; or an equivalent amount of some other sweet; 4 pounds in all of fresh fruits and fresh or root vegetables. One of the two following, the choice depending on the age of the children; 3 quarts of milk and 1 pound of other foods taken from the meat and meat substitute group; 2 quarts of milk and 1 1-2 pounds of other foods taken from the meat and meat substitute group.

"This rather rough calculation is based on the assumption that cereals contain on the average, about 12 per cent. protein, 1 per cent. fat, and 75 per cent. carbohydrates, and that 1 pound of bread contains about 2-3 of a pound of cereal; that butter, oil, lard and other fatty foods average 90 per cent. fat; that fresh fruits and fresh and root vegetables average about 1-2 per cent. protein, and 10 per cent. carbohydrates, with negligible quantities of fat, and that meats, fish, eggs, cheese, etc., as purchased, may be considered to average about 14 per cent. each of protein and fat. The estimate also assumes that all the fat obtained with the meats, etc., is utilized, being either eaten with the meat or saved for use in cookery. Under these conditions the fuel value of the diet would be about 10,000 calories per family per day or the equivalent amount of 3,000 calories per man per day; the protein value would be about 330 grams per family or 100 grams per man per day.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if the same are addressed to the Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor: I wish to tell you of my wife's improving health. She has been a great sufferer from Sciatica, and was under our local doctor's treatment, but continued to grow worse. Not knowing of an osteopathic doctor, we could do no better. She stopped taking medicine, and improved so that she could be up at times, but the pain was so severe that she must take what the doctor called "pain pills," which I think contained mercury, but soon the pain would return as severe as ever. In looking over your book, Vol. V., I noticed mandrake as a substitute for mercury. She took a couple of doses and it proved to be more than a substitute, and now she thinks she is almost well. At first she took too much and it acted on her as a physic. Do you think it could have a bad effect upon the heart? Her heart is not strong. As mandrake is such a good internal remedy could it not be made useful as a plaster or a poultice?

If my letter is not too trying on your patience I would like to tell you what I experienced lately. While my wife was in the height of her suffering I was taken with an attack of hiccough. With the first dose of medicine the doctor laid me on my back unconscious and finally said that I must go; a man 80 years old cannot live with hiccoughs. By this time my daughter heard of an osteopathic doctor, gave him the case and in a short time I came out as stout as ever. My friends thought we would have two funerals at "grandpa's" but thank the Lord and Dr. Reeder, there was none. H.E.

Answer: In the vegetable kingdom are to be found just as good remedies—if not better—than minerals. When introduced into the human system they will not like mercury for instance, cling to the bones, remaining like a canker and rendering a large number of people debilitated for life. The vegetables pass off after their work has been done and for this reason alone they ought to be used wherever they are indicated. The mandrake, which was employed in your wife's case, is one of those excellent herb remedies about the value of which we now all know, and I am glad to find that great success followed its use in her case. Undoubtedly it could be put up as a poultice and do its work well, although its direct influence would be somewhat minimised from so doing. Fomentations will have a good effect where applied and you will find a great deal mentioned on that subject not only in the Home Health Club Book, Vol. V., but also in the Vol II.

Osteopathy has already filled a mission and even the staunchest supporters of the allopathic school must admit that there are a good many cases that their treatments will not reach, but which are easily and favorably influenced by osteopathic means. I am as you know a strong advocate of natural therapeutics and the success which has followed the Home Health Club methods is sufficient proof that the simplest means are always the best. I know of many cases of hiccough for instance, which were very easily cured by an osteopath after they had been given up by other physicians. You would probably not have been among the living to-day if you had no knowledge of osteopathy. There is no reason why both you and your wife should not enjoy life for many years to come.

THE WAR SITUATION.

Demands Universal Thrift and Economy in National Life.

Individual thrift and individual sacrifice will win the war. The upheaval in Russia and the extent of the latest German submarine campaign have increased the necessity for concerted national efforts by the rest of the Allies against the Central Empires. The obligation upon every man and woman in the Dominion to exercise their full powers for the successful prosecution of the war is not relieved by the entry of the United States into the struggle. Canada must have more men for the firing line and it must have more money to support its military effort. The amount which the Dominion is expected to raise in the present year is estimated on good authority at $600,000,000. Every dollar that the country can spare is needed to support the war burden. National thrift is essential to meet financial obligations and provide for the struggle that lies ahead. There is a direct war work for everyone to do. Practice thrift and invest your savings in Government War Savings Certificates. B-2

Some Picnic Receipts

Picnic lunches will soon be the order of the day. Some lunch basket recipes are suggested:

Fish Sandwiches.

Cut some thin rounds of bread and fry them in a little butter. Now pound up half a tin of potted fish paste, with one egg which has been slightly boiled, a little parsley, and pepper and salt. Spread this on each round, put two together and wrap up in a little grease-proof paper. These can be varied and are extremely good.

A Portable Salad.

Make some patty cakes of short crust very thin and bake them. When cold fill up with some shredded lettuce, watercress, tomato and hard-boiled egg, a little ham or cold beef; all of this should be moistened with a little salad dressing. Stick two cases together by brushing the edges with a little white of egg. If liked the filling can consists of a fish salad or chicken, game, etc., any little odd pieces left over which are too small to use in any other way.

Cheese Sandwiches.

Break one egg into a saucepan, add half an ounce of butter, two teaspoonfuls of milk, two ounces grated cheese, pepper and salt, and stir over a gentle flame. When set allow to cool, and then spread on slices of brown bread and butter, or, if liked, the filling may be spread on water biscuits. These are excellent.

Stuffed Eggs.

Hard boil some eggs, cut in half, remove the yolks. Pound these smooth, together with any remains of cooked fish or ham, of whatever is at hand; season well and fill up the egg halves. Wrap each in a lettuce leaf.

Fruit Cake Tartlets.

Break up some slices of stale fruit cake and add to it one-third of the quantity of chopped up apple, a squeeze of lemon juice, mix together, fill up with this mixture some little pastry cakes which have been cooked. Put two together, sticking the edges with a little egg. Chopped nuts and banana are excellent used in this way.

Oat Cake Sandwiches.

Spread some thin slices of brown bread with butter. Sprinkle over some grated cheese, some crumbled oat cake (unsweetened), a few watercress leaves, and pepper and salt. Place two slices together and cut into convenient sizes.

Sardine Rolls.

Make some short crust and roll out thinly, cut into oblong pieces about three by one and a half inches in size. Place on each a sardine, a little shredded lettuce, cayenne pepper and salt. Moisten edges of pastry, fold over, press edges well together, and bake for fifteen minutes in hot oven. These are excellent for carrying and very nourishing.

Choice Recipes

RHUBARB TURNOVERS.

Make a little good pastry, roll out to thickness of a quarter of an inch. Stamp it out in rounds from four to six inches in diameter lay upon one-half of the pastry a little rhubarb, cut small or a little stewed. Add sugar to taste and sprinkle a little powdered ginger over the fruit. Turn pastry over, pinch edges closely together and brush the turnovers with white of egg. Sprinkle a little powdered white sugar over them, bake in tins in a brisk oven about twenty minutes.

FRENCH BEANS.

Boil the beans in the usual way, drain them, then put them into a saucepan with a good sized lump of butter; toss over the fire for a few minutes, then add teaspoonful of chopped parsley, a teaspoonful of flour rubbed into a smooth batter with two tablespoonfuls of milk, pepper and salt to taste; let them remain on the stove for five minutes, shaking frequently to prevent burning.

BANANA PANCAKES.

This is an appetizing dish, and if served with little pork sausages, will tempt the most flagging appetite.

Make a pancake batter with two eggs, one cupful of flour, one cupful of milk, and a pinch each of sugar and salt. Leave this standing while you prepare the following filling:

Filling—Beat up six bananas until smooth and frothy, adding to them two tablespoonfuls of sugar, a little lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of milk. Make the pancakes as usual, then spread liberally with the banana mixtures. Sprinkle with sugar and serve hot with fried pork sausages.

Is doubt, in relation to spiritual and eternal things, legitimate? Henry Drummond said, upon the whole, he thought the men who raised skeptical difficulties about religion were the best men in the country. He said he spoke of men he had met, who are perplexed; men who had serious and honest difficulties; men of intellectual honesty; men who cannot be satisfied by words, traditions of theologies; but who must get at the bottom of things for themselves. He also states all religious truths are doubtable. This is a very strong statement when we note carefully that he is not speaking of creeds theories, and dogmas that are called religious, but religious truths. Personally, I have found religious creed, theories and dogmas, whether true or untrue, are doubtable. I know what it is to be in deep and extended doubt. I was in doubt of all supposed religious truth, even in the existence of a Supreme Being. This was to me not a pleasant experience; yet this experience caused me to act in a way that led me out of doubt into an assurance that was divine. I was in a wilderness of doubt, not knowing any way out. In my loneliness and distress I cried, not "lost," not knowing there was a God to hear my cry. But there was a God who heard my cry, and made it clear to me "immediately," the way out.

The following were the directions given:

With all the power I was possessed of, to seek truth and accept truth, wherever I found it, and whatever it might be.

I was to accept any thought, idea, or assertion as truth that had the greater preponderance of proof, favour of its being truth.

I was to act according to the light or knowledge received.

Taking heed to the directions led me out into an assurance divine. A man does not drift into this experience. In seeking and finding truth for himself, what is the attitude of the religious leaders of the various organizations called churches? Is not the seeker looked upon with suspicion and oft times branded as a heretic. But what of that; it is good to be able to say in confidence, "we speak of that which we know."

If there comes to us no divine revelation, God speaking to us and making plain His will concerning us, then doubt must be our portion. There is deliverance not only from the guilt and power of sin, but deliverance from doubt and fear also.

HE LET THE BULLET STAY.

How Garibaldi's Life Was Saved and His Health Restored.

Half a century ago it was the belief of most surgeons that bullets lodged in any part of the body should be probed for and "extracted at all hazards." The modern surgeon, who is able to locate bullets with mathematical accuracy with the X-ray, often allows the bullet to remain where it has lodged unless there is some very special reason for digging it out. And results prove the wisdom of the modern surgeon's attitude.

It is an interesting bit of history that a famous Russian surgeon advocated and practiced the conservative method of letting impacted bullets alone more than fifty years ago and by this method undoubtedly saved the life of the Italian patriot Garibaldi. The great soldier, wounded in the right leg and captured at the battle of Aspramonte, was placed under the care of several European surgeons, who tried unsuccessfully to remove the bullet.

At that time the Russian surgeon Pirogoff was stopping in Heidelberg, and the Russian students at that university raised the sum of 1,000 francs to induce the surgeon to examine Garibaldi. Pirogoff refused the fee, but he visited the patriot, examined his wound and, contrary to the opinions of all the other surgeons, advised letting the bullet alone. He suggested removal to a dry climate with plenty of fresh air and sunshine. The soldier took his advice, moved into a dry climate and recovered.—Exchange.

LINGERING WEAKNESS FOLLOWING DISEASE

Banished by the Wonderful Tonic Powers of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

How often victims of disease such as la grippe, fevers, or contagious troubles are left weak, ailing and despondent after the disease itself has disappeared. They do not pick up strength as they ought; remain listless, tired and discouraged. The reason for this is that the blood has been impoverished by the ravage of the disease through which the victim has passed. Strength will not return until the blood has been enriched. The blood can be purified and enriched by no other medicine as quickly and as surely as by Dr. Williams Pink Pills—to enrich the blood and strengthen the nerves is the whole mission of these pills. Thousands have found them beneficial in bringing strength and energy after disease had left them weak and run down. Miss Hannah Hamilton, Everett, Ont., says:—"After an attack of la grippe I was so run down and anaemic that I could scarcely walk. I had no colour, no appetite, and constant headaches. The medicine I was taking was doing me no good and I had almost lost hope of getting better. I was asked to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and it was not long until I could feel that they were helping me, and after taking them for a couple of months I was completely cured. I now never fail to recommend these pills to anyone needing a blood builder."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SINN FEINERS TO CONTEST

Man Under Life Sentence Will Run For Redmond's Seat.

LONDON, June 16.—The Sinn Feiners of East Clare have decided to contest the seat in Parliament vacated by the death at the front of Major William Redmond. They have chosen as candidate Edward De Calera, formerly a professor in Dublin University, and sentenced to death for his connection with the Sinn Fein revolt. His sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life, and he is now in jail.

GOING ON WHEELS

EVOLUTION OF THE VEHICLE.

The Crude Carts Used in the Early Ages by the Romans Were Followed by Carriages—Then Came Covered Coaches With Doors and Windows.

From the forked limb of a tree to the automobile has the evolution of the vehicle expanded. For hundreds of years the chariot reigned supreme, and, bearing a fair resemblance to it even in this day, crude forms of carts on two wheels are to be seen in India, China, Ceylon, Mexico and other countries. In China centuries ago the monocycle was in great favor. This odd vehicle, much like the modern wheelbarrow, is still in general use in many parts of the country and is propelled by man power.

Among the two wheeled vehicles in popular use in the Asiatic world may be mentioned the "ekka," largely used in northern India, and the famed jinrikisha of Japan. The Romans first established the use of carriages as private means of conveyance, and with them these vehicles attained a great variety of form as well as of ornamentation.

In all ages the employment of wheeled vehicles has depended largely upon the condition of the roads on which they were to be used, and the building of great highways, such as the Appian way by Claudius in 313 B. C., as well as many others, greatly facilitated the development of carriage traveling among the Romans. In Rome as well as in other large cities of the empire it became necessary to restrict travel in carriages to a few persons of high rank owing to the narrowness and crowded condition of the streets. For the same reason the transport of goods along the streets was forbidden between sunrise and sunset. For long journeys and to convey parties the "reda" and "carruca" appear to have been mostly used.

During the empire the carriage which appears in pictorial representations of public ceremonials is the "carpentum." It is very light, with two wheels, sometimes covered and generally drawn by two horses. If a carriage was drawn by four horses they were yoked abreast among the Greeks and Romans, not in pairs, as now. From the Roman "carruca" are traced the modern English name "carriage," the French "carrosse" and the Italian "carrozza."

The "sirpea" was a very ancient form of vehicle, the body of which was of osier basketwork. It originated with the Gauls, by whom it was named "benna," and was employed by them for the conveyance of persons and goods in times of peace and baggage and supplies in time of war.

On the introduction of the feudal system throughout Europe the use of carriages was for some time prohibited as tending to render the vassals less fit for military service. Men of all grades and professions rode on horses or mules. Horseback was the general mode of traveling, and hence the members of the council, who at the diet and on other occasions were employed as ambassadors, were called "rittmeister." In this manner also great lords made their public entry into cities.

Covered carriages were known in the beginning of the fifteenth century, but their use was confined to ladies of the first rank, and it was accounted a reproach for men to ride in them. For a long time they were forbidden even to women, but by the end of the fifteenth century they were being employed by kings and princes in long journeys and later on state occasions.

The first time that ambassadors appeared in coaches on a public official occasion was at the imperial commission held at Erfurt in 1613. Soon after this coaches became common all over Germany, notwithstanding various orders and admonitions to deter vassals from using them.

Carriages seem to have been used to some extent at quite an early period in France, for there is still extant an ordinance of Philip the Fair, issued in 1294, by which citizens' wives are prohibited from using them. It appears, however, that about 1550 there were only three carriages in Paris—one belonging to the queen, another to Diana of Poitiers and the third to Rene de Laval, a very fat nobleman who was unable to ride on horseback.

The first coach in England was made in 1555 for the Earl of Rutland by Walter Rippon, who also made a coach in 1556 for Queen Mary and in 1564 a state coach for Queen Elizabeth. By the beginning of the seventeenth century the use of carriages and coaches had become so prevalent in England that in 1601 the attention of parliament was drawn to the subject, and a bill "to restrain the excessive use of coaches" was introduced, which, however, was rejected.

In regard to carriage construction, it would seem that glass windows or hinged and completed doors were unknown prior to 1650. Public carriages for hire, or hackney coaches, were introduced into London in 1625 and rapidly grew in popularity. Notwithstanding the opposition of the king and court, who thought they would ruin the roads, they grew to number over 300 by 1650. In Paris they were introduced during the minority of Louis XIV. by Nicholas Sauvage, who lived in the Rue St. Martin at the sign of St. Fiacre, from which circumstance hackney carriages in Paris have since been called "fiacres." By 1694 there were over 700 of these conveyances in London.—Argonaut.

Grim Italian Humor.

The poorest Italian has the sun in his eyes and the geniality of the gods in his smile, while his fatalistic stoicism and keen sense of humor are something never to be forgotten. I remember, after the Vesuvius eruption of 1906, seeing a man whose home had been destroyed and the work of a lifetime obliterated calmly cooking a meal of potatoes and chestnuts over a hot spot in the lava stream that had overwhelmed his place. "Gia! I have a fine stove now!" was his dry comment.

INFANTS' FOOD TO SHELLS.

(The World's Work.)

When Mr. Lloyd George in England undertook to organize the Ministry of Munitions a glazier began to stamp out cartridge clips; a manufacturer of music rolls used his equipment to make gauges; a concern engaged before the war in preparing infant's food began delivering plugs for shells; an advertising agency manufactured shell-adapters; watchmakers began adjusting fuses; a manufacturer of baking machinery became a contractor for six-inch high-explosive shells; a jewellery house devoted itself exclusively to periscopes; a phonograph concern sent millions of delicate shell parts to the assembling stations; a firm which made nothing but sheep-sheering machinery started turning out shell-cases; a cream separator factory manufactured shell-primers. Among other producers of finished shell were candle-makers, flour mills, tobacco manufacturers, syphon-makers and the manufacturers of sporting goods.

"GERM" OF THE TANK

Agricultural Engine First Started Idea of Monster

It was an engine for agricultural purposes, with its huge travelling wheels, that was the germ of the Tank. A plan was submitted to the authorities by a Lincolnshire firm, and in time, after much labour and discussion, two uncouth monsters took shape. They were tried on Lincolnshire bogland first, then at dead of night, over a slippery hillside, a trench, a shell-crater, and barbed wire. Finally, there was an official test "somewhere in England." Secretly, the tanks were taken to the trial ground. Over a piece of ground which had been made to resemble the worst part of the war zone they were driven, and the keen, critical eyes of British and French military experts watched the two tanks clear trenches, crush down parapets, ignore barbed wire, and negotiate a big, muddy puddle. Numbers of tanks were then built with admirable speed and secrecy, and the crews trained. Then one day there came a report from Sir Douglas Haig, that "we used a new type of heavy-armoured car, which has been of great assistance." The tank had made its debut.

HISTORIC PEN OF STATE

Peace Treaty Pen will Become Historical Souvenir

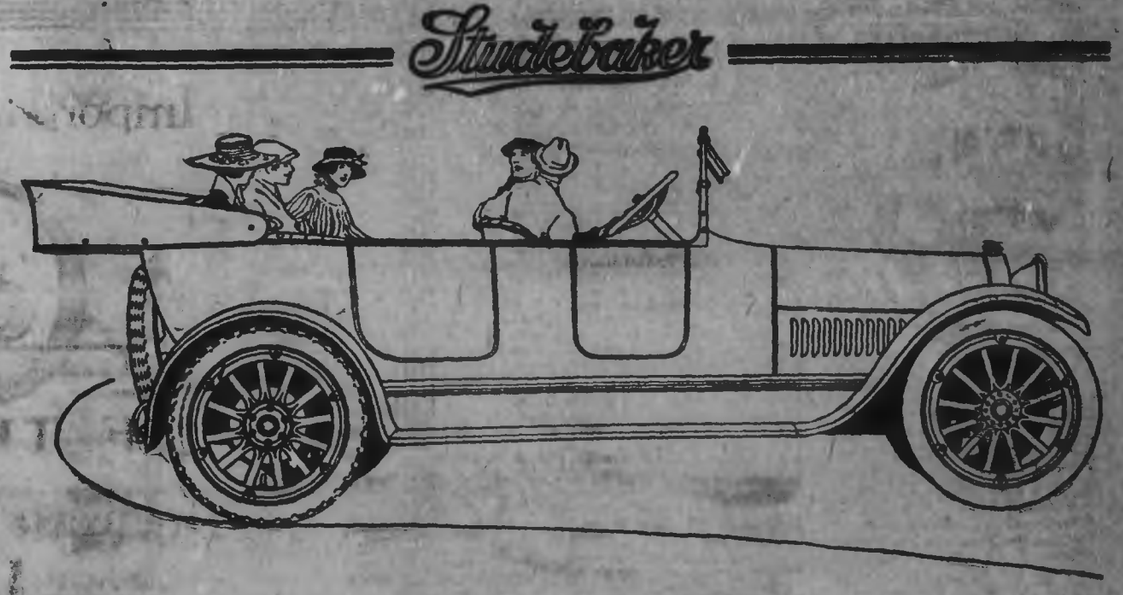
An interesting historical souvenir will be the pen with which the treaty of peace is signed. The last peace treaty—that which followed the Balkan war—was signed with a pen belonging to Dr. E. J. Dillon, the famous foreign correspondent. One of the most valuable pens in the world is that which was some time ago in the possession of Mr. Isaac B. Reed, of New York, who refused an offer of $1,750 for it. It was made from a carved box in which George Washington, when a young man, kept the lenses of his surveying instruments, the wood of which once formed the lid of the captain's desk on the "Mayflower." The value of the pen was enhanced by the fact that it was used by Lincoln and Grant.

INCIDENT IN FRANCE

Friends in Peace Prove Enemies in War

A newspaper correspondent writes: Passing one of the cages after a big engagement, a Canadian heard his name called out. Thinking this strange he listened again and heard his name repeated. "One of those blessed Fritzes is calling you," said his mate. And sure enough it was so. The man proved to be a German-Canadian who had worked for a number of years in Toronto, Ont. Asked what the deuce he was doing in this mix-up, he said that he had gone back to Germany to have a dust-up with the British, and seemed quite pleased at his exploit.

An English officer, writing home says: "I have just returned from burying one of our boys. He was only a Bermondsey gutter-snipe—but he gave all he had."



The Studebaker Car

What You Get for Your Money

You get a Canadian built car which has been perfected by four years' experience with the same basic design. Each year improvements and refinements have made it a still better car.

These improvements and refinements are based on the experience of 300,000 Studebaker cars in the hands of owners in all parts of the world.

The Studebaker SIX is not an experiment—it is an evolution.

The Studebaker SIX is made of carefully selected materials developed, perfected and tested in the great Studebaker laboratories.

The workmanship in Studebaker cars is experienced, painstaking and carefully supervised. The inspections are rigid and exacting in the extreme.

What is true of the Studebaker SIX is also true of the Studebaker FOUR. Both cars are of the same basic design. Many of their parts are interchangeable—that is why it is possible for Studebaker to offer so good a car at so low a price.

The paint and varnish work is excellent. The upholstery is not only genuine leather, but high grade genuine leather. The cushions are soft and comfortable. The auxiliary seats are folding armchairs. The front seats are adjustable, and the right hand one reversible.

Studebaker cars are guaranteed by the manufacturer for one year against defective workmanship and material. When you buy a Studebaker you get proved quality, proved economy and the guarantee of a great Canadian manufacturer.

Let us demonstrate to you the many points of Studebaker quality and economy.

The HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

People who make mistakes are those who quarrel with one another before their children; or who allow the latter to grow up in idleness; those who talk about their troubles before strangers; the father who tells his children to go the way he does not go himself, and the young woman who does not make a confident of her mother.

• • •

A single bitter word may disquiet the home for a whole day, but like unexpected flowers which spring up along our path, full of freshness and beauty, so do kind words and gentle acts and sweet dispositions make glad the home where peace and blessings dwell. The heart will turn lovingly toward it from all the tumults of the world, the home, "be it ever so humble," will be the dearest spot under the sun.

Every boy is going to have a confident, some one to whom he can tell his secrets and whisper his hopes and ambitions which he would not breathe to others. We take it for granted that his mother will stand nearer to him than any other person, but every boy will have some male friend who will stand in a peculiar relation to him. This friend, this confident, should be his father. You cannot afford to have your boy feel that you are too busy or too indifferent to tell him how to fly his kite or bait his hook or make a toy or to play games with him. If you begin early enough, it is comparatively easy for you to gain your boy's confidence. From infancy he should grow up to feel that no one else can take your place; that you stand in a peculiar relation to him which no one else can fill.

There are hundreds of young men in every great city in the very lowest depths of degration whom the home influence, carefully and prayerfully extended through tender, affectionate, womanly letters, might have saved. There are hundreds of others just taking their first lesson in vice, who may be brought back to purity by loving words from mothers, sisters or sweethearts. Until a man becomes thoroughly vicious, the thought of a pure woman's love will do much to restrain him from inquity. If that love grows careless of him, he grows careless of himself. Think of this, you who have sons, brothers or lovers away among strangers. Remember that you owe him a sacred duty; and give them frequent missives from home, freighted with love and accompanied by earnest prayer.

• • •

We cannot honour with too deep a reverence the home affections; we cannot cherish them with too much solicitude. Members of the home circle lose nothing by being polite and kind to one another. Little children are such imitative creatures; if the father shows kindly attention to mother, bright eyes will see the act and are sure to do just like papa.

We doubt if one instance in a thousand can be found of a young man's making shipwreck of hopes and character who was accustomed to spend his evenings at home reading good books; and we say to any parent that a well stocked library and an abundant supply of newspapers and magazines, with the habit of reading on the part of your boy, is worth more to keep him out of mischief and to make a man of him, than any other single influence at your command.

• • •

The old fashioned office boy who swears, smokes cigarettes and is impertinent usually, and reads dime novels in a corner, or loafs when he is sent on an important errand, is fast disappearing and it is predicted that in the course of time the office girl will have entirely taken his place.

• • •

Probably nineteen-twentieths of the happiness you will ever have you will get at home. The independence that comes to man when his work is over, and he feels that he has run out of the storm into the quiet harbour of home, where he can rest in peace and his family, is something real. It does not make much difference whether you own your house or have one little room in the house, you can make that little room at home to you.

• • •

A sunshiny husband makes a merry, beautiful home, worth working in and for. If the man is breezy, cheery, considerate and sympathetic, the wife sings in her heart over puddings and mending basket, and counts the hours till he returns at night and renews her youth in the security she feels of his approbation and admiration.

• • •

Every woman who reads our Home Circle and has a home, should thank God for it, and also be thankful that she may be queen in it. Better be in your own cosy home than wear a Victoria's coronet. Better be there than to carry the purse of a princess. Your home may be humble, but you can, by your cheerfulness, gild it with splendours such as an upholsterer's hand never yet kindled.

• • •

In too many families the mother assumes the care of everything and her daughters are but genteel loungers in the household. The work which could be so easily and quickly done if each bore a share, is left for the hands already weakened by heavy burdens.

• • •

Nothing helps a woman through the long weary days of work as the knowledge that what she does is appreciated by those she loves and for whom she toils. Think of this, husbands and fathers, and remember that a kind word is always in season.

WANT NO CURB ON KAISER.

Reports found in Berlin newspapers recently received in London indicate that while the proceedings of the Constitution Committee of the Reichstag, which was formed several weeks ago following a declaration by the Kaiser telling of his desire to see the German Government liberalized, provide the press with plenty of material for polemics, there is no great likelihood of the basic law of the empire undergoing any sensational alterations.

Dr. Theodore Lewald, Director of the Political Section of the Ministry of the Interior, keeps an eye on the proceedings for the Government and intervenes whenever there is an opportunity to delay matters. As the Berliner Tageblatt puts it, the meetings of the Constitution Committee thus far have shown that not only the Conservatives, but the representatives of the Government are trying "to put as many stones as possible in the path."

The Cologne Gazette protests especially against any interference with the rights of the Supreme War Lord. The newspaper publishes a defense of Prussian military traditions and of the historic relations between army and Crown, which says:

"On the west front greater battles are raging than the history of the world has ever seen, and our brave soldiers, under their well-proved leaders are blocking every enemy attempt to break through. At sea our submarines are developing an activity greater than the most hopeful had ever conceived. Meanwhile, the army estimates have been discussed in the Reichstag, but the debate did not rise above the theoretical utterances which are repeated year by year. After almost three years of war we should have expected a different treatment of these subjects.

"But what is positively perilous is the effort which is being made in the Constitution Committee to interfere with the position of the Supreme War Lord toward Army and Navy. The proposal to make the Imperial Chancellor or the Minister of War responsible for the nomination of officers is an invasion of the rights of the Crown which we must characterize at once as unfounded, inappropriate, and harmful, and which must be repudiated with the greatest determination in the interests of the Corps of Officers, which is the backbone of our defense on sea and land.

"One would have thought that the tremendous struggle which Germany has for so long maintained, unbroken and confident of victory, against almost the whole world had sufficiently proved what gratitude the whole whole country and people owe to the officers, who during decades of laborious work forged the weapon whose sharp edge is bringing all the attacks of our enemies to naught. Are we now, as if we had Jena and Auerstedt immediately behind us, suddenly to cut the ties which unite the King of Prussia and German Kaiser with the Corps of Officers? Why should we do so? Only because doctrinaire theorists wish it so."

FRECKLES

DON'T HIDE THEM WITH A VEIL —REMOVE THEM WITH THE OTHINE PRESCRIPTION

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by any druggist under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter of the freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.

WILY MAGYAR MOVES FOR PEACE EXPOSED

One of World's Chief Persecutors Trying to Deceive Russians with Promises to Subject Races

The Hungarian correspondent of The London Morning Post disclosed the real meaning of the franchise reform proposals in that country. A block of all the Opposition parties, having compassed the fall of the Premier, Count Tisza, was to work primarily for suffrage reform and in the interests of peace, which, being translated into fact, meant primarily and wholly peace on the Austrian terms, so agreeable to the Russian Germans and their dupes, of "no annexations," the bait dangled by the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, Count Czernin.

Utopian and Deceptive

It seems that Count Karolyi's party started the peace-with-suffrage movement by a manifesto, touchingly described by a Budapest journal as marking "the beginning of the reform "age of Hungarian politics, the gold "en age of Magyar liberalism, candid. "brave, serene, for which the nation "has so long been waiting." Peace universal suffrage, and a union of civilized nations, "a common jury" of which will settle all internation disputes: so Astraea comes back, and a new order is born.

Coming from the oligarchs of one of the most pugnacious and chauvinistic of peoples, gifted, self-willed, masterful, this millennial program is a curiosity. Count Apponyi and Count Karolyi must give each other most augur-like winks. The Magyars fought for the rights of their own nationality. The liberals of the world felt a superfluous pain when Russia put down the Magyar revolution in 1849. The basis, the essence of Magyar policy, is the oppression of smaller nationalities.

A Race of Oppressors

Of the 20,000,000 people of Hungary, eight or nine millions are Magyars. For fifty years it has been there habit to persecute the unfortunate majority. The Rumanians of Transylvania, the Slavs of Slavonia-Croatia, can testify to the reform spirit of the Magyars. Electoral frauds, electoral intimidation by mobs or the Hungarian Army, injustice in the courts—these have been habitual. From the beginning of the war, imprisonment, shooting, hanging, wholesale exile have been the discipline enforced upon the South Slavs. Looking back on Magyar methods, the subject races of Hungary know what sort of "golden age" awaits them. A trick to bring peace without justice to the oppressed nationalities: that is all there is to this idyl, this amoebean song of Budapest and Vienna.

SIMS OF TARGET FAME

Admiral Who was Experienced in Work with Destroyers

The fact that American destroyers are operating with the allied fleet and that Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U.S.N., first took command of this expeditionary force of hornets, was welcome to all who know the energy and skill of this officer and the effectiveness of the vessels which he commanded, said the New York Times. After bringing about that extraordinary revision in naval target practice which changed the 3 per cent. of hits scored at Santiago to the 3 per cent. of misses which were later made on the target ranges, this officer was placed in command of the United States destroyer flotilla and later in command of the submarines. In the service he was therefore regarded as preeminently equipped for the work of hunting down submarines with destroyers, as there was no one more familiar with the capacities of both types.

RUNNER: A WAR VICTIM

Edouard Cibot Won Commission by Use of Bayonet

A former world's champion runner, Edouard Cibot, who with Orphee won the six day racing championship in New York in 1909, has been killed fighting. Cibot began the war for France as a sergeant and had been at the front since the first days. He won his way literally with the bayonet, through every non-commissioned rank, quartermaster-sergeant, sergeant-major, company adjutant, battalion adjutant and was promoted to be a lieutenant. He began work as a roadman and afterward carried newspapers from the printing offices to the selling stands before becoming a very successful runner. "Nothing is so good as a well fixed bayonet," was his favorite saying.

FOUNDER OF RED CROSS

First Idea Originated with a Geneva Physician

The idea of the Red Cross originated from a man named Henri Dunant, a physician of Geneva, who, in consequence of what he had seen in the battle of Solferino, founded an association to help the wounded. This was about the year 1860. Several reasons are given as to why the red cross was chosen as the symbol, one being that it is the emblem of Christianity. Another is that it is taken from the emblem of the Swiss Republic.

Go-Between for German

At the War Office request the charge against a clerk of taking into Haskney Wick, Eng., internment camp a letter making an appointment between "a German of consequence and a lady" was withdrawn.

Food Laws Enforced

John Williamson, Broad-street, Golden-square, W. 1, was fined $25, and Violet Cole, his attendant, ordered to pay $5, at Marlborough-street Police Court, London, for selling fancy pastries.

A Witty Remark, Indeed

Lord Northbourne, who opened a new Y.M.C.A. hut in East Kent, said he belonged to the Society for the Abolition of All Votes of Thanks.

FARM JOTTINGS

No matter what other things there may be if there is no silo a farm is not fully equipped.

Buckwheat and emmer are two late grain crops which can be sown any time before the end of June.

Frequent and shallow cultivation are essential to success with corn. Deep cultivation means root injury.

Carrots, beets and parsnips can be kept fresh far into the winter if buried in dry sand in the cellar. Provide the sand now.

The needed repairs for the mower and binder will cost no more now than later and may, if ordered now, save costly delay.

If there is a low spot which has been too wet for ordinary seeding sow millet. Hay will be on the light side, and millet will help out.

Time is money on the farm at harvest time. Now is the time to repair the mowers, binders and rakes which will very shortly be required for service.

In an hour and a half the Minnesota Aberdeen-Angus Breeders' Association sold 30 bulls and 15 cows at an average of $193 in their South St. Paul consignment sale.

In these days of unprecedented prices for farm products the farmer must keep "keyed up" in every branch of his work to get the most profits and keep abreast of his neighbors.

Gains in crop yields from $5 worth of finely pulverized limestone have been more than five times the cost of treatment in tests made at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Ninety-two Jerseys brought an average of $525 at the Edmond Butler sale in New York. Eigthy-nine of these were females. The top price was $2,625, and six animals fetched $1,000, or better.

When grain was one-third the present price eggs were one-half, what they command to-day. And yet some people wonder why eggs should be high. Comparatively speaking, they are cheap.—Farmers' Advocate.

Owing to the present high prices for feed and labor, culling dairy herds of low producers is needed more than ever before. Inferior cows lower the herd profits but they can be detected by individual milk and butter records.

The length of time milk will remain sweet after being taken from the cow depends almost altogether upon two factors: first, the care exercised in keeping the milk clean; and, second, the temperature at which the milk is kept.

Cabbage worms, the most destructive insect enemies of cabbage, cauliflower and related crops, begin depredations in the early spring and continue until the crop is harvested. Spraying with either Paris green or arsenate of lead, or dusting with pyrethrum after the heads form, is recommended by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station to control such pests.

WHY Does Your Head Ache?

Headaches, sick or other kinds, don't happen to people whose livers are busy and whose bowels are as regular as a clock.

Thousands of folks who used to have headaches say this is the way they removed the cause:

One pill at bedtime, regularly. Larger dose if there's a suspicion of biliousness or constipation.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

IT FLASHED FOR THROCMORTON

By Bushrod C. Washington

"Gentlemen, have you agreed upon a verdict?" asked the clerk of twelve solemn faced men in the jury box. "We have," responded the foreman, handing a folded paper to the clerk, who read aloud the indorsement on the back: "We, the jury, find the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree, as charged in the indictment."

"William Throcmorton," said Judge Smithson, with judicial sternness, "after a fair trial, defended by able counsel, you stand convicted of the cruel and deliberate murder of Olive Graham.

"It has been shown that the young woman had promised to become your wife. Her parents, confiding in your honorable intentions, had recognized you as her accepted lover and the door of their home was open to you.

"While the motive in your crime is not apparent, the facts which fasten it upon you are linked into a chain of circumstances strong and incontrovertible.

"You stood with Olive Graham on the porch of her home; an instant later her cry for mercy was heard by her parents above the storm then raging. Hastening to her assistance, they found her murdered body on the slope of the hill a rod from the door.

"You were taken soon after, as it were, red handed, the bloody knife with which the deed was done having been found upon your person.

"You have pleaded 'not guilty,' but have not disproved a single fact the state alleged against you.

"The penalty of your crime as by statute fixed is death. Have you anything to say why the sentence should not be pronounced?"

Throcmorton was a pink of physical manhood, well knit, erect, with a character as straight as his form. He held a medal from "the management" and was the wearer of a watch, the gift of grateful passengers when he was taken from the wreck of his engine. "Throc," as they called him, was more than liked; he was loved by the grimy roadmen.

When the last word fell from Judge Smithson, the character of the man and the stubborn facts of the case stood in solemn contrast. In such a contest character must lose.

The eyes of Throcmorton shone straight into the eyes of the judge. There was nothing of bravado in his manner, neither tremor nor sign of weakening.

"If it please your honor," responded the prisoner, rising as he spoke, "it will shock you and all present when I say I mourn for Olive Graham and am innocent. But what is it worth to say it in the face of the evidence? Had I sat with the jury I must have come to their verdict. I am ready, your honor, for the sentence."

Moved by some sudden impulse, the judge turned to the sheriff and said in a faltering voice: "Remove the prisoner and return him for sentence to the bar of this court. The day and hour the court will later indicate."

* * * * * * *

Old Graham was a pensioned track inspector, who loved the thunder of trains and scream of whistles.

He had built his house thirty feet from the roadbed. Just back of it and extending down to the track was an abrupt twenty foot cliff of shale, the perpendicular face of which was smooth. It was in front of it that they found the body of Olive.

No. 49 just ran out of the roundhouse, had backed up and coupled to the St. Louis express. It was Tom Doyle's pet engine.

Doyle was looking from the cab window for the signal to start. As an engineer he was a good second to Throcmorton. He was Throc's next friend and was to have been best man at his wedding.

He believed Throcmorton was innocent be use he couldn't believe otherwise. But there were the facts, and when he thought of them there was a lump in his throat.

Ted Elsie, Doyle's fireman, had just raked the grate when a squad of the boys came by.

"What's the news?" asked Ted.

"Throc's guilty an' got to swing," came back from the crowd.

"Fifty juries couldn't make me believe Throc killed Ollie Grah'm," said Doyle, emphasizing with his fist on the window sill.

The day had been sweltering, clouds had gathered and the night was black.

It was down grade, and Tom Doyle, with hand on throttle valve and eye on the rails, was ready to slack at the curve.

The storm had burst, and just as the engine struck the curve a flash of lightning and the focus of the headlight met full on the face of the cliff. The sight Tom Doyle saw made him reel and grip the lever.

* * * * * * *

"A letter for Mr. Absalom Conway!" called out Goggin, the worthy proprietor of a San Francisco gambling den, putting emphasis on "Mr. Absalom." "That's you, Ab, I reckon," he added, tossing him the letter.

Mr. Conway eyed the letter full a minute and, looking nervously over his shoulder, tore the envelope.

W——o, Aug. 4, 1869.

Friend Ab—They say my nerves is broke an' I mus' run half time or throw up. I'll divvy my runs with you, an' if my nerves don't mend yours is the job fer good. Right away you must come. An' it's yours I am, TOM DOYLE.

* * * * * * *

Ted Elsie was fireman. There was distant thunder; big drops began to patter and the wind raised. A storm was on.

"Jump into the cab, Ted, just 'fore we strike the curve," said Doyle below his breath as he put foot on the engine step.

Forked fire tore the sky, shattered telegraph poles and played in blue flames around the engine wheels as they sped onward.

Conway's hand dropped from the lever, and he stood dazed and trembling.

"Me and Ted saw it, Ab," said Doyle. "In mercy's name, what made you do it?"

Before he could catch himself Conway exclaimed, "She jilted me, and [illegible] never marry Throcmorton."

"And how did Throc come by the bloody knife?" asked Doyle.

"I dropped it into his coat pocket as I dashed by him half way back to town," replied Conway and, becoming dogged, quit answering.

* * * * * * *

The radius of a circle drawn in chalk on the smooth face of the rock marked the place where the headlight focused as the engine struck the curve.

A frame supporting apparatus had been set opposite by Professor White of the State university. It was connected by wires with the town power house.

Judge Smithson, members of the bar and representatives of the press were present. Old Graham and his wife stood by, Throcmorton supporting them, and Tom Doyle, with Ted, was much in evidence.

At a signal from Professor White an intense light from the apparatus was thrown upon the spot.

There was a suppressed exclamation as a picture appeared within the circle.

It was more than life size and became plainer as the light intensified.

There upon the face of the rock stood the grim counterpart of Absalom Conway. His right arm encircled Olive Graham's waist, his left hand clutching the identical knife in half descended stroke.

"Lightning photography," said the professor, "is classed as a freak among natural phenomena. The picture can only be seen under light approaching in brightness the flash that fixed it."

A Mysterious Disappearance.

The disappearance of Benjamin Bathurst, a kinsman of Lord Bathurst, has never been explained. Bathurst was sent on a secret mission to Vienna at the time that England, before opening the peninsula campaign, sought to persuade Austria to declare by way of distraction war against France. Austria soon after crossed the French frontier, and Bathurst received hints of threatened personal doom. Hoping to avoid examination, he took a northerly route in returning to England, and on reaching Perleberg, in Brandenburg, he visited in his agitation the commandant of cuirassiers, requesting that sentries might mount guard at the inn where he stopped. These were supplied, and Bathurst spent the day in writing and destroying letters.

Shortly before his carriage came to the door in the dusk of a November evening he told some troopers who escorted him that they might withdraw. While all the household was on the alert to see him off he walked beyond the circle of the lantern glare and was lost to sight at the head of the horses. This occurred on Nov. 25, 1809, and Bathurst was never seen or heard of more, notwithstanding that England offered £2,000 reward and Prussia 100 Friedrichs d'or for the discovery even of his remains.

WAR BREEDS NEW STRONG OPTIMISM

LONDON.—Canon J. H. B. Masterman, preaching at a sailors' service of St. Peter-up-Cornhill, said the war had brought out the remarkable fact that cheerfulness and resources increased with danger, and both were liable to decay in periods of safety. There was no pessimism at sea; the sailor's belief in human nature thrived in the great spaces of the world.

Pay Your Debt To Your Defenders

Turn Your Luxuries Into Comforts For Those Who Have Sacrificed Most.

"Self-sacrifice, self-denial and service lie at the basis of the highest personal and national development."
Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance.

IS it nothing to you that men from all round you have sacrificed home and salary, safety and life, to defend your home as well as their own?

Is it nothing to you that their wives and families tremblingly scan each casualty list, and pale at the step of the postman or telegraph messenger?

Can you see others giving their dearest, without feeling that you must do something yourself? Do you wonder what to do?

You can at least save—and lend your savings to the nation. Canada needs every dollar her loyal sons and daughters can spare, to meet the growing expenses of the struggle.

Every dollar you invest in Canadian War Savings Certificates helps the nation to deal generously with those who are defending you.

Certificates in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, repayable in three years, may be purchased at any Bank or Money Order Post Office at $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively. This means over 5% interest—making them a profitable as well as a patriotic investment.

CATTLE PRICES LOWER AND MARKET WEAK

Recent Top Prices Were Highest in History of the Local Trade —Change in Tone

The break in cattle prices which occurred last week, was emphasized this week, when another 50c. or more was knocked off the heavy fat cattle. The break from winter and spring prices does not usually occur so early in the month of June as it did this year. One dealer for many years in the market, declares he never before knew June cattle prices to be below May prices. The present break therefore, may be the exception to the rule. The fact remains that cattle prices to-day are 75c. to $1 lower than they were two weeks ago. At that time prices had no doubt reached the highest top record prices in the history of the trade in Toronto. The roof was then touched, and since then a sudden change in the general tone of the market occurred, and trade has been decidedly slow and prices weaker. Experienced cattle men have been a little puzzled at the suddenness of the change, and various guesses have been made to account for it. It has even been suggested that the big packers became scared at the general talk of a food controller being appointed by the Government to regulate and control prices and distribution. To offset such an appointment, it was determined that prices must be forced down from their recent high levels, and this could only be done by some sort of an understanding among the packers themselves. Whether there be anything in this supposition or not, it is a fact that suddenly there appeared to be very little demand for the cattle that had so lately been so keenly competed for, with the result that prices soared to heights beyond all precedent. Drovers, like every one else, became excited, and paid all sorts of extravagant prices in the country for all sorts of cattle, almost regardless of quality. The present break has hit some of these men hard, but whether the lesson will be well learned is another story. In the meantime this week's market undoubtedly closed very weak, but whether here will be an early revival will depend on coming receipts.

While both heavy and medium-weight beef cattle are lower, stockers and feeders have been similarly affected and trade has been slow and draggy.

The calf trade has kept fairly strong.

Milk cows and springers are lower.

Hogs were lowered another 50 cents this week, and, it is said, will suffer an even bigger drop next week.

Cash Receipts.

Union Stock Yards— Total receipts for this week, 575 cars, with 4,610 cattle, 1,358 calves, 8,474 hogs, 464 sheep and lambs, and 4,204 horses.

City Cattle Market—40 cars, with 429 cattle, 239 sheep and lambs, 623 hogs, 250 calves, and 175 horses.

Overland Motor Cars

Light Four Country Club (four-seater) $1110
f.o.b. point of shipment. Price subject to change without notice

The Peak of Motor Car Fashions

This new Overland Country Club Light Four is a distinctive and smart car in the low-priced car class.
The rich, gray body, with black fenders and trimmings is set off to pleasing advantage by red wire wheels that give just the right flash of brilliant color.
The two comfortable front seats move forward or back independently, and a spacious aisle between gives free passage to a roomy seat for two passengers in the rear.
For riding comfort, the Overland Country Club is a revelation. Long, cantilever rear springs give it the riding ease of a much heavier, bigger car.
It has ample power—and it is economical of gasoline.
An easy car to handle, and completely equipped.
An unusual demand for this model makes it necessary to place orders at once to secure spring delivery.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

This is not like Christ's other parables in which spiritual things are represented by worldly things. Here the spiritual things are represented in a description of the different state of good and bad in this world and in the next. It is matter of fact which very often happens that poor Godly people whom men neglect and spurn on account of their poverty, die and end their miseries here, but go to their heavenly home of peace and happiness, which makes up to them for all their sorrows and troubles here. One hour in heaven will compensate them for all their trials here, but those who have lived in luxury and ease enjoying the pleasures of life for the gratification of self alone, living only for the things of this life, die and go into the future state. Their torment will be the more grevious and terrible to them because of the lives that they have lived here.

Is this a parable only? Christ draws aside the veil between time and eternity. Being God and man he saw the future; it is an open book to him, and his words are verities. The discourse between Abraham and the rich man is an illustration. The different conditions of a worldly rich man and a poor Godly man. In this world we are told that the rich man never appeared but in great magnificence. His table was furnished with varieties and dainties. It is no sin to be rich, no sin to wear purple and fine linen, nor to keep a plentiful table, if a man's estate afford it, and his duties do not forbid. We are not told that he got his estate by fraud, oppression or extortion; but Christ merely shows that a man may have a good deal of the wealth, pomp and pleasures of this world, and yet perish forever.

The sin of this rich man was his providing for himself only for this life and laying up all his treasures here on earth, whereas Lazarus, a Godly man, in the midst of poverty and suffering and in deep distress was forced to beg his bread although sick and unable to walk, but kind friends carried him and laid him at the rich man's gate. He was glad to receive the portions that fell from the rich man's table.

An old writer says that Lazarus had no medicine for his sores, nor any one to dress them, so that the dogs came and licked them. It is often the lot of some of the dearest of God's saints and servants to be greatly afflicted in this world, as their Master said to his disciples, "In this world ye shall have tribulation, but in me ye shall have peace." We have a problem here that has puzzled the wisest and the best of men to solve. We have the worldling basking in plenty and pleasure, wearing purple and fine linen (garments worn only by princes), and his table loaded daily with the best foods that money could buy; on the other hand we have one of God's chosen ones in misery, suffering and want. What we do not know now we shall know hereafter; God has a plan for all our lives, and when that plan is completed and God's purpose fulfilled, then we shall be able to see the wisdom and perfection of God's plan. The Captain of our Salvation was made perfect through suffering. Then we come to the common lot of all our race, death, rich and poor, good and bad. The rich man died and was buried, and had a pompous funeral, but the next we hear of the rich man is that in Hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torment. The misery of the rich man is aggravated by his knowledge of Lazarus, although nothing is said about the interment of the poor man. How little is the ceremony of a funeral to the happiness of the man—but we know that when the beggar died he was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom. How much did the honour done to his soul exceed the honour done to the rich man's body? Angels took care of it; it was carried by the angels. They are ministering spirits to the heirs of salvation, not only while they live, but when they die. He was carried into Abraham's bosom.

The Jews expected the happiness of the righteous at death, three ways—they go to the garden of Eden; they go to be under the throne of glory, and they go to the bosom of Abraham. The latter our Saviour here uses.

The next that we hear of the rich man is that in Hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torment. Jesus himself says these words: they are the decrees of an Almighty and Omnipotent God, whose words stand true forever, and are not open to discussion or criticism. The finite cannot grasp the infinite. As the souls of the faithful at death are delivered from the burden of the flesh, they enter into a state of joy and felicity in the home that Jesus has gone to prepare for them. Jesus said to the penitent thief: To-day shalt thou be with me in Paradise, but the lost are banished from the presence of God under darkness into the judgment of the great day. Jude 1:6. It would seem that the misery of the rich man's fate is aggravated by his knowledge of the happiness of Lazarus. In Luke 13:28, Christ said to the Jews who had rejected him, Ye shall see Abraham and the prophets in the kingdom of God, and ye yourselves thrust out. The rich man in his torment and suffering asks the smallest thing that could be asked, a drop of water to cool his tongue. He asks that Lazarus might bring it.

There is a day coming when those that now hate and despise the people of God would gladly receive kindness from them. If we now improve our opportunities we shall have a full and lasting satisfaction in the streams of mercy. Abraham calls him son. See the folly of those who rely on that plea. We have Abraham to our father. He puts him in mind of what has been his own condition and that of Lazarus; the memories of the lost will be their tormentors, and conscience will then be awakened and stirred up to do its office, which here they would not suffer it to do. He does not say that he had abused his good things, but that he had received them. Thou received them, and used them as if they had been thine own, and thou hadst not been accountable for them. Or rather they were the things thou didst choose, for thy good things, which thou didst content thyself with, and place thy happiness in. Remember what evil things Lazarus received, think what a large share of miseries he had in his lifetime, but he bore them patiently and in resignation to the will of God. Abraham points out to him the reward that Lazarus has received for being faithful unto death. He has received the crown of life, which awaits all the faithful. Heaven is rest and comfort and peace to all the weary pilgrims who have faithfully trod in the Master's footsteps and reached their home. He begs that Lazarus might be sent to his father's house, O send, to pretent them coming hither. Send him back to my father's house; he knows where it is. I have five brethren, warn them of my lost state, lest they too come to this place of torment. How gladly he would recall or undo all that he had ever done, spoken or written against the truth—but it was too late.

There is no request granted in the abode of the lost; all his prayers now were made in vain. Abraham leaves them to the testimony of Moses and the prophets; they have the written word. There is sufficient evidence in the Old Testament to convince that there is another life after this—a state of rewards and punishments—of that the rich man would have his brethren assured, and for that they are referred to Moses and the prophets. He urges his request still further: If they will not hear them, yet it may be hoped if one went to them from the dead they would repent.

God has chosen an appointed way for the conviction and conversion of sinners. Jesus is the Life, the Truth and the Way—no man cometh to the Father but by Him.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland.

Childhood Constipation

Constipation in children can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. They are a gentle but effective laxative which thoroughly regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus drive out all childhood ailments. Concerning them Mrs. J. B. Tauffenbach, Richer, Man., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them an excellent medicine for constipation." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ANOTHER TRENCH LINE.

While the Army Fights You Should Pay—Buy War Certificates.

Canadians in the field will never refuse to fight. Can Canadians at home refuse to pay? The financial line is the fighting front at home as the trench line is the fighting front in France. Are you on the financial line? Have you invested in the Government War Savings Certificates? Every dollar that purchases a certificate strengthens the home defences and helps the man at the front. He endures suffering and hardships every day. You are only asked to put your money in a sound and attractive investment. Can you refuse? Government War Savings Certificates are purchasable at the nearest Money Order Post Office or Bank. Buy your certificates to-day. You only need $21.50 for a certificate worth $25 at the end of three years. Forty-three dollars will buy $50 at the end of the same period and $86.00 will be worth $100.00. War certificates are only issued in those amounts. They pay interest at a rate equalling 5.2 per cent. compounded each year. You can withdraw your money any time after the first 12 months. Invest your money and help the Army. F-I.

When a man wants to sell you a second hand motor car if you are wise you will appoint yourself a committee of one to investigate before closing the deal.

LISTEN TO THIS! SAYS CORNS LIFT RIGHT OUT, NOW

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison, are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers.

It is a sticky ether compound which dries the moment it is applied and simply shrivels the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but it is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

Two Ways To Acquire An Estate

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family may be, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered, or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

Two Ways To Bequeath An Estate

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape of Court. Requires Court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator — you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of Court proceedings—no expense of Court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor Court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

STEEL STOCKS

Government buying of steel promises to engage a larger percentage of this country's capacity than had been counted upon, with the result that prices for the private consumers are steadily tending higher. The flat-footed stand taken by Colonel Goethals for a fleet of steel ships in place of proposed 1,000 or more wooden vessels made it apparent that the United States must take about 1,000,000 tons of plates and 500,000 tons of shapes in the next year and a half. There was an advance last week of $5.00 a ton in sheets upon the announcement of the Government's requirements, but its orders are being given the preference at 15 to 20 per cent., below the open market quotations. The country's production of steel ingots and castings in 1916 was nearly 43,000,000 gross tons, an increase of one-third over 1915 production.

For the first time since 1905 the last year saw a steel-making capacity employed to the full. It is not expected that the increase in capacity in coming months can keep pace with the growth of demand. The war is being fought very largely on the basis of steel, which makes the entrance of the United States into the group of the Allies one of the strongest factors for the ultimate success of their cause. This Government will shortly place orders for 7,500,000 shells for field artillery which will call for 1,500,000 tons of steel.

BRITISH HOLD ALL NEWLY WON GROUND

Another Big German Retreat Is Expected

German Attacks On Newly Won British Positions Entirely Checked

Another Great German Withdrawal is Indicated and Field Marshal Haig is Preparing to Strike Another Blow at the Harassed Enemy--German Socialists Indicate Their Peace Terms---French Transport is Sunk But No Casualties Are Reported.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, June 16.—British forces holding positions wrested Thursday night from the Germans south of Ypres, were hotly attacked yesterday afternoon, Field Marshal Haig reported to-day. The counter attack was marked by heavy artillery fire, but the few Germans who succeeded in penetrating the British curtain of fire and reached the front British trenches were immediately driven out and the entire attack completely repulsed.

Front despatches to-day enlarged upon the importance of the sudden drive by which Haig yesterday thrust his forces forward northwest of Bullecourt. More of the "impregnable" Hindenburg line has been taken, and unofficial advices early to-day indicated hot fighting still in progress there, the Germans vainly endeavouring to break the British grip.

LONDON, Eng., June 16.—To-day's British official statement says:

"The positions we captured on Thursday evening south of the Ypres-Comines Canal were attacked by the enemy after heavy artillery preparation. A few Germans who succeeded in reaching our front trenches were at once killed or driven out, and the attack was completely repulsed at all points."

PARIS, June 16.—It is officially announced that the transport Annam, 4,975 tons, was torpedoed in the Jonian Sea on June 15, while proceeding under escort. There were no casualties.

NEW YORK, June 16. — Associated Press says: British troops are striking along almost the entire line they hold in Northern France, not with the terrific force which marked the victories of Arras and Messines, but in a more or less tentative manner, giving weight to the belief that Field Marshal Haig is preparing to launch a mighty blow on a hitherto unprecedented scale. Two features of the fighting stand out with sharp significance. The first is the feebleness with which the Germans are reacting, and the second is the surprising promptness with which Berlin admits retirements in various sectors. The whole situation is entirely similar to that existing prior to the great "strategic retreat" of the Germans from the Somme. There is considerable evidence that Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is planning another great withdrawal and that Field Marshal Haig is pressing him at all points in the hope of delivering a shattering blow if such a second "retreat to victory" materializes.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS NAME PEACE TERMS

No Indemnity For Belgium Because "It Would Be Difficult to Determine Which Belligerents Were Responsible For Damages on the Various Fronts," Says Report.

(By Arthur E. Mann.)

STOCKHOLM, June 16.—What may be considered to approximate the German Government's peace terms was outlined here to-day, when the German majority Socialists gave out their programme for peace. The striking points of the plan were—No indemnity for Belgium—because "it would be difficult to determine which belligerents were responsible for damages on the various fronts and a one-sided liability would merely mask an indemnity." Return of the German colonies—under the Socialist doctrine of "No annexations." Retention by Germany of Alsace Lorraine—"because they are nine-tenths German." The German Socialists outline likewise insists on the complete political and military independence of all nations, Belgium is to agree with her Austrian "comrades" regarding the future of Serbia and other Balkan nations. Poland's and Finland's future is to be left to the determination of these provinces themselves—certainly they shall be autonomous. To Greece, Ireland, Egypt, Korea, Tripoli, Morrocco and Thibet the German Socialists extended "greatest sympathy," and Socialists in those principalities were urged to work for independence. After the return of peace, the Germans would have national fibrillation and disarmament, except for defensive measures and for short enlistment for a police army." In giving out their outline the German Socialists urged that the general Socialist conference declare it was not willing to discuss the responsibility for the present war, unless the Entente delegates insisted on this. The German majority Socialists programme as outlined above differs somewhat from terms for peace which have generally—and semi-officially been credited to the German Government. Germany has usually indicated its willingness to indemnify Belgium. The German majority Socialists are headed by Philip Schiedemann and are ardent supporters of the Kaiser's Government.

SPECIAL SERVICE AT S. A. TEMPLE

Major and Mrs. Moore of Toronto Will Be Week-end Visitors

Major and Mrs. Moore of Toronto, old officers of the Peterborough Corps, will arrive this afternoon at 5:35 to conduct special services this week-end at the Temple. The first half of the June Drive is over and steam is well up for the second half this week-end will help much and special prayers with special services next week will keep it up and great results are looked for in every department of the work. Come and help and be helped welcome to Major and Mrs. Moore to-night.

If the loaf of bread is put on the table and sliced as it is needed, there will be no left-over pieces to become dry.

Geo. Martindale Good Roads Supt.

LINDSAY, June 16.—A special meeting of the County Council was held Thursday afternoon for the purpose of appointing a new road superintendent for the County Roads System. The Good Roads Committee of the Council met and received the report of the delegation which waited upon the Minister of Highways on Tuesday. The department of Highways would not consent to having the Reeves expend the money on the county roads and it was found necessary to appoint a new superintendent. The committee recommended several gentlemen to the council, and Mr. Geo. Martindale, of Oakwood, was chosen to fill the position of Good Roads' Superintendent, left vacant by the resignation of Mr. Jas. B. Berg. The newly-elected superintendent will assume his duties on Monday.

EFFECT OF MAJOR REDMOND'S DEATH IS ALREADY FELT

The Hope Expressed By Brother of Irish Nationalist Leader That His Death Might Save Ireland May Prove More True Than Ever He Expected

A SOFTENING INFLUENCE

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, June 16. — The hope expressed by William (H. K. Redmond, brother of John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, who was killed in action in Belgium last week, that his death would save Ireland, may prove more true than even he expected. Already it has exerted a remarkably softening influence upon the irreconciliability of the Ulsterites and also in various other directions; even the Presbyterian and the Anglican ministers are vieing with the Catholic clergy in tributes to his memory.

The last time he appeared in the House of Commons his close cropped gray hair and thin figure revealed as perhaps nothing else could have done, the three years of hard training he had undergone and the hard warfare he had been through. Nothing, however, could induce him to return home, though he could have done so any hour he wished. Nor would he ever consent to accept a "soft" job at the front as was repeatedly urged upon him.

RELENTLESS CRITIC.

Although he was a severe and relentless critic of some of the mistakes which interferred so disastrously with Ireland's splendid temper towards the war in its opening months, he never for a single moment wavered in his attitude towards the issues at stake, and never hesitated in expressing his opinion regardless of what that opinion was. To the very moment he was firmly convinced he was fighting for and facing death in the true interests of Ireland.

As to what will be the result of the lection necessitated by his death it is too early as yet to forecast, as Clare always has been a restive county. Dublin, where the death of Cotton makes another vacancy, is fairly secure as all the enemies of anarchy and insanity, regardless of party, are gradually joining together in a common effort to save Ireland.

PUBLIC OPINION.

One of the many things that has felt the influence of the death of William Redmond is the coming convention for the proposed settlement of the Irish Home Rule question. Public opinion which last week was in a great measure extremely pessimistic, has veered around almost completely. It had been feared that the meeting of Orangemen at Belfast might make impossible demands, such as the re-substitution of the entire composition of the convention as proposed by the Government, because of

WOUNDED.

Pte. E. T. Williams, late 93rd Battalion, Peterborough.

PTE. C. B. HOULIHAN.

Pte. C. B. Houlihan of Peterborough, who was officially reported missing a short time ago, is now officially reported killed in action. Pte. Houlihan enlisted in the 80th Battalion and went overseas with Lieut.-Col. Ketcheson's unit, afterwards being transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front.

LANCE CORP. THOMPSON.

WARSAW, June 15.—Mr. R. H. Thompson of this place has received word of the death of his second son, Lc.-Corp. James Stanley Thompson, at Guildford Hospital, Surrey, from wounds received at Vimy Ridge on April 9th. Lc.-Corp. Thompson went overseas in August, 1915, with the 8th C.M.R., as orderly to Lieut. Johnston, but was later transferred to the 5th C.M.R. He was born in Dummer twenty-two years ago, and leaves to mourn his loss his parents, four sisters, Mrs. Thos. Freeman, Bobcaygeon; Mrs. Ed. Payne, Dummer; the Misses Esther and Myra, and four brothers, Harold of Leslandier, Sask.; Elias, Bert, and Actor, at home.

A first-cousin of Lc. Corp. Thompson, Pte. Gordon Carveth, went overseas with the same unit, and was killed in action about a year ago.

Lc.-Corp. Thompson was a Methodist by religion, and some years ago was an active member of the Warsaw troop of Boy Scouts. He was well known in the community and his death will be deeply mourned by his many friends here.

PTE. E. T. WILLIAMS.

Pte. E. T. Williams, who enlisted here in November, 1915, with the 93rd Battalion, is officially reported wounded. He went overseas with the 93rd and was transferred. Pte. Williams was born in England, where his relatives reside, but he had lived in this district for some time.

DR. FREDERICK HOME.

Capt. E. V. Frederick, one of the gallant little band of Peterborough doctors who have been doing their bit with the Empire's forces, is home on a short leave after two years' foreign service. He is being given a most hearty welcome by his numerous friends in Peterborough. Capt. Frederick left here in the spring of 1915 as a lieutenant in the British Army Medical Corps, and saw much service in the Mediterranean, at Alexandria, Mudros Island, the Dardanelles, Salonika and other points. His experience since he left Peterborough has been a most varied one, but Capt. Frederick has come through it in good shape and will shortly return overseas for service in France.

GUNNER O'BRIEN HERE.

Gunner Dick O'Brien, son of Mr. Michael O'Brien, former Inspector of Catholic Schools, is among the latest squad of Peterborough soldiers who have reached home. Gunner O'Brien enlisted in the Canadian Army Service Corps two years ago, but transferred at Barrefield camp to the 33rd Battery, with which he went overseas. Two of his brothers are still on the other side of the Atlantic, Will O'Brien, who left as a gunner with the 25th Battery and has been promoted to lieutenant, and Corp. Jas. O'Brien, who left here with the 93rd Battalion.

OTTAWA, June 15.—Sir Edward Kemp submitted to-day a statement showing the numbers of the Canadian Expeditionary forces which are as follows: On the 4th of June, 1917, there were 136,000 troops all ranks in France; there were also 747 in the near East and 139 at St. Lucia. On the same date there were 168,730 troops all ranks in England, not counting those in hospitals and convalescent homes, but counting those on passage from Canada to England. Of the foregoing total, however, only 28,000 were immediately available for reinforcing purposes. On the 1st of May there were 17,383 Canadian ex[illegible]ary forces of all ranks in Canada.

A detailed summary of the strength of the Canadian forces in England on May 14 showed a total of 126,941, of whom 67,387 belonged to infantry reserve regiments and 6,382 to artillery. The list also includes about 17,000 men attached to the 5th Division headquarters, of whom 11,015 were infantry and 2,744 artillery. The Forestry Corps numbered 5,304, Engineers 4,764, machine gunners 3,233, Army Service Corps 4,636, and Army Medical Corps 5,539. The total of officers was 7,981. Men in hospital numbered 17,638.

Yesterday afternoon the members of the Standard staff made a presentation to Mr. F. T. Holmes on the occasion of his leaving to join the Divisional Ammunition Column, at Petawawa Camp. The souvenir of his association with the staff, and of their esteem and kindly feelings, consisted of a pretty silver wrist watch, suitably engraved. The presentation was made by Mr. Robert Henderson, managing editor, who briefly referred to the pride all felt in having another member of the staff don khaki and go forth to fight the battle of Empire. Mr. Holmes' intimate and pleasant association with the staff for the past two years was commented on, and he was assured that the best wishes of the entire staff would follow him in his new career.

Mr. Holmes replied briefly thanking the staff for their present and good wishes, and pledging himself to "carry on" to the best of his ability.

"Teddy" Holmes has been on the staff for about two years, and has a host of friends in the city who wish him well. He left at noon for a short stay with relatives in Hamilton before reporting for duty at Petawawa.

Mrs. H. J. Batten, 631 Union St., has received an interesting letter from her brother, Pte. Percy Bertrand, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, acknowledging the receipt of a number of parcels sent to him by Mrs. Batten and other relatives. Pte. Bertrand says: "I got back to the battalion some few days ago, and I am getting along fine. My shoulder is pretty tender yet, but is getting better all the time. I was used fine while I was in the hospital, but still I was glad to get back to the battalion."

DAIRYMEN COMPLAIN OF CHEESE RULES

LISTOWEL, June 15.—Vigorous objection to the new cheese regulations requiring that the inspection and weighing be done at Montreal, was general among the producers represented at the regular meeting of the Listowel Dairymen's Exchange to-day and Secretary Blatchford was instructed to wire the following resolution, moved by Mr. James Donaldson, and seconded by Mr. Hugh Richmond to the Minister of Agriculture. "Whereas, according to the rules of the commission, all cheese from whatever section are subjected to inspection and weighing in warehouses at Montreal and, whereas, delay in inspection would be an injustice to Western Ontario Dairymen, because of the long distance and possibility of deterioration in quality and depreciation in weight between time cheese leaves factory till arrival in Montreal; therefore the producers of the Listowel Dairymen's Exchange vigorously protest and would most earnestly and respectfully urge the appointment of inspectors to grade and weigh all the cheese of Western Ontario at the warehouses of the dealers.

There was boarded to-day 2,945 cheese and the highest bid on the board was 29 7-8 cents, at which price some sales were made in the street.

ANOTHER PETERBORO' SOLDIER AWARDED THE MILITARY MEDAL

AN INTERESTING LETTER

Co. Sergt.-Major Harry Wilford, formerly of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, has been awarded the Military Medal for good work during the battle at Vimy Ridge. His wife, Mrs. M. Wilford, 59 Olive Avenue, has received a most interesting letter from him, in which he refers to the decoration. The letter is as follows:

France, May 23, 1917.

My dear Mabel,—Just a few lines to let you know how things are going. The last time I wrote you was from the line in the next sector, which by the way was a very hot spot, nearly as bad as Vimy Ridge; in fact in some circumstances it was worse, but still I have a way of looking after myself, so I am still O.K.

Of course I don't have to do the dangerous work now that I had to do as platoon sergeant, although you may depend upon me for doing my bit, as naturally I have to set a good example, but still I can do that without taking any unnecessary risk, unless we are making an attack or advance, but any way I am going along Jacque, for, when in the line, I live with my company officers, and always have to be on hand, and, needless to say, I am giving every satisfaction all round, but I can tell you this life is trying, but still as Company Sergeant-Major I don't do so bad and cannot grumble.

Well, you remember me telling you that I was recommended for some decoration on account of my good work on Easter Monday, and the following week, on Vimy Ridge, well, it came in Orders last night that I was awarded the Military Medal, so you see I must have been on the job, but anyway I must not grumble, for I have only been with this battalion since Christmas and have won the Military Medal, got made Company Sergeant-Major and Warrant Officer, second-class, so that's not so bad. What do you think?

I am sending by registered mail a gold watch and signet ring which a German prisoner gave me for saving his life on Easter Monday. You see we cannot carry a good watch about on this job without breaking it, as you will see in this case I have the hand off, also the glass broke, so please keep them until I come home, for the German who gave me them had been in America some years and was a decent fellow, and told me if ever we were in New York after the war and took the signet ring to him or his friends, what a good time they would give us. So you will take care of them for me. I have his photo with other things which I will send along in time.

Well, I guess that the awards for the medals will be in the papers before long, so the folks in good old Peterborough will see what I am doing.

And how are you jogging along dear: in the best of health, I hope; also little Chick. Does she speak about her Dad? Bless her. When I get back to a decent town I'll send you both something nice, so don't think that I am forgetting you. I got your box of chocolate O.K. in the trenches, which was very nice of you to send.

Well, I don't know what else to write about just now, except that we are in a very nice place now for a rest. It's a beautiful French chateau and the grounds must have been beautiful in times of peace, but it's a nice place now, and I hope we stay here for a while, as it gives one a chance to pick up a little.

Harry.

Further Portion of the Hindenburg Line Held by the Enemy West of Bullecourt Has Been Wrested From the Huns.

FOE LOST HEAVILY

LONDON, June 16.—The British forces to-day delivered an attack upon and captured further portions of the Hindenburg line north-west of Bullecourt, despite the resistance of the Germans, who suffered heavy losses, according to the official communication to-night.

The British struck another blow last night on the front near Messines, the War Office announced earlier to-day. They gained all their objectives, advancing south and east of Messines and astride the Ypres-Comines Canal.

The British now occupy the former front trenches of the Germans from the River Lys to the River Warnave. As a result of last night's operations and the constant pressure exerted, the British have advanced their lines from 500 to 1,000 yards on a front of seven miles.

Four Planes Winged.

To-night's statement reads:

"Early this morning we attacked and captured a further portion of a sector of the Hindenburg line still held by the enemy north-west of Bullecourt. The hostile garrison offered stubborn resistance and suffered heavy casualties. We took 40 prisoners.

"We also captured a few prisoners as the result of successful raids east of Loos and in the neighbourhood of the River Lys.

"Our own and the enemy artillery were active during the day north of the Scarpe and at a number of points between Armentieres and Ypres.

"Four German airplanes were brought down yesterday in air fighting and three others were driven down out of control. Two of our machines failed to return."

Advance on 7-Mile Front.

The afternoon statement reads:

"Our troops attacked yesterday evening south and east of Messines and astride the Ypres - Comines Canal. The enemy's resistance was quickly overcome and all of our objectives were gained in both localities. We captured more than 150 prisoners, one howitzer and seven machine guns.

"As the result of these operations and the constant pressure maintained by our troops since June 7, we now occupy the German front trenches from the River Lys to the River Warnave and have advanced our line from 500 to 1,000 yards on the whole front from the River Warnave to Klein Zillebeke, a distance of about seven miles.

"We made a successful raid last night north of Lens. Many Germans were killed in hand-to-hand fighting and a few prisoners were taken by us."

Foe Admits and Denies.

BERLIN, June 15.—The official communication issued this evening says:

CIVIC MATTERS.

The Board of Works made its annual pilgrimage of the streets Wednesday to see for themselves the conditions and needs of the streets.

The journey should have been made the day after and not the day before the rain, so that the holes and depressions in the streets holding water should "show up" better. It is noted that on some of the oiled streets large holes holding water are visible. In one place on Simcoe street west a depression five or six feet long, about four feet wide and several inches deep, has held water two days after the rain, thanks, perhaps to the oil which prevented its absorption by the street surface.

While this is a proof of the good action of the oil in preserving street surfaces, it should not be demonstrated in the shape of holes.

The wisdom is made evident of need of a policy of constant watchfulness of our street surfaces with the view of repairing depressions the moment they develop, so that the surface treated to oil may be kept in the excellent condition, proper preparation of street surface and oil application produce. It is only by this practice that the public will get fair value for the expenditure put upon the streets in order to make them comfortable to use for both man and vehicles. Neglect of the fundamental and obviously necessary slight repairs from day to day is inexcusable, since the cost is comparatively trifling in view of the good results.

More trees doomed. Without knowing the necessity of removing two elm trees, corner of Aylmer and Simcoe streets, sanctioned by the Board of Works, in the abstract the destruction of a street tree, except as an absolute necessity in some public interest, is a deplorable action.

If the City Fathers would take as prompt action in planting some of the thousands of street trees required as they do in consenting to their destruction, or destroying them themselves: if they gave as much attention to preserving existing trees, and properly shaping and pruning them, the beauty of the city and its attractiveness as a place for living in, would be greatly enhanced, and at a comparatively trifling cost.

The Aldermen are supposed to sympathise with the objects of the Greater Peterborough Association, to build up Peterborough, but they seem to sympathise with the Kaiser list of destruction, in the matter of street trees. The city has never been found guilty of planting a single street tree, yet it has permitted and practised the destruction of hundreds of trees, many of them trees of untold value, landmarks and stately works of the Creator, years before the present board of Aldermen were born.

Why are Aldermen of the earth, earthy? Why do they confine themselves to grovelling in the earth of the streets, and seem to have a spite against a growing thing and a thing of beauty like a street tree that tries to get above the mud, and aspires heavenward?

The Aldermen this year have taken quite a fancy to nomenclature. They have talked over the re-naming of some of the streets, and have substituted for Babb's Lane, a euphonious name, the harsher-sounding combination, Babbs street, a cacophanous conjunction of final and initial consonants that don't blend smoothly. Why not keep Babbs Lane? "Maiden Lane" has for centuries been good enough for good old London.

Hot much sympathy is due the proposal to designate streets, as convicts are designated, by number, instead of a name. One would not think much of a father, with a large family giving his children numbers instead of names—"I baptise thee, No. 3, in the name, etc."

If any change of name in streets is contemplated, the present is a good chance to commemorate the deeds of Canadians in this war, by, say, St. Julien street, Courcelette street, Vimy avenue, etc. It seems a risky thing to name a bridge or street after a living man—he is not dead yet, and actions may develop that may make the name no credit to the owner or the street or bridge named after him.

The time of street railway extension will it seems have to be postponed till—after the war and the high level bridge is built.

The old company has been considerably berated for not making extensions which would have been made long ago if some city Aldermen had not blocked the grading of Monaghan Road. The new owners, the Hydro Commission, says the extension will be made on the conditions that should have been provided long ago—the easy matter of properly grading Monaghan Road.

THE SCOPE OF CONSCRIPTION.

Conscription seems to be an unfortunate necessity, if Canada is to furnish the missing 100,000 overseas soldiers to fill the 500,000 quota Sir Robert Borden has promised. Naturally, it excites opposition, and will in its present form be difficult to even enact, let alone apply—enforce, for it will have to be enforced, since it is a measure of compulsion. But it is probable that less opposition would be offered, less objection to compulsory military service in the form of men, if other equally necessary elements of military service were also conscripted.

A great deal of opposition to the present compulsory military service bill is founded on the fact that it applies only to manhood, and not money or other resources—or forms of service, that can be, and should be, given by men who cannot fight with arms.

Conscription of wealth is a logical complement to conscription of manhood. A man can't fight without arms and munitions and arms and munitions cannot be provided without money. To gain any measure of popular approval a conscription law must be fair; must embody the elements of square dealing. In the imposition of ordinary taxation, the principle of taxation is accepted, first, because it is necessary, and it is fairly imposed—one man is not exempted and another taxed, except in the matter of income. But the ordinary citizen, the same class of citizen that is to be made liable to compulsory military service, must pay to the uttermost farthing, while the man of large wealth escapes, or dodges a great share of the taxation which he should proportionately pay.

This condition is bad enough in the matter of taxation, but when is superadded the inevitable objections to a compulsory service bill the cardinal objection that it compels manhood service but, by omission, specifically relieves wealth from similar compulsion, the objection is well founded.

It is evident that a great deal of the opposition to compulsory service would disappear, or be reconciled to the necessity of the measure, if a provision to conscript wealth as well as manhood, were added.

Such an amendment will probably be presented, and the government should cordially accept it. Sir Robert Borden in introducing his Conscription bill, invited criticism and amendment. He should accept a proposal to include wealth and other resources in its operation, not only as a matter of fair play and justice, but also as a measure of good policy—to make its enactment more easily possible and its enforcement less difficult and—perhaps, less dangerous.

Sir Robert Borden and the government recognize the justness of this demand; for the Finance Minister to placate the opposition to the exemption of wealth from compulsory service has given a half-hearted promise that next year a measure will be introduced to deal with the taxation of incomes. That will be too late. Now is the time to do it. By that time the war may be over; the men whom conscription may bring to the ranks may have sacrificed their lives to the cause—to protect the interests of the wealth that it is proposed to relieve from duty for a year.

We must be fair. We are fighting for fair play; for a living chance to democracy; and it does not seem the right thing to compel men to fight for conditions that will discriminate against democracy; that will maintain the principle of discrimination against manhood by exempting wealth and prominence from the same demand for compulsory service that is applied to the ordinary citizen. We are fighting—our soldiers are voluntarily and splendidly fighting and we are proposing to make other Canadians fight for democracy as a principle, not as a mere shibboleth—a mere mouthful of meaningless syllables, which will be done if we conscript manhood and postpone the conscription of wealth and all the national resources to a more convenient season.

The Grand Trunk will probably "bridge" the obstacle to early opening of the Trent Canal to operation to Peterborough.

THREE.

The young omniscient Kaiser made a fatal mistake when, breaking with the historical policy of Germany and the Bismarckian tradition, he veered away from Russia and drove her into the French alliance. The trade union of autocracies, Austria, Germany, Russia, might have held out long against democracy.

Nicholas II. was true to autocracy when he became false to Russia. He was fighting against his class and system when he fought Germany. His betrayal of his country brought about immediately the triumph of the people which he feared.

In Nicholas II. fell a great autocrat, a victim of Germany. He overthrew himself in seeking to overthrow democracy. In Constantine fell a little pinchbeck autocrat, who might have ruled prosperously as a constitutional King. Victim of Germany and his own infatuation, he too dethroned himself, seeking to dethrone the democracy of Hellas.

Seeing the fates of Nicholas II. and Constantine, so close in time and essentially one in cause, you think of the vengeances of Edmond Dantes in "Monte Cristo." "Et d'un;" "Et de deux;" Will the Kaiser be the third to fall? "Et de trois!"—New York Times.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM UNDER THE UNION JACK.

The comment which matters on on Catholic missions under the British flag is that brought by the missionaries themselves, and these say: "Leave us under England, for it is there we get liberty." One cannot but recall the saying—for the absolute accuracy of which your correspondent can vouch — of Cardinal Vives y Tuto, O.F.M.C., Spaniard, and reckoned of the most "intransigent," that all good Catholics should pray for the prosperity of the British Empire, for with it were bound up the prospects of the Catholic Church. The ideals under which the British Empire spread meant the safeguarding of Catholic religion in the wake of its advance. The actual occasion for the words was the abolition of the unhappy words in the oath on the accession of King George.—The Tablet (Rome correspondence).

DEMOCRATIZATION OF LAND IS DEMANDED FOR BRITAIN

The Countess of Warwick, owner of 28,000 acres, has issued an appeal to the landed aristocracy of Great Britain to follow the example of the Russian Grand Dukes and turn over all their feudal properties to the State.

"We must go," she says. "The aristocracy of England, in its position of hereditary landowners, must go. The country rings with suggestions for the betterment of the conditions under which land is cultivated, but as I see things the suggestions are in no instance drastic enough.

"The only cure for the present evils seems to me to be State ownership, the abolition of all private property in the earth that was given to all of us in common. There are two classes of large landowners in England, the aristocracy and the plutocracy. As a class the aristocracy have been good landlords within limits, but the limits are very marked, because they have always been a narrow minded body. The average chatelaine who plays the part of Lady Bountiful is to me an abomination, because her philanthropy is so closely associated with dogmatic religion, personal pride and party politics.

"I have known estates where the tenants are expected to belong to the Church of England and non-conformists are barred or persecuted. Radicalism is likewise suspected. Farmers, laborers and small village tradesmen have been ruined or exiled from the place of their birth because their opinions are contrary to those of the landlords. Men and women on such estates must rule their lives to order, think as they are told to think. If our aristocracy possessed the overwhelming wisdom necessary to their role as supreme dictators all would be well, but I cannot reckon in their ranks more than six whose claims would bear momentary consideration.

"As for the plutocrats, the men who have bought lands and titles in the open market—and the one is nearly as readily purchased as the other—they have not the old feudal tradition of the aristocracy. They have been accustomed to make business ventures pay; they demand six per cent. on their outlay, and employ an agent who will see that they get it. The landlord of this class is a bad landlord.

"For the betterment of social conditions in England a supreme sacrifice is required. It is no more than justice that the men who have offered their lives in this war for Britain should have the freedom of Britain for their reward. It is no justice that calls men to fight for the land, and leaves it in the hands of a fraction of those who fought. To me it is impossible that in the future 'His Grace' or 'My Lord' should own square miles of the mother earth for which Tom died and Dick was sore wounded, and Harry fought unscathed.

"The country has great needs. If it is to remain solvent the united work of one and all is necessary. The old feudal landlord will be an anachronism, the new money-spun landlord an abomination. Only the state can own the land in trust for those who can make it productive. We who are in the high places in England should retire from them in the real halo of renunciation, and our act of sacrifice would be a better memorial than the best of us could have hoped to gain."

Frances Evelyn, Countess of Warwick, is one of the largest landed proprietors in England, owning some 28,000 acres, while her husband, the Earl of Warwick, possessed about half as many. More than once since she espoused the cause of Socialism, she has been asked why she did not practice what she preached and divest herself of her own vast wealth, and more than once she has replied publicly that her estates all were entailed, and that should land reforms ever enable her lawfully to do so she would be one of the first to allow her rich holdings to go to benefit the poor.

Better known to the public as Lady Brooke, the countess has been one of the most talked-of women in England for more than a generation, particularly so in the nineties, when Edward VII., was the Prince of Wales. She is the daughter of Col. the Hon. C. H. Maynard, who was himself a viscount and a man of famous lineage. Her mother married as a second husband, the Earl of Rosslyn. The Maynard sisters were known for their beauty in their younger days, and the countess, even as Lady Brooke, because of her vital personality and her intense devotion to whatever appealed to her, impressed herself upon the circles in which she moved to a notable degree.

Tiring of society, she turned to philanthropic and social work, founding colleges and homes, prosecuting welfare work among tenants on her estate, writing and lecturing in the interest of Socialism. Gardening and dairying engrossed her for a time. During another period she backed and edited a magazine; for a time she conducted a hat shop in Bond street, and she took up suffrage with vigorous devotion, though she disapproved of the more radical militancy.

The Ontario Temperance Act As Explained By Vice-Chairman Dingman

Amendments Passed at Last Session Discussed--"Results of the Act Are Generally Acknowledged to Have Been Highly Beneficial" Says Mr. Dingman.

At the May meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association, Mr. W. S. Dingman, Vice-Chairman of the Provincial License Board delivered an address on the Ontario Temperance Act, and in response to request of the Association presents a summary of his address for publication, which is given below:

A necessary prelude to a discussion of the situation in Ontario with reference to prohibition is an understanding of the main features of the Ontario Temperance Act, passage of which marked the chief development since organization of the Provincial License Board on May 5, 1915.

SUMMARY OF O. T. A.

The kernel of the Ontario Temperance Act may be said to be contained in Section 40, prohibiting selling or bartering in liquor or in beverages showing over 2 1-2 per cent. proof spirits; Section 41, prohibiting having, giving or keeping liquor in any place other than one's private dwelling, subject to definition in Section 2 (i); Section 42, prohibiting canvassing, receiving or soliciting orders; Section 43, relative to carriage, and forbidding opening, breaking, drinking, or using liquor in transit; and Section 85, placing upon the accused the burden of proof of right to have, keep, sell or give liquor.

The penalties attached to Sections 40, 41 and 43 are $300 to $1,000 fine or three to six months imprisonment, and for a second offence six to twelve months imprisonment without option of a fine; to Section 42 a fine of $50 to $300 or two to four months imprisonment, and for a second offence $100 to $500 fine or four to eight months.

Exceptions to prohibitions cited are made in Sections 139-140 relative to interprovincial and international trade and certain privileges granted by the Dominion, thus guarding the Act's constitutionality; also for non-beverage purposes as by physicians and druggists in medical prescriptions and preparations, by hospitals, manufacturers, scientific laboratories, etc., these being supplied by druggists or specially licensed vendors, or by distillers, as the case may be. Export warehouses, manufacturers of native wines, distillers and brewers exercise limited rights. In short, the Ontario Temperance Act prohibits within the Province the sale of liquor for beverage purposes, but not necessarily its consumption, since persons may import liquor from outside the Province under Section 139, and have it in their private dwellings.

It may not be generally understood that when the Ontario Government decided to give this Province the Manitoba Temperance Act, it improved upon that Act by adding several features, as for example Section 42 against canvassing, receiving or soliciting liquor orders; Section 55, against being drunk in a public place; Section 64, setting penalty of $10 and possible summary dismissal of a policeman failing to discharge his duty in enforcing the Act; and Section 70, providing for seizure of liquor in transit that is believed to be illegally shipped.

AMENDMENTS AT LAST SESSION.

Amendments were made at the last session of the Legislature, the more important being:

To Section 41, making liable a person who drinks liquor in an unlawful place, as well as the person who keeps it there. That is to say, previous to the last session a person could be punished for having liquor in an illegal place, such as a store, stable, or boarding-house with more than three boarders or lodgers, but a person who drank in such a place would escape liability. This amendment makes the latter now equally liable with the keeper of the place and adds an effective weapon of enforcement.

To Section 55, prohibiting liquor to inebriates by adaptation of the former interdicted list, the need for which had been early demonstrated. Justices of the peace may on satisfactory evidence prohibit an inebriate from having liquor in his possession, or a License Inspector may of his own motion, or by request of a near relative, employer or guardian, make the same prohibition. Notices are provided for service on railway and express companies and common carriers against delivering liquor to such persons.

To Section 70 relative to seizures in transit, whereby an Inspector, policeman or constable may, acting upon belief or illegal intent, seize liquor and put it up to the consignee or shipper to prove the shipment regular and legal, with provisos regarding fictitious names, shipment as other goods, or concealment to render discovery of contents difficult. An amendment in sympathy with this section requires railway and express companies and common carriers to keep records of consignments and deliveries of liquor, with the kind and quantity, such records to be open to inspection by any officer of the Board. The purpose is not to molest legal shipments, but to facilitate detection and prevention of illegal deliveries to "blind pigs," "boot-leggers," etc.

FURTHER POWERS OF REVIEW

The Board's powers of survey of the traffic received important additions, and now sworn monthly returns are required from distillers, brewers and liquor exporters of every sale made in Ontario, showing kind and quantity, the person to whom sold and the person or carrier to whom delivered. The Act already required similar monthly returns to the Board from manufacturers holding permits for manufacturing purposes, and half-yearly returns from licensed vendors and druggists, besides which the Board had power to demand sworn returns for any period required from druggists, and to pass regulations and restrictions upon manufacturers of native wines.

Standard hotels had business exemption extended for the years 1917, 1918 and 1919, and in addition to the power to terminate leases of properties formerly licensed under the old Liquor License Act, the Board was given further power to extend time for certain payments under a moratorium clause. Applications to the Attorney-General for remission or reduction of penalties imposed under the Ontario Temperance Act are now referred to the Board for report there upon to the Attorney-General.

BENEFICIAL RESULTS.

The results of the Act are generally acknowledged to have been highly beneficial, as to which judges, magistrates, police officers, merchants, manufacturers, etc., have given evidence. Unimpeachable facts are constantly springing to light showing how the Act has aided to bring about better homes for former victims of the drink habit, better clothes and food and more happiness for wives and children, better business for the merchant, better meeting of obligations, more deposits in savings banks, and in general an advance in the social, moral and economic well-being of the average community. It seems to be proven beyond dispute that crime and disorder have fallen, production risen, and social prosperity and happiness increased through the protection which this Act has thrown about those who had formerly been slaves to the excessive use of liquor. This betterment indeed appears to increase in direct ratio to diminution of the popular use of liquor as a beverage. Men who were hostile to the Act at its inception have become warm advocates, and the experience of Ontario is in unison with that of other great communities on this continent and of our Allies in Europe, that restriction of this traffic is justifiable in the public interests, salutary and wise, as is restriction of sale of opiates and dangerous drugs. Although the war begat the peremptory demand for narrower and still narrower restriction of the liquor traffic, the lesson seems imperative that if such is valuable as a war measure it is also good as a peace measure. The logic surely is beyond comprehension that would argue that with return of peace the depreciatory effects of this traffic should be allowed to resume and malign operation and leave the benefits of restriction only as a memory.

ENFORCEMENT.

No law, however good, can maintain its status without enforcement, and public sentiment must be built up to the level of a law to enable it to be adequately enforced. There is need, therefore, of popular interest in enforcement, and this interest can be said to be fairly well sustained all over the Province. But as no law wholly prevents crime, it cannot be maintained, because there are violations, that the Ontario Temperance Act is a failure. It is on the whole well observed. Violations are being punished and imprisonment and fines are enforcing restraint. The beverage traffic is discredited and has retreated to back lanes and other lurking places where it is plied by human vermin who have come to be known as "blind piggers" and "boot-leggers." Existence of this stealthy traffic is sometimes adduced as an argument for open sale; but it was open sale that produced the wreckage on which the parasitic "blind pigger" and "boot-legger" feed.

Ingenuity worthy of a better cause is sometimes employed in getting wet goods to the shaking hand of the customer. A few guises that have come to the notice of the Board's officers may be noted. Last December the Inspector at the Soo reported seizure of liquor marked as "Pure Olive Oil" and also some as "Three Dozen Black Cat Shoe Dressing." Liquor has been conveyed in a can worn in the form of a belt about the person, in milk cans, in oil cans having extra chambers, in false breasts and hips on women, concealed in bales of hay, etc. Perversion is frequent of lawful articles such as tincture of ginger, various extracts, Florida water and proprietary medicines.

The principle of co-operation in enforcement is recognised and enjoined by the Act. The Board's Inspectors could by no means cope with the situation single-handed. Hence Section 64 associates every policeman and constable along with the Board's officers in the enforcement of the Act and makes it the duty of every such one to carry out and enforce the same. This provision needs to be more generally known. Moreover, when information is given to any of these it shall be his duty to make diligent enquiry into its truth and to enter complaint in his own name without communicating the name of his informant. Every such officer, including policeman and constables, neglecting or refusing to carry out or enforce this Act shall incur a penalty of $10 and may be summarily dismissed from office.

A signal addition to this legislation, which was derived from the former Liquor License Act, is that in Section 120 of the Ontario Temperance Act, which provides that a municipal council may by by-law appoint an officer whose duty it shall be to enforce the Act within his municipality, such appointment entitling the municipality (Section 110) to fines accruing from prosecutions by such officers. Usually the Chief of Police is appointed, which is held to include policemen under him. In such cases the municipality defrays the salary and expenses of such officer, but may not pay him by commission on fines.

This provision on the part of the Province is very liberal when the large liquor revenues lost by the Province are considered. Some municipalities have by rigorous enforcement by their own police reaped considerable revenues. The object of this provision was, of course, to ensure adequate enforcement by enlisting the interest of municipalities. Fines resulting from prosecutions by the Board's own officers or by Provincial Police, of course, accrue to the Province, and so far have yielded the Province over $90,000 in revenue, besides a probably greater aggregate sum to municipalities.

Co-operation is found to be pretty general between inspectors and police, and it is seldom that the latter are restrained by mayors or aldermen who are hostile to the Act. The Board welcomes pointed information which may aid in detecting violations of the Act. This information can be given to the Inspector or to the Board, the name of the informant being respected as confidential when so desired, as required by the Act, or it may be given to the police where that body is active and earnest in enforcement.

AS TO HOTELS.

The Board's experience over the Providence is that the chief trouble in the way of violations comes from outside the hotels, though there are exceptions to this. The hotel man, as a rule, feels he has too much at stake to risk prosecution, and he has also come to value the Standard license, this being evident from those who have approached the Board when they feared refusal of license was contemplated. Then the law-breaker is gradually leaving the hotel business and a better type of man is taking his place. The object lesson of the successful temperance hotel is having its effect on the fetish that the bar is vital to a hotel's success. The comfort and satisfaction of guests is the prime consideration to an extent never before known in this Province.

Nevertheless, although there are now 1,287 Standard licenses in effect in Ontario, this does not mean that the hotel problem is yet nearly solved. Reorganization has but begun. Hundreds of hotels which had been located with a view, in the main, to bar business have small chance under the new condition. They are neither sufficiently inviting, nor convenient as hotels, and their fate is to be absorbed into other purposes or converted into business uses. The more rapidly that process overtakes these the better. It may be questioned if one-half the present number of hotels would not suffice for the normal hotel

You Have Asked Us

What has it cost Peterboro to erect and equip its big, Young Men's Christain Association Building?

and---Has the Expenditure been justified by results?

And We Answer:

Building and Lot ..... NOTHING

Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls of esteemed memory, gave both Building and Lot, whose value is now estimated to be $41,000 and on which there is no mortgage.

and as regards results, we'll answer that part of your question in several advertisements, to follow, in a way which, we trust will be quite satisfactory to you.

But, in the meantime, you, as a Peterboro Man, will appreciate our city's advantage, (which is an advantage every citizen shares) by knowing what "Y" lots and buildings have cost in other Canadian Cities more or less in the Peterboro class.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"Hate Verse" Not In Methodist Hymnal

Replaced by a Much Milder Stanza in the New Hymnal—"Save the People"—"Not Crowns and Kings—But Men" Runs a New Hymn.

There is no "hate verse" in the National Anthem as it is used in the new Methodist hymn book, shown to the Toronto Methodist Conference this week. The commitee of thirty which revised the hymnal did not consider that famous old verse either necessary or in good taste. The Anglicans had considerable of a row over it and finally included it in their book. The verse runs:

"O Lord our God arise,
Scatter our enemies
And make them fall;
Confound their politics,
Frustrate their knavish tricks,
On Thee our hopes we fix,
God save us all!"

But instead of the hate verse in the new hymn book there is included a third verse which, it is noted, may be sung as desired in Canada:

"Our loved Dominion bless
With peace and happiness
From shore to shore;
And let our Empire be United, loyal, free,
True to herself and Thee
For evermore."

"Not Kings Alone—But Nations.

Standing out in strong contrast to this version of "God Save the King" is the poem of the radical Ebenezer Elliott, an Englishman who sang the rights of the common people. His verses are now used for the first time as a Methodist hymn. The first verse is:

"When wilt Thou save the people,
O God of mercy, when?
Not kings alone, but nations,
Not thrones and crowns — but men!"

The new hymn book pays considerable attention to labour and "social service" as well as war. It includes Bishop Heber's classic, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War,' and also Henry Van Dyke's hymn of the worth of labour, picturing Christ's work as a carpenter in Nazareth.

Use Austrian Anthem Tune.

It is also worthy of note that the Austrian National anthem finds a place in the book, though to vastly different words than the song of our foes. "Hail the Glorious Golden City," is the hymn to which the music written by F. J. Haydn (1732-1809 is set, The Russian National Anthem is also used as a tune.

Another notable inclusion in the book, in this time of world crisis, is James Russell Lowell's famous:

"Once to every man and nation Comes the moment to decide" and ending

"And behind the great unknown
Standeth God within the shadow,

Adelaide Plumptre, wife of the rector of St. James' Cathedral, is represented by her hymn "Keep Thyself Pure," in the Social Service Section, which also has Bishop Bonar's terse advice:

"Be what thou seemest; live they creed."

A new feature of the book is the Children's Section, and it is said by members of the Committee that the new hymn book is quite sufficient for the use of Sunday Schools and Epworth Leagues and other young people's organizations, so that the Sunday School Hymnal could practically be dispensed with. In this section are such old-time favourites as "Jesus Loves Me," "Little Drops of Water," and "I think when I read that sweet story of old."

Some Innovations.

One of the Wesley hymns which passes out was thought to be just a trifle too demeaning. It ran:

"Lord, regard my earnest cry,
A potsherd of the earth,
A poor unworthy worm am I,
A Canaanite by birth!"

It is said that only once in the book does the word "Worm" apply to humanity, and that exception is the first verse of Isaac Watts' famous hymn:

"Alas and did my Saviour bleed
And did my Saviour die.
Could he devote that sacred head
For such a worm as I?"

An innovation in Methodist hymn books is the inclusion of the "Amen" at the end of every hymn, as the Anglicans use it. This may be used at the discretion of the choir-master. The Lord's Prayer and the Apostles' Creed also appear at the front and the back of the book.

requirements of the Providence, especially those hotels are chiefly boarding-houses or whose accommodations are negligible are left out of the count. Numbers of these have already been turned into stores, light factories, motion picture houses, residences, etc., and one into a Y. W.C.A. In populous centres, dispersion of the saloon type of hotels has resulted in a large number of small hotels which can no longer make good, and a small number of large hotels in real hotel locations.

The modern hotel of the future must be able to lay stress on the amount and quality of its accommodation. Hence we may in due time look for fewer and larger hotels, which will mean better service and fair return upon the investment. It is hopeless to look for either from a number of hotels which linger. Citing one class of service by way of illustration, in the city of Toronto there are but four team hotels which have ten or more bedrooms with baths attached. In that city private hotels do more to save the situation than five times their number of scattered minor hotels.

The city of Hull, Que., shows how hard the old conception of a hotel dies. After the Ontario Temperance Act had begun to operate across the river in Ottawa, a brewery not many hundred miles distant, scenting a great opportunity for bar profits, bought two hotels, one at $50,000 and the other at $28,000, and for a time prosperity rained; but it was not long until the people of Hull decided by two to one that the business as conducted should be suppressed.

The success of the temperance hotel is hardly longer a matter of doubt, as proved in many places in the United States and by towns such as Renfrew, Newmarket and Ingersoll in this Province. They offer opportunities to men of initiative and to women as managers and dietitians. A chain of temperance hotels under an "expert general" manager might quicken hotel reorganisation and at the same time earn fair dividends. Restaurants should be a more frequent feature in connection with hotels; multiplication of separate restaurants shows that they are or can be made profitable, and no business has so great an affinity with them as the hotel business.

Municipal councils have it in their power, by whole or partial tax exemption, to encourage the better class of hotels and hotelkeepers through the transition stage whose difficulties the war has aggravated. The law has in advance sanctioned such aid by giving municipalities power to grant a certain degree of exemption. There is reason therefore in the free public service which hotels render and their indispensability to a community, appreciation of which is practically limited to the means suggested.

DUTY AND SELF SACRIFICE

Prolongation of the war, prospect of conscription, world scarcity of food, soaring prices, the fearful waste in lives and treasure, the undecided state of the struggle, and the certainty of sterner sacrifices in the future, teach us that prohibition was a wise war measure and that we will need the help of all the thrift and conservation of resources that it and other measures will promote. The obligation of Duty and Self-Sacrifice is not alone for the trenches and the stricken field. We can hardly be worthy of our heroes who have served even unto death, for the salvation of Democracy, for Right against Might, for Calvary against Potsdam; but we can do something to make this country better for their having died for it. Ostentation, selfishness, pride of wealth and position have in Ontario yielded too little to altruism and fraternity, notwithstanding the lessons of the war under which the world groans. Sensibilities can stand further quickening toward everything that tends to make easier the rearing of a better and happier race. All should enlist in the cause of better citizenship; in this there should be no neutrals. Like the great Lincoln let us seek new consecration from those who have made the supreme sacrifice, that under God they shall not have died in vain, and so dedicate ourselves upon the altar which the war has reared, praying with Kipling:—

Teach us to rule ourselves alway,
Controlled and cleanly night and day;
That we may bring, if need arise,
No maimed or worthless sacrifice.

How To Look Years Less Than Your Age

The most aged face will look years younger after the use of ordinary mercolised wax for from ten days to two weeks. This remarkable substance, because of its peculiar absorptive power, actually removes the thin veil of faded or withered outer cuticle, a little at a time. Gradually the fresher, more youthful skin underneath is revealed. This absorption process being a purely hygienic one, an entirely natural complexion is acquired—quite different from the artificial complexion, which appears anything but girlish, though often bearing painful evidence of childishness. An ounce of mercolised wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to rejuvenate any complexion. It is put on like cold cream at bedtime, and removed mornings with warm water.

To eradicate such age marks as wrinkles and furrows, make a wash lotion by dissolving one ounce of powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel. This has wonderful astringent and tonic properties. It quickly effaces all kinds of wrinkles, no matter how caused, making the skin firm, smooth and young looking.

FLORAL SERVICE IN TRINITY CHURCH

The annual Floral Service or Children's Day will be observed to-morrow in Trinity Methodist Church. In the morning an address will be delivered by His Honour Judge Huycke. The service in the evening will be for young people. The pastor will preach.

ANOTHER VICTORY.

Help the Soldiers Who Helped You at Coulotte.

At Coulotte, on the outskirts of Lens, a veteran Canadian Division forced the enemy back 800 yards on a mile front. It was another striking success for Canadian arms. The war record of the Dominion has astonished the world. If the spirit which animates the soldiers animates the whole country, there will be no falling off in the future. But the war must be fought on the financial line as well as on the firing line. Hundreds of millions have already been spent by the Dominion. More hundreds are needed. Every dollar you can spare is essential to your country's needs. National thrift, national saving and national contribution to war loans will be a tremendous factor in winning the war. The Government's National Service appeal is made to every individual. It opens a road to service to every man and woman in the country. All can do their bit. They must do it. You must do it. Save your dollars and lend them to the nation. Buy War Savings Certificates.

EFEECT OF MAJOR REDMOND'S DEATH IS ALREADY FELT

some declarations beforehand which pledged the gathering to the acceptance of the Ulstermen's full demands for a partition of the six counties. These apprehensions are largely dismissed now.

The real unadulterated truth is that America's intervention suddenly transformed the whole situation. President Wilson's speech, coming as it did at a most opportune moment, gave at one blow the coup de grace to the whole irreconcilable attitude by putting the rights of small nations so much to the front and time presenting England with the alternative of either liberating Ireland or taking a radically different attitude from that of her most powerful ally.

WAR FEVER.

Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, contributed greatly to the reasonableness of the Orange attitude and he showed his seal for a settlement of the question by going over to Belfast in the midst of his tremendous anxities of watching the submarine campaign. With him, as with many other men, the war fever in the sense of its gigantic perils and soleman issues, has produced an entire change of view and prospective. This in many respects is one of the most notable and remarkable results of the war.

It may truthfully be said that all the old party shibboleths and groupings have disappeared in the graves of Flanders, France and Gallipoli, never to be resurrected again. Socialistic ideas have spread throughout the country with extraordinary rapidity. Everybody is seeking a solution of the old troublesome question of the relations between capital and labor, a matter that was given little or no thought by the great mass of the people before the war.

SOME SYSTEM.

It is certain that at least some system of co-partnership will be offered most workmen and wage earners at the close of the war, as it is apparent that any system conducted along the old lines has vanished even from the most narrow minded conception of the future. Old England of vast fortunes on one side and vast abysses of poverty on the other, is disappearing.

The outlook on the war itself has changed extraordinarily of late. The recent British victories on the western front have been of such a character as to confirm an opinion that has long been growing, that man for man, gun for gun, the Allies are far superior to Germany, and that in the end we will beat her. However, behind all calculations there stands the impressive figure of America and unless there comes a sudden and unexpected break-up of Germany, the inner feeling to-day is that we in Europe will have to mark time until America's million soldiers arrive on the firing line to deliver the final and decisive blow.

Many Stars In "Oh! Cecil"

Big Musical Comedy Here on Monday at the Grand Opera House

The big Musical Comedy, "Oh-Cecil," which comes to the Grand Opera House, Peterboro, on Monday next, June 18th, from reports all down the line, appears to be doing more than average business, although it is rather late in the season.

A real, good tuneful comedy will always command more than average patronge but when as in the case of "Oh! Cecil" the cast of players contains so many well known names, extra big business is assured.

At the head of this clever company is Mr. Vern Dushayne, the acknowledged premier performer of the "Nut" character. Mr. Dushayne will be well remembered in Peterboro for his clever work when starring here this season in "Peg O' My Heart."

As Cecil Algernon Van der Decken Marchbanks, he is given opportunities to keep the audience in a roar of laughter all evening. Associated with him are Miss Lulu de Treves, Miss Ada Phœnix, David Stanwood, William Pritchard, and many others not quite so prominent in theatrical circles, but nevertheless clever.

The Dallas Pony Ballet are too well known to need any praise at this time—they dance all the latest numbers in their own inimitable style.

All the latest New York hits are sung and a real enjoyable evening is promised, free of anything to which exception could be taken, a good clean wholesome comedy.

IMPORTANT TO CAR BUYERS

The "New Series" Chevrolet Motor Car

New Features of the Much-Talked-About Four-Ninety "A" Five Passenger Touring Car—The Product of Experience

To-day is a day of values, and a time when we look beyond the surface of things. In the realm of Motor Cars, no other model has received more bona fide compliments than the Chevrolet. These have largely come from expert judges, who have seen distinct supremacy in many of its parts, and because of its remarkably low price for the value it shows. In fact, it would really appear as if price was a secondry consideration with the Chevrolet Motor Company, while quality was the basis of Chevrolet success.

The colossal resources of the Chevrolet Company has been massed from the first in solid defence of the Chevrolet reputation. The care exercised in the selection of the materials used proves conclusively that the "Four-Ninety" model is not built to meet a price. Hence the Chevrolet, through and through, is of genuine steel, the best steel.

In the Chevrolet's Four Cylinder, Valve-in-Head Motor, you get the maximum power. It claims to surpass other motor types by its direct force through the shortest course. Its absence of valve cages does away with 64 unnecessary parts. One particular advantage, which is well worth the entire cost of the car, is that the motor is accessible. The entire top of the cylinders can be removed in order to permit easy access to the interior.

The chassis and wearing parts are built of fine resilient strong stock, to meet the demand for pliancy and strength. Chrome Vanadium is used in the vital points, in the power transmission and control systems.

NEW FEATURES OF THE NEW SERIES CHEVROLET.

In mechanical efficiency, the new Chevrolet Four-Ninety "A" is a replica of the Four-Ninety model, of which there were over 8,000 sold in Canada the first year. In refinements and appointments the Four-Ninety "A" makes a strong appeal to the most fastidious.

The new features of the Four-Ninety "A" include one man top secured to windshield with clamps; sloping windshield; extremely graceful yacht line body; five demountable rims; tire and demountable rim carrier, designed with tail lamps and license bracket attachment; new design rear fender skirt; front fender skirt extended; Radiator splash guard gives front part of car a conventional appearance; special design Robe Rail; new design Foot Rail; Tonneau floor laid with pile carpet; Lower rear edge of front seat covered with leather to prevent finish from marking; pockets in all doors; hand pads to protect finish on doors; improved arrangement of lights in side curtains; painted with rich Chevrolet green, nicely striped. And the price of the new five passenger touring car is only $750 f.o.b. Oshawa.

The quality of the Chevrolet appeals to people of wealth—the price permits ownership by those of moderate means.

This "New Series" Chevrolet may be inspected at the Manning Garage, 388 Water Street. It is recommended in the strongest terms as one of the greatest achievements of modern science to those intending to buy a motor car. Ask the man who owns one.

ISOLDE MENGES

England's Greatest Instrumentalist To Return to Peterborough

The young but great artist, Isolde Menges, who startled a Peterborough audience on Monday evening, June 11th at the Conservatory of Music in this place by her wonderful genius, is to appear here again on Wednesday evening next, June 20th, when she will present the same programme she gave in Montreal on June 4th. This was not the original intention, but some musical enthusiasts here have persuaded Miss Menges that she would do well to give just as serious a programme in Peterborough as she would give in New York or London. The young violinist is pleased to take this opportunity as she has been advocating better musical programmes for recitals for some time. She has been fighting against the many-eyed tendency to make programmes almost entirely devoid of seriousness by cramming in to many small pieces as a concession to those who merely want to hear and not to understand. We want more artists like Miss Menges, who is determined to bring the best in music to wherever she goes. She knows she has a great message for the public and is determined to try and deliver it.

It is interesting to know that England has at last turned out an instrumentalist who can be classed with the best the world has ever produced. Melba expressed herself at Miss Menges' debut in London in unusual enthusiastic terms, saying that nothing would please her more than to have Miss Menges on tour with her, but Miss Menges' parents had other views. They thought that her work would best develop by continuing her own recitals and their anticipations have been crowned with unique success. No man, woman or child who has the welfare of education at heart, should miss this golden opportunity of hearing England's greatest instrumentalist.

A Valuable Organization

Peterboro' Y. M. C. A. Doing Its Bit and Meriting Support

In a series of well prepared advertisements the local Y.M.C.A. is seeking to graphically present some phases of its work which it seems desirable that the public should understand.

To-day attention is called to the fact that while other Ontario towns have been required to provide thousands of dollars for sites and building equipment, Peterborough, through the far-sighted generosity of Mrs. Charlotte Nichols has been saved this expense.

In view of this fact and the more important fact that this association is rendering and has rendered valuable service to the boys and young men of the community, our citizens should see that it has financial support adequate to its present and future necessities.

The place the Y.M.C.A. is taking, in serving our soldier boys, both at home and overseas, is sufficient commendation of its importance to the nation and empire and full warrant for any appeals it may make to the public for moral and financial support. The Peterborough association has not been behind in doing its "bit" in this particular as every man in khaki has been granted special privileges and has been given every opportunity by its equipment to make himself fit for serving King and Country.

New Insurance Rates By Two Fraternities

The Provincial Department of Insurance has been advised that the Oddfellows' Relief Association and the Canadian Order of Foresters purpose putting into effect substantial increases in insurance rates in order to place their organizations on an actuarial basis.

The new monthly rates upon $1,000 insurance which the Oddfellows will pass upon at their convention in Kingston on July 25th are: 25 years, $1.05; 40 years, $1.71; 45 years, $2.09; 59 years, $4.05; 60 years, $4.30; 61 years, $4.50; 62 years, $4.75; 63 years, $5.00; 64 years, $5.30; 65 years, $5.65; 66 years and over $6.00. The extent of the increase may be observed in comparison of old and new rates. At 25 years $1.80 was paid every two months, as compared with $1.05 a month by the new rate. At 40 years $3.75 was paid every two months, as compared with the new rate of $1.71. At 45 years $4.19 every two months, as compared with the new rate of $2.09 a month. In the older ages the increase averages about 50 per cent. In addition to rates quoted assessment dues of 20 cents a month are payable.

The Canadian Order of Foresters' new monthly rates to be considered at a meeting in Hamilton next week are: 16 years, 65c.; 20 years, 69c.; 25 years, 80c.; 30 years, 95c.; 35 years, $1.08; 40 years, $1.27; 45 years, $1.53; 50 years, $1.91; 55 years, $2.45; 60 years, $3.19; 65 years, $4.26; 70 years, $5.80; 75 years, $8. The old rates were, 16 to 25 years, 60c.; 25 to 30 years, 65c.; 30 to 35 years, 70c.; 35 to 40 years, 85c.; 40 to 45 years, $1.00. In addition to these rates, lodge dues are payable.

By the Insurance Act, as amended, all fraternal societies must, after December 31 next, make a valuation by actuary of assets and liabilities and a report be sent to every member before July 1 of every third year thereafter.

Garbage Disposal Scandal in London

LONDON, Ont., June 16.—London has a civic scandal to deal with as the result of a special investigation by a Council committee into the garbage collection system. Four years ago the city established a system which it is alleged has been more costly and less satisfactory to the citizens than the former system of private disposal.

A new incinerator plant was installed at a large cost, and the Council now find boilers and plant generally have been allowed to go to ruin through lack of discipline in the department. There has, it is charged, been waste and inefficiency, and the Committee charges employees with graft. The report has caused a sensation, and many dismissals are anticipated. The worst feature seems to be that while the taxpayers have been paying big bills for garbage disposal account, another huge investment is required immediately. Some favour scrapping the plant and abandoning civic disposal.

"In Artois, in the morning, British attacks near Lens and Bullecourt failed."

The afternoon report says:

"Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht—In Flanders, after a comparatively quiet day, vigorous gun fire began at 8.30 p.m., followed by British attacks along the whole front. After fighting, which in some places lasted until morning, the enemy pressed back our detachments.

"North of the fighting area to the coast there has been a little artillery activity.

"By a surprise attack troops belonging to a lower Rhenish regiment broke up a Belgian post, consisting of 25 men, on the Yser Canal.

"On the Artois front, after vigorous waves of fire, the British attacked our trenches during the morning east of Monchy.

"They forced their way in at some points, but were at once ejected by a counter-attack by our troops, who were in readiness. A portion of the trench west of the Sart Wood is still held by the enemy.

"During the evening several British battalions advanced east of Loos. Here also our position was maintained by a vigorous counter-attack."

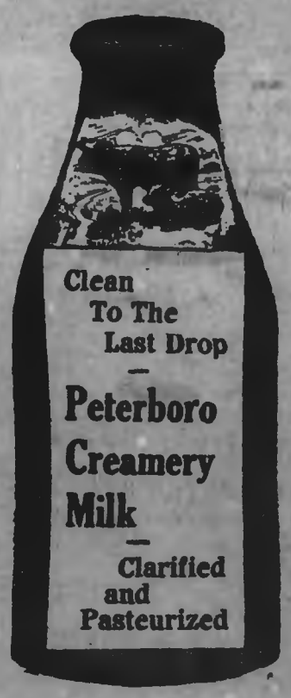
What Is the Baby Worth to You?

Rear Your Children on Peterboro Creamery Milk

Babies under two years of age feed absolutely on milk but — it must be Clean Inspected Milk, Pure and Safe

Peterborough Creamery Milk is Clarified and Pasteurized--- CLARIFIED is Clean --- PASTEURIZED is Pure



MILK is an inexpensive Food. ONE QUART OF MILK IS EQUAL IN FOOD VALUE TO ANY ONE OF THE FOLLOWING:—

8 Eggs;
2 pounds of Chicken;
3 pounds fresh Codfish;
2 pounds of Potatoes;
¾-pound of lean Round Beef.

A QUART OF MILK A DAY FOR EVERY CHILD IS A GOOD RULE EASY TO REMEMBER.

SAFEGUARDING THE MILK BOTTLE

It is our aim to produce milk and supply it to the customer as pure and as sanitary as is possible.

PASTEURIZATION—Milk is a delicate and highly perishable product and is more susceptible to contamination than almost any other food.

All of our milk is pasteurized. The process will absolutely destroy more than 97 per cent. of any germs that might be contained in the milk.

Pasteurized milk is neither cooked nor sterilized, its taste has not been altered and its digestive and nutritive qualities have not been impaired by the process.

Germs of disease can be carried in raw milk and epidemic outbreaks are often traceable to that source. No epidemic has ever been traced to pasteurized milk.

CLARIFIED—You will notice that there is absolutely no sediment in the bottom of any bottle of milk or cream that you receive from us. This is because we clarify all milk so that every bit of sediment is removed. Every bottle is washed by live steam and rinsed in clear cold water. This is absolutely necessary to produce absolute sterilization.

Our milk is all bottled by modern and sanitary fillers, perfectly Hygienic, so that at no time is the milk touched by human hands from the time of the milking of the cows until the bottle is delivered to the consumer.

Under no conditions or circumstances do we ever permit milk to be bottled on wagons. We do not deliver milk in any way except in a perfectly sterilized bottle.

CLARIFIED FIRST---THEN PASTEURIZED

Only Foreign Potatoes Can Save The Germans

THE HAGUE, June 16—To-day Vorwaerts has an editorial on the potato question and the coming harvest, pointing out that Germany can just pull through by the skin of her teeth if a quantity of foreign potatoes can be procured until June 22. The ration of five pounds a week cannot be kept up, and if the Government fails to produce foreign potatoes, the missing ration will be made up by flour, fish, dried vegetables and sauerkraut.

Both Sides Are Confident

Two Conservative Papers Are Supporting Liberal Government

Special to The Examiner:

REGINA, Sask., June 16.—On his return to Regina from an extensive speaking tour of the province lasting several weeks, during which he visited almost every constituency, and addressed over sixty meetings in large and small centres of population, Premier Martin was given the greatest reception of his career at the biggest meeting of the campaign yet held in the auditorium of the city hall here last night. W. B. Willoughby, leader of the Opposition, is also confident of the result in the coming election.

"There is a surprising amount of dissatisfaction with the government," he said in an interview. He added: "I believe we are going to win, make no mistake about that." One of the surprises of the campaign was sprung to-day when the Saskatoon Star, and the Regina Post, both formerly Conservative, came out flat-footed to-day in favour of the return of the Martin government in an identical editorial printed in bold type and spread over two full pages on their Saturday issues. These two papers review the whole record of the government and opposition, and strongly urge the return of the Liberal government.

SUNDAY READING FOR A THOUGHTFUL HOUR

Prepared for the Examiner by a Local Church Worker

The following thoughts from "The Outlook of the Churches," by Tertius, are well worth consideration, representing, as they do, opinions of prominent men of different denominations upon the religious awakening since the beginning of the war:

A fine note was struck by the Rev. A. N. Marshall in his Baccalaureate sermon of McMaster University in Walmer Road Baptist Church last Sunday, when he said that "the touchstone of character is sacrifice," and pleaded for a spirit of unselfishness in all our life and work. The reference to war profits was also impressive and timely, and Mr. Marshall's words should be repeated and emphasized again and again:

"We repudiate the fellowship of him who would grow rich on the blood of our men who are dying for their country to-day; who fatten on the sorrows of our time."

It is almost incredible that any man should grow rich at the expense of those who are giving their lives for their country, and yet it is undoubtedly true that throughout the world there are men "who fatten on the sorrows of our time." It only shows the extent to which human nature will go in its craving for wealth. This makes it all the more incumbent on preachers and teachers to emphasize the essential spirit of the Gospel of Christ and the example of Him "who, for our sakes, became poor that we, through His poverty, might become rich."

It is essentially clear that money is an essential factor in the winning of the war. The loans recently brought to success in England and Canada have proved conclusively the words of Mr. Lloyd George about "silver bullets." But the lesson has still to be learnt in other connections, and especially in relation to the progress of the Kingdom of God. Christian men have often spoken feelingly about the evangelization of the world, without providing the money necessary to carry out the programme. The Laymen's Missionary movement has done much to show the men of our churches their responsibility and duty in this respect. A well-known English Congregational minister, Dr. Horton, tells of a certain missionary committee, composed chiefly of wealthy and influential laymen, which met in solemn conference to discuss retrenchment in connection with some needy fields. They agreed to spend some time in prayer, asking God to send the money required to carry on the work. When they rose from their knees these wealthy men looked at each other, with shame on their faces, for while they had been praying God had shown them that the answer to their prayers and the solution of their problems were in their own hands. And so, one after another, they offered each a princely gift, and the shadow of retrenchment fled away. It is a reminder of that time in the life of Christ when He first called His disciples together for prayer, and then sent them out to answer their own prayers. Some years ago a request was sent in to a prayer meeting on behalf of a widow and her children, who were in great distress. The Chairman said: "Give me the woman's address; we need not trouble the Lord with this petition."

Mr. W. E. Raney, K.C., continues his crusade against racetrack gambling, and in his address on Monday last at a meeting of Anglican Church men in Toronto he spoke again in very plain terms. He supplied much new and interesting information regarding the profits of Jockey Clubs in Ontario stating that these were at least double, and, in some cases, four times what they were in 1910. Mr. Raney did not hesitate to lay the blame for the continuance of the evil at the door of the Provincial Government, and described the Jockey Club stock in these words: "Was there ever a fairyland goose like this to lay golden eggs for King's favourites?" It is a matter of profound satisfaction that Mr. Raney persists in dealing with this subject, because while no one can properly object to horseracing for sporting and breeding purposes, the matter is wholly different when it is associated with racetrack gambling. In view of the fact that in England there is to be no racing this summer, it is all the more astounding that the condition of affairs should be so deplorable in Ontario. Gambling of every sort is so utterly opposed to the first principles of true religion, as well as so subversive of the best interests of human life, that it calls for the most vigorous and persistent opposition on the part of all who believe in truth, purity and unselfishness.

That was a striking statement made the other day by Dr. W. H. Hincks at the annual meeting of the Canadian McAll Association. He said that out of about 40 millions of people in France nearly thirty millions before the war were unconnected with any church and were largely free-thinkers. But since the war very many of these have become impressed by religion and this new attitude, Dr. Hincks remarked, was "nothing short of miraculous," because it meant a turning to God. This is in exact agreement with the words of an eminent Frenchman, M. R. Saillens, whose book recently published is entitled "The Soul of France." There is no doubt, as a reviewer of M. Saillens' book says, that God is at work in France and this new France is beginning to express itself in so striking a way.

War Measures Were Discussed

Lord Northcliffe Met President Wilson To-day

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, June 16.—War measures, particularly food legislation, were discussed at the White House to-day by Lord Northcliffe and President Wilson. The British representative was introduced to the President by assistant Secretary of State Phillips.

The British Ambassador Sir Cecil Spring Rice, who was expected to attend, did not accompany Northcliffe.

It is understood that Lord Northcliffe inquired as to the advisability of another war loan to Great Britain.

Remnants of Garrison and Two Guns Captured

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, June 16.— Gen. Cadorna's troops swept forward in another successful offensive dash to-day east of Adamello, capturing "a strongly fortified position at Cerno Cavento," according to an official War Office report. The remnants of the garrison and two "75" guns were captured with other booty.

Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. Summer Fete

Otonabee Chapter, I. O. D. E. will hold their annual garden fete at the home of Mr. J. J. Lundy, 236 Burnham street Ashburnham, on Thursday afternoon and evening, June 21st.

A bus will leave the post office each half hour, beginning at 2.30 p.m. Among the booths will be found a work table consisting of such useful articles as kitchen aprons bags and socks.

The fish pond, fortune telling, flower beds and candy booths are in capable hands and should prove attractive to young and old.

Tea will be served on the grounds as in former years—no need to go home for supper.

A special programme of vocal, fancy dancing and musical selections is being arranged for the evening.

Admission free to the grounds.

Two Big Anarchists Are Arrested in New York

NEW YORK, June 16.—Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, the two most notorious Anarchists in the United States, who for weeks have been conducting a campaign against all the aspirations and activities of this Government, particularly against its part in the war and army conscription, in the course of which they have at times almost preached sedition, were arrested by Federal agents yesterday afternoon in the Anarchists' headquarters at 20 East 125th Street.

For several weeks secret service agents have kept close watch on Emma Goldman and Berkman, and it has been known for some days that their arrest would be made immediately the Government obtained evidence of an overt act on their part to interfere with the nation's war programme. Yesterday that evidence was forthcoming when the Government came into possession of copies of Anarchists' publications known as Mother Earth, which is owned by Emma Goldman, and The Blast, the editor and proprietor of which is Berkman.

Important as are the prisoners to the Government, they are perhaps not nearly so important as is the mass of documents and other written matter which has come into the possession of the Department of Justice. A waggon-load of Anarchist records and propaganda material was seized, and included in the lot is what is believed to be a complete registry of followers of Anarchy in the United States. A splendidly kept card index was found, which the Federal agents believe will greatly simplify their task of identifying persons mentioned in the various record books and papers.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Quick Hauling To Market

JUST THINK OF THE TIME THE FORD SAVES a busy farmer in hauling milk, vegetables, butter, eggs and poultry. One fruit grower, last season, made four trips a day to the railway station, a total of 144 miles, and carried as high as 72 crates of 11 quarts each on a trip. He could not have made more than one 36 mile trip a day with a team.

The Ford soon pays for itself in the time it saves the farmer. With help so scarce, every farmer needs to make use of every precious minute of his time. To him the Ford car is a real necessity. Indeed, some farmers tell us that it is doubtful if they could carry on their farm work under present labor conditions if it wasn't for the time the Ford saves them.

No farmer need be without a Ford. In fact, the average farmer could afford one if it were double the price. It is as easy to drive as a horse, three times as fast, and costs less per mile to run. Why not order one to-day?

Held Annual Meeting At Bowmanville

Bay of Quinte Branch of Women's Missionary Society Hear Reports and Elect Officers

BOWMANVILLE, June 15. — The 26th annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the Women's Missionary Society met in convention in Bowmanville Methodist church June 12, 13 and 14. Addresses of welcome were extended from representatives of various churches in the town, to which Mrs. F. Brandon, Cannington, made reply. Tuesday evening the pastor, Rev. H. B. Neal, was chairman, when official reports were given by Mrs. Jas. Kendry, Peterborough, Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Ashton, Campbellford, and Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Cannington. At this session the President of the Branch, Mrs. A. W. Grange, Napanee, gave an address.

Wednesday morning a memorial service was held in tribute to the 44 members of the Branch who had passed away during the year. The Mission Circle work was ably presented in addresses by Mrs. R. Coulson, Foxboro, Miss Mary Wilson, Napanee, and Mrs. Marcia Madlin, Picton. Mrs. A. R. Campbell, Peterborough, one of the oldest members, discussed the subject, "Shall We Celebrate Our Silver Anniversary, and How?" It was later decided to celebrate this event next year by a special Thank offering.

Wednesday afternoon session opened with a patriotic service when Mrs. J. H. Renwick, of Peterborough, sang the stirring patriotic selection, "Land of Hope and Glory." Mrs. J. R. Read gave a sketch of the new study book, "The Story of the Years," which was followed by an Auxiliary Workers' Conference, consisting of three addresses by Mrs. C. Callery, Cannington, Mrs. C. W. Turner, Campbellford, and Mrs. J. W. Wager, Centreville. The Mission Band Conference was in charge of Mrs. M. E. Wilson, the speakers being Mrs. H. J. Thompson, Whitby, and Mrs. J. H. Allan, Newburgh. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by Rev. H. B. Neal, assisted by Rev. Geo. Brown, Hampton, and Rev. E. A. Tonkin.

Wednesday evening the chair was taken by Rev. Geo. Brown, who spoke very highly of the work of women, referring especially to their efforts and sacrifices in the missionary cause. Mrs. J. G. Lewis, Pontypool, gave her report as Superintendent of Christian Stewardship. The audience was much pleased with the address of Mrs. W. E. Ross, President of the Board of Managers. Mrs. Ross is an interesting speaker, and is a source of inspiration to all W. M. S. workers. The sessions on Thursday were devoted mainly to business, with the exception of an address on "Practical Plans of Christian Stewardship" by Mrs. F. A. Foster, Whitby.

Throughout the Convention musical numbers were supplied by local talent. The branch meeting will be held in Picton next year.

District organizers are: Belleville, Mrs. J. C. MacFarlane; Bowmanville, Mrs. L. Tole; Brighton, Mrs. R. Hewitt; Cannington, Miss V. Coomb; Campbellford, Mrs. R. J. Lawlor; Cobourg, Mrs. J. W. Roberts; Lindsay, Mrs. (Dr.) Irvine; Madoc, Mrs. George Harris; Napanee, Mrs. M. S. Maddle; Napanee (Tamworth), Mrs. J. W. Wager; Peterborough, Mrs. J. K. Moore; Picton, Mrs. J. Laird; Whitby, Mrs. George Jackson.

Officers are: Honorary Presidents, Mrs. L. Massey and Mrs. A. R. Campbell; President, Mrs. A. W. Grange, Napanee; 1st Vice, Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, Keene; 2nd Vice, Mrs. J. R. Real, Clarmont; 3rd Vice, Mrs. G. W. Hannon, Campbellford; Recording Secretary, Mrs. C. Callery, Cannington; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. W. H. Ashton, Campbellford; Auxiliary Treasurer, Mrs. James Kendry, Peterborough; Circle and Band Treasurer, Mrs. F. R. Foley, Bowmanville; Circle and Band Secretary, Mrs. W. E. Wilson, Cannington; Superintendent of Christian Stewardship, Mrs. J. G. Lewis.

Long military capes have jacket front.

Was Arrested In Peterborough

TORONTO, June 16.—"I want to go to Mexico," said Thomas Rico, a railroad hand, boarding a train in Texas. But the engineer was going in the other direction, and the first thing Thomas knew, he was in Canada. Perhaps it was all a mistake; but Canada didn't want him. Thomas was arrested at Peterborough, then he came to Toronto. Still expressing his desire to go to Mexico, he was yesterday remanded by Squire Ellis for deportation, at the request of the immigration authorities.

Wife of Sea Captain Kidnapped By Sub.

More Hun Barbarism is Revealed by Philadelphia Captain.

NEW YORK, June 16.—According to Captain Charles E. Pennewell, of Philadelphia, who has arrived here, commanders of German submarines frequenting the Mediterranean, are not only shooting the crews of the steamships they destroy, but in at least one case the wife and fourteen-year-old daughter of one sea captain were kidnapped by a U-boat commander.

The captain reported that an American Consul at a North African port had told him he had been informed on good authority that thirty members of the crew of a British steamship had been deliberately shot in their lifeboats after the vessel had been sunk by the submarine.

Foreigners On Strike Threatening Trouble

Men Who Should Be Interned Participate in Strike

The strike of 150 freight handlers, mostly Bulgarians and Austrians, employed at the docks at Port McNicoll, the C. P. R. lake terminus, is assuming threatening proportions.

There are about 700 men employed by the C. P. R. at Port McNicoll, of whom 300 are Chinese, 150 Bulgarians and Austrians, and the balance Canadians.

On Wednesday the Bulgarians and Austrians went on strike in a body for higher wages, not being satisfied with 27 cents an hour they have been receiving.

"When their demands were not acceded to they organized a street parade that night and for a time looked troublesome," declared Mr. I. S. Waddell, reeve of Port McNicholl. "They hurled abuse at those who refused to join them in the strike and there were a series of street fights. One shot was fired during the disturbance, but it was later found to have been fired accidentally. No one was injured.

"There are prospects of more serious trouble when the C. P. R. begins to pay off the strikers," Reeve Waddell added. "I understand the C. P. R. has requisitioned that militia be sent from Camp Borden and I understand a special train with troops may arrive at any hour."

"Greek Slave" Company Had Fine Outing

Were Guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Sturgeon at Their Summer Home at Clear Lake

Thanks to the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Sturgeon and the kindness of a number of local motor car owners the members of the "Greek Slave" Company were enabled to enjoy a most delightful outing at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Sturgeon, Clear Lake, last night. The party numbering some seventy-five people, motored out early in the evening, and the occasion was a most enjoyable one. The time passed all too quickly in dancing, music and games. During the evening Messrs. James Liddell and Vernon Dredge added to the enjoyment by contributing songs, while the "Clear Lake" quartette, composed of Messrs. Flowers, Marshall, Devey, and Hutchinson were heard to advantage in several numbers. Mrs. Foster and Mr. Simmonds kindly furnished music for the dancing. At eleven o'clock, dainty refreshments, furnished by the ladies, were served. The gathering expressed their hearty thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Sturgeon for their hospitality and indicated their feelings by hearty cheers. During the evening Mr. Devey announced that the net proceeds from the three performances of "A Greek Slavement" would amount to about $400.

Body Held in Fernie

Embalmed Last August—Undertaker Seeks Information of John Hoy

Chief Thompson has received a communication from an undertaker in Fernie, B.C., asking for information regarding John Hoy, who died in that town last August, and whose body was embalmed and has not yet been removed from the undertaker's rooms. The deceased was about 50 years old and is supposed to have come from Peterborough or this district.

Germany's Mailed Fist To Restore Constantine

Kaiser Does Some Grandiose Talking to Cheer up Deposed Monarch.

BERNE, June 16—A telegram from Berlin says Emperor William has addressed the following message to one of the Greek diplomatic representatives abroad for transmission to former King Constantine:

"I have heard with wrath of the infamous outrage committed by our common enemies upon you and your dynasty. I assure you that your deprivation can only be temporary. The mailed fist of Germany, with further aid from Almighty God, will restore you to your Throne, of which no man by right can rob you. The armies of Germany and Germany's allies will wreak vengeance on those who have dared so insolently to lay their criminal hands on you. We hope to welcome you in Germany at the earliest opportunity. A thousand cordial greetings from

"Your William."

MUSICAL SERVICE LIBEL ON THE LORD

Dr. Hastings, at Canadian Medical Association, Says Doctors Largely Responsible.

MONTREAL, June 16.— "Our present burial service is a libel upon the Lord," said Dr. C. J. Hastings, Medical Officer of Health, Toronto, in advocating the teaching of hygiene in the schools of Canada, at the annual meeting of the Canadian Medical Association, at McGill University here. Continuing, Dr. Hastings said: "Our ministers quote, 'The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away.' He does nothing of the kind. We medical men are largely responsible for the death rate, and it is time that the Canadian Medical Association took drastic action in order to safeguard public health against the encroachment of diseases which endanger our citizens and lower the standard of the nation's manhood."

A resolution was passed recommending that the teaching of hygiene be compulsory in all Universities and in the faculties thereof and recommending the organization of a practical course in all Normal schools throughout the Dominion and the adoption of text books on hygiene.

Weekly Stock Market Letter

The chief market influence this week was the big liberty loan regarding the success of which there was not at any time any doubt. That it would be much over subscribed was taken as a matter of course and as reflecting the determination of the United States to win the war, the great military registration was a forrunner of this. The loan will have an important bearing on the market in more ways than one. It means a start in thrift by many who had not been used to saving, it means the organization of a nation of investors which will go on expanding and become an important part of the financial system. These will benefit wall street incidentally. The loan should have a strong influence in Germany convincing the people there that the U. S. will be no easy foe to deal with.

Liberty Bonds.

Trading began in liberty bonds today. It is already apparent that many regard the 3 1-2 p.c. investment yield as attractive on loans to the Government and this will indirectly stimulate demand for miscellaneous securities which will yield more. If there was any doubt in peoples minds that there is plenty of money in the country to absorb a big government bond issue and leave ample for other requirements that doubt is now dispelled. The money received on the Liberty loan will go back into the channels of trade and many corporations will benefit by government orders.

Flag Day Speech.

President Wilson's flag day speech while not having a direct market bearing, did indirectly impress upon people that the first we have entered into may tax the country's resources. The huge war expenditures mean active business and profits for many industries. While taxes on these will be large the purpose is to follow the example of Britain and France, and not to do anything to discourage business. Steel, Copper and Equipment concerns will benefit most. In taking account of the Stock market these should be borne in mind. Allowing for dividends that came off we have seen some new high prices this week. There is small wonder at this when we note that both Beth. Steel and U. S. Steel are believed to be earning at the rate of 100 p.c. on their common stock. The market was helped by the official announcement that U. S. Steel directors will advise the continuation of the extra 3 p.c. dividend on the common stock at the July meeting. This was largely responsible for the spurt early in the week. Many now regard U. S. Steel common as a 17 p.c. stock.

Russian Situation.

Three matters will tend to induce more or less caution in stocks. One is the Russian situation, but uncertainties in this country exert less influence han formerly. With so much doubt regarding the Russian internal situation it is small wonder that there is little demand for Roubles. There is a disposition in some quarters to question whether railroads of the U. S. will receive the full amount of the advanced rates which they applied for. The ultra conservatism of the Interstate Commerce Commission is well known. We believe however, that an adequate allowance will be made. Some expect money to work firmer towards the end of this month in connection with the first considerable payment on the Liberty Loan, and because many are expected to pay in full at that time. We would not worry on that source. The federal reserve banks will offer ample assistance to meet all requirements. The market outlook is extremely good and we think public confidence is increasing. Purchases of standard stocks on setbacks should give good results.

Dolly Taylor's Suit For $608 Dismissed

Dolly Taylor, of Asphodel, posed as a domestic in a county court yesterday in which she claimed $608 from Andrew Magee for household services she claimed to have rendered during the two years in which a former criminal case revealed her as something of a vampire in the Magee circle. In dismissing her suit, Judge Huycke told her that she was a brazen woman, and otherwise briefly expressed his opinion of the case as a parting push to the discard to which he had consigned it. Mr. Daniel O'Connell appeared for the defendant and Mr. Joseph Wearing for the plaintiff.

THE MASQUE OF LIFE
Signet Films presents the greatest of all Screen Thrills

The prince of the realm has fallen in love with Evelyn, a circus girl, and plans to elope with her, but is prevented by the sudden death of the king and his accession to the throne. Her lover, who had been willing to renounce his kingdom for the sake of the girl he loves, is told that Evelyn and their child have been drowned and marries a woman of royal blood. Evelyn becomes a wanderer and finally joins a travelling circus. Through all the hardships she subsequently endures, Pete, a trained chimpanzee, is her devoted friend. One day Pete, realizing that Evelyn is mourning for her child who has died, determines to secure one for her. So he climbs over the palace wall, snatches the king's baby from the royal crib and runs with it to the top of a 360-foot chimney. Evelyn decides to save the king's heir. Reaching the top of the chimney, she tears the baby from Pete's grasp and hurls the monkey to his death. Later, during a spectacular performance for the king, in which Evelyn is to appear, the circus catches on fire. In the panic that ensues the queen dies of shock. In the end the king gives up his crown and weds the girl who has been so faithful and devoted.

Market Report For The Week

Sugar Prices Are Somewhat Weaker —Staple Commodities

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

With the upward tendency in cash wheat prices during the week flour again was quoted higher by some of the large milling concerns. Demand for millfeeds is lessening now that abundant grass is available for live stock. Sugar prices are in somewhat weaker position owing to the continued good reports of production on the Island of Cuba. Demand for sugar throughout Canada is light at present, but with the approach of the fruit-preserving season it is anticipated a heavier demand may put greater firmness into the market.

Cheese Market Steady.

Advances in prices have not been arrested by a noticeable slackening in trade. However, the increases have not been so apparent in the more staple grocery lines, but rather in some of the commodities that are a necessary part of the stock-in-trade of every wholesaler. Butter dishes, milk powder, maple syrup, chloride of lime, jams and jellies are among the lines affected. On the other hand there were declines in the price of butter and cheese. Eggs were in steady market, but with the increasing production it is anticipated that lower prices will prevail in that commodity also. The naming of the price which the purchasing commission of the British Government is prepared to pay has had the effect of causing the cheese market to steady down.

There has been a slowing up in trade quite generally during the past two weeks and various reasons are assigned. One of the theories advanced is that there is uncertainty over the conscription issue. It is pointed out that retailers are of the opinion that with considerable numbers of men taken from civilian life there will be less demand for grocery commodities. Another reason given is that retailers are already carrying fairly heavy stocks and have enough to take care of their trade for some little time.

To Return Unless They Will Revert

CAMP BORDEN, June 16.—Instructions have been issued to commanding officers to warn personally all officers of their units above the rank of lieutenant before proceeding to England with reinforcements "other than medical," that unless after arrival they are willing and permitted to revert to the rank of lieutenant, or unless their services are required overseas, they are to return without delay to Canada.

Many of the Protestant ministers' wives in France have taken their husbands' places in the pulpit when they have been called away to the war.

Social and Personal

Miss Lena Faux left this afternoon for Toronto after spending two weeks' vacation with her parents, East City.

Miss Ruby Sharpe left this morning for Stoney Lake to spend the week-end the guest of Mr. J. D. Craig.

Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of George Street Methodist Church, has returned home after attending the conference in Belleville. Mr. Peever will occupy the pulpit at both services to-morrow.

Mr. L. A. Turner and sister are taking advantage of the opening of the fishing season at Rice Lake.

Miss Marguerite Merrell has gone to Montreal to spend a two weeks' vacation with her sister, Mrs. Arthur L. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. English of Hastings and Miss Cahill, have returned from a motor trip to St. Thomas and Niagara.

Mr. Reginald Turner, Mr. R. B. Rogers, Rev. Mr. White, Mr. E. A. Peck, Mr. Harry Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hay, Mr. and Mrs. Parsons and Mrs. H. J. Fairweather motored this morning to Cobourg to attend the funeral service of the late Mrs. Sawers.

Mrs. D. A. Leary, of San Antonia, Texas, secretary of the Associated Charities and ex-president of the Woman's Suffrage Association of that city, who has been attending the Associated Charities Convention in Pittsburg, Pa., is the guest of Mrs. Leary and Mrs. C. Parsons, McDonnel Street.

Nursing Sister Irene Fitzgerald, of the Base Hospital, Toronto, is in the city, visiting her aunt, Mrs. D. J. Lundy, before leaving for overseas.

Mrs. (Dr.) Spiers, Montreal, is in the city, visiting her father, Mr. Richard Hall, Water Street.

Mr. H. P. Kennedy, Toronto, is in the city to-day.

Rev. R. B. Grobb has removed into the residence lately occupied by Mrs. McMillan, who left this week to reside in Montreal.

Miss Elsie Anderson has returned from Toronto.

Mrs. Ernest Clarkson leaves to-night for a six weeks' visit in the West.

Mrs. F. J. Tate, Lakefield, was in the city to-day.

Lt.-Col. Grafton, Col. Gwyn, ex-Mayor Morden, Hamilton; Mrs. Grafton, Mrs. Fred. Bowman (sister of Sir Henry Pellatt), and Mrs. Grafton were in the city yesterday, when the Grafton firm took possession of their new store.

Mrs. H. Thompson entertained at a small tea yesterday in honour of her visitor, Miss Theodore Lee, Toronto. Mrs. McBain presided at the tea table, and was assisted by Mrs. McElderry, Mrs. Forbes Knight and Mrs. Trebilcock.

Mrs. H. Sheldon Huffman and daughters, Beulah and Olga, left for Rochester this morning for a month's visit with Mrs. Huffman's parents.

Mrs. W. J. Mather, of Stouffville, is visiting friends in the city.

Mrs. Henry Reasin Lindsay Ont., announces the engagement of her only daughter, Myrtle Grace, to Mr. F. Carl Weber, of Peterborough, Ont., the marriage to take place quietly at Whitby the last of June.

The garden party given by the Churchwoman's Association yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer, Weller street, proved a great success. On account of the inclemency of the weather, the entertainment was held in the house, which was prettily decorated with illies of the valley. Mrs. Young poured tea and Mrs. A. E. Coulthard was in charge of the housekeeper's table. About fifty attended the tea, and $25 was realized, which will be devoted to Red Cross.

Miss Esme Aylmer returned to-day from a short visit in Belleville.

Wheat Markets Again Weakened

Good Crop Reports Depress the Grain Markets—Flour Holds Steady

Under pressure of continuous crop reports of a bearish character the wheat markets again weakened, though a desperate attempt at a rally was made in the Chicago, the July option being forced up 7c from the low point of the day, but finally closing weak and 2c below Thursday's close. "Heintzman Hall" Open To The Public To-night Provides An Attractive Home of Music

"Heintzman Hall" formally opened its doors to the public of Peterborough and the surrounding district this afternoon attracting large crowds that came in a steady procession from shortly after one o'clock. The reception will continue this evening from 7 until 10 o'clock, and should be even more successful, altogether providing an auspicious inauguration of the handsome quarters Heintzman and Co., Ltd., have prepared in the Royal Bank Building, for the convenience and pleasure of the public. It is an admirable and more than adequate home of music, and may be considered as a fitting tribute to the muse that expresses itself through the instruments now displayed. A flood of light is afforded through the expansive windows and finds no flaw in the interior decorations and appointments. The colorings are soft tones of creams and whites that create a subtly soothing effect. For this afternoon's special occasion there was a fine show of flowers that heightened the cheerful influence of "Heintzman Hall," and immense Union Jacks and Stars and Stripes, draped from the walls, accentuated the lighter touches of colour.

In short these new music parlours combine service and beauty in a measure that will appeal to the public's finer tastes, and their sense of the fitness of things. It is another evidence that business, especially the business of selling pianos and other musical instruments, is enhanced and raised to its proper plane by just such methods that are tastefully employed in "Heintzman Hall."

This afternoon the ladies who visited the rooms received carnations in addition to a cordial welcome. The Opera House orchestra played a delightful programme and will be heard again to-night. Likewise, the flower favours will not be forgotten. The public showed its interest in the splendid instruments on display, the three sound proof roomy cabinets for Victrolia customers, and the large display of pianos and Victrolas. Pictures of Caruso, Sembrich, and Calve are prominently hung. In short everything about "Heintzman Hall" accentuates the idea of music, but there is no blare to the general scheme, which is felt rather as a soft harmony. This is really the motief, if such it could be called, of these music quarters, for there is a nice consonance of light, colour and airiness, and against this background the instruments doubtless provide the element of harmonizing sound. But reference to that feature is the work of Mr. B. H. Britton, the manager, whose sense of fitness in retailing musical instruments deserves commendation, and to all appearances has amply received the approval of the public since his coming to Peterborough. He is assisted by Mrs. Britton and Mr. F. B. Hutchison.

HARRY LAUDER WILL AID U. S. RECRUITING

NEW YORK, June 14.—The campaign of recruiting will be stimulated further late in the summer by the arrival of Harry Lauder and his thirty pipers. Lauder is coming primarily to make another tour—a farewell one this time—but he will devote all his leisure time to the recruiting movement.

In England, at the outbreak of the war, Lauder was notably successful in his personal campaign. Accompanied by his pipers and rendering songs having patriotism for their theme, he helped to fill the ranks of the army.

A cable message from Lauder stated that he would leave London shortly for France, devoting himself to entertaining the men in the trenches and the wounded in the hospitals. The comedian's son was killed in action, and Lauder feels the bereavement keenly.

CANADIANS IN HOSPITAL.

22,544 Were Being Cared for Overseas on May 18.

OTTAWA, June 16.—The Military Hospitals Commission to-day received from the Director of Medical Services in London a return showing the number of members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in hospitals in the United Kingdom on May 16. The total, 22,544, showed an increase of 695 for the week. The number in Canadian primary and special hospitals, however, had fallen from 5,121 to 4,965, while the number in Canadian convalescent hospitals had risen from 4,638 to 5,049. The number in non-Canadian hospitals had also risen from 12,186 to 12,462. There were 68 men in the sanitoria for tuberculosis.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS.

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or careless in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

TALK OF SEPARATE PEACE FOR RUSSIA BRANDED AS FALSE

Only Fragment of People For Move, Says Zemsky Union Head Here—Predicts War Envoy Will Quiet Rumors—Petrograd Can Define Stand For Allies and United States, Correspondent Declares.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Russia will know how to reply to the demands of the United States and the Entente Powers for a definite statement of the attitude of the Petrograd government toward a separate peace with Germany, A. J. Sack, staff correspondent here for the official publications of the Russian Ministry of Finance and assistant director of the Russian Information Bureau, declared.

Alexanrovitch N. Sakhnovsky, head of the Zemsky Union, with headquarters in the Flatiron Building, branded the separate peace talk as false, and said that when Boris A. Bakhmetieff, the new Russian Ambassador, reached Washington, next Tuesday, he will issue a statement which will clear the situation once and for all time.

Despatches from Washington that the Entente Powers are prepaifng to ask the Petrograd government for a definite statement of its attitude toward the allied powers, caused a new current of excitement in Russian circles in this city. A prominent Russian called attention to the fact that the first news that the Entente Powers were preparing to take this step was printed in the New York Herald of May 28. He declared that reports from Washington printed Friday were nothing more or less than a repetition of the news in the Herald nearly three weeks ago.

"I am positive that Russia will never conclude a separate peace with Germany," Mr. Sakhnovsky said yesterday. "Less than one per cent of the Russian people are for a general peace at this time. Only three newspapers in Petrograd are advocating peace now. When it is understood that there are more than 300 newspapers in Petrograd the insignificance of this peace movement can really be understood.

"When Mr. Bakhmeteff reaches Washington next Tuesday he will clear up this situation."

Mr. Sakhnovsky declared that he does not believe that the United States and the Entente Powers are seriously looking to Russia for a statement regarding her position as one of the allied Powers.

"There are no grounds for the Allies taking such a step," Mr. Sakhnovsky declares. "The idea of a separate peace does not exist in Russia. Had Russia wanted a separate peace it would have been easy for her to have obtained it. It would have been sufficient to have left the old government in power for two or three months longer. Then the defeat of Russia and a separate peace with Germany would have been an accomplished fact.

Says Russians Hate Separate Peace.

"We started our revolution because every one of us hates the idea of a separate peace. Every one in Russia believes that a separate peace with Germany would mean the defeat of the new freedom in Russia.

"There is no question that the revolution created a situation which makes it necessary for the country to have a few months' time to reorganise the government and the army. We waited for three years for the United States to come in to fight for he defence of the common cause. We did not blame her for the delay. We understood the internal situation here and knew how difficult it was for President Wilson to bring the country, with so many different elements in it, to a proper understanding of the world situation. We waited for a year before Great Britain put her first real army on the battlefield. While England was preparing our soldiers covered the battlefields of Europe with their blood. Yet we did not blame England. We understood that it was necessary to give an allied country—a sister country—time to prepare.

"The only country which probably could blame us is France—France who has been fighting from the beginning. But France understands and is not blaming us.

"The Russian revolution opened new perspectives in the life of all nations of the world. It is the real key to the situation. There are many autocratic and imperialistic elements even in the allied countries, and these elements do not like the revolution or the Russian democracy. They felt more safe with the old Imperial Russian government. The Russian democracy is not afraid of them. Its appeal is addressed to the people.

"Russia will play her part in the great struggle with a full understanding of her responsibilities before humanity.

"I am sure that there is nothing dangerous for the Allies in the situation, but should some of these Allies really make improper representations in an importunate tone, Russia will be able to answer them in the proper way."

Flavelle Asks Munitions Men To Avoid Labour Troubles

"Preserve Good Relations With Workpeople" is Advice of Munitions Board—Reference to Conscription and Its Results

An appeal to munition manufacturers to do their best to avoid labour troubles in their plants has been sent out in the form of a circular letter from the Imperial Munitions Board, signed by Sir Joseph W. Flavelle.

Munition men think that the letter has been prompted by the recent statements of anti-conscription labour leaders that there might be trouble if fairer conditions to munition workers were not insisted on by the Government or to Munitions Board. There is also a reference in the Flavelle letter to the changed conditions that conscription will bring. The letter is as follows:

"Dear Sirs,—May I on behalf of the Board solicit your serious co-operation in personal attention and forethought whereby misunderstandings or difficulties with your workpeople may be averted.

"I am led to say this because I remember the necessity of securing further support for the men at the front means there will be considerable impairment of the present factory working forces in Canada.

"As there is great industrial activity, and a general shortage of efficient labour. It is to be expected that restlessness in labour circles will be increased rather than decreased when men now at work are taken out of employment and used for military service. The problem which the manufacturer will have will be two-sided.

"1. To preserve good relations with workpeople insofar as his personal sympathy and sustained attention can accomplish it.

"2. By patience in training help, male and female, to take the place of the men of military age who enlist without creating the impression that they are seeking to displace them.

"I am assured we are agreed that those of us who remain at home in safety can afford to overlook our comfort, if through personal inconvenience we can assume direct responsibility for the spirit pervading the factories with which we are identified.

"Yours truly,
J. W. FLAVELLE,
Chairman.

President Signs War Budget Bill, Starts Contracts

WASHINGTON, June 15.—President Wilson has signed the $3,000,000,000 War Budget Bill.

For weeks, contracts with manufacturers throughout the country for shoes, uniforms, lumber,—in fact all things immediately needed by the Government for its new armies and enlarged naval establishments—have awaited the time when the President would pen his name to this measure.

These contracts could not be signed until the President signed the Bill. Money now is immediately available for the great army, navy and shipping work ahead of the Government. Soldiers and sailors may be paid while in training, contracts let to great concerns all over the country may be signed.

Shipping work, which has been greatly embarrassed because of uncertainty ocer the appropriation of $750,000,000 for building and buying all vessels possible with the greatest haste, can now go forward. Defences of the country, including tremendous work contemplated on the Panama canal can now be accomplished. Supplies held up for lack of funds will be furnished forthwith.

WELL KNOWN IN PETERBORO'

LONDON, June 16.—F. G. Killmaster, Mus. Bac., organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's Cathedral here, and well-known in Peterborough, enlisted to-day for overseas service in the Depot No. 1 Army Medical Corps.

SURPLUS OFFICERS PROBLEM

LONDON, June 15.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that General Turner has received a request that he will agree that several score Canadian officers now in England may be lent to Imperial commands for service in France on the lines of communications as train-commanding officers in charge of ordnance depots and traffic men for the new railways. They will be able in most cases to retain the rank with which they left Canada. It is expected that this will go a considerable way towards solving the surplus officer question among the Canadian forces in England.

SOLDIERS FROM STATES POPULAR WITH PARISIANS

PARIS, June 16.—France accepts Gen. Pershing's arrival as a happy augury of America's participation in the war.

A huge American flag flies from the temporary headquarters of the American staff in the Rue Constantin, and 9 o'clock to-day saw the American commander and his aides hard at work. The only official call on the General's list is a visit to the Ministry of Marine late this afternoon.

American khaki is rapidly becoming a familiar sight on the boulevards, but no American officer or soldier is permitted to pass along without notice from spectators.

The American Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. of France, a newly organized branch, is busy planning comforts. American baseball in the Bois de Boulogne, tennis on the Avenue d'Elysee, classes in French and bicycle expeditions into the country are some of the things planned for the American soldiers and sailors when they arrive.

A large hotel has already been tentatively rented. In it the American workers plan to establish what is expected to be the nucleus of a vast system of establishments in French cities at the front, all to give aid and comfort to the Americans.

As American troops arrive and spread themselves over the various army zones, workers of the Paris organizations will follow them, establishing recreation centres as close to the camps as possible. The same scheme is to be worked at ports where American sailors are to be granted liberty leave.

By LOUIS TRACY

"If you don't fetch that rug I'll go for it myself," said Grant, whereupon Bates made off.

He was soon back again with a carriage rug, which Grant helped him to spread over the dripping body. Then he hastened to the village, taking a path that avoided the house.

The lawn and river bank of The Hollies could only be overlooked from the steep wooded cliff opposite, and none but an adventurous boy would ever think of climbing down that almost impassable rampart of rock, brushwood, and tree-roots. At any rate, when left alone with the ghastly evidence of a tragedy, Grant troubled only to satisfy himself that no one was watching from the house. Assured on that point he lifted a corner of the rug, and apparently forced himself to scrutinize the dead woman's face. He seemed to search therein for some reassuring token, but found none, because he shook his head, dropped the rug, and walked a few paces dejectedly.

Then hardly knowing what he was about, he relighted his pipe, but had hardly put it in his mouth before he knocked out the tobacco.

Clearly, he was thinking hard, mapping out some line of conduct, and the outlook must have been dark indeed, judging by the somber and undecided aspect.

More than once he looked up at the attic window of the cottage which had drawn his eyes before tragedy had come so swiftly to his very feet. But if he hoped to see anyone, he was disappointed, though in the event, it proved that his real fear was lest the person he half expected to see should look out.

He was not disturbed in that way, however. Fish rose in the river; birds sang in the trees; a water-wagtail skipped nimbly from rock to rock in the shallows; honey-laden bees hummed past to the many hives in the postmaster's garden. These were the normal sights and sounds of a June morning—that which was abnormal and almost grotesque in its horror lay hidden beneath the carriage rug.

To and fro he walked in that trying vigil, carrying the empty pipe in one hand, while, with the other, he dabbed the handkerchief at the cut on his face. He was aware of some singular change in the quality of the sunlight pouring down on the lawn, and river and trees. Five minutes earlier it had spread over the landscape a golden bloom of the tint of champagne; now it was sharp and cold, a clear, penetrating radiance, in which colors were vivid and shadows black. He was in no mood to analyze emotions, or he might have understood that the fierce throbbing of his heart had literally thinned the blood in his veins and thus affected even his sight. He only knew that in this crystal atmosphere the major issues of life presented themselves with a new and crude force. At any rate, he made up his mind that the course suggested by truth and honour was the only one to follow, and that in itself was something gained.

By the time Bates returned, accompanied by the village policeman, and two men carrying a stretcher, Grant was calmer, more self-contained, than he had been since that hapless body was dragged from the depths. He was not irresponsive, therefore, to the aura of official importance which enveloped the policeman; he sensed a certain uneasiness in Bates; he even noted that the stretcher was part of the stock in trade of Hobbs, the local butcher, and ordinarily bore the carcase of a well-fed pig.

These details were helpful. Naturally Bates had explained his errand, and the law, in the person of the policeman, was prepared for all eventualities.

"This is a bad business, Mr. Grant," began the policeman, producing a note book, and moistening the tip of a lead pencil with his tongue. Being a Sussex man, he used the same phrase as Bates. In fact, Grant was greeted by it a score of times that day.

"Yes," agreed Grant. "I had better tell you that I have recognized the poor lady. Her name is Adelaide Melhuish. Her residence is in the Regent's Park district of London."

Robinson, the policeman, permitted himself to look surprised. He was in fact rather annoyed. Bate's story had prepared him for a first rate detective mystery. It was irritating to have one of its leading features cleared up so promptly.

"Oh," he said, drawing a line under the last entry in the note book, and writing the date and hour in heavy characters beneath. "Married, or single?"

"Married, but separated from her husband when last I had news of her."

"And when was that, sir?"

"Nearly three years ago."

"And you have not seen her since?"

"No."

"You did not see her last night?"

Grant positively started, but he looked at the policeman squarely.

"It is strange you should ask me that," he said. "Last night, while searching for a book, I saw a face at the window. It was that window," and four pairs of eyes followed his pointing finger. "The face, I now believe was that of the dead woman. At the moment, as it vanished instantly, I persuaded myself that I was the victim of some trick of the imagination. Still I opened the other window, looked out and listened, but heard or saw nothing or no one. As I say, I fancied I had imagined that which was not. Now I know I was wrong."

"About what o'clock would this be, Mr. Grant?"

"Shortly before eleven. I came in at a quarter past ten, and began to work. After writing steadily for a little more than half an hour I wanted to consult a book, and lighted a candle which I keep for that purpose. I found the book and was about to blow out the candle when I saw the face."

Robinson wrote in his note-book: "Called to The Hollies to investigate case of supposed murder. Body of woman found in river. Mr. Grant occupying The Hollies, says the woman's name is Adelaide Melhuish"—at this point he paused to ascertain the spelling—"and he saw her face at a window of the house at 10.45 p.m. last night."

"Well, sir, and what next?" he went on.

"It seems to me that the next thing is to have the unfortunate lady removed to some more suitable place than the river bank," said Grant, rather impatiently. "My story can wait, and so can Bate's. He knows all that I know, and has probably told you already how we came to discover the body. You can see for yourself that she must have been murdered. It is an extraordinary, I may even say a phenomenal crime, which certainly cannot be investigated here and now. I advise you to have the body taken to the village mortuary, or such other place as serves local needs in that respect, and summon a doctor. Then, if you and an inspector will call here I'll give you all the information I possess, which is very little, I may add."

Robinson began solemnly to jot down a summary of Grant's words, and thereby stirred the owner of The Hollies to a fury which was repressed with difficulty. Realising, however the absolute folly of expressing any resentment, Grant turned, and without meaning it, looked again in the direction of the cottage on the crest of the opposite bank. This time a girl was leaning out of the dormer window. She had shaded her eyes with a hand, because the sun was streaming into her face, but when she saw that Grant was looking her way she waved a handkerchief.

He fluttered his own blood stained handkerchief in brief acknowledgment, and wheeled about, only to find P. C. Robinson watching him furtively, having suspended his note-taking for the purpose.

CHAPTER II.
P. C. ROBINSON "TAKES A LINE."

"It will help me a lot, sir," he said, "if you will tell me what you know about this matter. "If as seems more than likely, murder has been done, I don't want to lose a minute in starting my inquiries. In a case of this sort I find it best to take a line, and stick to it."

His tone was respectful but firm. Evidently, P. C. Robinson was not to be trifled with. Moreover for a sleuth whose maximum achievement hitherto had been the successful prosecution of a poultry thief it was significant that the unconscious irony of a "case of this sort" should have been lost on him.

"Do you really insist on conducting your investigation while the body is lying there?" demanded Grant, deliberately turned his back on the girl in the distant cottage.

"Not that, sir—not altogether—but I must really ask you to clear up one or two points now."

"For goodness' sake, what are they?"

"Well, sir, in the first place how did you come to find the body?"

"I walked out into the garden after finishing breakfast a few minutes ago, and noticed the rope attached to the staple, just as you see it now."

"Did you walk straight here?"

"No. Not exactly. I was—er—curious about the face I saw, or thought I saw, last night, and looked into the room through the same window. By doing so I feared Mrs. Bates, who was clearing the table and she screamed——"

"Her would, too," put in Bates. "Her'd take 'es for Owd Ben's ghost."

"You shut up, Bates," said the policeman. "Don't interrupt Mr. Grant."

Grant was conscious of an undercurrent of suspicion in the constable's manner. He was wroth with the man but recognized that he had to deal with narrow minded self-importance, so contrived again to curb his temper.

"I am not acquainted with old Ben or his ghost," he said quietly. "I can only tell you that I went inside to reassure Mrs. Bates, and then strolled slowly to this very spot. Naturally, I could not miss the rope and the staple. To my mind it was not intended that I or any one else should miss them. I regarded them as so peculiar that I shouted for Bates. He came at once, and drew the body out of the water."

"And you recognize the dead woman as the one you saw last night?"

"Yes."

"At about ten minutes to eleven."

"Yes."

"Is it likely, sir, that any other person saw her in these grounds a bit earlier?"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, sir, I can't put it much plainer. Could anybody else have seen her here, say about 10.15?"

Grant met the policeman's inquiring glance squarely before he answered.

"It is possible, of course," he said, "but most unlikely."

"Were you alone here at that hour?"

Again Grant sought and held that inquisitive gaze, held it until Robinson affected to consult his notes. There was a moment of tense silence. Then the reply came with an icy stubbornness that was not to be denied.

"I decline absolutely to be cross-examined about my movements. If you are unable or unwilling to order the removal of the body, I'll telegraph to the chief of police at Knoleworth, and ask him to act. Further, I shall request Dr. Fenton to examine the poor lady's injuries. It strikes me as a monstrous proceeding that you should attempt to record my evidence at this moment, and I refuse to become a party to it."

"Now, then, Robinson, stop yer Sherlock Holmes work, an' help me to lift this poor woman on the stretcher," said Bates gruffly.

The policeman's red face grew a shade deeper with annoyance, but he had the sense to avoid a scene. He was not popular in the village and was well aware that the two rustics pressed into service as stretcher-bearers would joyfully relate the fact that he had been set down a peg or two by Mr. Grant."

"I'll do all that's necessary in that way, sir," he said stiffly. "I suppose you have no objection to my askin' if you noticed any strange footprints on the ground hereabouts?"

That was the first thing that I looked for, both here and outside the window—the latter, of course, for another reason. I found none. These stones would show no signs. The ground is so dry that even the five men now present leave no traces, but I remember seeing in the bed of the stream certain marks which, unfortunately, were obliterated when Bates hauled the body ashore. They were valueless, however—shapeless indentations in the mud and sand.

"Were they wide apart or close together, sir?"

"Quite irregular. No one could judge by the length of the stride whether they were made by the feet of a man or a woman, if that is what you have in mind....but really——"

Grant's impatient motion was not to be misunderstood. Robinson stooped, removed the rug, and unfastened the rope, after noticing carefully how it was tied, a point which he called on the others to observe as well. Then he and the villagers went away with their sad burden, the rug being requisitioned once more to hide that wan face from the vivid sunshine.

Bates had a trick of grasping a handful of his short whiskers when puzzled; he did so now; it seemed to be an unconscious effort to pull his jaws apart in order to speech.

"I've a sort of idea, sir," he said, slowly, "that Robinson saw Doris Martin on the lawn with 'es last night."

Grant turned on his henchman in a sudden heat of anger.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS
Come From Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer from pains and headaches, and whose face is pale and blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women, between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of the breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of their lives by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheek, and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I should like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c., or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Prospector's Daughter

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

A prospector of mines, down on his luck, built a shelter for himself and his daughter, Margery, in the cleft of a rock.

One morning the prospector started out to be gone till noon. He had been away a couple of hours when Margery, who was sewing by a square cut in the boards intended for a window, saw a man come running toward her. Catching sight of the strange abode, an idea seemed to strike him. Pulling open the door, he was about to enter when he saw Margery. He closed the door behind him and said excitedly:

"I'm hunted for my life. I want to hide here."

Without any further word he ran to the back of the cleft, which narrowed as it extended inward, and finally reached a place where it was only wide enough to admit his body. But it was dark there, and he had this one chance if followed.

"What are they after you for?" asked Margery.

"They mistook me for a horse thief."

Margery knew that the punishment for horse stealing was hanging, and she turned pale. But she resumed her seat at the window and her sewing. Then she cast her eye to where her father's rifle stood against the rock, and she got up from her seat, and, taking the gun to the window, laid it at her feet.

"They're coming," she said presently in a quiet voice. "Stay where you are. Mebbe I can stand 'em off till paw comes home."

"For heaven's sake do!" was the only response.

Four mounted men came riding toward the improvised shelter. They were about to pass on when one of them noticed it. He reined in his horse and pointed to it. Margery heard him say that it was a good hiding place. Then they all rode toward it. Margery knew that if they approached it they would discover the fugitive. Taking up the rifle, she leveled it out through the window and called out:

"Hold on, there!"

The man pulled up and, peering before him, saw a girl sitting behind the window.

"What you want?" asked Margery.

"We're after a horse thief. Seen anything of him?"

"No; I haven't seen any hoss thief."

The men consulted together, then said to Margery, "We're sorry to trouble you, but we must have a look inside your—your domicile."

"I can't let you do that. I don't know who you are. You may want to steal somepin."

There was a burst of laughter at the suggestion that there was anything to steal. The men dismounted and were about to move toward the domicile when they heard the well known click of the cocking of a gun. They stopped short.

"Keep off," said Margery in a quiet voice.

"There's no gittin' in the rear," said one.

"No; there isn't," said another. "We've either got to go past the gal or keep out."

"It's my opinion he's there," said a third, "else she'd not be cuttin' these monkey shines. Say, little gal, you tell the feller that's hidin' behind your skirts to come out. We don't want to hurt you, but"—

Margery was not to be bluffed. She held the rifle to her shoulder, resting it on the window sill—or what served for one—and the men saw a pair of restless eyes taking in their slightest motion. Then they held another consultation, at the end of which they said to Margery that they were going to camp where they were and wait. This was not displeasing to Margery, for she expected her father would soon be back. Nevertheless she did not lower her rifle for a moment. The men settled themselves on the grass, filled their pipes and did what else they could to convince Margery that they would starve her out.

They had been there about twenty minutes when she saw her father standing at a distance surveying the scene. What interested him especially was his daughter covering the men before her humble home. He always carried a revolver on his tramps, and this time he had two. Suddenly the men heard behind them:

"Hands up, every one of you!"

Every pair of hands was raised. Then the prospector advanced, with a cocked revolver in each hand, while they were still also covered by Margery. Having been informed of the object of their visit, the prospector made an agreement with them that the stranger should stay where he was till the fact of his innocence or guilt could be determined. Then he was to be turned over to them or go free. The fugitive was called out and, being informed of the conditions, expressed himself satisfied, and all weapons were put aside. Turning to Margery, he said:

"You shall live in the handsomest house money can build. I own three-fourths the stock in the most profitable mine in these parts. You have saved my life and shall have your reward."

The young man's innocence was established, and he made good his words. Margery left her improvised residence and in time lived in the promised mansion. The man whose life she had saved lived there with her as her husband.

EXTREME WEAKNESS AND SUFFERING

Read How Mrs. Goodling got Relief and Strength.

York, Pa.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it to be all you say it is. I was so sick that I could not stand at my sink to wash dishes and I could not sit without a pillow under me. I had the doctor every few days but since I have taken the Compound I don't have to send for him. I have had three children and could not raise any of them, but since I have taken the Compound I have a bright baby boy. I advise every suffering woman to try it and get relief. It has done wonders for me."—Mrs. CATHARINE GOODLING, 128 E. King Street, York, Pa.

When a medicine has been successful in bringing health to so many, no woman has a right to say without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." There must be more than a hundred thousand women in this country who, like Mrs. Goodling, have proven what wonders Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can do for weak and ailing women. Try it and see for yourself.

What He Really Said.

A gentleman calling on an M. P. one day while waiting in the reception room was attracted by the manner of the small attendant and started a random conversation.

"And how much do you earn a week, my boy," he inquired.

"Ten pounds," said the youngster with avidity.

Being shown into the member's private office just then, the visitor's surprise found vent in words.

"Mighty bright youth you have there to be getting £10 a week," he remarked.

"Why," said the M. P., "he only gets 22 shillings."

"But he told me just now you were giving him £10 a week," persisted the gentleman.

"Nonsense," said the M. P., and he touched the bell. "Billy," he said, "did you tell this gentleman I was paying you £10 a week?"

"No, sir."

"You didn't? Well, what did you say?"

"I said I earned it," was the prompt and stout rejoinder.

An American Golf Club of 1794.

It may come as a surprise to golf players to know how long ago, almost a century and a quarter, the royal game was enjoyed by Charlestonians. In making research through the files of the South Carolina Gazette recently I came upon the following notice, which I send as a contribution to our golfing records:

Few People Know This

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

FUSSY AUNT SALLY.

She Is One of Those Who Always Find a Task Undone.

Our Aunt Sally always has one or two more things to do at night before she can go to bed. We were at her home a few weeks ago, and all of us sat up until late. At about 11 o'clock Uncle Buckram gave a yawn, and in thirty minutes everybody was under the cover listening to the rain—everybody except Aunt Sally. She decided that while everything was quiet she would sew the buttons on the new trousers she was making for Buckram. When this was finished she started to bed, but she remembered that she hadn't set her yeast. She went back into the kitchen and worked for about twenty minutes, and then it seemed that she was through with everything for the night.

We were almost asleep when she brought in another quilt. She said it might turn cold during the night and that we could pull it up if we needed it. She went back to her room and stood perfectly still for a few seconds. Evidently she was trying to think of something else to do before going to bed, and she thought of it. She decided she had best sprinkle down her clothes so they would iron better next day. When this was finished she folded the rough dried pieces and put them away.

At last the house was dark. The rain was pouring down, and we turned over for a good sleep. After we turned we were facing the barn, and we saw Aunt Sally out there with a lamp. She managed to keep the lamp dry, but in a few minutes it went out. A little later we heard her enter the house, and while feeling for a place to set the lamp she said: "I declare that fool hen hasn't any sense. I put her up in a dry place and she wouldn't stay there. She seems determined to drown, and I ought to let her do it, but I guess I'd better go back and see about her."

Her Fame.

The Duchess of Westminster has the reputation of being the wittiest woman in society. The duchess tells an excellent story about an ex-shah of Persia who was very fond of paying compliments to English ladies.

When the Duchess of Westminster was presented he greeted her heartily. "I have heard much about you," he said. "Your worthy name is well known even in my country."

The duchess was surprised at first, then a light dawned upon her. "Gracious me, I do believe he mistakes me for Westminster abbey!" she said. What was more, she was right.

A Minister's Evidence

Toronto, Ont., June 4.—There has come to us recently these two letters from prominent men who bear unquestionable testimony in regard to Dr. Chase's Ointment as a prompt and lasting cure for piles.

These men give their evidence freely because they know what it means to suffer from the tortures of piles and then be cured. They feel it a duty and a pleasure to let others know how they too may be cured.

Rev. Frank N. Bowes, Methodist Minister, Priceville, Ont., writes: 'In the winter of 1912, I was stationed in Cobalt. I went for a snowshoe tramp one day, and sat for only a few minutes on a cold stump waiting for some comrades to catch up to me. From sitting on the damp stump I contracted piles, and suffered so severely that it caused me great pain to walk. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I immediately purchased a small box which very rapidly effected a cure. I always keep a box on hand, and find it excellent for any kind of wound or sore."

Mr. W. B. Thorne, J.P., Alderside, Alta., writes: "It was twenty-eight years ago that I became acquainted with the merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment and would not be without it on any account as it never fails to do its work. I was first induced to try it for piles. Less than one box cured me, and I have never been troubled since. That was twenty-eight years ago, so I think the cure is permanent. It is good for sore lips and hands, chafing and, in fact, all sorts of sores. You are at liberty to use this statement for the benefit of others."

You can put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test in any case of piles with the utmost assurance that you will obtain relief from suffering and ultimately lasting cure. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Thrift that brings Comfort instead of Sacrifice

THRIFT, the paramount national duty, applies to time as well as to money—to small personal outlay as well as to larger family expenditure.

Applied to the daily shave, thrift means the use of a

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR

The Razor of National Service.

The Gillette reduces shaving time to five minutes or less—an actual saving of a week of working days a year! To the man who depends on the barber, it saves still more time, and from $25 to $50 or even more annually. This means the cost of one or several War Savings Certificates.

Moreover, there is not a man living with a beard to shave who cannot shave better with a Gillette if he will use it correctly—with the blade screwed down tight and a light Angle Stroke.

For the thousands of young men just reaching shaving age, the Gillette Safety Razor is a source of good habits—not only thrift, but punctuality, personal neatness, and efficiency in little things. For yourself or your son, at home or Overseas, it is a splendid investment.

THE TITLE AN ANCIENT ONE.

It Was First Conferred by Philip Augustus in 1191, at the Time of the Third Crusade—The Baton Is Its Distinctive Badge of Office.

It is only in France that the military dignity of marshal is a very ancient one. It was King Philip Augustus who first instituted it as a military office in 1191, at the time of the third crusade. St. Louis invested two of his commanders with the rank on the eve of his ill fated expedition to northern Africa. Francis I. created three, and by the time that Louis XIV. had completed his long reign there were no less than twenty of them.

The office was abolished by the first republic, but restored by Napoleon I. when he proclaimed himself emperor. He limited the number to sixteen. They were known as marshals of the empire. The Bourbon monarchy on its restoration in 1815 maintained them in office, but changed their title back to that of marshals of France. By the law of 1839, bearing the sign manual of King Louis Philippe, their number was limited to six in time of peace and twelve in time of war.

The baton, as provided for by existing military regulations in France, consists of a staff about two feet long, an inch and a half in diameter, covered with dark blue velvet, flecked with gold stars and tipped at either end with silver gilt, on the borders of which are engraved the Latin words, "Terror belli, decus pacis." It is carried in the right hand at all great military or state functions and is used in lieu of the saber for saluting. The baton of the field marshal of Great Britain is tipped at either end with crowns and lions; those of Germany, Austria and Russia with single headed or double headed eagles.

In England the dignity of field marshal was unknown until the reign of George II., who in 1735 bestowed it upon the second Duke of Argyll, one of the greatest commanders and statesmen of his day and of whom Pope wrote:

Argyll, the state's whole thunder born to wield
And shake alike the senate and the field.

The first Duke of Marlborough, the victor of Blenheim, of Ramillies and of Malplaquet, bore the title of captain general to indicate his rank as generalissimo, a title undoubtedly originating in Spain, where it is still retained. It is regarded there as the equivalent of the grade of field marshal in other countries.

There are no field marshals at present in Russia. The last two commanders to hold that rank were the late Field Marshal Gourko, governor general of Poland, and the late Grand Duke Michael Nicholaivitch, who when he died was the patriarch of the imperial house of Romanoff.

In Austria-Hungary there is but one field marshal—lately, Archduke Frederick. He is a brother of the queen mother of Spain and heir to all the colossal fortune of his uncle, the late Archduke Albert, who had won his marshal's baton on the battlefield of Custozza.

The full generals in Austria bear the title of "feldzeugmeister" (master of the ordnance) when they belong to the artillery, while all lieutenant generals are known as "feldmarshal lieutenant," a title which is being continually mistranslated abroad as that of field marshal.

In Italy, Scandinavia, Belgium and Holland and in the armies of the Balkan states the rank of field marshal is unknown, although the late King Charles of Roumania had received batons from Czar Nicholas II. and from the kaiser. Portugal, too, has dispensed with field marshals.

It is in Germany, however, that field marshals flourish, but only since the present kaiser has been on the throne. Just prior to the death of old Emperor William in 1888 there were but two field marshals in the entire German army—namely, the then Crown Prince (afterward Frederick III.) and Count Moltke, both of whom had received their batons at the close of the Franco-German war of 1870. As soon as the present emperor came to the throne he began to confer the dignity with such liberality that there are now fully a score of them, including Duke Bernhard of Saxe-Meiningen, the Grand Duke of Baden, Prince Henry of Prussia and Baron von Plessen. Besides these there are about a dozen more with the rank of "general oberst," or colonel general, whose rank is assimilated to that of field marshal and who are above the full general.—F. Cunliffe-Owen in New York Sun.

ECZEMA ON FACE

WAS SO BAD HAD TO STAY IN HOUSE

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, eruptions, ulcers, boils, pimples, etc., are all caused by bad blood, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and well-known remedy, will cleanse the blood of all its impurities, and by this means cure all skin diseases and other blood troubles.

Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with eczema and was so terribly bad I had to stay in the house. I had ten different doctors but got so tired of their treatment that I went and bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it helped me, so I kept on taking it. Now I am cured, and have a lovely skin.

"People who used to see me when I was so bad and see me now will not believe it, but I always tell them that nothing cured me but Burdock Blood Bitters."

Safety Classed.

A firm of upholsterers became so busy that they could no longer keep pace with the work they had to do, so they called on a little jobbing cabinet maker and asked him if he would make half a dozen chairs for them by a certain date.

The man took the order and lost but little time in executing it and still less time in obtaining the money for them. The work, however, turned out to be a failure, and the firm sent for the man and exposed to his view quite a heap of the various limbs that go to make a chair.

The practical joiner gave a look of surprise and proceeded to pick up the pieces and place them together without saying a word.

Presently he laid the pieces back again in a heap and, looking at them, exclaimed in a most emphatic manner, "Why, those chairs must have been all on!"—Kansas City Independent.

To Send 1,000 Flyers a Month To France

War Department Adopts Extensive Plan to Wrest Air Supremacy From Germany

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The Government has completed tentative plans to send 1,000 aviators a month to France, and the first big overseas force of airmen will be ready to embark some time in September.

These men will have received preliminary training in technical schools and on aviation fields before they leave the United states, and, in fact, the majority of those who will go with the first contingent are now hard at work on the rudiments of flying. On arriving in France they have a short period of intensive training under French instructors, and will then start for the battle front.

American manufacturers have promised to supply all of the training planes needed by this country and its allies, and thus make it possible for the French and English to devote all of their energies to turning out the fast and powerful battle planes which will be needed to end the question of supremacy of the air, It is not unlikely that some of the great factories which in the past have been used for the manufacture of automobiles will be turned into airplane plants.

Federal officials have made a thorough investigation of the conditions here and have found an unexpected response. They have received from manufacturers this reply to all of their questions.

"Tell us what you want; tell us how many airplanes the United States and her allies need, and they will be supplied. A country that can turn out hundreds of thousands of automobiles a year will not fail its Government when the demand is made."

Experts from England, France and the United States are at work with the one purpose in view of a co-ordination of effort that will eliminate Germany from the fighting in the air, a step which will go far toward shortening the war.

Lieut.-Col L. W. B. Rees of the British Flying Corps, an air fighter, wearing the Victoria Cross impressed upon the committee, the necessity of concentrating the army and navy air service under one head, as is done in England. Colonel Rees expressed the opinion that the Allies had the superiority over the Germans both as to handling of the air craft and in personnel.

"Great Britain is coming to the end of her man power," said Colonel Rees. "We may reach the end of it this Autumn. We will need all the aviators we can get."

In speaking of the utility of the seaplane as a factor in fighting the submarine, Admiral Peary said that France and England were beginning to realise its potency.

"In my opinion the seaplane is today the quickest and the cheapest antidote to the submarine menace, assuming it is along our coast," he said. "I believe that if we had today a thousand hydro-airplanes and aviators along our coast it would increase the efficiency of our coast protection 200 or 300 per cent., and I think that 5,000 of them would be none too many.

"The things we need to consider in air equipment are meeting the submarine menace, the aeroprotection of our coasts, and our coastwise cities, airplane convoys for our transocean ships, and the airplane patrol of our frontiers. The Mexican frontier of ours is about four times as long as the European western battle-front; we need thousands of aeroplanes."

COULD STOP SUBMARINES

"So you believe that if we could immediately send over to the danger zone declared by the German Government a thousand airplanes it would do more than anything to stop the submarine menace?" asked Senator Sheppard, Chairman of the Committee.

"I assuredly do," replied Admiral Perry. He referred to a dispatch from Paris on May 5, saying that twelve patrol boats had had engagements with submarines since Feb 1, while thirteen hydroaeroplanes had engaged in similar encounters.

"That shows what the hydroaeroplanes are doing," the Admiral went on. "The hydroaeroplane is still in its infancy, yet it takes on more submarines that the patrols. In the month of May the French hydroaeroplanes had fourteen engagements with submarines and the patrols twelve.

"To-day, with a sufficient number of seaplanes and aviators, we could cover completely and minutely a zone off our coast from 150 to 200 miles in width. By next Summer there is no question that we could cover a zone 600 miles wide.

"If we can get this aero coast patrol established and get hundreds of seaplanes in actual practical use, by using active young men, it will enable us to perfect the seaplane, which we discovered and invented to a point that will put us in the lead beyond any other nation in the world."

"Do you believe it will be possible, by proper development of the airplane and the seaplane, to make it practically impossible for a foreign foe to land a brigade on our shores," asked Senator Brady.

"Absolutely," replied the Admiral. "But it means thousands of them instead of dozens or hundreds, and it means thousands of men to drive the machines."

Senator Sheppard wanted to know if there would be enough abiators available to operate the machines.

"I understand that in the War Department and in the Aero Club of America and in the Aero Coast Patrol Commission the applications today are from 20,000 to 30,000," replied the Admiral. "I have no doubt they could be increased to 50,000 in a short time. That would be more than enough for all our uses."

Senator Kirby asked Admiral Peary if he thought the airplane would in future be of real service except as a fighting machine.

"I think that air power, just the same as sea power in the past, will be of two kinds, military and commercial," said Admiral Peary. "When the war is over we shall take up the commercial phase, the carrying of passengers, of freight, of mails, the patrol of our coasts and of our frontiers. I think the airplane is going to be available also as a municipal fire fighting equipment and purposes of the kind. I think the military phase of it is going to be in the futnre fully equalled, perhaps surpassed, by the great commercial aspect.

"One great point in the whole matter of an enormous air equipment, is in my mind, that every ounce of energy and every dollar of money put into it while for this immediate military emergency is still not wasted. For when the military emergency ceases, our military weapon of the air service can be transformed into a commercial implement."

Admiral Peary traced the development of the aeroplane since the beginning of the war, when it was used exclusively for scouting.

BUILDING TWO-GUN MACHINES

"Later on it was armed to enable each airplane to repel other airplanes," he went on. "Now they are mounting heavier guns and carrying heavier loads of explosives. There is a type of machine being built for this Government that will carry 4,000 tons of dead weight, exclusive of its own weight. It will carry a driver, two gun operators, two guns and ammunition.

"Up to now the development in air work has been that of the individual in the individual machine. That was the development that found expression in the exploits of Captain Bolke, Captain Immelmann and Captain Guynemar, each of whom has downed from thirty to forty or more antagonists. That is the skill of the individual and of the single machine.

"The time is coming when the unit of thisaerial work, instead of being a squadron of twelve machines, as it is now, is going to be a division made up of brigades, each of which will be formed of 500 to 1,000 airplanes.

"It is generally accepted now among leaders on the other side that not only are naval and military land operations impossible to-day without the air service, but that the development will be such that in the comparatively near future the air service will be more important than the army and the navy combined. That statement has been made officially on the floor of Parliament and other legislative bodies abroad by such men as Mr. Balfour, Lord Charles Beresford, Mr. Churchill, Lord Montigue, and Lord Northcliffe."

NAVAL BLUFF STORIES

LONDON, June 11.—On many occasions in the naval campaign bluff has been worth a battleship to the respective sides, and when peace comes and the censor retires to his dug-out and the veil that covers so much of the navy's activity is lifted, we shall have an opportunity of learning how valuable the capacity for bluffing has been on countless occasions. Even in these days of censors, though, news of many remarkable episodes of the kind have been allowed to "pass," and some of them make reading that a novelist would have shrunk from serving up but a year or two ago. Times there were when we suffered from the tactics of a bluffing enemy, but as a general rule the honors in this game rested with our sailors.

Fiji Islands Saved by Bluff.

One of the most piquant cases of all occurred out in the Pacific in the early days of the war. At that time the German Pacific squadron under Von Spee, who fought at Coronel and the Falklands, was sailing about the Pacific at large. Von Spee was very desirous of capturing some British possessions, and just as at a later date he tried to take the Falklands, so on this occasion, he had eyes on the Fiji Islands.

The principal of these is Suva, which at that time had for its defence half a battalion of volunteers, two machine guns and a three-pounder. When the presence of the German squadron was reported this contemptible little army did its best to put up a fight against the expected enemy, but all they could do was unavailing and they knew it. Nevertheless, Suva prepared.

But the enemy never came. The islands were his for the asking, but he turned aside. Why? Because Von Spee had tapped a wireless message sent purposely by "someone from somewhere," and this message referred to the presence at the Fijis of the Australian squadron, consisting of the battle-cruiser Australia and the light cruisers Sydney and Melbourne, so Von Spee thought it advisable to give the Fijis a wide berth. At that time there was not a vessel of the Australian squadron within miles of the place, but the message had done its work—bluff had saved an outpost of our Empire.

Tales of the Emden.

A former ship of Von Spee's squadron—the Emden—also met its fate largely through bluff, for the message which summoned her destroyer—H.M.S. Sydney—was sent out while the German sailors were cutting a dummy cable purposely laid out by the British telegraph officials to bluff them. Had the enemy known that the information of their whereabouts had been sent out to any British warship whom it might concern, they would not have lingered long at the Cocos Isles. As it was they lingered on, ignorant of the fate that was hastening upon them, and the first sign of danger they saw was the smudge of smoke on the horizon, which told of the Sydney closing in at full speed. A few hours later the proud raider was a burning, shattered wreck, hard aground on the coral strand of the Cocos.

But if British bluff finished the Emden, that ship had first of all made good use of bluff during its spectacular fling on our Eastern trade routes. With a false fourth funnel, to make her look like the British Yarmouth, she stole into Penang and sank a Russian cruiser and French destroyer before she was spotted, and then, to cap it all, the captain offered to carry three weeks' accumulation of mails to Calcutta!

He did not do so, but he led the harbour authorities at Calcutta a merry dance by wirelessing them that he was a vessel in distress and short of fuel. Special boat trains and an army of coolies were sent to Diamond Harbour with all speed, but their ship never turned up.

Dodging a Zepp.

One of the cleverest cases of bluff that has yet come to light was that of a British submarine commander off the German coast. There had been a sea and air raid on Cuxhaven, at the mouth of the Elbe, and when it was over a British airman was being rescued by a submarine from his airplane, which had come down on to the surface of the sea and could not rise.

While the rescue act was in progress a Zeppelin flew overhead, and regarded the scene below rather inquisitively. Nonplussed, the submarine commander waved his hand to the Zepp, so as to give the impression that his was a German U-boat capturing a British seaplane.

Thus bluffed the Zepp flew away but, being a bit suspicious, returned a little later to make closer investigation. By this time the airman had been got aboard the submarine, the hatch was closed and the boat dived. It was just in time, however, as it shot down to the depths, the bombs dropped by the infuriated Zepp could be heard exploding in the water overhead.

An Airman's Clever Game.

There is another pretty tale of bluff concerning a British naval airman who destroyed the first Zeppelin we accounted for in the war. This flier was one of a squadron of two or three machines that attacked Dusseldorf towards the end of 1914, the objective being a new type of Zeppelin just arrived from the factory. As the daring airman approached out of the midst towards the hangar he was heavily fired on, and things began to get uncomfortable. It was necessary for him to descend to a comparatively low height if he were to be sure of hitting the Zeppelin shed, so he adopted the ruse of diving his machine downwards in such a way as to make the enemy think that it had been hit and was falling.

They were completely bluffed by the manoeuvre, and ceased fire, with the result that the airman got to within 300 feet of the shed and destroyed both it and the Zeppelin. His departure was made a bit warm by the fire of "Archibald," but he got clear away.

THE BULLY.

We must always remember that the Prussian military class, which has made this war, is not really the German people; but it is the pitiless and monstrous power which the German people have allowed to grow until it has overmastered them and also threatened Europe.

It will be a day of rejoicing for the German peasant and artisan and trader, says Mr. Lloyd George, when the military caste is broken. You know his pretensions. He gives himself the airs of a demi-god walking the pavement—civilians and their wives swept into the gutter; they have no right to stand in the way of the great Prussian Junker. Men, women, nations, they have all got to go. He thinks all he has got to say is, "We are in a hurry." That is the answer he gave to Belgium. "I am in a hurry. Clear out of my way." You know the type of motorist, the terror of the roads, with a 60 h.p. car. He thinks the roads are made for him, and anybody who impedes the action of his car by a single mile, is knocked down. The Prussian Junker is the road hog of Europe; small nationalities in his way hurled to the roadside, bleeding and broken; women and children crushed under the wheels of his cruel car; Britain ordered out of his road. All I can say is this: If the old British spirit is alive in British hearts that bully will be torn from his seat.

There never was so deep a resolve in the hearts of the British people as the resolve to dispose of this bully.

Many a man's first mistake lies in the selection of his parents.

Lack of Ships To Convey U.S. Army Overseas

Number Greatly Under Estimate—Census Over-optimistic.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Shortage of ships for military transport service constitutes one of the biggest problems before America's war chiefs to-day. That the despatch of the bulk of the new army may have to be delayed by reason of this lack of transportation is admitted by the men in charge.

There are sufficient ships to carry vast numbers of soldiers, but this is only a small part of the problem, inasmuch as these men must be constantly supplied with food, clothing, artillery and other equipment.

This in itself is a tremendous task. The army will require its own weight in food every thirty-nine days, while all artillery must be renewed about every thirty days. Other supplies must be kept going in a constant stream.

In addition to these needs there is a question of supplies to the Allies.

Government Perplexed.

With these two needs—commercial and military—the government is sorely perplexed about meeting the problem. Next year will see a new flotilla of cargo carriers, but the big needs will come in the next few months.

Lord Northcliffe, in America to coordinate the work of British Missions, is counted on to make some vital suggestions in the line of obtaining enough shipping for all needs.

As army plans now stand, they contemplate the despatch of units abroad more or less constantly and in comparatively small numbers.

Soldiers already partly trained will get the finishing touches in France. The fact of sending these skilled men ahead will necessarily delay somewhat the despatch of the new army, for the absence of a training force will delay the moulding of the recruits.

9,280,00 Registered.

The total registration for selective service will be approximately 9,280,000, according to the revised figures given out to-day by the Provost-Marshal, Gen. Crowder. This number is more than 1,000,000 below the original census estimate.

Revision of the figures was made when the Provost - Marshal - General's office realized that in using census figures officials did not take into account the fact that about 800,000 men of eligible are already have volunteered for service in the regular army—National Guard, Navy and Marine Corps.

Another factor in the revision was the belated realization that census bureau estimates—made previous to the war—did not take into account the fact that in the past three years immigration has practically stopped.

While officials realize that there are still probably many of thousands of slackers, they point out to-day following the revision of estimates, that the number will be far less than at first expected.

The War Department indulges in no figures or dates, inasmuch as such information is of value to the enemy, but in general it can be said that the idea of sending no troops across for a year has been modified, and that the Pershing expedition will be augmented by other forces before the expiration of a year.

By the end of a year, the transport situation will be clarified it is felt, whether or not the submarine menace has been solved. Navy men, working on anti-submarine devices, however, believe they will get the "answer" to the submarine before long and that this will simplify shipping problems entirely.

THE MAYOR ABANDONS THE FIGHT FOR COAL

Says Citizens Will Have to Depend On the Dealers.

TORONTO, June 14.—Following a private meeting of the Board of Control in the Mayor's office to-day, Mayor Church made the announcement that owing to the coal situation, the city of Toronto could not be responsible for supplies of coal for citizens. He said that Works Commissioner Harris and himself had been authorized to confer with the Federal authorities with a view of having the United States and Canadian Governments co-operate to regulate coal prices and facilitate the movement of coal supplies.

"The city will take every precaution to get a reasonable supply of coal for emergency cases during the winter months," said the Mayor. "The visit of the Property Commissioner, Ald. Robbins, and myself to the United States, was not a failure. We went over there to make a survey of the situation. We have authorized Mr. Chisholm to get a supply for civic buildings. The citizens should understand that there is no occasion to be panicky over the situation, and it will right itself before long."

DUBLIN WAS PLEASED.

Release of Irish Prisoners Caused Enthusiasm.

DUBLIN, June 16.—News of the Government's decision to release the Irish prisoners without distinction, which was published here before the official announcement was made in London, created the greatest enthusiasm. Newspapers which published the announcement with the pictures of many of the more prominent prisoners, were quickly bought up. The news was better than was expected, as it was believed that the Government, while releasing most of the prisoners, would make some exceptions.

How Children Were Killed In London School

LONDON, June 16.—The terrible scenes at what Bonar Law, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in making his statement in the House of Commons said was a London County Council school in the East End of London, were described by a soldier who assisted in rescuing uninjured children.

"Hearing what I thought was gun firing," the soldier said, "I stopped to speak to a policeman. Just then there was another explosion, and the policeman, pointing upward, said:

"The raiders are out. Good heavens! They have got the school. Run round and give them all the help you can and I will get the police."

"I looked up in the sky, and there could just see five tiny little things like gilded fish miles up, almost invisible. Looking round, I could see another three more to the south, and perhaps on the other side of the Thames. I dashed around to the school as the policeman advised and there I found the class mistress, who had got the uninjured children into a passage where, if there came another bomb, they would be less likely to be hurt. She was all alone until I came. Then we both set to get out the uninjured. She brought down two or three from the upper room first, then we went into the classroom where the bomb had sunk into the earth when it exploded. The sight was a terrible one, and but for the excitement it would have been unbearable. Many of the little ones were lying across their desks, apparently dead, and with terrible wounds on heads and limbs, and scores of others were writhing with pain and moaning piteously in their terror and suffering.

"Many bodies were mutilated, but our first thought was to get at the injured and have them cared for. We took them gently in our arms and laid them out against a wall under a shed. I didn't count them, but I should think there were twenty or thirty. I was just wondering what we should do next when some more people came to help, including soldiers, naval cadets, police and special constables. We were frantic for ambulances and it was impossible to carry them to the hospital, which was half a mile away. Just then two lorries drew up and the driver suggested that he should help. We packed the poor little souls on the lorries as gently as we could and he drove as if he was afraid of something giving away and so at last we got them to the hospital."

Most of the victims were children in a school. Others were residents in a neighboring street, a baby, three days old, and the father who held it in his arms were killed, while the convalescent mother lay close by.

Eight enemy aircraft appeared to pass over in sight of the onlookers in this part of London. Apparently they were following the track of the Thames, one squadron of three on the south bank and another of five on the north, both undoubtedly searching for docks and aiming bombs with a view to the destruction of the shipping therein. Many bombs were heard to explode before the raiders reached this district, and hereabouts they dropped three more in an area of 200 yards, one killing several people in a side street and two others dropping in and close to the school. The bomb that did the most damage dropped in the outside rooms where between sixty and seventy children were at school. Had it pierced the middle of the building, the casualty list would have been three times as great.

Press Comment On New British Drive

"Ability and Determination."

Albany Journal:—"Even sooner than it was to be expected, and with violence that is presumptive evidence of ability and determination to make it continuous until success is achieved, the drive whose objective is the recovery of Belgium has begun."

"British Working Dreadful Havoc."

Pittsburg Gazette-Times:—"Such dreadful havoc as the British are working to the German lines in Northern France and Belgium must cause of reorganization of the Hindenburg plans before long."

"Relieve Pressure on Ypres."

Boston Globe:—"The immediate object of the latest phase of the British offensive is to relieve the pressure of battered Ypres by the capture of Messines Ridge, which dominates the region. The old Belgian town has been defended at all costs even though it has been demolished by German bombardments."

"Shows British Strength."

Charleston News and Courier:—"The British army in France has never before this conducted a double offensive at two points so widely separated. That it is able to do so now is significant of its strength and of the high degree of organization which has been attained."

"Great Prussian Retreat Certain."

Brooklyn Eagle:—"It also shows the arrogant nonsense of Von Hindenburg's boast that the Allied offensive in the west is over. The Allied operations in France have hardly begun. Before the summer is out another great German retreat is almost certain."

"Tide of War Has Now Changed."

Troy Record:—"It is improbable that the Germans are in immediate danger of being forced to evacuate any considerable portion of conquered Belgian territory, yet it is highly encouraging to know that the tide of war has at last changed and that it is now the Germans and not the British who stand on the defensive."

"Is Slowly Breaking."

Bridgeport Post:—"Germany is slowly breaking under the hammering blows. No mistake about it. As each of these drives reaches the mark the effect is felt. And, remember, Uncle Sam has yet to move and Russia has been idle for months. We are getting ready and the news from Russia is more promising."

"Distrust and Discontent Soon."

Montgomery Advertiser:—"When the Emperor tells the German people, one day that the British assaults have been halted and that no longer will German soldiers be killed by the thousands in these assaults, and when the next day, the British lunge forward, with every man destroying weapon at their command, distrust and discontent must take their places with privation and grief in German life."

George was hampered by a mother whose idea of godliness was cleanliness. Notwithstanding the frequent baths to which he was condemned, George thrived exceedingly. One day a neighbour remarked on his rapid growth.

"Yes," said George, "that's ma's fault. She waters me too much!"—Tit-Bits.

PELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when the doctors had failed."

BRITISH DRIVEN BACK NEAR MONCHY

RUSSIANS DECIDE ON A QUICK OFFENSIVE

HEAVY GERMAN ATTACKS ON NEW BRITISH POSITIONS AT MONCHY

General Haig Reports British Had To Fall Back from Newly Won Advanced Positions --- Infantry Hill Is Firmly Held However and Enemy Attacks Make But Little Impression --- Comparative Quiet Reported on French Front

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, June 18.—A tremendous attack on the newly won British positions east of Monchy Le Preux forced the British to fall back from certain advanced posts, Field Marshal Haig reported to-day. "Early this morning the enemy strongly attacked our new positions east of Monchy Le Preux," he stated. "After severe fighting we were compelled to fall back from certain advanced posts in front of our main new positions. We still hold Infantry Hill."

Monchy Le Preux five miles southeast of Arras, is one of the turning points on the general Hindenburg front. Being on the so-called Drocourt-Queant "switch line," it has been the scene of tremendous fighting ever since the British struck out from the Vimy Ridge and drove toward Douai.

LONDON, June 18.—Berlin official reports to-day hinted at a readjustment of fighting activities on two widely separated fronts. First was the resumption of offensive war by the Russians in the Lutsk sector which combined with Petrograd despatches detailing the vote of a secret session of the Duma urging an immediate offensive, gave great hope here that Russia was making ready to "do her bit." The second was the Berlin statement indicating a withdrawal by the British Saloniks expeditionary force from certain positions in the Struma lowlands.

Combined with news of the work of the American mission now in Petrograd the Duma resolution for an immediate offensive was taken as a favourable sign of the crystallization of Russian sentiment against Germany and the complete failure of the German peace plots. There have been numerous attempts in the House of Commons to obtain from the Ministry an explanation of the full reasons of the British participation in the Macedonian offensive. Certain members have insisted that the British forces now there under General Carrail could be utilized to vastly better advantage on the western front, backing up Field Marshal Haig's offensive.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Additional contracts for ten complete steel cargo carrying steamers and twenty-four wooden hulls have been let by the United States Shipping Board, it was officially announced to-day. The total number of contracts to date for the emergency fleet to cope with the submarine menace call for twenty-eight complete steel ships, thirty-two composite ships of wood and steel, thirty complete wooden ships, and forty-eight wooden hulls.

PETROGRAD, June 18.—Minister of War Kerensky discarded the pleasant phrases of oratorical persuasion to-day for iron-handed disciplinary measures to force Russian troops to fight. He issued an order depriving all deserters from the army to vote and from participation in the distribution of Russian lands. He refused leave to a whole division of Ukranian troops who wanted to journey back home and attend a conference urging autonomy for Ukrania. Evidencing an increasing antagonism toward Germany one Russian newspaper to-day played up "the recent London air raid as" proof of German inhumanity.

LONDON, June 18.—"Came to their death through an air raid on an unfortified open city contrary to the custom governing the warfare of civilization," was the verdict of the Coroner's Jury to-day in disposing of the deaths incident to last week's German aeroplane raid.

PARIS, June 18.—Intermittent cannonading southwest of Soissons and toward Leutrey, and successful patrol engagements, were all the official War Office report detailed to-day.

CORP. HARRY WHITE, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and was wounded in the Arras fighting.

SERGT. PATTERSON OF PETERBORO' WINS THE MILITARY MEDAL

Local Member of 21st Battalion is Decorated For Gallant Conduct on the Firing Line

WOUNDED AT VIMY

Peterborough soldiers overseas seem to be receiving a splendid share of war decorations. Word has been received here that Sergt. Fred Batterson, a Peterborough member of the 21st Eastern Ontario Battalion has been awarded the military medal for gallantry on the field. This is the third time within a week that the winning of this coveted decoration by a Peterborough soldier, has been announced, the others being Serg. Ernie Abraham and Co. Sergt. Major Harry Wilford.

Sergt. Batterson was employed as a finisher in the C.G.E. before he enlisted here with the 57th Regiment detachment for the 21st Battalion, in the early months of the war. He has been many months in France, and was wounded in the battle of Vimy Ridge, on April 9th.

Six Returned Men Arrive This Evening

A party of six Peterborough soldiers returning from overseas will reach here on the 5:35 G.T.R. train this evening, according to a message received by Mayor Duffus from Kingston this morning. The men returning to-night are: Pte. J. R. Robertson, Pte. W. Kelly, Pte. J. Johnston, Pte. J. F. Ecobichon, Pte. W. Willard, and Pte. J. F. Sturgeon. Three other invalided men reached here yesterday, and to-day's party makes a total of twenty-five to get home within the past month.

Private R. R. Martin of 247th Battalion Dies at Shorncliffe

First Death in Ranks of Peterboro Battalion Recorded --- Private M. J. McAuliffe of 93rd Battalion Is Wounded for the Second Time --- Three Soldiers Home Again from Overseas --- To-day's General Military News

DIED.

Pte. R. R. Martin, formerly of the 247th Battalion.

WOUNDED.

Pte. M. J. McAuliffe, late of the 93rd Battalion.

PTE. ROBERT RAE MARTIN.

Mrs. Guthrie, 295 Wolfe street, received word yesterday that her nephew, Pte. Robert Rae Martin, of the 235th Battalion, formerly of the 247th Peterborough Battalion, had died of bronchial pneumonia at Shorncliffe, England. This is the first death recorded in the ranks of the 247th. Pte. Martin, who was nineteen years of age, was employed at the Colonial Weaving Company here before he enlisted last winter with the 247th. He was transferred to the 235th at Ottawa when the Peterborough battalion was broken up and went overseas with Lieut.-Col. Scobells' unit. His parents are living in Spanish River, Ont.

PTE. JOSEPH McAULIFFE.

Mrs. L. N. McAuliffe, of Emily, has received a telegram stating that her stepson, No. 196792, Pte. Joseph McAuliffe, 18th Batt., is officially reported wounded on May 27th. He was formerly with the 93rd Battalion, enlisting in Peterborough, and this is the second time he has been wounded.

MORE MEN HOME.

Pte. Jack Foster, of Union street, a Peterborough member of the 4th Canadian Mounted Rifles, Pte. Fred Doughty, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and Pte. Alex. Woods, an Apsley member of the 93rd Battalion, formed a party of three returned soldiers who reached home yesterday morning.

Pte. Foster's father was one of the victims of the Quaker Oats fire. Pte. Foster enlisted here in the summer of 1915, joining the 8th C. M. R. at Barriefield, and has been at the front for a long time with the 4th C.M.R.

Pte. Doughty, whose home is at 123 Stewart street, enlisted with the 93rd in June of last year and has been on duty in England.

Mrs. E. J. Downey has received the following letter in regard to the death of her husband, Signaller E. J. Downey, of the 4th Battery:

No. 6 Casualty Clearing Station,
B.E.F., France, May 23rd.

Dear Mrs. Downey,—You will have heard of your sad news before this letter. Your husband, Mr. Downey, 42109, was brought here badly wounded in the arm and leg, and though everything possible was done for him, he passed away 29, 5, '17. He did not leave any messages. He was only half conscious.

You will be glad to know he did not suffer pains and that he was in a comfortable bed in a warm room and had all he wished for. He will be buried in the cemetery here and his grave marked with a cross and nicely kept. I may not give you the name of the place, but the war office will if you wish for it. His belongings will be sent you later through the authorities.

With sympathy in your grief. Believe me.

Yours sincerely,
A. M. RAME,
Sister in Charge.

Pte. Horald A. Henry, son of Mr. Wm. Henry, was killed in action a year ago to-day, and his father has only recently received the details in connection with his death. A certified true copy of the report explaining the circumstances has been received from the Adjutant General's Department, says:

"The above noted soldier was killed on the morning of the 18th June, 1916. He was in his dugout in Sanctuary Wood, together with Pte. Delorey when a shell exploded at its entrance, instantly killing the two men. They were buried in a nearby shell hole and the grave was marked."

The following letter has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Scott of Young's Point in connection with the death of their son, 4th Brigade Canadian Infantry, Headquarters, B.E.F.

My Dear Mr. and Mrs. Scott:—

I am the R. C. Chaplain of the 4th Brigade and as such I find your son No. 196861, Pte. Nicholas Scott, of the 18th Battalion recently killed in action. He lies in the military cemetery, behind the lines and in blessed ground to-gether with five other of his comrades.

I feel you have no need to worry as to his preparedness to meet death as he was with his battalion at Mass just before going into the line as it is customary for all the boys to go to confession and Holy Communion at the same time and I am sure he went also as he never missed an opportunity in going. I shall not forget him in my prayers and Masses and shall ask the Good God to give you the grace and strength to bear the heavy cross He has placed upon you. Your dear son was a good boy and not afraid to die.

Yours sincerely,
WM. B. CARLTON, (Capt.),
R. C. Chaplain.

May 26th, 1917.

Captain Kidd Gets M.C.

Captain William Ennis Kidd, who went overseas as the chaplain of the 21st Battalion, has been awarded the military cross for distinguished services and was invested with that order at Buckingham Palace by His Majesty King George. Captain Kidd is a resident of Brockville and is one of the most efficient and well-liked chaplains in the Canadian forces.

Pte. Robinson Home.

Pte. Roy Robinson, 577 Bethune street, who went overseas with the 21st Battalion, and has been away for over two years arrived home this morning, invalided from the front. He will likely have to return to the Convalescent Home at Kingston for further treatment.

The Examiner has received the following interesting letter from two of the 93rd boys in France:

May 24th, 1917

They say this is the 24th of May, no doubt you are having some time over there to-day. Well I guess you see that we are losing some of the 93rd boys, but there are still a few of us left to carry on the good work. We are glad to hear that Col. Johnston arrived safely home again, the boys will never forget him, he was always good to them. I suppose you will be glad to hear that Cpl. E. Abraham has won the military medal in the push on the 9th of April, he is a Corporal in our platoon and is well liked by all the boys. Well it seems just now that we will all have the face the music, so the sooner you get the slackers rounded up the better for us.

We have had the misfortune of losing Lance Corpl. B. B. Bell, Lance Corpl. G. Cookman, Pte. G. Silly and

Immediate Offensive by Russian Troops

LIEUT. ROLAND DARCY STRICKLAND—Son of the late Capt. Darcy Strickland Northwest Mounted Police, and who was the first white baby born in Dawson City, Yukon. Lieut. Strickland, who was a grandson of Mr. Roland Strickland, of Burleigh Ranch, was killed in action on May 20, while leading his men. He enlisted with the 185th Battalion at Battleford, Sask. Mr. Roland Strickland has lost four nephews and one grandson in the war and has a son at the front.

Resolution Declares a Separate Peace with Germans Would Be Ignoble Treason Towards Russia's Allies

READY TO FIGHT

PEROGRAD, June 17.—The Duma in secret session has passed a resolution for an immediate offensive by the Russian troops. The resolution declares a separate peace with Germany would be ignorable treason toward Russia's allies, for which future generations never would pardon the Russia of the present day.

"The Duma therefore considers," the resolution adds, "that the safety of Russia and the maintenance of the liberties which have been obtained lie in an immediate offensive in close co-operation with Russia's allies."

FIGHT TOGETHER FOR LIBERTY

Ringing words, expressing the attitude of the Russian Government toward America and the American Mission, headed by Elihu Root, were voiced last night by Mr. Tereschtenko, Minister of Foreign Affairs, responding for the Council of Ministers to Mr. Root's address of sympathy and good will on the part of the American Government. He said in part:

"The Russian people consider war inevitable and will continue it. The Russians have no imperialistic wishes. We know that you have none. We shall fight together to secure liberty, freedom and happiness for all the world. I am happy to say that I do not see any moral idea or factor between America and Russia to divide us. The two peoples—Russia fighting tyranny and America standing as the oldest democracy—hand in hand will show the way to happiness to nations great and small."

The American Ambassador, David R. Francis, presented the Root mission to the Ministers in the Marinsky Palace, explaining that the mission had come to Russia to discover how America can best co-operate with its ally in forwarding the fight against the common enemy. The presentation was very informal, only a few Russian officials and the members of the American Embassy attending. Mr. Kerensky, the youthful Minister of War, just back from the front, wore the khaki blouse of a common soldier.

The ministers listened with rapt attention to Mr. Root's address, which was a powerful utterance, both in substance and manner.

RISES FROM SICK BED.

Mr. Tereschtenko rose from a sick bed to attend the presentation, and responded without notes, expressing great joy in welcoming the Commission from America. He said Russia's revolution was based on the wonderful words uttered by America in 1776. He read part of the Declarsion of Independence and exclaimed: "Russia holds with the United States that all men are created free and equal."

Mr. Terenschtenko sketched the history of the Russian revolution briefly, saying that the Russians, enslaved for centuries, threw off all the old order just as the wind blows autumn leaves from the forest. Russia now faces two problems, said the Minister, the necessity of creating a strong democratic force within its boundaries and the fighting of an external foe. Then he declared for war, and expressed an unbounded confidence in the power of Russia to meet the situation.

REPRISAL RAIDS AGAINST THE HUNS STRONGLY URGED

Thousands Attend Mass Meeting in London to Advocate a Franco-British Air Attack Against Berlin or Frankfort

WOULD BE EASY TASK

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, June 18.—Public demand for reprisals against Germany for her aerial murder raids, to-day reached such a point that it was believed the Government would be forced to take cognizance. A tremendous popular sentiment for a Franco-British raid on some such German city as Berlin or Frankfort to avenge the murders of British women and children by the German aeroplane and Zeppelin piracy of the past week, has developed. A mass meeting Sunday in the London Opera House demanding such reprisals was attended by thousands. A British airman commander, Pemberton Billing, M.P., declared that with England's supremacy in the air on the western front, such raids over open German towns should be easily accomplished.

German Girl Secretes $20,000 Behind Buffet

PARIS, June 18.—The equivalent of $20,000 in securities recently was found hidden behind a buffet by a French official who was rearranging the furniture of his apartment. The little fortune was traced to a German cook who was employed by the official and whose excellent attitude since the war began gained for her the privilege of remaining in France.

The police made enquiries about her movements recently and she disappeared. The official and his habitual guests were well pleased to acquire confirmation regarding the national defence. That fact and the discovery of her unsuspected wealth led to the suspicion that the cook might have been in communication with the enemy.

The fortune has been sequestrated.

"HEINTZMAN HALL" EVENING RECEPTION

Large Attendance of Ladies and Gentlemen — Musical Display of Very Fine Order — Orchestral Music and Floral Offerings

The attendance at the new "Heintzman Hall" formal opening on Saturday evening exceeded the afternoon callers by many hundreds; and the local management was delighted with the marked success of the event.

Over one thousand carnations were used as floral souvenirs to the ladies—Mrs. Britton presiding at the flower table.

Much praise was bestowed on the effective decorating of the Hall, which received the special attention of Mrs. Britton. Admirable taste was displayed in the drapings and floral displays, which contributed so much to the beauty of the interior.

The Heintzman Company sent their Mr. Knapp, manager of the Victrola department, from the Toronto warerooms, whose expert services were much appreciated during the day.

Mr. B. H. Britton, the local manager of "Heintzman Hall," desires the Examiner to record his thanks to his salesmen who so ably assisted, and worked overtime to secure the success of the opening event. The names of the local salesmen are: Mr. Chas. Gentleman, a veteran piano man; Mr. B. Hutchison, Mr. H. Gilbert, and Mr. H. Mc[illegible].

It was learned that among the many who booked during the day the handsome Baby Grand Victrola valued for the term of the exhibition was sold also two upright pianos, a Ven-Tonola and a number of other instruments.

Mr. Knapp was entertained at lunch [illegible] by the manager, Mr. B. H. Britton.

"Heintzman Hall," which will be reproduced in the "Examiner" as soon as completed.

Postmasters Instructed to Accept No Parcels for Transmission to Russia.

OTTAWA, June 18.—Postmasters are notified in the June supplement of the Canadian Postal Guide not to accept any parcels for transmission to Russia. The route via Vancouver and Japan to Vladivostock, which has for some time been the only one open, has been closed for the present.

The postmasters are also instructed not to forward letters to or from certain fortune-tellers and certain race tipsters in the United States. They are not to issue money-orders payable to the parties mentioned. Fortune telling circulars have been received in the mails from two persons in Toledo, Ohio, and racing tips and racing tip circulars from two parties in Brooklyn, N.Y.

FISHING'S HERE.

Season Opened on Saturday With Several 'Lunge Caught

The fishing season opened on Saturday without the usual "eclat." Cold weather has scarcely been up to spring specifications, and for some reason the old sport has not warmed to the spring the attention it usually receives. However, on the first day many there were a number of boat outfits, reminding the Peterboro fishermen that the fish are plentiful as ever and as plentiful as lazy. Not since they learned that everything that smelens isn't a lazy [illegible] early morning party outfitting or nothing some of the regulars [illegible] the water, out in a short time the season will gradually [illegible] back with diminished trouble.

Rose Exhibition Scheduled for Next Month

The Exhibition Committee of the Ontario Rose Society decided at a meeting on Friday, June 15th, to hold the 1917 Rose Exhibition at Foresters Hall on College street, Toronto, during the first week of July. There will be twenty-three amateur and professional classes this year, with a first and second prize in each class. The culture of roses in Ontario has increased wonderfully in the last three or four years. In the 1916 exhibition there were a number of entries by rose enthusiasts living outside of the immediate vicinity of Toronto. It is expected that there will be a great many more entries this year. The 1917 exhibition promises to be the largest, most beautiful and most successful showing of roses ever made by the Rose Society. Sir Edmund Osler, Dr. Allen Baines, Mrs. Casper Clark, Mrs. Charles Temple and Mrs. Graeme Adam are among the many well-known patrons and patronesses of the Annual Rose Exhibition of the Ontario Rose Society. Mrs. Graeme Adam, 160 St. George Street, is the President, and Miss Marion Armour, 103 Avenue Road, the Secretary of the society. Any inquiries in regard to this year's exhibition should be addressed to Miss Armour.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, JUNE 18, 1917

WATERLOO.

To-day, June 18th, is the 102nd anniversary of Napoleon's Buonaparti's Waterloo, and on the same sanguine battle ground is being wrought the Waterloo of Kaiserism and German militarism. Waterloo was the end of a military assault upon the liberties of Europe, which, terrible and far-reaching and remorseless as it was, was only a "border raid," a brigand's foray, compared with the present gigantic, brutal and fiendishly organized assault of militarism upon the humanity and the highest resources of nations. In the past century the world at large has progressed in national morality, in national recognition of the rights of humanity to a place in the sun; to the peaceful pursuit of happiness. Only Germany has retrograded, sunk to the lowest depths. A hundred years ago Prussia was fighting in the cause of the liberty and national autonomy of European countries. To-day, Prussia is the head and forefront of the most diabolical and diabolically organized assault of human history upon what she was fighting for in 1815. But in vain. The God of nations will not hand his suzerainty of the nations over to the agencies of embodied wickedness. The doom is closing in; and, whether this year or next year, the victory of good over evil will come. It is as sure as the divine final triumph of good over evil.

The league of civilisation against barabarism has a place on every continent of the world.

REGISTRATION AND CONSCRIPTION.

When Sir Robert Borden introduced his military service—compulsory service—conscription — bill he intimated that he would be open to conviction as to improvemen or additions to its provisions. Asked if it contained, or would contain, requirement for registration of the manhood of the country, so that conscription would be facilitated, he replied that registration was "not in contemplation at present."

Yet this seems to be the most logical, the most essential thing, to do, to have the manhood subject to conscription, properly, methodically and thoroughly listed.

Registration is part of the most elementary foresight, the most perfunctory preparation. An election contest would require weeks for the recording of the votes, if there were no electoral list of voters—no registration of voters. Election officials would have to spend no end of time to find out who was entitled to vote. There would be endless confusion and delay and inconclusive results. A tax collector would never succeed in collecting the taxes due a municipal corporation, if he did not have a "collector's roll," a registration of citizens liable to the compulsion of tax payment.

Difficult as it will be to enforce conscription under the most favorable circumstances, with the inclusion of wealth in its provisions, and other desirable provisions specified, it will be infinitely more difficult without provision for complete and adequate registration of the several individuals and classes legally subject to the operation of a compulsory service act. If registration is neglected when the application of a compulsory measure is attempted the subjects themselves, won't help the authorities much in discovering "who's who?" in a conscriptive sense.

They will do everything—practice every evasion—place every obstacle in the way of being enrolled; they will feel justified in so doing, when they consider that they have as much right to try to escape conscription, which the law demands, as wealth has to dodge it by help of the government, which conscripts manhood but exempts wealth.

The only registration now avaiable is that made under the futile post card National Service miscarriage; though some brilliant authorities are resurrecting the census of 1911 — something several shades more absurd than "National Service" registration for practical purposes. A list six years old, not made with the greatest care, and having no specific business-like reference to military service, is self-evidently useless and imperfect.

Registration of the manhood of the country is the most obvious preliminary to the application of conscription. The United States performed registration—to the tune of 10 millions—in one day, and now they have ten million men listed, identified, "spotted" so to speak, so that hands can be laid upon them at once. Without registration in Canada we shall be working in the dark, groping about for conscripts.

If Sir Robert Borden "means business" with a compulsory service measure, why does he not go about it in a business like way? Why does he in framing it create a popular prejudice against conscription by a gross unfairness—coming down with the full force of the law upon the manhood of the country, and exempting wealth from conscription?

The Kaiser promises to restore King Constantine of Greece his throne. He had better look out for his own; that's in danger, too.

UNPRECEDENTED IMPUDENCE.

The Borden government is moved by queer political ethics. Hon. Albert Sevigny, Minister of Inland Revenue, and Nationalist, frankly told Parliament on Friday that he had recommended the Quebec publisher of a seditious newspaper, Le Franc Parleur, the "free speaker," for a lucrative government position in order to close his paper—to make the free speaker "shut up." Mr. Sevigny complained that the paper had published violently seditious articles against recruiting, for a local regiment, the 171st. This means that the editor of the offending sheet, Mr. Raoul Renoault, deserved punishment, and the Minister thought the best way to do the job neatly, and prevent hard feelings, was to make him a well paid accountant in the Department of Inland Revenue. This action, self-explainable, means that the money of the people of Canada, needed sorely for promoting interests of the war, was used to close the mouth of a blatant seditionist, and "close up" his journal that has been guilty of hurting the interests of the war by preaching against recruiting. The Nationalist member of the Borden Cabinet, Hon Albert Sevigny, explained. He said:

> "I made that recommendation (for appointment) especially for one reason. I owe nothing to Mr. Renault, but I thought it would be a good thing if such a paper could be put of existence in the crisis."

Can political immorality, and cynical disregard of decency, go further than that?—using the people's money to bribe through fat office, the publishers of treasonable rant in opposition to recruiting, in whose interest a measure is introduced that is stirring the country from end to end. The attitude of the Minister is not surprising; is is only following, in principle, the precedent of Sir Robert Borden, who purchased the silence—and support—of blatant Nationalists by giving fat portfolios in the government—good for $9,500 a year—to Nationalists who had "spouted" treason time after time, and preached the doctrine that Canada owed no duty to the Empire; and one of these was the Minister, Mr. Sevigny, who brazenly made the statement that he had done what the Premier had done—appointed a man guilty of treasonable utterances to a government position in order to put his paper "out of existence."

Is it any wonder that recruiting has been killed in Quebec—that Conscription is opposed in Quebec? For years Nationalists have been preaching to the innocent and gullible habitant that the people of the province owed nothing to Great Britain and the Empire. The people could more easily believe that doctrine, when they saw it endorsed by the Premier of a British government by taking into his Cabinet as the King's advisers, the men most prominent in denouncing recruiting—that is recognition of a Quebecer's duty to the Empire.

If Sir Robert Borden wants any explanation of the slowness of recruiting in Quebec—any explanation of the present embroglio—he needn't go outside his Cabinet council chamber to find it. He has fostered and encouraged Nationalism in Quebec till we have the disgraceful exhibition of a Cabinet minister of that cult, impudently explaining that he uses the people's money to reward the utterers of political blasphemy and sedition, by office in the service of the people, whose dearest interests are imperilled by the creation of a situation, that is in the village of Terrebonne, with the sole motive and explanation behind it of serving the purposes of party advantage—gaining party support.

The Conservatives under the leadership of Sir Robert Borden, encouraged Nationalism and its treason as a means of "killing Laurier."

ALL AT SEA YET.

We are not at this moment able to say what will be the method of putting through parliament—whether, for instance, Sir Robert Borden is to take into his government a number of Liberals friendly to conscription, and thus make its passage easier; whether he will go to the people immediately after its enactment for their endorsation, or whether, having passed it, he will proceed to enforce it forthwith.—Toronto World.

THE BEGINNING BLUNDER.

We have always believed that the blunder which our leaders made at the beginning of the war was in not calling into their council men of all political parties. A coalition government would have commanded the confidence and support of the whole Dominion, and all parties would have shared the responsibility of the measures adopted for carrying on the war. Under such arrangement a crisis like the present could scarcely have arisen, for both parties would be pledged to support the government.—Presbyterian Witness.

FIGURES THAT SHOW WHY CONSCRIPTION IS ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY

Canada Will Have to Recruit a Much Larger Number Than Actual Casualties Would Indicate—Great Wastage Through Sickness and Various Forms of Unfitness.

OTTAWA, June 16—Anti-conscriptionists have been asking why Canada needs compulsory service with so many men of her expeditionary force still in England. The Government has given a startling answer. Of 108,736 troops in England, not counting those in hospitals and convalescent homes, only 28,000 men were immediately available for reinforcing purposes on June 4. And Canadian casualties in April and May were at the rate of considerably over 10,000 per month.

The more the Government return is studied, the more emphatically are the following two points impressed on the reader: 1. To get a given number of bayonet-carrying men into the trenches, a vastly greater number of men has to be recruited (a) to supply the wastage caused by sickness and various forms of unfitness, and (b) to provide for the many supplementary branches of service, such as Army Service Corps, Cyclists, etc. 2. To get a sufficient number of men to fill the casualty gaps, Canada will have to recruit by conscription a much larger number than actual casualties would indicate.

SUMMARY OF CANADA'S ENLISTMENT AND OVERSEAS FORCES.

In considering the disposition of Canadian forces, it is now possible to compile roughly accurate statistics from various Government returns. Anti-conscriptionists have complained of lack of information on this point, but now they have the fullest information. On the basis of 60 per cent. of all casualties getting back into service, the following table made up:

In England on June 4	108,736
Plus, those in hospital, say	18,000
In France on June 4	136,400
In Near East and St. Lucia	877
In Canada, June 1	17,353
Total forces in June	281,366
Plus 40 per cent. of 100,000 casualties	40,000
Plus rejects sent home from England, say	5,000
Total forces sent overseas	326,366
Rejected in Canada, deserting, etc., say	85,000
Total enlisted in Canada	411,000

WHY ARE ONLY 28,000 AVAILABLE?

This, of course, does not answer the question as to why Canada has only 28,000 reinforcements immediately available, but a Government return does answer it. It deals with the situation on May 14, when the men available for the trenches numbered 26,359, plus a proportion of 7,981 officers. Besides the 26,359, there were 35,543 who will be fit later, making a total of 61,902 ultimately fit, and the following table shows how the rest were classified, the number in England at that time being 126,251:

Officers fit and unfit	7,981
Men ultimately fit for trench service in France	61,902
Men fit for France, but not for trenches	11,507
Men fit for service in United Kingdom only	11,587
Temporarily unfit, likely fit in six months	13,504
Awaiting discharge, absolutely unfit	983
In hospitals	17,638
Unclassified	1,149
Total in England, May 14	126,351

This makes it quite clear that a theoretical 126,351 men soon dwindles when those unfit for the trenches are weeded out. And it emphasizes the grave necessity for conscription. Only under such circumstances would the figures be made public. Further particulars of the whole number in prospect for fighting in France and those who were classified as unable to go to the trenches are given as follows:

THESE COULD FIGHT IN FRANCE

Fit for general service and ready to go to France	26,359
Men fit for general service and ready to go to France when trained	26,927
Casualties, fit for general service and ready to go to France when hardened	5,147
Men fit for general service and ready to go to France when they reach 19	3,469
	61,902

COULD GO TO FRANCE, BUT NOT TO TRENCHES

Fit for France as garrison or provisional units	2,500
Fit for France for labour or construction units	7,938
Fit for France for sedentary work only	1,069
	11,507

FIT FOR SERVICE IN UNITED KINGDOM ONLY.

Fit for garrison or provisional units	1,918
Fit for labour or construction units	2,427
Fit for sedentary work only	7,342
	11,587

It is an appalling thing—this record of troops in England, which shows only 28,000 available for real immediate active service in June, with casualties running 10,000 per month. And even those 28,000 do not represent bayonets in the trenches. This will be seen by glancing through the following classification of the 26,359, who, plus officers, were available in May.

Infantry, only 14,720; cavalry, 250; artillery 3,247; siege artillery, 67; engineers, 550; machine gunners, 1,481; Army Service Corps, 1,455; Army Corps, 25; ordnance, 96; Dental Corps, 141; Forestry Corps, 133; headquarters details, 38; non-effectives, 12; command depots, 45; railway troops, 898; fifth division train, 452; C.O.R.C.C., 62; construction company, 13; signal company, 200; miscellaneous, 304.

If anyone can read these figures without being impressed with the necessity of getting a big body of fit men to England in double quick time, he should supplement them by a day-by-day study of the casualty lists. The need is there. The men are here. And conscription will get them fairly and squarely and democratically. It is the only way.

Pte. J. Horton, all of whom are in Blighty at present. Sorry to hear that the band has been broken up, as it will be hard to get a band like it together again, although the public coul dnot see it that way while they were home. We have been in France since October 14th, 1916 and have seen some funny experiences and it is surprising who you meet over here, people you never thought of seeing, and it is "How's old Peterborough," and wish each other the best of luck, and on you go again, for you meet most of them coming in and out of the trenches. They say France is a nice place, but what we have seen of it—Ontario is good enough for us,—she might have been before old Fritz started the dirty work, but we are making his take his medicine just now. Remember us to all the boys and tell them to hurry up and come on over and let us get this job finished up so we can all get back home together again. Hoping these few lines finds you quite well as it leaves us. Fifty-fifty. We remain two of the 93rd boys.

Songster Brigade at The Temple To-night

The week-end meeting at the Salvation Army Temple were conducted with much pleasure and profit by Major and Mrs. Moore of Toronto, they being old officers of the Temple. Many old acquaintances were renewed. To-night, at the Temple, the Songster Brigade will give a very special programme in the form of a Service of Song, entitled "The Hero Martyr." They will sing in the open air at 7.30, preceding the concert. All are welcome.

GIRL'S BODY FOUND.

NEW YORK, June 16.—A body, believed by the police to be that of Ruth Kreuger, High school girl, who has been missing for months, was found buried in the cellar of a house at 542 West 127th street. The body is badly decomposed, but detectives said they were satisfied it was that of the missing girl.

One great drawback to the popularity of the inevitable is its refusal to make concessions.

FIRST SUNDAY BALL WELCOMED IN NEW YORK

Browns Beat Yanks in Game, Proceeds of which went to Patriotic Purposes.

NEW YORK, June 17.—St. Louis defeated New York here to-day by a score of 2 to 1 in the first Sunday major league championship game ever played in Manhattan Borough. The game was preceded by a patriotic band concert, a parade of an engineers' regiment, which attended in a body, and drills by the contending players. The entire gate receipts, estimated at $10,000, will go to the treasury of the Engineers' Reserve Corps for the support of dependents of its members. The game was attended by numerous high army and navy officers. The score:

Hypnotist's Show Censured by Local Council of Women

The regular monthly meeting of the local Council of Women was held on June 14th, at 3.30 p.m. The president, Mrs. Neal, in the chair.

After prayer, roll call and minutes of previous meeting, reports of committees were taken up.

Mrs. Mowat, reporting for the Playgrounds committee, stated that the net proceeds of the rag and waste paper collections amounted to $114.

The thanks of this committee are gratefully tendered to those who saved waste for this purpose; also to those who kindly assisted in the collection.

The playgrounds committee in its capacity of carnation day committee for the Playgrounds Association reported net proceeds from the sale of carnations on Mothers' Day of $235.

Several interesting suggestions for the September meeting were discussed and a programme outlined.

It was unanimously agreed that this council go on record as protesting against the admission of children and immature young people to the class of entertainment (hypnotism, etc.) given in the city during the week of June 11 to 16. It was felt that the thinking people of the community would endorse a protest against the recurrence of this type of performance in the city.

A brief resume of the important sessions of the National Council in Winnipeg recently was given by Mrs. Harstone.

The Women's Auxiliary to the Speakers' Patriotic League brought forward for discussion a matter of interest to the Great War Veterans' Association.

The sub-executive of the local council was instructed to deal with the matters in conference with the Patriotic Societies of the city.

In future meetings of the society will begin at 3 o'clock.

Hypnotist's Show Sinful Says Pastor

That it was sinful to encourage hypnotic exhibitions such as those presented here last week was Rev. J. J. O'Brien's declaration in a short and sharp comment yesterday on "entertainments" of that nature. One of the sinful aspects of drunkenness was the fact that the mind with which God had specially endowed man was dulled and debased by the effect of intoxicants. Under hypnotism the mind was subjected to the will of another contrary to its use and the divine purpose.

Every man favors honest government as long as it does not interfere with his interests.

The prince of the realm has fallen in love with Evelyn, a circus girl, and plans to elope with her, but is prevented by the sudden death of the king and his accession to the throne. Her lover, who had been willing to renounce his kingdom for the sake of the girl he loves, is told that Evelyn and their child have been drowned and marries a woman of royal blood. Evelyn becomes a wanderer and finally joins a traveling circus. Through all the hardships she subsequently endures, Pete, a trained chimpanzee, is her devoted friend. One day Pete, realizing that Evelyn is mourning for her child who has died, determines to secure one for her. So he climbs over the palace wall, snatches the king's baby from the royal crib and runs with it to the top of a 360-foot chimney. Evelyn decides to save the king's heir. Reaching the top of the chimney, she tears the baby from Pete's grasp and hurls the monkey to his death. Later, during a spectacular performance for the king, in which Evelyn is to appear, the circus catches on fire. In the panic that ensues the queen dies of shock. In the end the king gives up his crown and weds the girl who has been so faithful and devoted.

Empire Men Get Together in France

Old French Square Becomes a True Imperial Rendezvous—The Lion's Cubs Get Acquainted

There is a fair-sized French town some distance from the firing line which is much frequented by British officers says the London Chronicle. They go there to visit the field cashier and to draw money to pay the men; they go there to buy stores at the Expeditionary Force canteen; sometimes, when duty permits, they visit the town to spend an hour at the officers' club or to take tea at the officers' tea rooms in the Grand Place, where the town hall is on one side and the church upon the other.

The Grand Place or the Square, as the men call it, is the great meeting-place for visitors to the town. In the centre the mess carts which have come in for supplies wait drawn up in a line whilst the shopping is being done, and in and out of the stores on each side officers of many different units are encountered, busy upon all the little errands which are entrusted to them by comrades who are not lucky enough to be able to enjoy a few hours' relaxation from the monotony of trench and camp, in the town. The officers' tea rooms is a favourite rendezvous.

A CHEERY SPOT.

A cheery spot is the officers' tea room, bedecked with the flags of the Allied nations. All the appointments of the place are good—clean cloths upon the little tea tables, little bunches of flowers here and there, and altogether an air of brightness and comfor about, very grateful indeed to eyes weary of the drab dismalness of trench and hut. In the hours of the afternoon the tea room is crowded with officers from various units, and it is of interest to observe that they represent very often branches of the Army in the field from almost every corner of the Empire. This fact was specially noticeable one afternoon when the writer visited the tea room with a friend.

At a table in one corner sat a grey-headed Major, wearing a Canadian badge, eating pastry with all the earnestness and attention which a small schoolboy might have bestowed upon that operation. In another corner a party of Australian officers were appreciating the tea, and talking of the times when they were wont to brew their own tea in billy cans on a certain shee prun in sunny New South Wales. Not far away some other officers sat—Scottish clearly—alike b ytheir tongues and by their strong bare knees.

And so all through the room officers—English, Irish, Scottish, and Welsh and Overseas—were seated, representing almost all parts of the world-wide Empire of Britain, and constituting, so to speak, an informal but very cheery Imperial conference at tea! In the square outside the tea room the representation of the Empire was even more complete. The town the writer deals with is a centre where converged from time to time officers and men from several divisions, and so there is an opportunity almost any afternoon of encountering men f romevery part, even the most distant, of the Empire. One evening, just before dusk, the writer was passing through the square, which was covered with snow.

A party of tall soldiers were engaged making a passage through, shovelling the snow away. They were Australians. Questioned as to whether they felt the cold very severely, one great, tall fellow replied: "My word! I should say so! But it is all new and interesting to me, for I have never seen snow before! I come, you see, from Queensland, and the north of that!" Indeed, it seemed there were men in this snow-cleaning party from Tasmania and all over Australia, from Brisbane to Perth and from the Northern Territory to Adelaide.

Passing to another portion of the square, some New Zealand troops were to be seen marching along from the railway station. They, too, like their Australian comrades, were fine upstanding fellows, and they made nothing of the bitter cold and biting wind. There is something free and dashing in the gait and apeparance of these Australians and New Zealanders which seems to attract the French..

Certain it is that wherever these great Overseas fellows go, with their broad-rimmed, soft hats jauntily set upon their heads, they invariably are the object of much friendly attention from the French population of the towns and villages through which they pass. There is nothing more remarkable than the way in which these men, reared and brought up in hat and sunny lands, have settled down to the life at the front, where for quite a considerable time almost Arctic conditions have prevailed. To the Canadians—and they were also to be met with in the same square—the wntry conditions were no inconvenience; indeed, the prevailing weather reminded them of home.

Men from a South African brigade, were also to be seen going by, and it was a not usual sight to see little groups up and down the square composed of Australians, Canadians, New Zealanders and Africans, all together, chatting over that favourite topic ,the probable duration of the war, and comparing notes as to their various and widely sundered homes. Sometimes one encountered Indian troops in the square, but latterly Indian troops from the most remote portions of the Empire one met representatives from units brought together from John o' Groats to Land's End; Welshmen and Scotsmen, too, and Englishmen from every city and shire.

"ORANGE" AND "GREEN" BROTHERS.

Just as the companion of the writer of these lines was remarking that we had in one brief hour met with troops representing the whole Imperial Army save Ireland, a couple of men passed, and, as if to complete the picture ,they turned out to be, as their shamrock badges clearly indicated, Munster Fusiliers. Very tired they seemed, carrying their full equipment, and probably returning from leave, for they came from the direction of the railway station. Presently a G.S. waggon came along bearing on its side the Ulster badge of the Red Hand. The Munster soldiers hailed the waggon as it passed. "Can you give us a life along the road?" Promptly the answer came, "Right-o! In ye get, my shamrock boys!"

And so, as if to emphasise the United Imperial experience encountered in the square, the spectacle was witnessed of these men of the North and South proceeding on their way in brotherhood and exchanging as they went that special kind of cigarette dear to the soldier's heart and arette dear to the soldier's heart and rejoicing in the doubtful description of "Gasper!" A truly wonderful place, this old square in the French town, where one may meet men from all over the world-wide Empire,and where Australian and Canadian, South African and New Zealander, mingle with the men of the homelands, all bound together by a common sentiment and all having in view a common object.

Court House Contract to Finnie & Gordon

The contract for the restoration of the Court House was let to Messrs. Finnie and Gordon on Saturday afternoon on a percentage basis. The plans have been prepared by Mr. Blackwell and the work of reconstruction will begin at once. It is not known what the cost will be, but it is expected to run over $30,000. The committee has not announced the estimated cost of the work. There will be very little change in the general shape of the building, but the arrangements of the court room and its ante rooms will be altered considerably.

Mr. John Welch Receives Handsome Wedding Gift From Fellow Employees of C.G.E. Primer Department

An interesting event took place at the home of Mr. D. Bongard, on Saturday night when the employees of the Primer Department of the C. G. E. presented one of their number, Mr. John Welch, with a handsome clock as a wedding gift. The presentation was accompanied by the reading of the following address:

Peterborough, Ont., June 16, '17.

To Mr. John Welch,—We, your fellow workmates desire to take advantage of this, the occasion of your marriage, to show in some slight manner our esteem and tender you our best wishes for your future happiness and welfare.

In asking you to accept these expressions of goodwill we would also ask you to accept this small present as a more lasting token and hope Mrs. Welch and yourself will live long to enjoy the blessings of this life and when you in the future have occasion to consult the time, we hope it will be a kindly reminder of our acquaintance and friendship.

FUNERAL OF MRS. F. J. SAWERS

Service Conducted by the Bishop of Toronto — Peterboro Visitors

The funeral ceremony in connection with the death of Mrs. Sawers, wife of the Rev. F. J. Sawers, formerly Rector of St. Luke's Church, Peterborough, and for the past two years Rector of St. Peter's, Cobourg, too place on Saturday, June 16th, in the latter Church.

The service was conducted by the Bishop of Toronto, assisted by Canon Morley, the Rev. W. H. White of Peterborough, and other clergy. The Bishop's address was one of sympathy and hope. His reference to the sweet womanliness and high character of the departed awoke echoes in the hearts of all his hearers. The stately old church of St. Peter's was filled with sympathising friends representing not only St. Peter's congregation, but the citizens of Cobourg generally.

Among the mourning relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Smyth and Miss Nora Smyth, of Montreal, parents and sister of the deceased; Messrs. A. Sawers, A. E. Sawers, and H. Rush of Peterborough, Mrs. W. E. Brown, Mr. A. Patterson and Lt. Huntley Patterson, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Donald Edwards of Toronto, Mrs. C. Fairbanks, Mrs. H. Roller, Mr. and Mrs. W. Allen, of Cobourg, and Mrs. W. Whittaker.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. E. H. Osler and D. Denton, Church Wardens; Messrs. W. F. Kerr, B. Heaslip, J. Dick and J. Sprague, sons of a former Rector.

Peterborough former parishioners and friends were represented by Judge and Mrs. Huycke, Messrs. E. A. Peck, E. B. Rogers, R. H. Turner, H. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. J. J. Turner, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hay, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McKone and others.

The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful and among them were included many from St. Luke's Church and Peterborough friends.

The interment took place in the Rector's plot of the picturesque old cemetery of St. Peter's.

Mrs. Sawers' death occasioned a great shock to her husband, family, and friends. Her health was considered to be slowly improving up to a day or two before her death when she was suddenly called upon to undergo a serious operation.

The Rev. Mr. Sawers accompanied his wife's relatives to Montreal the day after the funeral. It is understood that he will be away from his parish for some weeks and that in the meanwhile his duties will be taken by the Rev. Canon Morley.

COUNTY COUNCIL WEEK.

Regular June Session Opens at Court House To-morrow.

The June session of the County Council will open to-morrow afternoon at the Court House. The report of the building committee will likely be presented and routine business taken up. The Good Roads question is expected to be a feature of this session, and a representative of the Department is stated to be present.

LIBERALS IN CAUCUS

Premier and Sir Wilfrid Laurier Will Speak To-day

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 18.— The Liberals caucussed for over an hour this morning and had nothing to report at the conclusion. The committee presented its resolutions the nature divulged, and the members considered them dispassionately. This afternoon Sir Robert will speak to the motion for the second reading of the conscription of manhood bill and will probably have some further information to furnish the House. Sir Wilfrid Laurier will follow the Prime Minister and in his speech the attitude which he decided to take will be made plain. Many Western Liberals have gone to their constituencies but they are expected back before a vote is taken on the second reading of the bill. The next few days will serve, in some degree to clear the present atmosphere of uncertainty.

THREATENS A REVOLUTION

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, June 18.—Le Bulletin, an extensively circulated French Sunday newspaper, was out yesterday openly threatening a bloody revolution in Canada if the Conscription Bill went through, and declared that the revolt against the measure was not confined to Quebec, but was rampant in Ontario and the western provinces in certain parts.

$225,000 IN "HEART BALM"

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, June 18.—One of the heaviest doses of heart balm in legal history was the verdict given this morning by a jury here for $225,000 dollars damages in favour of Miss Honora May O'Brien, the "Irish Rose" stenographer, against John Manning, the eighty-five year old millionaire. There will be an appeal.

40,000 Tons of Sugar Sunk in Ten Days

LONDON, June 18.—There has been no diminution in the submarine activity, said Captain Charles Bathurst, parliamentary secretary to the food control department, speaking at Cheltenham Saturday night, and the ships elected for attack were those of heavy tonnage.

It was not unlikely, he added, that June sinkings might be heavier than those in May. There must be an increased production of food and decreased consumption, and, above all, careful observation. Last year's aggregate of live stock in England was the highest on record, and a considerable depletion of the herds was desirable.

The Government, continued Captain Bathurst, was purchasing wheat and sugar at higher prices than they were being sold at, for only by averaging purchases was loss prevented. Forty thousand tons of sugar had been sent to the bottom of the sea in ten days, and therefore there was no hope of an increased sugar supply.

When Boys Come Back They Will Demand Reality

Stirring Words of Rev. T. H. Mitchell Who Occupied the Pulpit of St. Andrew's Church on Sunday—Boys Will Be Tired of the Sham—"Brighten the Corner Where You Are and Be An Optimist."

Optimism and a deeper sense of appreciation of the present day possibilities, was the keynote of a sermon delivered last evening in St. Andrew's church by Rev. Thomas H. Mitchell, pastor of old St. Andrew's church, Toronto. The occasion for Rev. Mr. Mitchell's presence in the city was the anniversary of St. Andrews church. Rev. Mr. Mitchell occupied the pulpit of St. Andrews church for several months, until a few weeks ago, when he was called to a larger field of labour in Toronto. Large congregations attended both the morning and evening services. At the evening service, Rev. Mr. Mitchell took for his text the thirteenth chapter, and a portion of the second verse of Nehemiah, which reads as follows: "Howbeit our God turned the curse into a blessing."

Blessing in Disguise.

The story contained in the chapter referred to, centres around the journey of the Israelites to the land of Moab, when the king of that particular country exhorted the prophet to come and curse the people who were overrunning his land. As the text indicates, the curse was turned into a blessing. The speaker applied the text to present day life. Few people but what imagine they are afflicted with some form of a curse, whereas they are the author of their own misery. "Nothing can make you miserable without your consent," said the speaker. Take a different attitude towards Christ and Jesus will help you remove that curse. He can put you in tune with the infinite. There was a time in history when the Jews were taken captives and were persecuted. A new prophet was born among them and a new song was born out of their suffering. That splendid chapter, the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah was born out of the misery of the Jews. It proved to be a curse turned into a blessing.

Abraham Lincoln.

The present day characteristics of the Scotchman which are ruggedness and frugality, were born out of the long suffering and privation which the forefathers of that great race suffered on the rugged coast line of Scotland. In a letter to a friend at the age of thirty-four years, Abraham Lincoln was constrained to refer to his dire poverty, yet a few years later he became the President of the United States. That hardship was the making of him. Early in life Thomas A. Edison, the famous inventor, sold papers on a train running into Detroit. He was fond of experimenting, and one day an explosion occurred in one of the cars. The conductor came along and boxed the ears of Edison, rendering him deaf, from which he never recovered. One day a man came to Edison and offered to cure him, but Edison said: "I am too busy thinking to bother about other matters. When I get through thinking I will send for you."

Want Reality.

"Life," said the Rev. Mr. Mitchell, "is full of things that are more beautiful and true than ever before. What is the curse in your life? The Lord stands ready to remove that evil just as soon as you open your heart to him and take Him into your confidence. The war at this hour is building up the international line. It is a matter of regret that the church has not had a greater part in this great work. What has the church been during the past nineteen hundred years. When the boys come back they will demand reality. They will be tired of the sham. There is so much sham about our church and religion.

"I believe in the sovereignty of God and I also believe in the freedom of man," said the speaker. "God is helping us to that objective and our boys are helping us. Brighten the corner where you are. Be an optimist. Help God to change the curse into a blessing."

Societies Attend St. James' Church

I. O. F. and Woodmen of the World Heard Sermon on Life of Service by Rev. Benj. Greatrix

The new St. James' Church since its recent opening has attracted a number of local fraternal societies for the annual attendance at Divine worship. Last night the members of Court Chemong I.O.F. and Sherwood Forest Camp, W.O.W. joined forces and marched to St. James' where they were cordially welcomed by Rev. B. Greatrix. The united societies were marshalled by Mr. Fred Bummit, of the Woodmen, and Mr. George Metcalf, of the Foresters. A large congregation was present, the music by the choir was very creditably rendered and the sermon by the pastor was a moving appeal for lives marked by true service to mankind. The Salvation Army Temple Band provided the marching music for the societies.

Rev. Mr. Greatrix spoke on the text "For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his life for My sake, the same shall save it." Societies of the character represented on this occasion were the direct outcome of the teaching of Jesus Christ. They sprang from a firm faith and believe in the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man. The fatherhood of God was a great truth that had not yet burst in full force on the hearts and minds of humanity. Men were slow to admit that God had made the nations in a common brotherhood. They were also slow to accept the obligations accompanying that fact. In His life Jesus sought to break the forms of national and religious exclusiveness. He placed Himself under obligation to the Samaritan woman whom He asked for a glass of water. He gave them the incomparable story of the brotherly Samaritan, and showed that men had a common origin, nature and destiny. Even Christians were slow to accept this thought. St. Peter spoke of limiting the fruits of Christ to his people.

In the growing idea of the brotherhood of man slaving had taken its departure, caste was losing its hold, and social distinctions were breaking down The vexing problem of labour and capital would be solved when man realized that he must not seek his wealth at the expense of the rights, welfare and happiness of his neighbour. "This great war," continued Rev. Mr. Greatrix, "is in fact the birth pangs of the old world seeking to emerge into a larger and better order of things." He emphasized the sinfulness of the selfish life. Worship of self had retarded progress, multiplied sorrows and brought great troubles to the world. This spirit was inimical to the best interests of society, to the glory of God, and the welfare of mankind. Men were losing their lives only in gain. Men should recognize that life was a gift from God, and in their consciousness of living so plan their lives and expend their energies that they would be a constant source of joy and blessing to others and emerge into the larger life with God in heaven.

FORCED TO EAT BIG GRAY RATS, DEPORTEES SAY

BRUSSELS, June 18. —The Belgian government has received a number of letters written in Germany by eye-witnesses describing the terrible fate of the Belgian deportees in various German camps. The following are some extracts:

"Feb. 25—Here the fate of the Belgian civilians is awful. The Germans are leaving them to die on a starvation diet. They are nothing but skin and bone. Yesterday thirteen bodies were in the mortuary. This morning there were fourteen, and that of a total of 8,000 to 4,000 prisoners.

"If we are caught in the act of handing these unhappy people some pours or other food we are punished with five days jail. Neutrals never come to see us.

"March 2— The situation becomes unbearable. The unhappy civilians die by scores. The total of deaths for yesterday and to-day in this camp alone is seventeen. None of them die from illness.

"Every day two or three civilians are found dead in their huts. The doctors repudiate all responsibility.

"The deportees are no longer able to walk without help. The Belgian civilians are starving. They die at the rate of three a day.

"In another camp the deportees have devoured live rats. The treatment to which they are subjected is beyond imagination."

NEW YORK AGAIN SEES COAL AGENT INTRIGUE

Systematic Price Juggling By Salesmen and Speculators Going On

NEW YORK, June 18.—The committee on the coal situation of the Manufacturers' and Business Men's Association has issued a statement after conducting a thorough investigation, declaring that alarm over the situation is unwarranted, that a large majority of retail dealers are innocent of extortion, and that the blame for the demoralized condition of the coal market may properly be laid at the door of the company sales agents and the speculators.

Nothing was found in the Pennsylvania coal regions to warrant the agents in refusing to contract with retailers at fixed and fair rates. There is a shortage of labour, but the crux of the trouble is held to be juggling of the output.

Delivery of coal to people who have overbought is not believed to be the cause of the shortage, as the amount hoarded is offset by what other buyers would have taken under ordinary conditions. There is an extraordinary demand for bituminous coal for industries and export, and this has forced the price so high that steam sizes of anthracite are in great demand. This has enabled the agents to juggle the price of domestic sizes. This in turn, has alarmed consumers and caused duplication of orders, all of which fits in with the scheme of the agents.

Attention is called to the fictitious circular price list published by the companies. Much coal handled by the agents is contracted for with the mine owner on a royalty based on the circular price. Publication of a low circular price enables the agent to pay low royalty without any benefit accruing to the mine owner and the consumer. The agent squeezes both by selling only a limited amount or none at all, to the retailer at the circular price. Instead, the coal is sold to middlemen, who advance the price to the highest possible point, and then perhaps splits evenly with the agent. Applying to the companies for coal, the retailer is told there is none for sale, but they can get it from jobbers at $2 or more above the company prices. The company price list is called false and fictitious, and published with evident intent to deceive the public.

The committee recommends that the people of New York ask Congress to give the Federal Trade Commission power to fix coal prices at the mines, to determine what is a reasonable profit, and to secure an adequate and available supply to retailers and consumers.

Mr. Gordon's New Partner

Mr. J. A. O'Brien Enters Into the Firm of Gordon & Widdifield

Mr. J. A. O'Brien, Barrister-at-Law, formerly of Stratford, but for five years practicing in Toronto, has gone into partnership with Mr. G. N. Gordon.

Captain Widdifield is now in France, and Mr. Gordon has found it necessary to arrange for another partner. Captain Widdifield on his return will continue to practice and the firm will then be made up of Mr. Gordon, Mr. Widdifield and Mr. O'Brien.

Mr. O'Brien has had a wide practice in Toronto, and has tried to enlist, but is physically unfit, and has been rejected so he has decided to make Peterborough his home and join with Mr. Gordon in the practice of his profession.

GERMAN CROP PROSPECTS ARE BLASTED BY DROUGHT

COPENHAGEN via London, June 18.—Official admission of food difficulties in Germany resulting from a shortage of potatoes and the inadequacy of grain stocks to afford a supplementary bread ration, is made in an announcement of the food control department. The announcement states that the five pound potato ration (which has long been only a fiction) will hereafter be abandoned and that while an attempt will be made to supply bread in the place of potatoes the quantity must be reduced.

BOTH RATIONS REDUCED.

The Berliner Tageblatt reports, after having made inquiries, that two, or at the highest three pounds of potatoes weekly is all that can be supplied until new potatoes are available in mid-July and that instead of 140 grammes of bread, hitherto supplied as a substitute for each falling pound of potatoes, only 70 grammes, or less than 2 1-2 ounces can be furnished hereafter. The Tageblatt's statement regarding possible potato rations are interpretable as erring, if anything, on the optimistic side.

Prospects for the grain crop are becoming dark, owing to the long continued drought. A few showers fell the first of the month, but the amount of rainfall is quite inadequate and for a fortnight the German weather reports from all parts of the empire have reported naught but cloudless or slightly cloudy skies.

HATE TO TALK ABOUT IT

There has been no precipitation or at most only an occasional isolated millimetre of rainfall and high summer temperatures prevail. These conditions on the light sandy soil in a large part of Germany are conditions in June most dreaded by the farmers. With such a season, the crop experts, who a fortnight ago were saying that with plenty of rain an average crop could be expected, have of late discontinued discussion of an apparently unpleasant topic.

"Oh! Cecil" Company Arrives For To-night

Their Performance Promises to Be An Excellent One—Last of the Season

Everything is in readiness at the Grand Opera House for the presentation of the most successful musical comedy "Oh! Cecil," to-night. The Company, who travel in their own private car with baggage car for the scenic production and effects, arrived this morning eager and ready to close the local theatrical season with their tuneful and clever vehicle.

Mr. Vera Dushayne, who has the star role in "Oh Cecil" was around town this afternoon renewing acquaintances, speaks very highly of local audiences and is glad to have the opportunity of appearing before them in this, he considered, his best role. As a "Knut" or English Piccadilly "Johnny," Mr. Dushayne stands out head and shoulders above anyone else in America and is always good for the "blues."

Early Vote Is Expected

OTTAWA, Ont., June 18. —When the Commons assembled this afternoon there appeared to be quite a change in the probabilities in the Liberal ranks. It is stated that Messrs. George P. Graham, F. F. Pardee and Levi Thompson can be counted as almost sure to vote for a referendum. It is believed to be the intention of Sir Robert Borden to press the conscription measure to a vote immediately.

PTE. HAROLD A. HENRY.

In loving memory of our dear boy, Harold, who was killed in action in the early morning of June 18th, 1916.

We mourn for you, dear Harold,
But not with outward show,
For the heart that mourns sincerely
Mourns silently and low.
When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear Harold how we mourn for you.
Inserted by his Father and Mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henry.

WORKMEN'S CONGRESS TAKING CONTROL OF RUSSIAN AFFAIRS

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, June 18.—The Congress of Workmen and Soldiers with delegates from all over Russia, appeared certain to-day to sweep away the national power heretofore assumed by the purely local council of Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates in Petrograd.

In an official debate of the members to-day at which more than 500 were present, universal sentiment in several speeches was that Russia should crush Germany and a fight to a finish. One speaker was cheered when he declared that Germany should be forced to subscribe to the "No Annexation" aim of Russia. A separate peace with Germany was not even mentioned. The new Congress is representative of the whole of Russia and directly will represent twenty-five million Russian citizens. It may appoint a special board to assist the provisional government.

"Le Pays" Cynicism Is Sounding Brass

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, June 18.—"Le Pays" latest edition is completely given over to violent anti-conscriptionist articles, one being headed "Conscription Is a Bluff," "The Government is using it only to cause their depredations to be forgotten, but the people have good memories." Le Pays says: "In the secret of the pooling booth the rich will vote instinctively for the conservation of their wealth, and the poor will vote to save their skins.

Sir Robert Borden and his phalanx will fall persisting in the belief that their death will be a glorious one and pretending to be victims of devotion to the Empire, when, as a matter of fact they will be simply victims of their own misdeeds. This, therefore, is why there will be no conscription.

RUTH LAW NEAR DEATH.

Airplane Takes Fire at 2,000 Feet—Escapes With Slight Burns.

ST. LOUIS, June 14.—Ruth Law had a narrow escape from death early Thursday evening when her gasoline tank exploded and enveloped her aeroplane in flames, 2,000 feet in the air above Lexingtin, Ill., while en route from St. Louis to Chicago. She saved her life only by consummate coolness and quickness of wit.

Without a moment's hesitation she pointed the nose of her machine straight down and descended with such velocity that the wind blew out the blaze. When a few hundred feet from the ground she straightened the machine out and made a safe landing on the outskirts of Lexington. She was uninjured, save for burns about her face.

She decided to spend the night at Lexington and to continue her voyage to Chicago in the morning, if repairs to her biplane were completed in time.

The accident was witnessed by large crowds assembled at Lexington. Scores of automobiles raced to the spot where she landed with offers of assistance.

Earlier in the afternoon Miss Law had performed an audacious feat by flying at an very low altitude over the skyscrapers of downtown St. Louis.

TIMELY TOPICS.

The course of the steel issues, and particularly of U. S. Steel common, in the face of the obvious strain put upon activity in the stock market by the fact that this was the final week for Liberty Loan subscriptions, is as good an illustration as might be asked of the inherent strength and soundness of the present statistical position of the United States. It is certain that metal stocks, including both steel and copper, are bound to be the first beneficiaries of the new expenditures which are the natural consequence of the flotation of the loan. There can be little question that the prosperity of the iron and steel industry, made doubly sure by this new activity, will have its effect upon nearly every substantial line of business activity in the country. At a very early stage the transportation interests of the country should begin to shew their proportion of return on the unprecedented volume of new business. The mobilization of the country's resources by nation-wide concert is bringing about many economies in the way of cutting out unnecessary expenses and combining all efforts in the directions in which the most need lies. For railroads that means the elimination of many useless or comparatively useless trains and the subordination of unimportant miscellaneous service to the demand that the transportation facilities of the country be concentrated for the large purposes in hand. The results for stock issues will not disappear for many a long day, and the mere fact of the substitution of the point of view of efficiency for old-time competitive conditions should in itself be an enormous conserver of resources.

The rise in the price of pig iron to a new high point—$55 a ton—is an index of the imperative need of raw material to fill contracts which must be carried out without delay, and for which payment is assured by the success of the Liberty Loan. The fact is that the United States Steel Corporation has been compelled for many months to decline millions of tons of new business offered. Order books are congested as to make it impossible to take on large tonnages of new business apart from the imperative needs of the American and foreign governments.

Next to the steel and metal stocks the industrial specialties, ranging all the way from such oil stocks as Mexican Petroleum to foodstuffs, such as sugar, shares are in a position to benefit directly by the extent to which business is speeded up by the course of the war, and by the extent to which Europe will be increasingly dependent upon the American producer for some little time after the cessation of actual hostilities, and nobody seems anxious to figure in the role of a prophet in regard to how long it will take the United States to help the Entente Allies to break up the military deadlock. The longer the strain continues, the more the other nations will be in debt to the United States; while the sooner the break comes, the sooner will the new foreign trade opportunities of this country be open. In other words, it is almost a case of "heads we win, tails you lose."

AIR DOMINATION ESSENTIAL FOR ENEMY'S OVERTHROW

$600,000,000 for Flying Fleet To Drive Prussians from Air Backed by War Department

Aerial Domination, Recognized by Experts as Essential to the Overthrow of the Prussian Autocracy, Is Aim of Bill Urged by Mr. Baker

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The Government agrees to send tens of thousands of aeroplanes to the war at a cost of six hundred millions.

Domination of the air by the Allies is the object sought to be accomplished by the bill which will soon be introduced in Congress whereby $600,000,000 will be appropriated to provide the most stupendous fleet of aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes the world ever has seen.

Such domination is recognized by the experts of all of the Allies as absolutely essential to the overthrow of Prussian autocracy, and that end will be attained by applying the hitherto latent energy of the United States to the task of increasing the capacity of those factories which are now manufacturing aeroplanes, building new factories for the production of machines of a type that never have been made in this country and mobilizing the vast army of mechanics in the United States for service in what is deemed the most important undertaking of the war.

"The War Department is behind the aircraft plans with every ounce of energy and enthusiasm at is command," said Mr. Baker, Secretary of War.

The building of aeroplanes and hydro-aeroplanes and the training of aviators, explained Mr. Baker, can be carried on without interfering in any way with the training of the armies and the furnishing of munitions and supplies to the Allies. Those matters however, will take time, and the most effective and speedy way in which the United States can make its participation felt in the titanic struggle in which it is now so vitally interested is by devoting at least a part of its energy to the great air project.

Most Effective Use For Tonnage.

Conservation of space in the making of shipments by the United States to its allies must receive the most careful consideration, Mr. Baker continued, and he maintained that the most effective use that could be made of the tonnage of this country was to employ it for the transportation of aeroplanes.

Mr. Baker's statement follows:

"We can train thousands of aviators and build thousands of machines without interfering in the slightest with the plans for building up our armies and for supplying the Allies with food and munitions. To train and equip our armies and send them abroad will take time, however, and in the meanwhile we can be devoting to this most important service vast quantities of productive machinery and skilled labour which otherwise could not be contributing to the nation's cause in full proportion to its capacity.

Follows American Traditions.

"Every consideration points to the effectiveness of a highly developed air service in its relation to the part which the United States can play in putting an end to the war. It lives up to all America's traditions of doing things on a splendid scale. It will put us on our mettle from the point of view both of mechanical ingenuity and of individual daring and initiative. At the same time, compared with the transportation of an expeditionary force of infantry and artillery large enough to be of decisive value on the western front, it offers little or no difficulty. All through the coming year we shall have to reckon with the shipping problem, and whatever aid we send abroad, whether in men or supplies, must be calculated for securing as efficient a use as possible of available tonnage.

"The air craft plan meets the demands of the situation. Under existing conditions of fighting, where the Allies and the Germans are fighting on practically even terms as regards man power and air craft, the addition which we can contribute to the allied forces will be proportionately of far greater value than the immediate aid which we can furnish on land. According to the best obtainable information there are about 7,000,000 men on the western front to-day. The addition of a few infantry units, while of great moral value, would count for little in forcing a decision.

"A few thousand trained aviators, however, with the machines for their own use, may spell the whole difference between victory and defeat. The supremacy of the air in modern warfare is essential to a successful army. America must make sure that the Allies and not Germany secure the permanent domination of the air, and that within the year.

To Turn Scale Quickly.

"It will take no more shipping space to send a thousand air pilots abroad than a thousand infantrymen; it will take no more space to send air planes and motors than to send artillery. It is now certain that if we make the effort we can send enough of both men and machines within a year to be of great value, perhaps to turn the scale, all without handicapping our plans for the army which is to follow nor hindering the vital flow of food and munitions.

"American airmen and aeroplanes may turn the tide. They furnish our supreme opportunity for immediate service on the fighting line."

Under the programme the United States will become immediately a great elementary training base for the allies, and enormous numbers of training machines will be turned out while American plants are developing a serviceable battle craft type. By next spring the Board purposes to have the allies ready literally to drive the Prussians from the air.

WHEAT MARKET PRICES DECLINE

Prices 10c Lower Than Saturday The Cattle Markets

Wheat markets got fairly on the toboggan slide yesterday and came down swiftly to a ten cent level below Saturday's closing prices. The July option closed 10 3-8c below, and September 10 1-2. The October option at Winnipeg closed 10c lower. Local millers reduced Ontario flour quotations 25c, but the Manitoba's for the present are unchanged. Large world's shipments, and stocks at Liverpool steadily increasing, appear to have been the leading factors in yesterday's markets.

American corn—$1.80 nominal.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, not quoted.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter per car lots, $2.55 to $2.60; No. 2 winter, $2.53 to $2.58, according to freight outside.

Peas—No. 2 nominal.

Barley—Good malting, nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $2.00.

Manitoba flour—First patents, in jute bags, $13.80; second patents, $13.30; strong bakers, $12.90.

Ontario flour—Winter, according to sample, $11.25 to $11.35; track, Toronto, prompt shipments.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered Montreal, shorts, $39; bran, $36; feed flour, per bag, $2.90 to $2.90; middlings, $43.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2 $13 to $13.50; mixed, $9 to $11.50; straw, $6.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts, 122 cars, with 2,175 cattle, 220 calves, 785 hogs, and 144 sheep and lambs.

There was a sharp, active market yesterday and prices were steady to firm. But drovers would be well advised to observe caution in buying, as anything like a heavy run, after yesterday's good buying on the part of the packers, might very easily result in a material, if not serious, break in prices. It is said there are plenty of cattle in the country yet to come in.

Sheep and lambs held about steady. Hogs are quoted 50c lower for this week.

REMOVAL OF GREEK KING CAME YEARS TOO LATE

Herbert Corey Points Out That Many Things Would Have Been Changed —Queen Was Told Before Cabinet to Shut Her Mouth—Greek People Pro-Ally—The King to the Queen.

(By Herbert Corey.)

WASHINGTON, June 19. — King Constantine's "adbidcation" was an abdication under pressure. The Allies had him by the scruff of the neck. It had more of the outward aspects of an eviction.

The chief fault to be found with it is that it came two years too late. If he had been tossed out of his throne upon his hard head when the allies first began their campaign in the east a different situation would have resulted.

Bulgaria might not have entered the war. Rumania might have been saved. Turkey's hundreds of thousands of hard fighting men would have been cut off from their present-day allies in the Central Powers.

His disposition at this late day was the one way of repairing the damage resulting from stupid diplomacy. The immediate result is the military occupation of Greece. A secondary result will be the creation of a Greek army which will fight for the allies, and the ridding of the allied rear in Macedonia of the menace that has been constant since action began there.

To understand the situation in Greece two facts must be clearly borne in mind:

One is that the Greeks have been pro-peace rather than pro-ally.

The other is that Constantine has been their hero. Unless the situation has altered materially since the first of March he is the most popular man in Greece.

His plan, so far as the outsider could read it, was to keep his people out of the war until they could enter at a profit. He believed that profit would be found upon the German side —for he always insited that the Germans could not be defeated.

When the war began the Greeks were warmly pro-ally. The defeats of the allied forces in the earlier battles were sincerely mourned by the people and the French victory on the Marne was "played up" in the newspapers as though it had been one of the Greek nation itself. This sentiment persisted until the allies began that policy which led to Gallipoli and the Macedonian campaign.

With the memory of violated Belgium fresh in their minds, the allied diplomats sought to avoid interference with Greek neutrality, and to secure the ends desired by internal pressure upon the King and Parliament. To put this action into plain English they backed Venizelos against the King.

At the moment the allied cause was the popular one and Venizelos was admired and loved. But this situation changed. Baron Schenck, the German propagandist, opened operations in Athens, bought newspapers, and won the support of influential elements in Greek politics. He was aided by the resentment aroused by the measures taken by the allies.

The allied blockade cut short the supply of bread and other table necessities. This did not incline the Greeks towards the allied side, although knowing that every Greek port could be blockaded or bombarded by any tin gunboat the allies might send, they were chary of expressing hostility. At the time that Venizelos left Athens to create his Provisional government, it was my impression that the feeling in that city was at least four-sevenths pro-German. But it was seven-sevenths pro-peace.

By creating a Provisional Republic Venizelos became a rebel. The Greeks who supported him while he was merely in political opposition to the King refused to follow him into rebellion in great part. His following was principally recruited from the islands, which have always been anti-monarchic.

It is not so long ago that several of the islands tried to revolt from Greece in order to replace their people under Turkish rule.

After Venizelos reached Salonica, the allies doubled the pressure upon Greece. The blockade was so tight that a Greek fisherman could not go out in his dory without a permit. Inter-island traffic was forbidden. The war bread of Athens was infinitely worse than that of Germany according to the reports of travellers returning from Germany. Still the King held fast to his policy of peace. He was loyally followed by his people, who had had experience in war. They were willing to put up with the lesser ebil to avoid the greater.

American newspaper readers have been told that Constantine is a weak and spineless man, ruled absolutely by his wife. This is so far from the truth as to be laughable. Constantine is a pig-headed, stiff-necked, violent, vulgar man, who drinks too much and loves too liberally and who uses language in addressing his troops that would not be tolerated on a dock. He is as narrow and stubborn as a man can well be, but he is not hen-pecked.

"Keep your d——— mouth shut!" he told his wife once in the presence of his cabinet. On another occasion he complained in a court company that "he was getting along much better now that he had told Sophie to keep her d——— fingers out of this mess." Constantine by the way, is proud of his command of vigorous, not to say stentorian, English.

Being convinced that Germany will win, and having undoubtedly determined to take the German side when it could be taken at a profit, he was enthusiastically aided by his wife. The ex-queen is almost as vigorous in manner as her husband. Their collisions have been so frequent that a sort of armed neutrality has existed between the royal pair for years. In spite of this friction they have remained "friends." Constantine has been notoriously unfaithful, but when he will ill last summer it was "Sophie" for whom he called.

"She's got more d——— sense than all the rest of you," he told his bevy of nurses.

Now that the allies have acted, however, there will likely be a fairly general relief through Greece. The economic pressure upon Greece has been almost unendurable lately. It is probable that the nation will conclude that even war is better than the semi-starvation of the past few months and the uncertainty of the future.

By LOUIS TRACY

"Miss Martin's name must be kept out of this matter," he growled.

But Sussex is not easily browbeaten when it thinks itself in the right.

"All very well a-sayin' that, sir, but a-doin' of it is a bird of another color," argued Bates firmly.

"How did you know that Miss Martin was here?"

"Bless your heart, sir, how comes it that us Steynholme folk knew everything about other folk's business? Sometimes we know more'n they knows themselves. You've not walked a yard wi' Doris that the women's tittle-tattle hasn't made it into a mile."

No man, even the wisest, likes to be told an unpalatable truth. For a few seconds Grant was seriously annoyed with this village Solon, and nearly blurted out an angry command that he should hold his tongue. Luckily, since Bates was only trying to be helpful, he was content to say sarcastically:

"Of course, if you are so well posted in my movements last night, you can assure the coroner and the police that I did not strangle some strange woman, tie a rope around her, and throw her into the river."

"Me an' my missis couldn't help seein' you an' Doris a-lookin' at the stars through a spy-glass when 'us were goin' to bed," persisted Bates. "We heard your voices quite plain. Once 'ee fixed the glass low down an' said, 'That's serious. It's late tonight.' An' I tell 'ee traight, sir, I said to the missis: 'It will be serious, an' all, if Doris's father catches her gallivantin' in our garden wi' Mr. Grant nigh on ten o'clock.' Soon after that 'ee took Doris 'as far as the bridge. The window was open, an' I heard your footsteps on the road. You kem' in, closed the window, an' drew a chair up to the table. After that I fell asleep."

Perturbed and anxious though he was, Grant could hardly fail to see that Bates meant well by him. The mental effort needed for such a long speech said as much. The allusion to Sirius, amusing at any other time, was now most valuable, because an astronomical almanac would give the hour at which that brilliant star became visible. Other considerations yielded at once, however, to the fear lest Robinson and his note book were already busy at the post office. Without another word, he hurried away by the side-path through the evergreens, leaving Bates staring after him and with more whisker-pulling, examining the rope and the staple, which by the policeman's order, were not to be disturbed.

Grant reached the highroad just as Robinson and the men with the stretcher were crossing a stone bridge spanning the river about a hundred yards below The Hollies. A slight youthful, and eminently attractive female figure, walking swiftly in the opposite direction, came in sight at the same time, and Grant almost groaned aloud when the newcomer stood stock still and looked at the mournful procession. He, be it remembered, was somewhat of an idealist and a poet; it grieved his spirit that those two women, the quick and the dead, should meet on the bridge. He took it as a portent, almost a menace, he knew not of what. He might have foreseen that unhappy eventuality, and prevented it, but his brain refused to work clearly that morning. A terrible and bizarre crime had bemused his faculties. He seemed to be in a state of waking nightmare.

He was stung into impetuous action by seeing the policeman halt and exchange some words with the girl. He began to run, with the quite definite if equally mad intent of punching Robinson into reasonable behaviour. He was saved from an act of unmitigated folly by the girl herself. She caught sight of him, apparently, broke off her talk with the policeman abruptly, and in her turn, took to her heels.

Thus, on that strip of sun-baked road, with its easy gradient to the crown of the bridge, there was the curious spectacle offered by two men jogging along with a corpse on a stretcher, a young men and a young woman running to-wards each other, and a discomfited representative of the law, looking now one way and now the other, and evidently undecided whether to go on or return. Ultimately, it would seem, Robinson went with the stretcher-bearers, because Grant and the girl saw no more of him for the time.

Grant had received several shocks since rising from the breakfast-table, but it was left for Doris Martin, the postmaster's daughter, to administer not the least surprising one.

Though almost breathless, and wide-eyed with horror, her opening words were very much to the point.

"How awful!" she cried. "Why should anyone in Steynholme want to kill a great actress like Adelaide Melhuish?"

Now, the name of the dead woman was literally the last thing Grant expected to hear from this girl's lips, and the astounding fact momentarily banished all other worries.

"You knew her?" he gasped.

"No, not exactly. But I couldn't avoid recognizing her when she asked for her letters, and sent a telegram."

"But——"

"Oh, Robinson told me she was dead. I see now what is puzzling you."

"It is not quite that. I mean, why didn't you tell me she was in Steynholme? Has she been staying there any length of time?"

The girl's pretty fact crimsoned, and then grew pale.

"I—had no idea—she was—a friend of yours, Mr. Grant," she stammered.

"She used to be a friend, but I have not set eyes on her during the past three years—until last night."

"Last night!"

"After you had gone home. I was doing some work, and, having occasion to consult a book, lighted a candle, and put it in the small window near the bookcase. Then I fancied I say a woman's face, her face, peering in, and was so obsessed by the notion that I went outside, but everything was so still that I persuaded myself I was mistaken."

"Oh, is that what it was?"

Grant threw out his hands in a gesture that was eloquent of some feeling akin to despair.

"You don't usually speak in enigmas, Doris," he said. "What in the world do you mean by saying:—'Oh, is that what it was?'"

The girl—she was only nineteen, and never before had aught of tragic mystery entered her sheltered life—seemed to recover her self-possession with a quickness and decision that were admirable.

"There is no enigma," she said calmly. "My room overlooks your lawn. Before retiring for the night I went to the window, just to have another peep at Sirius and its changing lights, so I could not help seeing you fling open the French windows, stand a little while on the step, and go in again."

"Ah, you saw that? Then I have one witness who will help to dispel that stupid policeman's notion that I killed Miss Melhuish, and hid her body in the river at the foot of the lawn, hid it with such care that the first passerby must find it."

Every human being has three distinct personalities. Firstly, there is the man or woman as he or she really is; secondly, there is the much superior individual as assessed personally; thirdly, and perhaps the most important in the general scheme of things, there is the same individuality as viewed by others. For an instant, the somewhat idealized figure which John Menzies Grant offered to a pretty and intelligent but inexperienced girl was in danger of losing its impressiveness. But, since Grant was not only a good fellow but a gentleman, his next thought restored him to the pedestal from which, all unknowing, he had nearly been dethroned.

"That is a nice thing to say," he cried, with a short laugh of sheer vexation. "Here am I regarding you as a first-rate witness in my behalf, whereas my chief worry is to keep you out of his ugly business altogether. Forgive me, Doris! Never before have I been so bothered. Honestly, I imagined I hadn't an enemy in the world, yet someone has tried deliberately to saddle me with suspicion in this affair. Not that I would give real heed to that consideration if it were not for the unhappy probability that, strive as I may, your name will crop up in connection with it. What sort of fellow is this police constable? Do you think he would keep his mouth shut if I paid him well?"

Grant was certainly far from being in his normal state of mind, or he would have caught the tender gleam which lighted the girl's eyes when she understood that his concern was for her, not for himself. As it was several things had escaped him during that brief talk on the sunlit road.

On her part, Doris Martin was now in full control of her emotions, and she undoubtedly took a saner view of a difficult situation.

"Robinson is a vain man," she said thoughtfully. "He will not let go the chance of notoriety given him by the murder of a well known actress. Was she really murdered? Robinson said so when I met him on the bridge."

"I'm afraid he is justified in that belief, at any rate."

"Well, Mr. Grant, what have we to conceal? I was in your garden at a rather late hour, I admit, but one cannot watch the stars by day, and a big telescope with its tripod is not easily carried about. Of course, father will be vexed, because, as it happens, I did not tell him I was coming out. But that cannot be helped. As it happens, I can fix the time you opened your window almost to a minute, because the church clock had chimed the quarter just before you appeared."

Grant, however, was not to be soothed by this matter-of-fact reasoning.

"I am vexed at the mere notion of your name, and possibly your portrait, appearing in the newspapers," he protested. "Miss Melhuish was a celebrated actress. The press will make a rare commotion about her death. Look at the obvious questions that will be raised. What was she doing here? Why was she found in the river bordering the grounds of my house? Don't you see? I had to decide pretty quickly whether or not I would admit any previous knowledge of her. I suppose I acted rightly?"

"Why hide anything, Mr. Grant. Surely it is always best to tell the truth!"

He looked into those candid blue eyes, and drew from their limpid depths an element of strength and fortitude.

"By Jove, Doris, small wonder if a jaded man of the world, such as I was when I came to Steynholme, found new faith and inspiration in friendship with you," he said gratefully. "But I am wool-gathering all the time this morning, it would seem. Won't you come into the house. If we have to discuss a tragedy we may as well sit down to it."

"No," she said, with the promptitude of one who had anticipated the invitation, "I must hurry home. There are accounts to be made up. And Robinson and others will be telegraphing to Knoleworth and London. I must attend to all that, because dad gets flustered if several messages are handed in at the same time."

"Come and have tea, then, about four o'clock. The ravens will have fled by then."

"The ravens?"

"The police, you dear child, and the reporters, and the photographers—the flock of weird fowl which gathers from all points of the compass when the press gets hold of what is called 'a first-rate story.' By midday I shall be in the thick of it. But, thank goodness, they will know nothing to draw them your way until the inquest takes place, and not even then if I can manage it."

"Don't mind me, Mr. Grant. You must not keep anything back on my account. I'll try and come at four. But I may be very busy in the office. By the way, you ought to know, Miss Melhuish came here on Sunday evening. She arrived by the train from London. I—happened to notice her as she passed in the Hare and Hounds 'bus. She took a room there, at the inn, I mean, and came to the post office twice yesterday. When I heard her name I recognized her at once from her photographs. And—one more thing—I guessed there was something wrong when I saw you, and Robinson Bates and the other men standing near a body lying close to the river. That is why I came out. Now I really must go. Good-by!"

She hastened away. Grant stood in the road and looked after her. Apparently she was conscious that he had not stirred, because, when she reached the bridge, she turned and waved a hand to him. She was exceedingly graceful in all her movements. She wore a simple white linen blouse and short white skirt that morning, with brown shoes and stockings which harmonized with the deeper tints of her Titian red hair. As she paused on the bridge for a second or two, silhouetted against the sky, she suggested to Grant's troubled mind the Spirit of Summer.

Two Splendid Things

One is plenty of good exercise.

If you can't get all of that you should, it's all the more important that you should have the other tried-and-true remedy for a torpid liver and bowels that don't act freely and naturally.

Take one pill every night for a while, if necessary.

Genuine bears signature

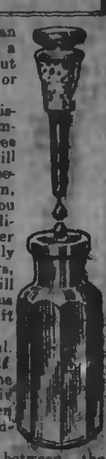
Colorless faces often show the absence of iron in the blood. Carter's Iron Pills will help this condition.

NO PAIN AT ALL! CORNS DO LIFT OUT!

No humbug! Apply few drops, then lift corns off with fingers.

Just think! You can lift off any kind of a corn or callus without one twinge of pain or soreness.

A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it free zone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of freezone, like here shown, for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.



Freezone is wonderful. It dries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Hard, soft or corns between the toes, as well as painful calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. No soreness or smarting. It is truly astonishing. It always works. No humbug or foolishness. Genuine freezone is only sold in these small bottles, packed in a little sealed wood case, bearing a yellow wrapper. Beware of imitations.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BY JOHN W. S. McCULLOUGH, M.D., D.P.H., CHIEF OFFICER OF THE PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH.

NOSEBLEED.

IN THE ORDINARY CASE of nosebleed the loss of blood will stop spontaneously in a few minutes if the sufferer will remain quiet. In some cases the loss of a few teaspoonfuls of blood is helpful rather than harmful, and, therefore, it is just as well to wait a few minutes for spontaneous stoppage.

When the time to do something arrives it is well to make use of the simplest procedures possible. Grasp the soft part of the nose between the thumb and index finger, in such a way as to close both nostrils, and press the wings of the nose against the septum. The septum is the partition which separates the nostrils from each other. The head is then leaned forward without bending the back. After about ten minutes the pressure of the fingers on the nostrils is very slowly and gradually lessened. Five minutes should be consumed in turning the nose loose. In the majority of instances the bleeding takes place from a vessel within the territory pressed upon. When such is the case the pressure is reasonably certain to stop the hemorrhage.

The method is also efficacious when the bleeding point is higher up. The method of cure in that case is as follows: The nostrils fill up with blood. The blood coagulates. The clot stops the hemorrhage. It is good judgment to leave the clots in the nose for at least an hour after the bleeding has stopped. They can then be cleaned out with a clean handkerchief or by washing in slightly cold water.

If these methods fail the physician must be called upon. He usually examines the membrane for the bleeding point. If he finds it he may touch it with caustic or some milder application. Or, this failing, he will probably pack the nose.

There are many causes for nosebleed. This explains why some cases are easier remedied than others. Among the causes are the following:—

1. Too much blood. Where nosebleed comes along with a severe congestive headache it gives relief. A certain amount of bleeding helps.
2. Over-exertion. The nosebleed which comes on while children are playing hard belongs in this group. The bleeding stops spontaneously in a few minutes.
3. The onset of infections. Typhoid particularly is liable to start with nosebleed.
4. Growths in the nose. Nasal polypi are especially to be mentioned.
5. Injuries, including the scratches made by picking the nose.
6. Chronic diseases and conditions—e.g., hemophylia (bleeders), pernicious anemia and leukemia. 7. Vicarious menstruation. 8. High blood pressure. 9. Kidney disease and heart disease.

SIX-YEAR MOLARS.

Notice the mouth of any middle-aged man or woman when he or she laughs or opens the mouth widely in speaking or singing. The chances is that you will notice one tooth gone on each side of both upper and lower jaws. The vacant space is always at the same place—toward the corner of the mouth. If you ask a dentist which tooth it is that is missing he will tell you the six-year molar.

It is significant that the loss of teeth begins with the six-year molar. The reason is easily understood. The six-year molar comes in at about six years of age. It seems to be the last of the temporary teeth. It is in fact the first of the permanent teeth.

Boys and girls do not begin to brush their teeth until they get into school, begin to have sweethearts, and in consequence take pride in their personal appearance. The urge to brush the hair, to keep the clothes clean, to wear a tie, and to brush the teeth all ground in the same instinct. In consequence the six-year molars have had several years of neglect before the habit of brushing the teeth is established. And them again they are not cleaned as easily as are the front teeth.

Presently the molars begin to ache. A dentist is consulted. He finds a large cavity. "The tooth is too far gone. It will be easier and better to pull it," is his verdict. And in consequence the unsightly gap so nearly universal in middle-aged people.

The six-year molar is not a delicate tooth. It can be saved. To save it a habit must be changed. Instead of beginning the care of the teeth as a part of the preadolescent sex urge, it should be begun in the home in the pre-school years. If children four years old and even younger were taught to brush and clean the teeth every day, and if they were kept to the dentist periodically there would be none of these unsightly gaps at the corners of the mouth. By the time the six-year molars are cut the habit of caring for the teeth will have been thoroughly established.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DR. LE VAN'S FRENCH PILLS are a reliable pill for Female Ills. 50 in box, or three for $1, sold at all Drug Stores, or mailed to any address on receipt of price. The Scobell Drug Co., St. Catharines, Ontario.

THE HOUSE AND GROUND

A Stucco House of Excellent Proportions and Pleasing Details

THE house submitted by Mr. Frank Dvorak is to be built on a lot 50x100 feet in the vicinity of Montclair, N. J., and to cost not more than $5,000.

The whole house is excavated except under the veranda floor. The cellar floor is to be of cement and walls of concrete ten inches thick. The veranda floor is of red concrete marked off in ten inch squares. Walls and ceilings of first and second stories are to be plastered with hard white plaster on wood lath.

The frame of the house is of 2x4 inch studs, sheathed with diagonal sheathing and covered with heavy building paper. The exterior walls are covered with three coats of white stucco on metal lath; the roof is covered with cypress shingles, stained green.

Both first and second floor halls and the dining room and living room have finished red oak floors laid over a rough floor of yellow pine.

The second floor and kitchen are to have comb grained yellow pine floors laid over rough flooring.

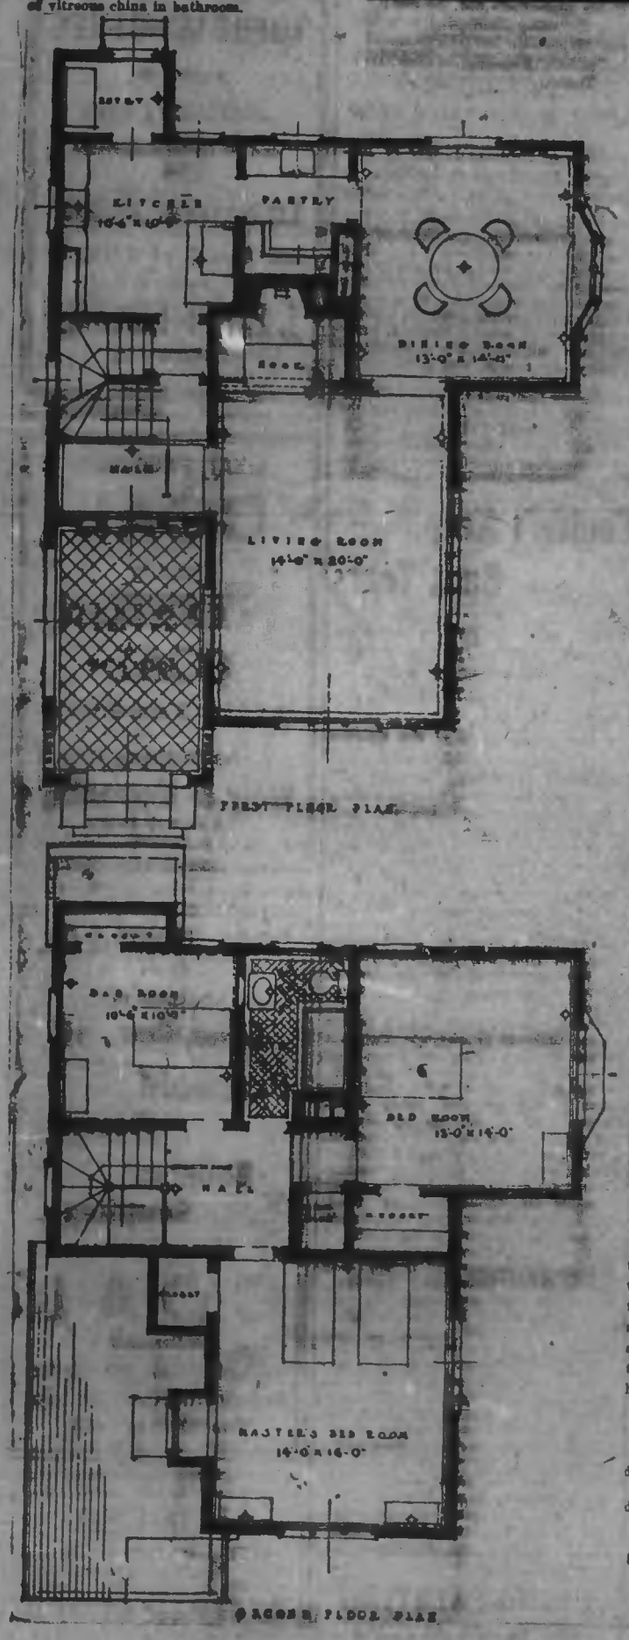
The trim used throughout shall be selected cypress, painted white. The stair treads are of oak, stained red, and the hand rail and balusters of birch. Risers are to be of whitewood, painted white.

The bathroom has a tiled floor and is wainscotted four feet six inches high with white ceramic tiles and plastered above with cement.

The plumbing fixtures consist of two porcelain enamelled tubs in the cellar, enamelled iron sink in the kitchen, copper lined sink in pantry, water closet of vitreous china with low down tank, pedestal lavatory and built-in bathtub of vitreous china in bathroom.



Iceless Refrigerator Home-Made Device

"COUNTRY homes without ice houses and too far from town to have access to manufactured ice may have an iceless refrigerator as a good substitute," says Rhea Clarke Scott in "Home Labor Saving Devices" (J. B. Lippincott Company).

This convenience comprises a simple wooden frame with a covering of canton flannel, burlap, Indian head cloth or linen crash made to fit so that little air is admitted into it.

Wicks made of the same material as the cover are tacked on top of each side of the cover and extend over into the pan of water sitting on top of the frame. This water is taken up by the wicks and carried down on the sides of the cover by capillary attraction, when evaporation takes place, drawing the heat from the inside and lowering the temperature. The more rapid the evaporation the lower the temperature. Tests have shown that if the refrigerator is kept in a place where the air circulates freely a temperature of fifty degrees Fahrenheit may be obtained.

The materials required are:—

40 ft. of white pine.

One 2-inch gate hook to close screen door.

1½-inch (butt) hinges to fasten the door.

3½ yards wire screening to cover frame.

4 sq. ft. sheet zinc to make shelves.

1 pint white paint.

1 can white enamel.

1 square pan for top of refrigerator.

1 large pan for bottom.

Sandpaper.

2 cards of snap hooks and eyes to put on cover.

5 yards white canton flannel.

Dimensions:—

Frame—Four pieces, ½ inch thick by 3 inches wide by 48 inches long for upright pieces. Sixteen pieces 1 inch thick by 1 inch wide by 16 inches long, to be used as cross pieces for top, bottom and shelves.

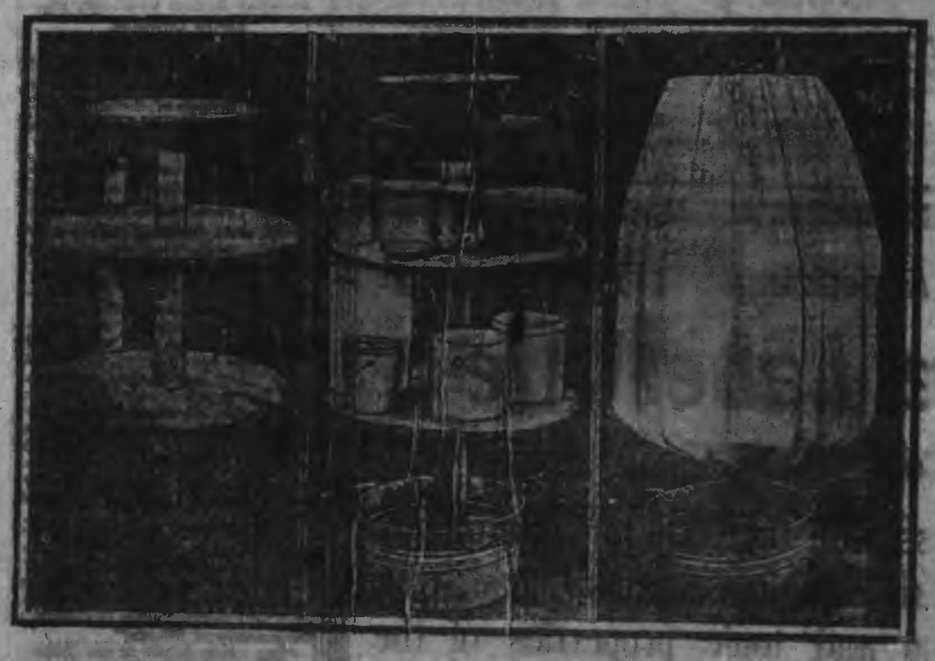
Door—Two pieces, ½ inch thick by 3 inches wide by 39 inches long, for upright pieces. Two pieces 1 inch thick by 1 inch wide by 16 inches long, for crosspieces.

Directions—Make the frame 3½ feet high with twelve crosspieces tacked to the four posts, nailing the first four strips 9 inches from the bottom of the frame, and the remaining eight strips about eleven inches apart. An 18½-inch square frame is made of wood and nailed on top of the posts. The corners of this square are mitred or lapped over and tacked together. Use a biscuit pan to fit in the top of the square to hold the water. The whole refrigerator should stand in a larger pan which catches the drippings from the cover and keeps away insects. The screen door is made 39 inches long and 16 inches wide, which is joined to the frame with hinges and fastens with a hook. Three movable shelves with perforations in them are made of zinc. Cover the whole frame with wire screening to protect it from flies.

When the frame is finished it should be painted white and enamelled. A covering of white canton flannel is made to fit the frame with the smooth side out, care being taken that the cover comes to the lower edge of the frame. The wicks are made half the length of the sides and tacked on the top edge of each side. They must be long enough to extend three inches into the water. Strips of canton flannel two inches wide are tacked all around the sides and the top of the frame and the eyes are sewed on these. White tape may be used if more convenient. Sew one row of hooks on the edge of the covering near the latch and the other just opposite the opening, with the hem to extend far enough over on each side to cover the crack at the edge of door. This permits the door to be opened without unfastening the hooks, keeping out the warm air and retaining the cool air inside. Hook the covering about the top also. Keep the refrigerator in a shady place where there is a free circulation of air. Keep the wicks in a supply of fresh water in the top pan. The water is taken down the sides by capillary attraction, and when evaporation takes place the heat is taken from the inside, thereby lowering the temperature.

Another type of iceless refrigerator can be made for $1.80. In this a cotton sack or one of canton flannel is used for the covering. The materials required for this simple refrigerator are 24½ feet of yellow pine, 5½ yards canton flannel, 15 10-penny nails and a No. 2 galvanized tub. Of course this will not keep things so well as the other refrigerator, but things may be kept ten per cent cooler than the outer air.

This little book contains many other helpful suggestions in the way of kitchen conveniences, dining room conveniences, porch equipment and poultry and dairy devices. They are intended primarily to help the country woman, but many things carefully described will help any woman who has limited money or time.



A Simple Substitute for an Ice Refrigerator.

Vegetables

WARNINGS about where and how to make your vegetable garden cannot be repeated too often.

In selecting a site for the garden the School of Agriculture on Long Island gives the following points:—Vegetables do best in a cool, moist, fairly light soil—which does not mean wet soil; trees are undesirable near a garden for general crops, because they shade the vegetables and take moisture from the soil; city lots or yards that have been filled in with tin cans, coal ashes, &c., are not good sites for gardens; have a definite garden plan before commencing work.

Cover the garden with a heavy coat of well rotted manure and spade it in as soon as the ground is dry enough to be readily worked. Make sure that the spading is thoroughly done and the soil made as fine as possible, then level it off. Thorough work in preparing the soil will avoid trouble later.

Straight rows are more easily cultivated. To get the rows straight use a stout string the length of the rows to each end of which a stake is fastened as a guide line.

The following plan may serve in part as a guide for a garden 15 by 25 feet.

Set tomato plants May 10 to 15 two feet apart in a row. They should be staked when large enough.

Plant beans May 10, covering them one inch deep and using one-half pint to a 25 foot row.

The earliest lettuce will have been planted, but another sowing may be made now.

The same may be said of peas.

Beets may be sown one inch deep for successive at intervals until the middle of July. Carrots may be sown the same way.

One-quarter ounce of seed may be used for Swiss chard, covering one-half inch and thinning the young plants to eight inches in the row.

One-half row may be sowed in parsley and the other half in kohlrabi.

Lettuce and cabbage may be sown in the same row, the lettuce maturing and being out of the way before the cabbage needs the space.

Securing Two or More Crops From the Soil in One Season.

Many amateurs are puzzled to know how so many crops or such quantities may be grown from a small area. The secret lies in the fact that in some cases two crops may be grown in one row at one time, and also that as soon as an early crop is harvested the soil may be planted with another crop which will be ready for harvesting before the fall frosts come. Climatic and soil conditions must be considered in the latter case. Lettuce and radish may be sown in the same row, parsnips and lettuce, corn and pumpkins, corn and spinach, lettuce and early cabbage, etc.

Some examples of successional plantings may serve to explain what is meant by following one crop with another:

Early beets followed with celery.

Early beans followed with turnips.

Lettuce or onion sets followed with tomatoes.

Radishes followed with tomatoes.

Spinach, lettuce or radishes followed with cabbage.

These show that the early crops may be taken off and consumed, and the very same day their place may be taken by some other crop, which in some cases could not have been transplanted as early as the first one. The soil should be dug over and more manure added if possible, followed by a careful raking down before the plants are set out or seeds planted.

Individual Crops.

BEANS.—With a corner of a hoe make a shallow furrow about two inches deep. In this plant the bean seeds two inches apart or make holes two inches deep and twelve inches apart, and in each hole drop three or four seeds. Cover with soil and tramp lightly over the row. The seed may be sprouted before planting by soaking in water. Cultivate with garden hoe. Do not touch the plants when they are wet. Pick beans when they are large enough to use.

BEETS.—Plant the seed for this crop as is directed for carrots. Thin the plants out so that they stand three inches apart in the row. The young beets may be used for greens as they are thinned out. Beets for winter use should be pulled before very severe frosts, the tops twisted off and the roots kept in a cool cellar.

CABBAGE.—Sow the seed on fine soil which has been well manured. A row two feet long will be sufficient to grow the plants in. A furrow one-half inch deep should be made with a hoe and the seed covered. When the plants are transplanted to the permanent bed the roots should be dipped in a batter of mud and should be set in a hole about four inches deep. The hole may be made with the end of a hoe handle or a pointed stick. Firm the soil well around the roots. Hoe the soil between the rows to keep down all weeds. In the fall the heads may be pulled up and stored in a cool cellar.

CARROTS.—These may be planted as late as June 1st to secure winter carrots. The young plants should be thinned out to two inches in the row. All weeds should be kept out of the row and the soil between the rows thoroughly cultivated. In the fall before heavy frosts the carrots should be pulled up and the tops cut off with a sharp knife about one inch from the carrot. They may be stored in a cool cellar in boxes or baskets.

CAULIFLOWER.—The plants should be grown as directed for cabbage and handled in the same manner. When the white head appears the leaves should be gathered in at the top and tied with string to prevent the sunlight and rain from injuring the head.

Plant Trees

THERE are few more decorative trees for planting in the home grounds than certain kinds of fruit trees. Of course, one wants some purely ornamental trees, but the judicious planting of an apple, especially a crab apple; a plum, a pear or a cherry tree will bring such beauty in blossoming and fruiting time that it will be a valuable addition for ornament as well as for utility.

Next to the trees that we associate chiefly with the orchard, these fruits that bear blossoms and berries should have a conspicuous place.

Several of the thorns are particularly handsome for the home grounds and should be used more than they are in this country. Crataegus succulenta is a tree sometimes twenty feet high, with a short trunk, stout, wide spreading branches and thick, dark green and very lustrous leaves. The flowers are only about two-thirds of an inch in diameter, but they are arranged in broad, many flowered flat clusters and are produced on long, slender stems. The fruit is small, not more than three-quarters of an inch in diameter, but is borne in large clusters on elongated, gracefully drooping stems. It is bright scarlet and very lustrous. The fruit of no other thorn is more brilliant.

Another hawthorn—the crataegus arkansana—has fruit that does not become fully ripe until November, so that in late October this is one of the handsomest species, the leaves, being fresh and green, add to the brilliancy of the large and abundant fruits.

The crataegus mitidia is a thorn which under favorable conditions grows to a height of thirty feet. The leaves in autumn turn a rich orange color through varying shades of bronze and orange red. The fruit of this thorn is red, covered with a glaucous bloom.

The little hawthorns belonging to the Intricatae group are natives of the Northern States and have been almost neglected by gardeners. They have large, showy flowers, which on most of the species do not open until the leaves are fully grown, and many of them have large and bright colored fruits. Many of these shrubs are only two or three feet high when fully grown, and several are well suited for small gardens or for planting in front of groups of the larger species.

Most of us knew Viburnums only by the familiar snowball, but the Arnold Arboretum, which has made a study of trees and shrubs, states that there are no small trees better suited for decorative than the three arborescent Viburnums of the Eastern United States.

The first of these to flower is the black haw of the Middle States, where it is a common arborescent shrub or small tree on rocky hillsides and in dense rows, sometimes growing thirty feet high. It has rather narrower leaves than the other arborescent species, from which it may be distinguished by the absence from the leaf stalks of the winged margins which are found on those of the other species. The clusters of white flowers are rather smaller than those of the others, and the fruit is dark blue, covered with a glaucous bloom, which remains on the branches until the beginning of winter. This is the common tree Viburnum of the Middle States, only reaching New England in the southwestern Connecticut.

The northern species, Viburnum lantago, the sheepberry or nannyberry, has broad and lustrous leaves and large clusters of creamy white flowers, which are followed by sweet and rather juicy nearly black or dark blue fruits. This is a common northern tree or tree-like shrub often twenty or thirty feet high and just now is a conspicuous feature in many parts of the Arboretum.

The third arborescent species, Viburnum cassinoides, is perhaps the most beautiful of all Viburnums. It is a southern tree which naturally does not grow further north than Southern Virginia and Southern Illinois; in the rich soil found along the borders of river bottom lands in Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas it is a tree often forty feet high with a tall straight trunk and wide spreading branches, forming a symmetrical round-topped head. The leaves of this tree are thick, dark green and more lustrous than those of other deciduous leaved Viburnums. The flowers are pure white and are borne in broad, flat topped clusters and the fruit is bright blue and covered with a glaucous bloom. This Viburnum can be distinguished from the other species by the rusty brown covering of hairs on the margins of the leaf stalks.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Effects of a Club Breakfast

By EDWARD T. STEWART

Dowling left his sleeping room at his club and went downstairs to breakfast. Scanning the menu, he saw, what he had seen every morning, that if he ordered a breakfast made up of different dishes he would have enough for half a dozen persons and at a great cost, so he gave his usual order, "Oatmeal and coffee." He ate a quarter of the oatmeal and left the table unsatisfied, muttering anathemas against the management for not serving a different kind of breakfast.

"I'm going into bachelor quarters," he said to himself, "and keep a cook."

Going to his office by a different route from the usual one, he passed a house on which was a sign, "To Let." It was a dainty edifice and would furnish him with just about the room he needed. Pushing the bell button, the summons was answered by a woman just as dainty as the house. She was in mourning. Dowling told her he was thinking of taking a house and was invited inside. After he had been informed as to the number of rooms, rental, etc., he remarked:

"I wonder that you can bear to part with such a pleasant little home."

Tears stood in the lady's eyes as she replied that she had been married a year before and her husband had died soon after the expiration of the honeymoon. She had not been able to tear herself away from the home in which she had been so happy and would not do so now, but she had found living alone unprofitable.

"The rental would be satisfactory to me," said Dowling. "May I look through the premises?"

The widow led him from the living room to the dining room. On the table was a breakfast that made his mouth water—a dish of fruit, a sliver of bacon, an omelet, with a little parsley to garnish it, and slices of toast. The coffee urn was of artistic shape, and the cups were Dresden china.

"I was just sitting down to breakfast when you called," said the lady.

"Isn't it an elaborate breakfast for one person?" asked Dowling.

"I eat little or nothing between breakfast and dinner," was the reply.

Dowling looked longingly at the viands.

"Madam," he said, "I have just breakfasted at my club. I have had my first course of oatmeal and am ready for the rest. If you will permit me to finish the meal here of these viands I will rent your house at the price you ask, with a liberal bonus."

The widow, seeing the hungry look on Dowling's face, assented and, setting a plate for him, seated herself before the coffee urn. There was no bountiful supply for a healthy man of thirty, but everything was so delicious that the quality made up for the lack of quantity.

"I supposed," she said, "that a club table comprised every delicacy, no matter how costly."

"'No matter how costly' is correct," replied Dowling. "As to delicacy, you have been misinformed."

Dowling spent an hour at the table, but the principal part of it was in chatting with the widow. When he rose to go he said that he would call again in the evening with a lease and the transaction would be completed.

"But you have not seen the upper part of the house," said the lady.

"I've seen the breakfast room and eaten in it," replied Dowling. "With such a delightful lower story those above cannot need an examination."

"When will you require possession?"

"That depends."

The widow would have asked "On what?" had not Dowling's look betrayed what was in his mind. She dared not go further, for his expression said plainly, "Just as soon as you will consent to remain with me here in wedlock."

Dowling called in the evening with a blank lease, which he filled in and signed, and the widow signed it, and then he handed her a check for the first month's rent, with an additional $10.

"What's the $10 for?"

Dowling didn't like to say that it was for the breakfast, so he said that it was to bind the bargain.

"I suppose," said the lady ruefully, "that I must move out at once."

"Remain as long as you like."

The terms did not suit the widow at all. She had no idea of remaining in her house while receiving rent for it, so she handed back the check. Dowling persuaded her to let the lease stand, payment of rent to begin when possession was given.

Meanwhile he spent most of his evenings calling on his landlady and within a fortnight proposed to her. She spent a week looking up his credentials, then threw off her mourning for her first husband and began work on a trousseau for the second. The lease that had been drawn up between them was torn up, and a document was drawn by an attorney to take its place. In marrying the widow relinquished a portion of the property left her by her husband. But Dowling was wealthy, and his wife retained the house in which he had found her.

When the invitation list for the wedding was prepared it was found that the pair had many mutual friends.

After the wedding Dowling was invited to breakfast with a friend at the club.

"Thank you very much," said Dowling. "I can get a better breakfast at home. It was a club breakfast that forced me out of club life."

REAL DOUGHNUTS

The Genuine Old Time Cake Never Had a Hole In It.

Why will some persons persist in speaking of the holes in doughnuts? The real, genuine article never had a hole in it. My memory goes back to 1840 and earlier, and my boyhood experience extended over a good part of Fairfield, Litchfield and New Haven counties, Conn., and Westchester county, N. Y., up to 1850. Our mothers of that time are to be regarded as the best authority on old fashioned American cookery.

The doughnut of that period consisted of bread dough raised overnight with hop meal cakes, or "emptins," sweetened with brown sugar, shortened a little and fried to a rich brown in leaf lard and were somewhat larger than a goose egg and about the same shape. These were known among the old Dutch New Yorkers and are described in Barber's "History of New York," published about 1840.

"Wonder cakes" were similar, with a little more shortening and sweetening. The dough was rolled about three quarters of an inch thick, cut into squares of three inches, with three slits, which were pressed apart into a fantastic shape, and were the idolised Sabbath day lunch, eaten under the maple tree or the horse shed between the morning and afternoon services.

I first remember crullers twisted and with holes when I came to New York in 1854. The very name of doughnut is suggestive of a round or oval shaped article.—C. P. Benedict

Why Disease Is Caused by Fear.

An eminent medical authority once made the statement that a great deal of contagion is due largely to nervous apprehension and fear. Terror causes radical changes in the secretions and nerve cells, and while the possibility is not the direct cause of disease it certainly is sufficient to put the person in the proper condition to be attacked by the prevailing malady.

It is a well understood fact that excessive anger infuses a toxic element into the secretions. Fear destroys the resistive capability and, as it were, lets down the drawbridge and makes way for the enemy.

IN DREAD OF CROUP.

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in frequent small doses at the first indication of trouble this treatment loosens the cough and affords relief and comfort. Its use should be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

Press On Wooden Ship Controversy

"Problem Should Be Threshed Out."

Columbia State:— "Let the whole problem be threshed out to the bottom, and then, without further delay, let the brains and brawn of American shipbuilding forces be devoted to building ships. This is no time for personal controversy."

"Lack of Force Somewhere."

Philadelphia Press:—"There is lack of force somewhere in Washington or this would not be permitted. Surely there is the authority in the administration to bring discipline into the Shipping Board in a time of crisis. All of the energy that should be at work in the building of much needed ships is being worse than wasted in fighting among themselves."

"Should Divide the Work."

Springfield Republican:— "If they will not certainly suffice then the only logical course is to divide the work and give the building of wooden ships to some able and enterprising man who will throw into it such enthusiasm and good will as General Goethals no doubt will display in the building of steel ships."

"Submarine Will Not Wait."

Charleston Post:— "Above all, the controversy ought to be brought to an end and the building of ships begun and carried on at high pressure. The submarines will not wait for an accommodation of the views of the conflicting elements of the Shipping Board."

"President Ought to Intervene."

Baltimore American: — "General Goethals may be right in his major proposition. He is right as to steel ships. But all others who favour the original plan of wooden ships while the steel are being constructed are not wrong. The President would do well to take hold of this matter personally and ask the resignation of those persons who, in his judgment, are not acting with the highest degree of serviceability to the nation."

NERVE SICK PEOPLE FEEL GREAT IN TWO DAYS

Ambition, Confidence and Stamina Return To Run Down People

FRANCE LOOKS TO US FOR AEROPLANE INCREASE

Semi-Official Statement Tells of Co-operation Against Germany's Big Spring Offensive.

PARIS, June 16.—A semi-official note concerning the strengthening of the flying branch of the allied service and the co-operation of America in this effort, says:

"Fantastic figures have been published regarding the increase of the Aviation Corps; but to realize what a great effort confronts us it is only necessary to see what the enemy is doing. Germany proposes to bring in line for the Spring of 1918 machines to the number of 3,500.

"In comparison with the thousands and millions with which certain writers have juggled, this seems feeble. It is, nevertheless, considerable, for it is not only a question of having so many machines. The number must be maintained, and, to maintain it, drafts calculated at 50 per cent., for the light, fast machines and at 30 per cent. for the heavy machines must be furnished monthly.

"Without giving the French figures, it may be said that they are considerable and comforting, and that construction will be powerfully helped by the American co-operation, which will enable France to maintain the mastery of the air."

"The help asked of the United States has already been arranged for in accordance with precise, exact plans and consists: First, of the despatch of a first contingent of trained pilots, who will complete their instruction in France and the despatch to America of a contingent of French instructors sent at the request of the United States; secondly, increased shipments from America of half-finished parts and the co-operation of American industry with French industry in certain French plants capable of vast development, and, finally, the production of engines and complete machines by America according to her own means and methods.

"This programme has been thoroughly worked out by the aeronautical authorities, and its application in America has been intrusted to Captain Andre Tardieu, (the French High Commissioner to the United States.)

"It is a formidable enterprise which, developing rapidly, will be carried through methodically.

SONNY.

Say, just put me down for another,
Though I've subscribed before!
And I'll be clean-out grateful,
If they jack up my tax some more!

As for paying higher prices
For things to eat and wear,
Or giving to units and hut funds—
S-sh! nothing can make me care!

'Cause Ma to-day got a letter
From Sonny, ("the lad's in camp!)
And in it came a picture—
Good looking? Oh, the young scamp!

Why, there he stands in his khaki,
And his regerler army hat,
With his gun held smart on his shoulder,
And him smiling, the cub, at that!

You see, he slipped out and 'listed
With some chums from his college frat—
Spoiled fox-trotters, mommers' darlings,
Auto speeders, useless, flat!

Ma, she named the kid "Llewellyn"
And she raised him a Faunleroy,
But, praise God, he's cut loose from the boob set,
And shows up an American boy!

Danger? Well, just let him face it—
If his granddads did, he can!
Uncle Sam may claim all I own, Sir,
For he's made our boy a man!

ROYAL GOWNS BRING $20,500

MUNICH, June 15. — The public auction of the wardrobe of Princess Louise of Belgium, daughter of the late King Leopold, for the benefit of her creditors, netted 82,000 marks, (at nominal exchange rates about $20,500) The sale was staged in a theatre and extende over several days. A bewildering array of gowns, lingerie, parasals, and millinery, the contents of seventy-two trunks, wer sold.

Princess Louise is the eldest daughter of the late King Leopold and the divorced wife of Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. Her love affairs, extravagances, and family quarrels have kept her constantly in the limelight.

Couldn't Keep Back Tears

WHEN THE NERVOUS SYSTEM BROKE DOWN—QUEER FEELINGS IN BACK OF HEAD CAUSED MUCH ALARM.

MIDLAND, Ont., June 5. — Collapse or break down of the nervous system leaves one in a most pitiable condition. Strong, healthy-looking women and men, too, will weep from helplessness and despair.

The case reported here was a most severe one as is indicated by the hysterical condition, the pains in the back of the head and the futility of the many treatments used.

This is further evidence that the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a reasonable length of time will positively restore the most exhausted nervous system.

Mrs. S. Sharp, of Midland, Ont., writes:

"About eleven years ago I had a serious nervous breakdown, and was so bad at times that I could not keep back the tears. I also had a queer feeling in the back of my head. Sometimes I seemed to be going backwards. I could not do any sewing, and finally could do no work at all. I tried other remedies and doctors' medicines but they only gave me temporary relief. Last fall I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had not taken very many until I found that I was getting better. I kept on taking them and am at present greatly improved. I am now able to do my work and they have strengthened me splendidly. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervous trouble of any kind."

British Make Some Successful Raids

RUSSIANS DEPORT PEACE AGITATORS

FIGHTING TO-DAY CONFINED TO RAIDING OPERATIONS

British Make Successful Raids at Several Points, Sir Douglas Haig Report States --- Standard Oil Tanker Is Sunk by a Submarine Off the French Coast

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, June 19.—Fighting on the British front was confined to raiding operations, according to Field Marshal Haig's report to-day.

"Southeast of Leverguier and in the neighbourhood of the Bapaume-Cambrai road we raided enemy positions at night," he said. "Several of the enemy were killed, dugouts were destroyed and eleven were taken prisoners."

PARIS (French Official), June 19.—In the Champagne there was a violent artillery fighting between Mont Blond and Mont Cornillet. A strong German counter attack on the positions we captured yesterday in this region broke up under our fire. The enemy suffered serious losses and left a number of prisoners in our hands.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Four men are missing and believed perished, following the torpedoing of the Standard Oil tanker John D. Archbold, 8,025 tons, off the French coast, the local offices of the Standard Oil Co. were advised to-day. Fourteen Americans in the crew were saved.

STOCKHOLM, June 19.—Germany is planning shortly to return a large number of Russian prisoners in the hope of increasing the separate peace sentiment in Russia, according to word received here to-day.

PETROGRAD, June 19.—After a heated debate featured by mingled cheers, cat calls and boos, the All-Russia Congress of workmen and Soldiers to-day voted 640 to 140 to support Minister Tseretelli in his deportation of the Swiss Serialist Robert Grimm, a peace agitator. Tseretelli declared the deportation was in Russia's best interest. "Brothers," he declared, "I do not charge that he is a German spy, but he is as bad as that because he is a peace agent of the German Government." Tseretelli's defence of his action was interrupted frequently by radical Serialists who jeered at his denunciation again such seperate peace agitators as Grimm. A storm of cheers greeted the announcement of the vote showing that the Congress approved the deportation.

LONDON, June 19.—Affairs in Austria have reached an acute crisis through a formal break by the Poles with the Government, according to despatches received here to-day via Switzerland. The fall of the Ministry and possibly even more far-reaching results may come, it was reported. One despatch describes a tumultuous scene in the Vienna Reichsrat when a Polish Deputy openly denounced Germany for misleading the Poles charging that hundreds had been executed. The Poles have formally announced they will not deal with the present cabinet.

PETROGRAD, June 19.—Germany is using alcohol and ink, instead of powder on the East front.

Despite all effort to stop communication between the two sets of trenches, German liquor seems to appear on the Russian side, and every morning there are hundreds of neatly printed or carefully written notes and letters deposited near the Russian trenches. Reports from the front detailed to-day an increasing betterment of morale among the Russian soldiers.

General Brusiloff (Commander-in-Chief of the army, who is on tour of the battle lines to stir his soldiers up to fighting spirit, and to restore rigid discipline, again is meeting with enthusiastic receptions everywhere. The Congress of the old Green Church party at Moscow to-day adopted resolutions firmly insisting that Russia should make war to the bitter end against Germany. The meeting telegraphed Minister of War Kerensky: "You are Russia's foremost outpost in the the gield of liberty." Ukranian delegates in the Blacia iron and coal mines have met and adopted resolutions declaring their independence and repudiation of Russia's war debts.

(Special Cable to The Examiner by William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 19.—That the Germans are keenly alive to the importance of the aid branch to military science, is revealed in a port found on a German officer captured recently. The report frankly admitted that the British and French hold the mastery of of the air. The Germans, it was asserted were unable to fly over the enemy lines and German balloons were forced to remain hidden on the ground. Thus, at decisive moments in the fighting the German artillery was blinded, while the Prussian infantry was harassed by war planes constantly swooping low and machine-gunning the men in the trenches. The German helplessness, the report continued, was aggravated by the knowledge that their artillery was unable to support them. The document declared that the Allied flyers so outnumbered and out-manoeuvred the German aeroplanes that the latter were even unable to hold the air above their own heavy artillery positions. The British and French machines constantly hovered overhead dropping bombs or giving their own artillery accurate ranges.

The German report also admitted bases, ammunition depots, supply columns, cavalry supporting the troops, divisions in reserve, everything and everybody were harassed by the Allied airmen often completely frustrating the defence at critical junctures. In short the German report was a confession that an army is powerless unless something approaching equality is maintained in the air.

Eight Reasons Why the People Should Support the Y.M.C.A.

Because it is the only resort in the city open to young men seven days in the week whose very agency is to influence in a helpful way the young men and boys of the community.

Because it is the best substitute for the home which thousands of young men are able to find, and because many homes need the supplemental influences at work in the Association.

Because it is an educating and restraining influence.

Because it furnishes recreation and provides for the physical, social and moral welfare of the young man.

Because men of any or of no religious belief, are welcome to its privileges.

Because is helps all churches, and does not interfere with any of them.

Because(like a college, the Association furnishes privileges much in excess of the amount of money received from those who enjoy them. Otherwise, a large proportion of the membership could not participate in them.

Because the Association is touching and helping a constituency greatly in excess of its membership. The reading room, religious meetings, lectures, time of the secretaries, etc., are at the disposal of the public, and are used liberally by a large number who could not pay for the privileges if a higher fee were charged.

Because it has made such a large contribution to the needs of the Soldiers in training, both at home and overseas.

GENERAL ELECTION WILL FOLLOW THE PASSING OF BILL

Second Reading on Conscription Measures Will Not Come to a Vote Until Beginning of Next Week

MANY WANT TO TALK

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 19.— General elections in Canada within two or three months, following an early passing of the military service bill by parliament, is the expectation of all sides here today. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Frank Oliver and Hon. Charles Marcil ,all prominent Liberals, have made their arguments for a referendum, though all from different angles, and it is said this morning that there are about fifty or more Liberals and Conservatives who want to say something about the question before a division is taken. This probably means that the second reading will not come to a vote this week. It is probable that a dozen or more straight conscriptionist Liberals will vote against Laurier's referendum resolution, but these will be about balanced by Conservative French members ,who will be in favour. The military service bill will likely carry with the Conservative majority about normal. All authorities concede that Sir Robert Borden will then go to the country for approval of the conscription measure, while the preliminaries are being arranged for its enforcement.

Only One Case in the Province

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Ont., June 19.— There are no prospects of a recurrence of an outbreak of infantile paralysis in Ontario this summer," stated Dr. John W. S. McCullough, Provincial Health Officer to-day. "One case at Guelph is the only reported in the province."

Last year there were seven deaths from the disease, and in one month as many as 76 cases were reported.

MILLION DOLLAR QUEBEC BLAZE

Special to The Examiner.

SOREL, Que., June 19.—Fire, which started at one o'clock this morning, did damage to the extent of one million dollars, and for a time threatened to wipe out the entire town, before being finally extinguished at seven a.m. The Canada Steamships lines were the chief losers. Their shops and several small vessels were destroyed.

PTE. ALLEN WOUNDED

Only Son of Rev. Canon Allen on Casualty List — Recruiting Figures for the Past Two Weeks

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Pte. Thomas Allen, only son of the Rev. Canon Allen of Millbrook, is officially reported wounded in to-day's list. Pte. Allen, who is widely known in Peterborough, having been a law student here for some time, went overseas with one of the University Companies to reinforce the Princess Pats, and has been at the front with that famous Battalion for many months. He has been sent to hospital in England.

Although the city fathers had motor cars in line and were ready for a reception to the party of six Peterborough soldiers who were expected yesterday afternoon, the squad failed to materialise. The only returned soldier on the train was Pte. W. Smethurst of the 93rd Battalion, who has been sent home for duty. Aldermen Dobbin, Duncan and Worth, and City Clerk Armstrong were at the station to represent the city.

OTTAWA, June 19.—Enlistments for the last half of May throughout Canada numbered 3,665, making the total for the month 7,608, and he total since war broke out 121,767. The enlistments by military districts included the following: London 291, Toronto 698, Ottawa and Kingston, 456; Montreal 493, Quebec 12.

KINGSTON, June 18.— While riding in the eastern end of Barriefield camp early Sunday morning, Lieut.-Col. G. H. Gillespie, was thrown from his horse and knocked unconscious. He was carried to the Field Hospital where a medical examination showed that he was badly scratched around the side of his face but otherwise uninjured. The horse, which caused the accident by stepping into a hole, was uninjured.

CONSULT THE PEOPLE FIRST ABOUT CONSCRIPTION SAYS SIR WILFRID

Debate on Second Reading of the Bill Yesterday — Laurier Introduces Referendum Amendment, Motion Seconded by Hon. Frank Oliver

YESTERDAY'S DEBATE

OTTAWA, June 18.—"That the further consideration of this bill be deferred until the principle thereof has, by means of a referendum, been submitted to and approved by the electors of Canada." This was the amendment moved in the Commons to-day by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and seconded by Hon. Frank Oliver, to the second reading of the conscription bill. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in an address of an hour and a half, eloquently presented his reasons for first consulting the people before forcing through a new and vital change affecting every individual in the nation. Hon. Frank Oliver, the first man in Parliament to advocate the adoption of conscription in Canada, one of whose sons at the front has given his life for the cause which Mr. Oliver has at heart, based his argument more on the inherent defects and injustices of the bill itself and the lack of public confidence in arbitrary and precipitate action by a moribund Parliament and a discredited administration.

"I am very firm in the belief, I am unshaken in it," declared Sir Wilfrid, "that when the voice of every man has spoken, the aggregate will be the voice, the right voice and the right solution. At all events it will have this effect: that it will be the final arbiter and will put an end to the agitation which is now going on. It will bring about harmony now much shaken, and it will be a vindication of that spirit of democracy which we hope and believe must be the future social inspiration of the world. The solution of our present problem is to appeal to our people, to appeal to them to lay aside passions and prejudice and to ask them to make a sacrifice of something that they hold dear upon the altar of our common country."

THINK BILL WILL PASS.

In presenting his motion and making his plea for what he believed would be ultimately in the best interests of the war and in the best interests of national unity, Sir Wilfrid made it clear that, on the issue, each man must decide according to his own individual conscience, and that there were conscientious differences of opinion as to the best course of pursue, on his own side of the House as well as on the Government side. Some members on the Liberal side will vote against the referendum amendment and for the principle of the conscription bill. Some members on the Government side will vote for the referendum and against the conscription bill. According to present indications,

Public Meeting To Discuss Fire Protection

At the request of Mr. J. J. Turner, President of the Board of Trade, and Mr. Breyfogle, Chairman of the Manufacturers' Section of the Board, Mayor Duffus has called a public meeting for Wednesday evening, June 20th in the Council Chamber, to discuss the question of fire protection. The chief points to be discussed will be in connection with the strength of the fire department, and the advisability of having a pumper attachment on the new piece of motor apparatus which is about to be purchased. All manufacturers, merchants, professional men, the Trades and Labour Council and other bodies interested, are urged to be present at this important meeting.

Trewern Cheese Factory Completely Wrecked by Boiler Explosion

Mr. John Chittick, Owner and Cheese Maker, Was Killed Instantly and Many Cheese Were Lost or Damaged --- Parts of Boiler Hurled Hundred Yards Away and Smashed Rail Fence --- Explosion Followed by Fire That Completed the Destruction

SCENE OF RUIN IN PEACEFUL COUNTRYSIDE

WHEN—At 11.40 a.m. to-day.

CAUSE—Boiler explosion.

THE KILLED—Mr. John Chittick, owner of the factory and cheese maker.

Trewern Cheese Factory, on the eighth line of Smith, was completely demolished, and its owner, Mr. John Chittick, instantly killed, by the explosion of the boiler iff the power generating plant, shortly before the noon hour to-day.

With the suddenness of a bolt from the sky and without the least warning the building simply lifted from its foundation, the sides blew out, not a stone was left upon a stone, and the wooden framework was scattered in splinters about the adjacent fields of wheat and oats.

Trewern factory was located at the corner of the eigth concession of Smith, and what is known as the middle line. At fifteen minutes to twelve, this morning, Mr. Chittick gave his assistant, Albert Carter, certain instructions about watching the vats that were filled with the exceptionally copious run of milk that has marked this season's operations. He went from the main room into the boiler-room and had been gone only a few minutes.

PEACEFUL CONTRAST.

It was near the dinner hour, the work of reducing the milk to curds was progressing rapidly, and Carter, the young assistant cheese-maker, was absorbed in the greatly increased labour that had characterized this Spring's work. The machinery was rattling along as it has done for years, churning the deep vats of milk that were deeper than ever in this season of greater production. Outside, a fresh, warm breeze swayed the fields of wheat. Pastoral peace and contentment pervaded the factory corners. Down the road a few hundred yards a few men were engaged in filling the ruts with gravel.

EYE WITNESS' STORY.

One of these statute labourers was Melville Harrison, a lad of about seventeen. He had come up to the factory for a drink of water, and returning, was seventy-five yards away.

"The explosion was just like the crack of a cannon," he said.

"I turned around, and the air seemed full of boards, and pieces of things. The walls seemed to be blown out and the roof and other parts upward."

With a rattle and clatter, the debris fell in all directions, and all was quiet again. Carter scrambled from the west corner of the ruins, were a piece of wall had afforded him protection from the falling beams and scantlings. He was covered with soot that had been sprayed over him by the escaping steam. His hair was thick with dust, and there were abrasions on his arm and about his head caused by flying splinters of wood.

FOUND EMPLOYER DEAD.

"There wasn't a sign of any trouble," said Carter. "The explosion did not seem so very loud to me, but at the same instant steam blew into the room, the walls fell about me, and I really did not know for a moment what had taken place. I found a way out, and started to look for Mr. Chittick. He was lying dead across the shaft of the engine."

DEBRIS CAUGHT FIRE.

Scarcely had the echoes of the explosion faded, and the last splinter fallen, when a fire appeared in the debris. The wind fanned the first flames and before farmers arrived to render assistance their efforts were unavailing. The wreckage was quickly licked up.

In the meantime, Mr. Chittick's body was removed by Carter and Mrs. Chittick who had hurried from her home a short distance east of the factory. She had just prepared dinner and was about to partake of it.

Mr. Hendren, Lakefield undertaker, was called to take charge.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

The extreme force of this explosion may be realized from the fact that the building was literally reduced to kindling wood. Parts of the fence across the road were blown down, and the stone foundation scattered in all directions. Like most cheese factories, Trewern was situated at the roadside. In the field north of it the chimney stack was stuck in the ground several hundred feet away. Nearby were long, jagged pieces of board that appeared above the grain where they had been tossed from the building. Bits of iron and brick and shingles strewn around were mute evidences of the tragedy.

BOILER BLOWN APART

On one side of the road to the south a chunk of the round top of the boiler had been wrenched away

THE KAISER NEXT.

The Kaiser is posing now as a Warrior, the King maker. He declares that "the nailed fist of Germany will restore you"—ex-King Constantine of Greece—"to your throne, with further aid from Almighty God." This blend of brag and blasphemy comes naturally from the mad Emperor, and shows that he is wedded to his delusion and his dream of world domination. We can afford to laugh at such sayings, so sternly contradicted by facts. The Kaiser, far from being a King maker, is a King destroyer. His machinations have robbed the Czar of Russia of his crown and driven the Greek King from his throne, and German intrigue is preparing the same fate for the Sultan of Turkey, and events are moving to oust the Kaiser himself from the rulership, he has so grossly abused. The Kaiser comes next. Not all his brag and bluster, uttered in the midst of closing in disaster, will fore one moment dissive the world, though it may help keep the bandage upon the eyes of the deluded German people.

Whistling to keep up courage is the favourite expedient of the beaten and cornered or doubting man.

WORSE THAN A GENERAL ELECTION.

Public sentiment has been, and still is, against a Dominion general election in war time. Though his sentiment is obviously justified, it seems there is not so much injurious interference in Canada's war work from election excitement. During the war six out of the nine provinces have had elections, with one—in Saskatchewan—scheduled for June 26th, and no noticeable effect has been made upon our belligerent operations. It is probable that the embroglio, brawl, reaction, now raging at Ottawa, has more effect in interfering with Canada's war work than all the elections that have been held. And so harmful, so hostile to our work in the war is the situation that has been precipitated, and now exists at Ottawa, that even a general election could not more effectively paralyse national interest and work in the war.

At the very time that national unity was an indispensable condition, the most intensely disuniting situation has been created. The fur has been rubbed the wrong way in half a dozen ways. Partisan spirit has been quickened to a point seldom reached in this party-ridden country. The two great parties—though that is a minor matter except in its interference with national effort—have had their followers more or less unsettled; some Liberals seem to have strayed from the party path, and many strong Conservatives have been at odds with the government. For instance—taking them alphabetically—Messrs. Bennett, Burnham—"off again" and "on again"—Cochrhutt and Currie heretofore the most rabid and unswerving supporters of the government—not forgetting Sir Sam Hughes—have been as open and hostile in criticism of the government as would be expected from an unhallowed Grit. If its policy of unconfidence and unappreciation of the government is so strong in the ranks of the government supporters that it breaks out in such prominent spots, there are some weak spots in the government fold that shelters this faithful.

This may be regarded as purely party matter, but rightly regarded it is a matter of national concern. Canada at this crisis has at present only the present government to look to for accomplishment of a character that will help Canada do her adequate share of the war, and if the government doesn't fully command the confidence of its sworn supporters, will not be able to pass conscription, as against with the Nationalist wing, of the government following bought with a price—$5 millions for Dreadnoughts—ready to fly off the handle. Coalition failed, largely because Sir Robert Borden "quesred" the situation, by a previous precipitate declaration of a partial conscription proposal—something that might not have led to so much confusion if it had been preceded by a coalition. But the situation has been created and we must wrestle with it now the best we may. And the outlook for Canada's dignified or profitable exit from the impasse is not inviting or agreeable.

It seems an awful pity after Canadian soldiers bringing so much glory to Canada, to have the full milk pail kicked over by the conscription cow.

CANADA FOR CANADIANS.

The International Nickel Company of New Jersey has a record of net profits of thirteen and a half million dollars for the year ended March last. That is a large profit to make out of purely Canadian raw material, and emphasizes what this country loses in large part when it permits its native resources to go out of the country in an unmanufactured condition. The government, or governments, of this country may not have prevented altogether the ruinous diversion of our wealth represented by by the refinement of Canadian nickel outside of Canada. But the demand for home refinement has not been without result. The International Nickel Company is building at Port Colborne a refinery at a cost of five million dollars which is expected to be in operation the beginning of the coming year. The seems a large investment in a plant, but it bears a small proportion — about one-third — to one year's profits of the company upon the refining of Canadian nickel ore.

To the ayman, it seems that the principle and fact of home refinement of nickel, might be made practically inclusive to Canada. If this is not practicable the beginning made in the matter of home refinement of nickel should be used as a precedent for a national if not governmental policy of home manufacture of all our native resources and products that practically lend themselves to home manufacture to the ultimate form of commerce.

After the war is over we shall need to realise upon every dollars's worth of our resources to the largest possible point. There will be need to utilise labour and capital in the most extensive possible way to promote the recovery of the ground we have lost by the diversion of our means and energies to the winning of the war.

Senator Frederic Nicholls has introduced a resolution into the Senate, requiring the appointment of a committee to report upon the best means of promoting and conserving our overseas or foreign trade. It seems the logical thing to this end to produce or recreate as much of our resources as possible for export and to make it of the highest value, with the incidental profit to labour and industry generally,, by manufacture, refinement or other treatment, at home. The preparation for such a policy, the employment of capital and brains, and skill and labour, promise profitable demand for whatever home products we create. The countries of Europe, industrially and materially paralyzed by the war, will be in need of nearly all this country can produce and furnish. The demand for an important number of articles and materials will be great and, according to the law of supply and demand, at profitable figures.

It is probable that the government will cooperate with private, capitalistic, industrial and commercial enterprse in promoting increase of foreign trade. It should do so with good results. It is, however, more obviously the duty of the government to cooperate with, if not initiate, measures to bring about to an intensified degree and extent, home manufacture to the point beyond what is usually meant and understood by home manufacture.

Our national resources, our timber, our pulp wood, our minerals of various kinds, our grains and other things, are capable of an immensely increased actual and exportable value by the various processes required to reduces them to the approximately and industrially practicable form, within our own bounds, by the capital and the skill and labour of our own people. Canada for Canadians is what our soldiers are fighting for on foreign soil. The battle of Canada for Canadians is to be fought out by our own industrial legions on our own soil.

It seems a pity to inter a live man like Hon. Frederic Nicholls in the Senatorial necropolis. The government needs some new blood just like him, and having made him a Senator it can utilise his services without the necessity of a confirmatory election.

THE WAR AND JUVENILE CRIME

One of the saddest features of the war in Europe has been the increase in crime reported among the juvenile population in all the countries of the war area. In Great Britain, at the end of last year, more than one-third more folk under the age of eighteen were charged with punishable offences than during a corresponding period before the war. In some British cities, as in Manchester and Edinburgh, the increase in juvenile crime was actually fifty per cent. or more.

A similar state of affairs in this regard is reported from Germany, only that there the conditions seem to be ever so much worse. Twice as many minors were in process of law before the courts in Berlin in 1916 as before the war. That the trouble was not confined to North Germany, but was countrywide, is evidenced by the statistics from Munich, in Bavaria, where during a recent three months as many children were brought to tiral in the courts as during a full twelve months before the war.

The reasons for this sad social development have been traced by experts to the disturbed family conditions, the lack of paternal control, the fact that mother so often has to be absent from home as a wage earner, the war time spirit, affecting especially the boys, and the general interference with regular life. Doubtless we in the United States will not be able entirely to avoid a like deterioration of juvenile conduct. To know what happened in Europe, though it was utterly unanticipated, will serve as an incentive to guard against similar developments. — New York Herald.

CONSULT THE PEOPLE FIRST ABOUT CONSCRIPTION

the referendum amendment will be defeated, and if the Government decides to force the measure through it will probably succeed. After that, the verdict of the people in general election will decide to whom to entrust its Administration.

SIR WILFRID'S ARGUMENT

In making his argument for a referendum, Sir Wilfrid did not commit himself for or against the principle of conscription. He confined the logic of his argument purely to the subject matter of his amendment, leaving the merits of the bill itself and the necessity for its introduction to be discussed at a later stage. He emphasized the constitutional issue involved, noted the sudden change of policy on the part of the Government, despite previous pledges and assurances, commented upon the difference in method pursued in Great Britain, explained some of the reasons for the comparatively small number of recruits from Quebec, and noted particularly the results of the Nationalist propaganda and teaching in Quebec.

The close alliance between the Conservatives and the Nationalists in 1911, he said, had elected twenty-seven Nationalists to the present Parliament, each one pledged against participation in the Empire's wars. After that it was not surprising that when the Government appealed to Quebec to enlist there should be only a lukewarm response.

SAYS PARLIAMENT HAS RIGHT

Sir George Foster, who followed Sir Wilfrid, argued that the principle of the militia act gave the present Parliament a mandate to invoke compulsory service. The failure of voluntary enlistment and the need of more men justified the immediate adoption of conscription. Parliament had the right and the duty to take courageous action and give the people the right lead. Once the law was invoked he believed it would be obeyed in Quebec, as elsewhere. A referendum was at best "but a dilatory miserable evasion of responsibility." It would not settle the question, for a new Parliament would have to deal with it anyway, referendum or no referendum. He twitted Sir Wilfrid with not committing himself at all as to whether or not the needs of the situation demanded the adoption of conscription, and he maintained that if, during the past three years, Sir Wilfrid and his French-speaking supporters in the House had given a clear and incisive call to their compatriots in Quebec the present situation would not have arisen.

DEMANDS AN ELECTION.

The debate was continued by Mr. Stevens of Vancouver and Hon. Charles Marcil. The latter demanded dissolution and an election as the only means of satisfactorily settling the whole problem. The debate will last probably for the balance of the week. Crowded galleries and a full attendance of members throughout the day testified to the intense interest which is being taken in the debate and its outcome.

SIR ROBERT URGES LEAST POSSIBLE DELAY.

Sir Robert Borden spoke for only twelve minutes in moving the second reading of the bill. The Prime Minister was content to rest his case practically on the argument he had advanced in introducing the bill. The only new matter he presented was the placing on the record of Hansard of some of the census statistics tabled last week as to the estimated number of men of military age still in Canada. He closed with the plea that the bill should be passed with the least possible delay, in order that the help needed at the front should be given as speedily as possible.

In opening, Sir Robert noted that, in view of the full explanation of the provisions of the bill and of the reasons for its introduction which he had given to the House on the first reading, it would not be necessary for him to speak at any length on the present occasion. He emphasized the point he had elaborated upon the introduction of the bill, namely, that the principle of compulsory service invoked in the present bill was precisely the same principle embodied in the militia act, passed in 1868 and renewed and affirmed by Parliament in 1904. The chief difference between the present bill and the militia act lay in the fact that under the latter act the selection of men for miliary service, in case of emergency, was by ballot or blind chance. Under the present bill, the method of selection, from one of intelligent selection, based upon a consideration of the needs and of the present conditions of the country.

"We have endeavored to frame the bill," declared Sir Robert, "so that the tribunals who are to make that selection shall be absolutely above suspicion. If suggestions can be made to us, from either side of the House, the adoption of which would seem to surround the bill with better safeguards, while not detracting from its efficiency, we shall be only too glad to consider them."

ESTIMATES OF TOTAL MAN-POWER.

Sir Robert then proceeded to place on the record the estimates as to total man-power between the ages of twenty and forty-five, as prepared by Census Commissioner Coats. The main totals, the Premier stated, were as follows: Total number of unmarried men, 760,453; married men, 823,096; between the ages of twenty and twenty-four, both inclusive, single men, 319,610; married men 66,247; between the ages of twenty-five and twenty-nine, single men, 205,125; married men, 165,369; between the ages of thirty and thirty-four, single men, 112,011; married men, 198,328. These gave a total, both married and unmarried, between ages of twenty and thirty-four, both inclusive, 1,066,690. Between the ages of twenty and thirty-four the total number of single men was estimated at 638,746, and the total number of married men between those ages 429,994.

The Premier noted that allowance must be made, of course, for deducting from those totals those who would not be physically fit for military service, but, according to the record of those who had been rejected on volunteering so far, the percentage would be about twenty-five. In addition, possibly ten per cent. would have to be deducted, representing those discharged as being unfit for service after having been taken on.

"I conclude," declared the Premier, "by commending the bill to the House. It has been prepared with great care, and with an earnest desire to do justice to all classes of the people, and I do very earnestly hope that the opinion of the House with regard to it may be expressed with the least possible delay, in order that whatever aid and support this country is to give to the gallant men who are fighting for Canada at the front will be given with the least possible delay."

A TERRIBLE NEW EXPLOSIVE IS DISCOVERED

"Terrorall" Said To Be 10,000 Times as Powerful As Dynamite

Since July, 1914, every important country in the world has spent a great deal of time and energy in discovering, inventing and perfecting various means of destruction; the main aim being, to make them as tremendously destructive as possible. The artillery used to-day is of a size and power undreamed of before the war, and their projectiles have an explosive force unbelievable to the uninitiated, a single shell making a hole thirty to forty feet deep and as many feet in diameter. Only recently, 1,000,000 pounds of high explosive have been used in a single operation, arranged in a series of enormous blasts at a depth of 70 feet below the German trenches and covering a front of over ten miles. They were all touched off together, blowing the entire German fortifications into eternity. At just about this time, the vice-president of the American Medico-Pharmaceutical League, with his son, discovered an explosive which makes the present most powerful explosive seem weak and puny by comparison. They were experimenting with a substitute for gasoline when they accidentally discovered this new terror. They claim that it is 10,000 times as powerful as dynamite—that five grains of it would wreck the Woolworth building, which is the highest office building in the world. Or, a bomb of it dropped from an aeroplane would wreck an entire city covering ten square miles. They say that all necessary ingredients may be easily obtained around New York and New Jersey. They call it, aptly, "Terrorall." Let's hope that the allies get quantities of it pretty soon.

Age brings a man knowledge of many things he would rather not know.

CANADA CAN OBTAIN QUANTITY NEEDED

Question of Coal Supply Is Distribution by Transportation Companies

BITUMINOUS SHORTAGE.

Dominion Consumer Advised to Write to Controller as to Requirements.

OTTAWA, June 17.—Mr. C. A. McGrath, controller of Canadian Fuel Supply, has returned from a Washington, where he has been consulting with the American fuel controller, Mr. Peabody. Mr. McGrath says that the American authorities are dealing with the fuel situation in the thorough manner in which the difficult problem requires. They have opened a bureau and obtained the services of mining and transportation authorities. Mr. McGrath states that at Washington he found a friendly feeling for Canada and a disposition to deal fairly with the Dominion in the matter of fuel with which he is concerned. Mr. McGrath does not think that Canada will have any great difficulty in obtaining the quantity of anthracite required. If the transportation companies are able to distribute it promptly to the points in the Dominion where it is required.

MORE DIFFICULT PROBLEM

The supplying of bituminous coal presents a more difficult problem. The shortage of Montreal's supply from Nova Scotia and the curtailment of the production in Western Canada, due to labour trouble, have made it necessary for this country to draw more largely on the United States than last year. While production in the United States had not materially declined, the demand there has increased.

Mr. McGrath says that he requires immediately a precise statement of bituminous requirements of Canada for the coming Winter. He desires every Canadian consumer of bituminous coal immediately to write him at Ottawa, standing the quantity of coal he had been consuming and the quantity he will require during this Summer and the coming Winter. Total quantities and the monthly requirements should be stated. Any consumer who wants to ensure his supply is advised to state his requirements without delay and state them accurately and honestly.

Any man who drinks is sure to marry a woman with a delicate sense of smell.

HUNDRED THOUSAND HIT SUNDAY'S TRAIL

Evangelistic Meetings Covering Ten Weeks in New York Closed

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Rev. William A. Sunday preached his farewell sermon in New York last night, and will start for his home in Winona Lake, Ind., to-day, where he will take a few days' rest before going to the Pacific coast.

The free will offering up to ten o'clock last night totalled $144,000. Cheques received to-day will considerably increase this amount. All this money will go to war charities, the Red Cross and the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Sunday preached to more than 70,000 persons in the three services yesterday in the tabernacle. The total number of "trail hitters" at three services was 7,228. This is believed to be more than double the number that have hit the trail in any one day in any other city in which Mr. Sunday has conducted campaigns. The grand total of converts for the entire ten weeks was 98,264.

When Mr. Sunnday had delivered his last word last evening most of the 25,000 persons in the tabernacle began to sing, led by the choir. After Mr. Sunday had grasped the hand of the last of the trail hitters, bowed, and stepped back from the platform, the throng jumped upon benches, cheered, applauded, waved hats and handkerchiefs and a mighty chorus of voices took up the shout: "Good by, Billy, God bless you."

Many women and men wept. Probably the scene was most accurately described by one of the members and supporters of the campaign here, who said: "It is the most remarkable religious demonstration ever seen in New York.

Throughout the evening service extra details of police were kept busy regulating the throng of 20,000 persons who were unable to get into the tabernacle when the doors were closed shortly after 7 o'clock.

Fry's
A FATIGUE DUTY

The nurse who is "just ready to drop" will find a wonderful stimulant in FRY'S delicious Cocoa. Of course it feeds every tired muscle—it nourishes bone and nerve—but it really does more. FRY'S possesses in full measure that subtle "spirit of cocoa"—theobromine—which is one of the most beneficial stimulants known. So you see FRY'S is a tonic as well as a nourishing food.

THE "Y" HELPS PETERBORO' AT SMALL COST

Last year the "Y" in Peterboro helped 775 young men and boys who were in its membership during the year, and 1,600 soldiers, to whom free privileges were granted.

It provided its help for 365 days, daytime and evening. On an average the "Y" was open 12 hours a day—4,380 hours in the year.

The "Y" cost to run last year $8,600—or about $1.95 per hour.

That is: 1 cent per hour provided help for 13 individuals.

It gave physical training to 430 men and boys. On a calculation, 2,200 hours were devoted in the year to the physical upbuilding of this number of men and boys.

The money-worth of such training cannot be reckoned. Men and boys are helped to do more and better work every day, now and for the future, in school and factory and shop and office. They are made better able to ward off disease and less dependent on doctors.

All told last year 595 hours were devoted to study-classes in connection with the High School Clubs and the Canadian Standard Efficiency work.

All told, 275 boys and men took these classes and reckon who can, the benefit to them of this study.

Such study makes men and lads better workers, keener and more diligent, in the offices, schools, shops and factories where they work. So those who profit by their work are better rewarded at no increase of cost to them.

And always, in class play and leisure, the influences are wholesome and inspiring. Boys and youths are taught leadership, initiative, resolution. They are encouraged to live and speak clean, to be neighborly in the true sense, to eschew bad habits, and to make their lives count for good. They take all this discipline and all these ideas into their homes and places of work, to the enrichment of those they serve.

Can you count the value of all this help the "Y" gives? Let us emphasize it:

These young men and lads helped by the "Y" at such very small cost live in your homes, work in your shops factories and offices, and you get the benefit.

You get back in dollars and cents many times the cost per individual of keeping the "Y" going.

These boys and young men pay the big end of the cost of the "Y" out of their own pockets. The light end of the load falls on you.

SO IT means that the part the citizens of Peterborough are asked to contribute to make up the shortage in operating the "Y" is very, very small when reduced to unit costs—per hour, per individual, per contributor.

Those who own motor cars in Peterborough spend on them each year more than it costs to keep the "Y" going. Peterborough's citizens spend in cigar stores more money in a year that they are asked to contribute for the upkeep of the "Y" and so we could go on.

The point of it is:

The "Y" does a work in Peterborough, for Peterborough, of incalculable worth at a very small cost when reckoned in relation to individuals, and the fruitage of the "Y's" work of benefit to the citizens of Peterborough from a dollars and cents point of view is real and many times greater than the cost.

IT should be a real joy—to many it IS a real joy—to contribute to the maintenance of our "Y." Their gifts and your gifts are invested in a work that makes young men and boys strong, clean, and earnest.
But beyond the joy side of it is the business side. We put our appeal for continued help before the citizens of Peterboro as a STRAIGHT BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

Yours For a Greater Peterborough

TEACH WOMEN TO CAN FOOD

In order that the housewives of Ontario, whether in city or country, may be taught how to conserve by canning their surplus stock of vegetables as they come in during the summer, the Women's Institute branch of the Department of Agriculture has arranged to supply instructors in the canning of fruit and vegetables without cost for either services or travelling expenses to women's institutes of any other organization of women interested in the campaign for thrift and economy.

The demonstrators, 15 of whom are now available, will remain two days in one centre, giving instruction in canning. The organization to which the demonstrator is supplied, is only required to furnish a suitable building for instructional work, a stove, a wash boiler for sterilizing purposes, and suitable vessels in which to cook the fruit and vegetables. The department supplies all the other equipment, except the glass jars for holding the fruit. The vegetables in which canning demonstrations will be given include beets, peas, beans, corn and others of a perishable nature.

Already applications are coming in from all parts of the Province for instructors; seven applications coming from Hamilton alone. Mr. Geo. A. Putnam, Superintendent of Institutes branch, is in charge of the work.

FOR MILADY

Lace is used on hats.
Pique waist coats are very smart.
Printed voiles are great favorites.
Organdie is used to trim foulard.
Hat braids are made of felt and straw.
Bridesmaids' frocks are made of organdie.
Plain nets are much employed for dresses.
Pongee is a favorite material for neckwear.
Lingerie is apt to have borders of black dots.
A touch of white distinguishes the new umbrella.
Very fine batiste makes a dainty summer frock.
Military capes with white vestees are fashionable.
Monk, draped and scarf collars are in favor on coats.
Filet and Valenciennes laces are still the favorites.
There will be many fabric shoes worn this summer.
Summer furs are actually the richest ever shown.
Net is the material most used for graduation dresses.
Some wash dresses have short-waisted waistcoats.
The millinery trend is towards the fly of the tailored hat.
tailored style of hat.
Silk dresses are by no means out of favor for summer.
Edge your white satin collar and cuffs with figured silk.

The newest sports blouse is made of men's silk shirting.
Picot-edged velvets appear on the rougher types of hats.
A new veiling has a design made of ostrich feather flues.
Plain white cottons and linens are favored for wash skirts.
Garden hats are trimmed with vegetables made of ribbon.
Metal grays and olives promise to be still more fashionable.

WOMEN KEEP YOUNG CENSUS-TAKERS FIND

NEW YORK, June 18.—New York women are outgrowing their aversion to telling their ages.

More than 1,500,000 of them, from sixteen to fifty years of age, are required in registering in the state military census to tell just how old they are.

Mrs. Ruth K. Gardiner, assistant supervisor of registration in the 23rd Assembly District, says the women always look five years younger than the ages they give.

"It's because the women to-day know the art of keeping young," said Mrs. Gardiner. "I have not come across one, from the society woman to the poor mother with her babe in her arms, who looked as old as the age she gave."

On the other hand, Census Director Goodrich said two women telephoned him one night that they "couldn't sleep because of the answer they gave to the age question."

Stimulants are more effective given hot.

Never put a bandage on so tight that it will interfere with the circulation.

Carrots scrubbed clean and shredded raw are good added to a hot dish like soup.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

1,745,000 TONS IS THE TOLL OF U-BOAT CAMPAIGN

This is Estimated as Britain's Loss Since February 17

322 LARGE VESSELS

NEW YORK, June 18.—An Associated Press despatch from Washington to-day says:

The German submarine toll of British merchant ships since February 17, as shown here to-day, is 322 vessels of more than 1,600 tons and 136 of less than 1,600 tons. British steam fishing vessels sunk in that period numbered 78. Records for sailing vessels are incomplete, but a three weeks' total was 78.

Submarines in the period given attacked 299 ships unsuccessfully, and the weekly percentage of unsuccessful attacks has ranged from 51 to 75. During the last week given, the seven days ending with June 9, it was 58.

Arrivals and sailings in British ports since the intensive submarine campaign began have averaged about 2,500 but these include Channel sailings.

The British figures do not give the tonnage of vessels sunk, but officials here say 5,000 tons probably would be a fair average for vessels of more than 1,600 tons destroyed. Computing the total at that average and putting the average of the smaller ships at 1,000 tons, the total loss during slightly less than four months' submarine warfare would reach 1,745,000 tons, or about 250,000 tons less than the entire world's shipping output during 1916.

GOOD WORK BY FORMER LOCAL BOY

Billy Pritchard's Dancing, However Failed To Save "Oh! Cecil."

An old Peterborough boy "Billy" Pritchard contributed the best feature of the musical comedy "Oh! Cecil" at the Grand Opera House last night. He offered a singing and dancing specialty between acts and his encentric dance, which was clever and new, earned the most enthusiastic applause of the evening. Mr. Pritchard also showed his versatility by doing good work as a comedian during the play.

On the whole "Oh! Cecil" was a disappointment. The musical numbers fell flat, because there was no one who could sing and the comedy was thin and insipid. At times the company had more people asleep than Dr. Zell Hunt put away in his biggest demonstration last week.

Quick, Painless Way to Remove Hairy Growths

(Helps to Beauty).

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes, rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package.

ACCUSED OF MANY CRIMES.

Wholesale Killing is Charged Against Connecticut Woman.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 19.—Characterized by the district attorney as the "proprietoress of a murder factory," Mrs. Emmy E. Archer-Gilligan, went on trial here to-day, charged with the murder of her husband and four inmates of the home for the aged which she operated in Windsor.

Mrs. Gilligan's system was simplicity itself, according to the district attorney. She contracted to keep aged persons in bed and board the balance of their natural lives for $1,000 per person and then boosted her profits by killing off her patrons by poison, he charged. He also alleged she killed her second husband for his life insurance.

Mrs. Gilligan pleaded "not guilty." The trial is expected to last about two weeks. The state charges she has been murdering people systematically for five years.

It should never be forgotten that fruit and vegetable salts are absolutely necessary to the human system.

WORK OUT CHANGES TO MAKE DIVORCE CHEAPER

King's Proctor Will Take Evidence Throughout Country — Legal Fees Fixed

OTTAWA, June 18.—With a view to decreasing the high cost of divorces, the legal lights of Parliament and of the Department of Justice are at present working out some amendments and changes in the procedure as it at present obtains. Out on the prairies men have been saving up money to secure the severance of marital entanglements which exist only by law, and in many cases have been unable to afford the expense, even after their former mate has long been absent from them. The chief difficulty is connected with the bringing of witnesses to Ottawa and the payment of legal fees.

It is proposed that a King's proctor will be appointed in connection with the Parliamentary Divorce Committee, that provision will be made for the taking of evidence at various points throughout the country, and that such evidence may be presented here by the King's proctor, the presence of the petitioner, and probably of the respondent only being required. It is also proposed that legal fees be fixed by law.

BACKYARD GARDENS LOOKING FINE

Crop Prospects Are Very Promising — Field Crops Good

Not in a number of years have the crop prospects in Peterborough County been more promising than they are at present. The weather has not been too hot and the rains have been ample. What applies to the farm crops applies to the backyard garden also. The growth is fairly heavy and above all is steady and not too rank. Both garden and field crops are looking fine and if weather conditions continue favourable a bumper crop is assured.

EIGHTEEN NEW GRAIN ELEVATORS BEING ERECTED

Work is Proceeding Rapidly on Site of Quaker Oats Company's Plant

Speed and efficiency characterize the efforts of the Canadian Leonard Construction in the erection of the new plant of the Quaker Oats Company. The Company is getting everything in readiness for the big drive which will open in about a couple of weeks. A cement tower for elevating the concrete is in the process of construction and when completed a move will be made towards the erection of eighteen new concrete silos for storing grain. The silos will be similar in construction and size to those that are already there and which escaped the fire. The demolition of the new six storey warehoue is proceeding. The front end of the building is being taken down from the top while the rear portion was levelled by a few well placed charges of dynamite. It is the intention of the Company to have the eight storey building comprising the main portion of the plant up by Christmas, together with the new battery of grain storage elevators.

The huge boarding and rooming house for accommodating the men is nearing completion and in a few days a clarion call will go forth for several hundred more men.

RECEPTION TENDERED REV. MR. ROWAND

To fill the place of so universally beloved a clergyman as Rev. Mr. T. H. Mitchell is the task which confronts Rev. W. H. Rowand, and it was to assure Mr. Rowand of the sincerity of their willingness to co-operate with him and simplify the task that a large number of the congregation of St. Andrew's Church met last night in the Sunday School room at St. Andrew's, and tendered to him and to Mrs. Rowand a hearty reception. A happy coincidence was the presence of Rev. Mr. Mitchell and Miss Mitchell.

REV. T. H. MITCHELL.

Rev. Mr. Mitchell, in a few words, told of his delight to be again amongst a congregation whom he had learned to love very dearly. He said he was stimulated by the hearty reception of the friends who have enriched his life. He said that the great stimulant to a clergyman is the knowledge that he is appreciated. Man builds material things and sees the result, a clergyman works with spiritual and invisible things, and doesn't know what he is accomplishing. This is a characteristic of the minister's work and the reason he needs appreciation. The gradual workings of spritual upbuilding are wonderful, but hard to perceive.

Mr. Mitchell said that since going to Toronto he had been made feel at home in old St. Andrew's Church by the fact that almost invariably a person from Peterborough was present in the congregation. He promised any of his old parishioners that they should hear some of the old sermons should they drop into the church in Toronto.

Mr. Mitchell concluded by saying that had he a wife she should insist she should do his public speaking, and if any one present were willing to preach his sermon on Sunday in Toronto he would gladly ask her to become his wife.

REV. MR. ROWAND.

Mr. Rowand said he appreciated the kindly reception to himself and Mrs. Rowan. He said that every congregation has its atmosphere, some cold, and others radiating that social atmosphere which is so important for the work of the clergyman. He hoped that St. Andrew's would continue to manifest the spirit of good will and strangers would be so welcomed they would finally take a pew in the church. Man is a social being and a church which has a social atmosphere is easier to work with and accomplish results.

Mr. Rowand said that in coming to St. Andrew's his task was made easier in the fact of reaping the benefit of the good influence of Rev. Mr. Mitchell. When one is sure he works on the right track his object should be to go on; St. Andrew's Church has a definite object—to attract people into her communion, and with that object all should work together and keep going on, and it is Mr. Rowand's object to see this work goes ahead. He said he should always be glad of receive suggestions from the parishioners on forwarding the good work.

An excellent musical programme was given, violin selections by Sam Schwartz, a pupil of Miss Laura Logan, and vocal solos by Mr. Evans. After the programme dainty refreshments were served by the ladies of St. Andrew's.

Help for Gardeners

Valuable Suggestions and Encouragement for Those Who Encounter Couch Grass

Many beginners in gardening in Peterborough and its vicinity will this year encounter an enemy in couch grass that will be found much stronger than they anticipated. Couch grass is very common in this district, indeed it is a very widely-distributed plant and one of the most persistent weeds in all kinds of soil. It is a perennial extending by widespreading but shallow fleshy rootstocks, which if left alone form long matted beds.

Many of the gardeners, more particularly in the vacant lots that have not recently been cultivated, will have encountered this matted bed condition. Unfortunately all who have taken vacant lots have not recognized the strength of this enemy. Others who have encountered it before, or have been warned of its persistency, have very thoroughly rooted it out of the plot before planting seed. It is unfortunate that all who have found couch grass in their plots have not dealt similarly with it.

BE THOROUGH.

No plant can make progress, or do great damage if it is not allowed to grow above ground. The best course to pursue, under the circumstances, would be to be very thorough in the cultivation right through the season. Perhaps the best implement to use for a small plot is the Dutch hoe, with which I find very few are familiar. The ordinary hoe will, however, answer. Which ever is used should be kept very sharp so that the weeds will be cut off an inch or so below the surface every time the ground is cultivated, which should be not less than once a week. One should have a small flat file at hand to sharpen the hoe frequently. It will be necessary to pull out with the hand the weeds that are growing close to the plants of the crop. While this practice will not kill couch grass in one season it will prevent it doing great damage to the crops.

DO NOT GET DISCOURAGED.

The weekly cultivations that are recommended for control of this and other weeds be thus prevented from damaging the crop, but they will prove exceedingly valuable in conserving moisture and rendering available to the crop the fertility that is in the soil. Besides the ground will be kept in a loose condition, which is the very best for the growing crops.

MADMAN AT HEAD OF GERMAN COURT

Dr. Ivers, Appointed to Hold Enquiries at Louvain, Is Condemned as Criminal — Is Found To Be Degenerate

LONDON. — The Sunday Times, under the headline, "Madam Who Condemned Belgium," prints an Amsterdam despatch as follows:

"Condemnation by the Berlin First Landsgericht of the notorious Dr. Ivers, to nine months' imprisonment, for having extorted from another soldier 120,000 marks under a threat, coupled with evidence that he is a chronic alcoholist and morphinomaniac, throws a lurid light on German official investigations in Belgium, as published in the German White Book. Ivers was specially appointed to direct those enquiries. It was he who claimed that he discovered documentary evidence of the existence of Belgian franctireurs. He presided at a commission of enquiry into the horrors of Louvain. That man, whose findings were accepted without question by the German government, and who presided at innumerable court-martials in Belgium, and on whose condemnation hundreds of Belgians have been shot or imprisoned, was thus described by the judge:

"He trampled under foot for lust and lucre the sacred functions with which he was invested. He acted in a way which, thank God, this tribunal rarely has been exemplified. He abused in an outrageous fashion the affection of his mother and the holy sentiments of the Catholic religion."

In his defence on the stand Ivers said he was one of those "who could never work until half drunk." Medical testimony gave it that he was a degenerate, and "possessed of defects and vices which rendered all moral resistance very difficult to him."

The Dutch review Von Onzen Tijd says: "No one can read the declaration of the court in passing sentence, 'that in inflicting punishment it has taken into account the services rendered by the accused to his country,' without a shudder as he thinks of the fate of the unhappy Belgians who had to submit to the judgment of such a monster.

"The condemnation of Ivers," continues the Dutch review, "damns the German White Book forever. Not a word of its findings can be accepted, for the doctor's colleagues must have known they were working with a madman, who never appeared among them unless drunk.

"There are several neutral people," the review concludes, "who refuse to believe it possible that such horrors could have been committed as reported in Belgium. Will these be convinced by what is revealed before the Landsgericht of Berlin, which by the condemnation of Ivers, proves the existence of a judiciary system hitherto inconceivable."

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING A RAILWAY TICKET.

A Canadian Pacific Railway ticket does not represent merely a means of transportation between given points. It, in addition, provides the traveller with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety First," with up-to-date equipment, unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars, in a word, everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

Great Army Scourge Carried by House Fly

LONDON. — The Times' medical correspondent writes: "A discovery of importance is described in the Journal of the Royal Army Service by Lieut.-Colonel Wenyon and Capt. T. W. O'Connor, of the Royal Army Medical Corps. It is to the effect that cysts of amoebic dystentery, the great scourge of the armies are carried about by house flies. One has only to remember a description of the fly plague of Gallipoli to understand how the dysentery outbreak there was propagated. The authors conclude that by an efficient system the fly sewage or the preventing of flies getting sewage at all there is every reason to believe amoebic dysentery, as well as many other intestinal disorders would be systematically reduced if nit entirely eradicated."

Apple Crop Is Light

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, June 19.—Ontarians will next winter eat apples grown in British Columbia and Nova Scotia, according to D. Johnson, chief of the fruit division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture who is in the city. The apple crop in Ontario will be states, be light, except east of Bowmanville. In British Columbia a heavy apple crop is expected, at least 25 per cent. better than last year. Nova Scotia orchards are showing a good bloom.

Litters for wounded used by the Dutch army are made of straw and are equipped with straw blankets, so they can be used as beds.

KERENSKY DISCARDS THE VELVET FOR IRON

Deprives Deserters of Votes and Refuses To Grant Wholesale Leave

PETROGRAD, June 18.—Minister of War Kerensky discarded the pleasant phrases of oratorical persuasion to-day for iron-handed disciplinary measures to force Russia's troops to fight.

He issued orders depriving all deserters from the army of the right to vote and of participation in the distribution of Russian lands. He also over-ruled a subsidiary branch of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates in granting permission to nine companies of soldiers to leave the front.

Kerensky has refused leave to a whole division of Ukranian troops who wanted to journey back home and attend a conference urging autonomy for Ukrania, and has sponsored a Government order making all anti-war agitators in the army liable to ten years' imprisonment.

"I hope I never hear of such an incident again," was Kerensky's short dismissal of a request from a committee of soldiers, approved by the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council of the city of Buiguima for leave for nine companies of soldiers. Moreover he ordered immediate arrest of the soldiers' committee.

BACK LANES ARE NOT KEPT VERY CLEAN

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton Is Losing Weight in an Endeavour To Clean Up the City

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton is still haunting the back yards and lanes. This morning he did a hundred yards dash up and down the sidewalk that runs along the rear of the stores next to the market square. That he did not find every thing in first class order was indicated by the facial expression of the Inspector. Barrels filled with ashes and other refuse lined the sidewalk and when last seen Inspector Stapleton was holding a post mortem over a string of barrels that were lined up at the rear of one of the stores near Simcoe street.

June Session of the Peterborough County Council Opened This Afternoon

Warden's Address Covered a Number of Important Matters — Number of Communications Dealt With — All the Members Were Present

The June session of the County Council opened this afternoon at two o'clock. The following address was delivered by Warden M. Brown:

"Following precedent, I beg to address you on some of the import at matters you have been dealing with, and will have to deal with, throughout the year 1917.

"Before doing so, I beg to express my gratification at the material progress made by this county in the past few years, and we can look forward to a harvest encouraging to those engaged in agricultural pursuits, and the great consuming peoples who are at this critical time depending so much on the product of the farm.

"Having my attention called to the last two presentments of the Grand Juries, I am proud to know that our public institutions appear to be carrying into effect the purposes for which they were intended.

"The burning of the Court House has been and is a serious matter, and the committee you appointed have to the best of their ability proceeded as far as possible. The chairman, who is in a better position than I am with regard to these matters, will transmit to you all the particulars.

"The proceeds of insurance have been placed in the bank, and as a result of the efforts of the chairman of the Finance Committee, on the most favourable terms possible.

The Quaker Oats.

"It is gratifying to note the rebuilding of the Quaker Oats manufacturing concern, and the county recognize with the city the benefits that are bound to accrue from such operations.

"You will have to provide funds by way of debenture issue for the building of bridges and reconstruction of Court House. There is now $2,550 of debenture proceeds in the bank, as well as insurance proceeds, and it depends on the attitude of the city as whether they will pay over their surance proceeds as intimated by Mr. Moore. If not, more funds will have to be raised, but the city's interest will lessen and more rental come to the county, which will be a revenue to offset the extra debenture liquidation.

"The chairman of the Finance Committee will no doubt have all figures prepared for your approval to meet the various obligations from a current standpoint, which I presume will meet with such approval.

"The chairman of the House of Refuge Committee will, of necessity, present to you a special report that will, as is characterized of him, be in accordance with careful and proper procedure.

Municipal Advisor.

"You will again have the opportunity of listening to the municipal advisor sent here by the Government with regard to the county road system, and I trust you will weigh well the matter, having in view the great responsibilities that now devolve upon us.

"I refer to this horrible war that has been forced upon the British Empire and her Allies, and I sincerely trust that Canada will, as far as possible, set aside all contentions and differences of opinion, as well as assume no responsibilities that will in any way neutralize the successful conduct of the war. We need the best brains, we need the wealth, we need the conservation as well as the production of all necessaries. We have furnished considerable man power, and will furnish more and all combined will be a strong factor towards the culmination of democracy, and I would solicit the influence and efforts of all to bring about the same in a way that anything contrary will be stamped out for all time to come.

"The Council have undertaken no bridge building that could be avoided for the present due to the scarcity of material and help, and the chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee will, before the year is out, provide information covering the year's operations.

"In conclusion, I sincerely give expression to my feelings of gratification for the voluntary assistance you have given me in my duties as Warden, and I take this opportunity of placing on record my appreciation of your confidence in electing me to such a position without opposition.

"I am sure all join in recognizing the Hand of a Kind Providence in the prospects for the year, and pray that the same Hand will continue to guide the Entente Allies in their endeavours to have right prevail."

Communications.

A communication was received from the Rev. J. H. Slimon, of Lakefield, asking whether or not the practice of remunerating clergymen for services conducted at the House of Refuge had been discontinued.

The matter was referred to the Board of Management of the House of Refuge.

Mr. J. B. Fowler wrote the Board concerning damage to a wire fence. The matter was turned over to the Roads and Bridges Committee.

All the members were present.

Those Present.

The councillors present were: Warden M. Brown, of Ashphodel; B. W. Squire, Norwood; H. G. Fitzgerald, Lakefield; Wm. Matheson, Havelock; W. E. Griffith, Belmont; N. Lean, Burleigh; Fred. J. Bullied, Chandos; C. J. Darling, Dummer; M. Walsh, Douro; Jno. Young, Ennismore; Jno. Clark, Galway; James Ingram, Harvey; H. B. Rye, Monaghan; Jos. Bell, Monaghan; W. A. Anderson, Otonabee; F. A. Eason, Otonabee; F. McKee, Smith; Geo. B. Nichols, Smith.

tary College will start about August 15th. There is now a class of cadets who though nominally still at the college are at Petawawa camp securing two months' practical experience before being granted their certificates. They will be returning to College about the end of July.

OTTAWA, June 18. — Sir Edward Kemp informed the House to-day that the total Canadian casualties up to June 7th, 1917, were 99,639. Under the heading "casualty" are included killed in action, died of wounds, died of sickness, presumed dead, wounded, including gas and suffering from shell shock, missing, and prisoners of war. The term "casualty" does not apply to unwounded officers and men in hospitals or convalescent homes.

Of the casualties 68,629 are in the wounded category. This does not mean that so many men have been wounded, as some have been wounded twice and others more often. On June 4th there were 23,265 Canadian patients in hospitals and convalescent homes in England. Of the remainder some had recovered and returned to duty. Fifteen hundred medically unfit had taken their discharge in England, and 12,500 had returned to Canada.

Corps. Baird and Thomson are in the city, stopping at the Y.M.C.A. They are recruiting for the Queen's University Engineers, a branch of the service that has been very popular since the war broke out. With conscription in the offing it is expected that many young men will join the Engineers while the way is open to them.

Mrs. Wm. Simmons, Orpington Road, has received the following letter from her brother, Pte. Tom Thorne of the 47th Canadians:

May 31st, 1917.

Dear Sister,—Well, I guess you must have heard about me getting hit, but I hope you have not been worrying too much, as I was lucky and got Blighty. I hope I will be able to use my right hand the next time I write, and my eyes are getting better; in fact the right one is quite alright now.

This is a fine hospital to be in. The treatment is good and I seem to get everything I need; there are always so many visitors to bring everything I want. Now I am up and able to walk around. I was out for a car ride yesterday around Hyde Park.

Well, Emma, please stop the parcels for the time, also the money I asked you to send me. Use this address when you write. No more this time; write soon; with best wishes to all.

Yours as ever, your brother,
TOM.

HOME RE-UNION EXECUTIVE MET

A meeting of the Executive of the Imperial Home Re-union took place at the office of Gordon and Widdifield on Saturday night.

There were present: G. N. Gordon, J. J. Turner, J. Johns, Walter Stocker, T. Pitchford.

General business was attended to and accounts passed. Of course during war time the Home Re-union will take no active steps for bringing out families to Peterborough, but after that it will probably renew its activities again.

7000 On Strike Over One Negro

Special to The Examiner:

SCHENECTADY, N.Y., June 19. — Seven thousand men machinists and helpers are still on strike to-day, and work on millions in war contracts is suspended at the General Electric Co. while men and company heads fail to reach an agreement on the employment of a negro in the shops. The company refuse to draw the colour line and the men demand segregation of the negro workmen.

North America Must Feed The Allies

Herbert Hoover Appears Before U. S. Senaters to Explain Food Control Bill

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, June 19.—It is up to North America either to feed allies or to fight great war alone. It is up to us to demand passage of Hoover food control bill, if Teuton hosts are to be kept from American shorts. These were two outstanding features of Herbert Hoover's warning to Senators when he appeared before them to-day to explain the food control bill. Under fire of cross examination, Hoover cleared away much misunderstanding about the bill and his arguments made a distinct impression on wavering Senators.

HON. W. J. HANNA IS FOOD CONTROLLER

OTTAWA, June 19.—Sir Robert Borden intimated to-day after a Cabinet meeting that a food controller for the Dominion had been appointed. He would not say who the appointee was, however, until he had informed the House of Commons.

Later—Hon. W. J. Hanna has been named by Sir Robert Borden as food controller for Canada without salary.

STORIES OF THE SEA TOLD IN WAR TIME

LONDON. — Stories not hitherto published of lively encounters between British trawlers and German submarines in the North Sea, were told by Robert Lowry and other members of the Royal Naval Reserve at the annual meeting of the Minor Naval Patrol Seamen. One trawler, the speaker said, became such a terror to the enemy and eventually destroyed on one occasion this vessel, armed with two light guns, was attacked by a submarine. One shot went through the deck house, another smashed the wheel, but "the skipper went on steering with broken spokes." Another shot carried away the cook's galley but the trawler's gunner hit the submarine, which had then enough of it and went under.

Another unarmed trawler saw a submarine on the North Sea, and made a dash for it with the result that the U-boat quickly submerged. "I think underneath," said Sir Robert, "because it could not imagine it possible that a trawler would have the courage to attack it if it were not armed."

Sir Robert related how they learned of the sinking of two submarines by the bodies of the crew floating to the surface, although five or six days later a report was circulated from Germany that the boat had returned to port.

Admiral Sir Edmund Freemantle said that much criticism of the navy was beside the mark. Some things had not yet been discovered and one was how to catch the big submarine. But, he said, he did not blame the scientist abroad, because he had not discovered the secret of perpetual motion. He added:

"We will hope that the submarine is in a different category, and that with the help of our great ally, America, we may perhaps discover an appropriate antidote. We shall succeed if not in finding an antidote, in finding a palliative."

MOTORED 2,600 MILES FROM SASKATOON HERE

After a motor trip of 2,600 miles, Mr. and Mrs. David Crowe of Saskatoon, have arrived in Peterborough on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weir, Walton street. The journey was made in easy stages through the northern states, by way of Chicago. At Detroit the speedometer reached its limit, when it registered 2,300 miles, and was set back again at zero. Mr. and Mrs. Crowe narrowly missed the tornado that swept the north central states, but otherwise their passage was uneventful. Their Studebaker Sedan gave them excellent service, and a minimum of trouble. Only one puncture in 2,600 miles was something of a record. The trip was made in three weeks, just leisurely loafing along the long route.

U-Boat Split in Two by British Gunner

Steamship Was Torpedoed and Sunk, but "Got" Submarine

NEW YORK, June 19.—In a battle between a crippled, stranded British steamship and a German submarine off the Italian coast in May both craft were destroyed, according to the members of the American steamship Hilonian, which arrived here to-day.

The Hilonian had already been reported sunk on May 6, the crew being landed at Albenga. On the same day an unidentified British freighter carrying coal also was torpedoed, but the captain managed to run his ship into shallow water before she partly sank. Two days later, the Americans asserted, the submarine returned to the attack and launched a torpedo, which hit the steamer amidships and almost blew her apart. As the submarine came to the surface to observe the effects of the shot, two deck guns on the stern of the freighter were turned on her. A six-inch explosive shell hit the U-boat, and she was seen to turn over twice and split squarely in two before going down. During the fight, which took place less than a mile from shore, coast batteries also turned a fire on the U-boat.

Two Jewelry Thieves Claim To Be Officers

LONDON, June 19.—Ten days ago jewelry valued at $50,000 vanished from a showcase at the Carlton Hotel. Saturday night two men were arrested in a box at the Comedy Theatre, who described themselves as "Theodolphus Metcalf, formerly an officer of the Coldstream Guards, and Frank Milton, an officer of the Royal Flying Corps." It was difficult to believe these descriptions are correct. All the jewelry was recovered, and also jewelry the results of other recent West End robberies. One of the accused attempted to escape from the police station, but was quickly recaptured. They will have a hearing before the Magistrate on Tuesday.

To Appoint A Local Agent

The Executive Committee of the Children's Aid Society will meet this afternoon for the purpose of considering a number of applications for the position of local agent for the Society. It may be that the Committee will name a small committee to go over the list of applications and make a suitable selection.

Farmers Object to Daylight Saving

OTTAWA, June 19.—Conscientious objections of a virulent type against the daylight saving scheme have broken out in the Newmarket Farmers' Club. They have sent a petition about it to Sir Robert Borden. It says that one hour between 5 and 6 in the afternoon is of more value to the farmer than three hours in the morning, when, because of the dew, little can be done before 9 o'clock. The petitioners wind up by saying that farmers, anyway, have always practised daylight saving without the need of the statutory shoving ahead of the clock.

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— With many people, I heartily appreciate your advocacy of a greater Peterborough, and I do not think it can come any too soon. During many years of "big" talk our progress has been "small."

I have had the fact brought to me very forcibly lately on visiting the city of Windsor, Ont. Thirty years ago this was a small scattered town, far behind Peterborough in population, industrial business and beauty. But I find at present a great change; the scattered town has advanced away beyond any thing we have accomplished. It has larger population and industrial activity, motor fire equipment, whole districts prepared with sewers, lights and walks, and an active interest in making Windsor a "city beautiful." A fine Giles' boulevard is being constructed that sightseers may locate and admire the interesting parts of the city, and beautiful flower beds are covered with bloom at the corners of the streets, (there are both children and dogs in that city.) They have very good electric railway accommodation, and in districts which are not reached in this way they have transportation by large auto buses called red flyers.

Now when I return to Peterborough and find that I can take a car to George and Hunter streets and then walk a mile or more home to East City, I soon discover that Peterborough is behind. And imagine my disgust when I find in your paper that the Hydro Commission is willing to proceed with the Monaghan road extenion, etc. Mr. Editor, all Peterborough knows that Monaghan road is well served with railway accommodation, considering the small population that is reached and the fact that very many residents of that district have their own cars for their convenience. The Jackson Park line reaches it at the north end, the Charlotte street line in the centre and the Byersville extension at the south, and all East City, with its 3,000 inhabitants, walk to George street for a car, anywhere from 3-4 of a mile to two miles. I cannot see why we have been put off for thirty years with a promise, which is no good, not even a "scrap of paper."

Our ward is as healthy as any part of the city, but there is no encouragement for new residents to build because the long walk to the city is always an objection. People living here are mostly working people who have their own homes and are loath to sacrifice them to move nearer their work. There are hundreds of girls who walk to work every day, to business places away down town, who would hail with delight the advent of a red flyer service which would transfer to the street railway.

The main attraction in the city, viz., the lift-lock, is in our ward and yet I meet strangers up at Nicholls Oval looking for the lift-lock. Excursionists who have only a few hours to stay, do not care to go to wharf, take a boat and go several miles round about to see the lift-lock, when with proper service an auto bus could take them there in a few minutes.

There is no effort ever put forward for the progress of East City, either by the Mayor or the aldermen. We scarcely know we have a representative, only for a few days before New Year's each year. There is something rotten in the whole business. The R. R. Co. promised us service thirty years ago and when are we going to get it? I asked a man in Windsor how he accounted for the wonderful progress of their town. He said, "We got some strangers into the Council, who had some 'get' in them." If that is the secret I think it is high time East City got down to business and routed out some of the dead bones of our council and elect some one who is alive to the fact that he represents the people of the long-neglected fifth ward of Peterborough.

Thanking you for space in your valuable paper, I remain,

Yours,
ED. COURTNEY.

A Mystery from Scugogville

Who is the alderman who handles the "property" affairs of the town all right, but who failed to handle his car well enough to keep on the beaten path while passing through a swamp on a return trip from Peterborough? This worthy autoist got stuck on the roadside and along with a couple of ladies was forced to spend the night in the car, and was pulled out high and dry the following morning by a farmer and a team of horses. Who was the autoist that "undertakes" to handle to a great deal of business matters (and as a rule does all things well) but who took all night to get home from a trip to Bobcaygeon? He also was partial to swamps and got off the beaten path.—Lindsay Warder.

Fire Chief Bell Has Resigned

LINDSAY, June 19. — Fire Chief Jas. Bell, for many years associated with Lindsay's fire department, has sent in his resignation to the chairman of town property asking that he be relieved from duty as soon as possible.

Chief Bell for various reasons cannot be induced to remain in this position and says he is out of the business for good. He will remain until a successor is appointed, whom he will give all instructions possible in regard to the working of the place.

THE MASQUE OF LIFE

Signet Films presents the greatest of all Screen Thrills

The prince of the realm has fallen in love with Evelyn, a circus girl, and plans to elope with her, but is prevented by the sudden death of the king and his accession to the throne. Her lover, who had been willing to renounce his kingdom for the sake of the girl he loves, is told that Evelyn and their child have been drowned and marries a woman of royal blood. Evelyn becomes a wanderer and finally joins a travelling circus. Through all the hardships she subsequently endures, Pete, a trained chimpanzee, is her devoted friend. One day Pete, realizing that Evelyn is mourning for her child who has died, determines to secure one for her. So he climbs over the palace wall, snatches the king's baby from the royal crib and runs with it to the top of a 360-foot chimney. Evelyn decides to save the king's heir. Reaching the top of the chimney, she tears the baby from Pete's grasp and hurls the monkey to his death. Later, during a spectacular performance for the king, in which Evelyn is to appear, the circus catches on fire. In the panic that ensues the queen dies of shock. In the end the king gives up his crown and weds the girl who has been so faithful and devoted.

WEDDING BELLS

McARTHUR—DWYER.

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Peter's Cathedral, at 6 o'clock, when Miss Margaret Dwyer, daughter of the late Joseph Dwyer, became the bride of William McArthur, formerly of British Columbia, the Rev. Father Phelan officiating. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Joe of Sarnia, looked pretty in a travelling suit of blue, with hat to match, and fox fur and bodice, and a bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Teresa Dwyer was her sister's bridesmaid while Mr. Louie McDonnell acted as best man. After the nuptial mass, breakfast was served at the home of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. McArthur left on the eight-ten train for Toronto and other points. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JOHNSTON.

William Johnston, North Monaghan, died yesterday, aged 66. He was born in Clarke Township.

The funeral took place this afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery.

JAMES NORTHEY, Sr.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Lakefield Methodist church and thence to the Lakefield cemetery for interment.

ALEXANDER DONNELLY.

Alexander Donnelly, a former well known resident of North Monaghan passed away yesterday at Carberry, Man., where he has been living for many years. Mr. Donnelly was born in Smith Township and lived in North Monaghan for a long period before going to the West. Two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Johnston and Miss Mary, in Peterborough, survive him. Mr. Bruce Johnston, Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan, is a nephew of the deceased. The late Mr. Donnelly was seventy-six years of age. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

FRANK HURLEY.

Mr. Frank Hurley, Dominion Grain Inspector, and a well known and highly respected resident of Peterborough, passed away after a long illness at 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. Crowley, 296 Wolfe street. The late Mr. Hurley, who was thirty-five years of age, was born in Lindsay, but had been a resident of Peterborough practically all his life. He succeeded his father as Dominion grain inspector in 1910. He was popular with all who knew him, and the news of his death will be received with deep sorrow by a large circle of friends.

The late Mr. Hurley is survived by a wife and one daughter, residing in Peterborough and by three sisters, Mrs. J. J. Boomer, Miss Margaret and Miss Loretta, all residing in Windsor, Ont.

The funeral will take place on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peters cemetery.

TREWERN CHEESE FACTORY

and, hurtling fully one hundred yards through the air, had fallen on an old snake fence which it smashed into little pieces through two of its stretches. Further south on the opposite side of the highway, the end of the boiler had fallen. And several husky farmers agreed that it would take three or four strong men to lift either of these huge scraps of iron.

NO DOUBT OF CAUSE.

There was no doubt in the minds of the farmers who had hurried to the factory that the cause of the destruction was the boiler explosion. Carter stated to The Examiner that he had never heard Mr. Chittick discuss the machinery in the engine room, and as far as he know everything was in a satisfactory condition. The boiler had been tested a year ago.

WAS KILLED INSTANTLY.

Nor was there any question of Mr. Chittick having met instant death. His body lay across the engine shaft, and he had evidently been working around it during the three or four minutes of his absence from the main factory room. About the legs and arms he had received a number of wounds, but it was apparently head wounds that that killed him outright. His head was smashed practically beyond recognition.

LONG RESIDENT OF SMITH.

John Chittick had been a resident of Smith for many years. He was born in Bobcaygeon and had spent close to forty years in the dairy industry. Trewern factory was admittedly one of the best in this banner county of the Canadian cheese trade. It was thoroughly modern, and always scrupulously clean. Mr. Chittick was a veteran cheese maker, and he kept himself informed of every innovation in his business. As a citizen and a neighbour he was highly esteemed, and through his efforts the northern section of the township had made rapid advances in dairying, to the profit of its patrons, and for the general good of the community. And Mr. Chittick's personality was as highly esteemed as were his services.

FACTORY A LOSS.

While the death of Mr. Chittick will be a loss to the Eighth Line residents, the factory's destruction is a severe blow to the fifty or sixty patrons who were on its list this spring.

"We never had such a supply of milk as we had this year," said Mr. Willen Mann, salesman of the factory, who was one of the first to respond to the telephone calls sent out from the Chittick home.

"We had more patrons than ever, and on Monday there was more milk than the factory could handle. We had to hold some of it back until this morning. There were many cheese on the shelves, but we carried $2,500 insurance. Mr. Chittick also had the factory covered."

HAS SON IN FRANCE.

This morning's tragedy strikes a family that has been contributing its share in the present needs of the Empire. Gunner Irwin Chittick went overseas in September, 1914, and is now in his third year of service. Mr. Clare Chittick has worked his father's farm, while the latter operated the cheese factory. Besides the two boys and Mrs. Chittick, is one daughter, Mrs. J. Purdy, of Washington, D.C., who is home on a visit. Mr. Richard and Mr. Tom Waram, of this city, are brothers-in-law.

The funeral arrangements had not been made this afternoon.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Conscript Force Can Be Trained in Four Months

General Sir Sam Hughes of Opinion That Men Will Be in France by Early Fall — Voluntary Plan Had Broken Down

ACCUSES LABOR LEADERS

OTTAWA, June 20.—Major General Sir Sam Hughes in the Commons yesterday expressed hearty endorsement of Premier Borden's action in introducing a bill for compulsory military service.

Explaining the reason which prompted him to invite Sir Robert Borden in May last protesting against the Government's "lack of action" with regard to the war, Sir Sam said: "My sole aim was to win the war, do our full duty, maintain our civilization, not to be weary in well doing, but stand or fall by the boys in the trenches."

HAD RIGHT TO ENROL MEN.

General Hughes contended that Canada had full powers under the constitution and Militia Act to enroll and train militia within her borders. She could only send them overseas by adopting the Army Act. This Canada had done, and having done so, the clause of that Act became part and parcel of the B.N.A. Act.

Sir Sam then launched into a long and technical disquisition on the status of Colonial troops overseas, after having asked and been refused the Speaker's permission to place it on Hansard unread.

Coming to the question of compulsory service he said it involved the responsibility to claim every man and every dollar. Its advantages were that the State adjusted an equality among the community. Under voluntary service one man after the war might be broken and penniless, while another would be rich, and in full control of his faculties.

ACCUSES LABOUR LEADERS.

General Hughes referred to the agitation of labour leaders against conscription. "Labour leaders," he said, "who bear all the ear-marks of being in the pay of Germans from the United States."

Speaking of democracy, Sir Sam remarked that rulers sometimes become autocratic, selfish and corrupt. "Even in Canada," he said, "men are found to suggest, nay to assert, that two groups, one a railway and one a financial group, control this Government."

It was difficult in Canada to instil the idea that discipline is not a breaking down, but an upbuilding, a training and a teaching of control.

IN TRENCHES IN FOUR MONTHS.

General Hughes estimated that there were 2,000,000 men of military age in Canada fit for service, 1,200,000 of which were single men. It was possible to send 100,000 men without hurting production. He ventured the opinion that within four months 150,000 men could be enrolled, trained and equipped and could be sent to the trenches by October.

General Hughes then dealt with the question of why conscription was not necessary. The voluntary system had done wonders, but had failed. "German gold," he declared, "cleverly applied, did the trick. "And let me say here that I do not think that Bryan was bought by German gold in the United States. He was influenced by men who were in Canada. I know men high up in the journalistic profession who are paid by German gold early in 1916. When recruiting was at its height, an agitation was carried on with regard to labour. It was cleverly represented that enlistment must not be permitted to interfere with munitions work, etc.

"At the time I thought the movement was engineered by German gold and I informed the Prime Minister. The movement grew until the Imperial Munitions Board and Sir Thomas White lent themselves to it. Lord Shaughnessy, head of the C.P.R., was weak enough to fall in behind it. If Sir William Van Horne had been head of the system such a thing would not have occurred. To listen to the wish-washy words of the leader of the Opposition one would think he also was in the movement."

Sir Sam declared that the agitation against enlistment at one time became almost unbearable. The manager of the Dominion Iron and Steel Works at Sydney came to us with tears in his eyes, he said, and begged us not to enlist and take men away. The Prime Minister yielded to these influences and suggested there be a let-up in recruiting.

CLASH WITH PREMIER.

Sir Robert Borden here sat forward, "on what occasion," he asked, and his face flushed red, "did I advise my honourable friend to slow up on recruiting?"

"On more than one occasion," replied the ex-Minister promptly. "You told me to go slow on recruiting more than once. You said so after a visit to Toronto, where you had seen Mark Irish and other men connected with the munitions board, who declared that men should not be taken from the factories."

The Prime Minister hit his moustache but seemed on the point of asking another question.

"Let me point out," continued the ex-Minister, "that I will, if necessary, read letters from the Prime Minister which will fully bear me out in this." The Prime Minister sat back amid cries of "hear, hear," from the Opposition side, and there were no more questions asked.

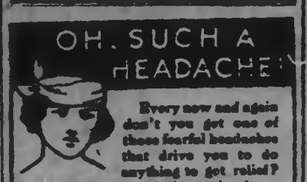
U. S. Not Agreed to "No Separate Peace"

LONDON, June 20.—America has not signified her adhesion to the London pact of the allies. Foreign Minister Balfour announced yesterday to the House of Commons in his first appearance since his return from the United States. Balfour was accorded an enthusiastic reception, with cheers and continued hand-clapping.

The interrogation as to America's support of the no separate peace agreement was the only query made of the Minister to-day.



Every now and again don't you get one of those fearful headaches that drive you to do anything to get relief? Remember, though, its a mistake to just "smother" the pain without removing the cause. Nearly all headaches have their beginning in the stomach, liver or bowels, and the best remedy is Chamberlain's Tablets, which tone the liver, sweeten the stomach and cleanse the bowels. This not only cures the headache but prevents its return.

FURTHER DECLINE IN WHEAT PRICES

Fine Crop Weather in All Sections Is the Main Bear Argument — The Cattle Market

Wheat continues its sharp declines from its recent high levels. Another 6 1-8c marked the decline at Chicago on July option, while the October at Winnipeg closed 5c lower than Monday's close. Fine crop weather in all sections is the principal bear argument, against which the bull side has seemingly nothing to present. Cash prices for the Manitoba northerns at lake ports are quoted 5c lower. C. W. oats steady. Corn 1-2c easier. Flours unchanged.

Mill feed — Car lots, delivered, Montreal, shorts, $39; bran, $33; feed flour, per bag, $2.80 to $2.90; middlings, $45.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2, $13 to $13.50; mixed, $9 to $11.50; straw, $9.

CATTLE MARKET.

Union Stock Yards — Receipts, 31 cars, with 458 cattle, 99 calves, 488 hogs and 76 sheep and lambs.

A light run and sharp market cleared up everything offering before the noon hour yesterday. There was a good active demand for the choice butcher cattle, prices averaging about 15c higher than Monday. With light runs for the balance of the week, prices will hold steady at the advance, but a heavy run would more than likely shake them down again.

The stocker trade is comparatively quiet, but with a fair demand for good feeders 800 to 900 pounds. Light stuff is very slow.

Milkers and springers are about holding steady at last week's decline of $10 to $15 from recent high levels.

Calves, sheep and lambs steady.

Prussians Rob Women of France Sent into Exile

NEW YORK, June 18.—How the Prussians are robbing the exiled French women and children whom they expel from the parts of France occupied by the enemy was told yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Ernest W. Byashe, of the American Methodist Episcopal Mission in France.

Dr. Byashe's relief work has been in Southern France, where he has been maintaining club rooms for soldiers and workrooms for women. A stream of refugees of several thousand a week, he said, is being sent from out the occupied parts of France by the Prussians. The refugees are mainly women and old men, whom the Prussians cannot force to work and are consequently shipping them off to avoid feeding them.

MANY BURY THEIR MONEY

"The Germans try to get the exiles to give up their French money," said Dr. Byashe, "but instead they bury it or hide it. They are permitted to carry with them only 110f. in bank notes for each adult and 50f. for each child, with as much of the depreciated bills as they have. But even then the persecutors try to cheat the refugees out of this little amount. French bank notes are worth at present one-third more than their face value. The Germans ask for the money in envelopes to keep as far as the frontier, and then they return the envelopes, after having exchanged the notes for depreciated paper. In this way they have accumulated possibly a million francs, stolen from these widow's mites."

Dr. Byashe strongly condemned the attempts of the Prussians to ruin France.

"Where the invader's horse has stepped the grass never grows again," he said. "The crops of the country are wholly inadequate in any case this year, as the farmers have all gone into the infantry, and the French government is facing an entire reorganization of its agricultural system. The entrance of so many refugees from the north, moreover, has increased the demand for food.

SEEK TO BREAK DOWN MORALS

"The German army also is attempting a moral degradation of the women of France, making life much easier for the complacent woman and essaying by insidious persecution the corruption of the others. But notwithstanding the general looseness of morals in war time, as well as the efforts of the invaders, the moral situation in France is much better than one would expect. But altogether the sad fact remains that France is being bled white, as the French phrase runs, by the war, and the evident German plan so to weaken her that even after a victorious war she must fall into German hands within a decade of its close is all too successful.

"The hope of France lies in its women. The French woman has advanced her cause by a whole generation. Who would have thought five years ago that women physicians and civil officials would be recognized and demanded? Ere long women, beginning with the fiancees and widows of the soldiers, will have full admission on equal terms in all the professions and the civil service. And, of course, the vote; that will come earlier than some of the social guins."

Rebuilding Homes in East Prussia

According to advice from Koenigsberg, of the 30,000 dwellings wrecked by the Russian invasion in East Prussia 12,000 were rebuilt up to February of this year, and the restoration of the remaining number is only a question of a short time. Various small towns in East Prussia have organized building and loan societies in order to stimulate building, and the result has been so favourable that other towns and villages are doing likewise.

The building is to be done first for those families who suffered in the Russian invasion. The majority of them, who depend on their gardens and lands for a livelihood, were left homeless and without means of support, and the problem of taking care of them has been a difficult one. Now that many of their homes have been restored the situation is more favourable.

In this work of reconstruction thousands of Russian prisoners have been employed, while the skilled labour has come from Berlin and other big German cities, so that profitable employment was given to thousands of German workmen. Every available inch of ground in East Prussia is being utilized for agricultural purposes, and much of it has been devoted to the production of potatoes. With East Prussia soon restored to normal conditions it is expected that the crops will do much to solve the food question in Prussia.

TO NEW APPOINTMENT.

J. H. Bertram, Collector of Customs, to Return to Toronto.

OTTAWA, June 19.— That no appointment will be made to the post of collector of customs at Toronto is stated here. J. H. Bertram, who was moved from Toronto to Montreal to take the post vacated by R. G. White will, it is said, return to his former position in Toronto within the next three months. Any new appointment which will be made will be for the Montreal vacancy, it is said.

Unprecedented Heat Burns German Crop

COPENHAGEN, via London, June 20.—Throughout Germany, according to reports here, all valuable grain crops are burning up, as they did in 1915, in an unprecedented heat wave. A prolonged drought has not been broken since early in May. Berlin on Sunday experienced the hottest June 17 on record in the seventy years' experience of the Weather Bureau. Tropical temperatures were also reported everywhere west of the Oder River.

The Weather Bureau states that the prospects for rain or lower temperatures are very slight. The effect of the drought on grain crops around Berlin, where only eight millimetres of rain have fallen since May 1, is described by a neutral who arrived here on Friday as almost catastrophal.

The Sunday sermon writer in the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung, who recently indulged in a most startling blending of religion and politics, declared on Sunday that the drought was sent as a punishment for the sins of the people for listening to the editors of irreligious newspapers, and asked how long it would be before this divine chastisement would bring the people to a sense of their iniquities.

New King's Objects A Surprise to Allies

STRONG ACTION DEMANDED IF ALEXANDER ATTEMPTS TO FOLLOW TINO'S POLICIES.

NEW YORK, June 19.—The Sun this morning prints the following despatch from London: The publication of the proclamation of the new King Alexander of Greece comes as a shock to England, France, and Italy. The new and youthful monarch pledges himself to carry out "the brilliant policy of his revered father," the notoriously pro-German Constantine, and uses the language of an absolute monarch.

The press of the allied nations demands if it has been hoodwinked and if another German diplomatic trick has succeeded in the Balkans.

There is a universal demand that if King Alexander attempts to follow any such course as did Constantine he be instantly ejected without ceremony, that the allies take direct control of the country, establish Venizelos in power and keep him there by force if necessary.

BRITISH NAVY KEPT WAR FROM AMERICA SHORES

COL. ROOSEVELT BRANDS AS TRAITORS THOSE WHO EXPRESS HATRED TOWARD BRITAIN.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 20.—Col. Roosevelt has taken up the fight against individuals and organizations seeking to foster unfriendly feeling for England in this country. His first broadside was a denunciation of circulation of an appeal against "fighting England's war."

Addressing a Red Cross meeting here, the Colonel declared that the only reason why the war hasn't been brought to this country rests with England's navy and the British and French armies.

"There actually are Americans who recently have been asking why we fight on the same side as England, our ancient foe. I would like to see any man here unpatriotic enough to say that at this time. Any man who hates England more than he loves the United States should be thrown out of the country. A nation must be judged by its conduct in any crisis. An unfriendly attitude against England is as base and unjust as would be an individual grudge between two men because their great grandfathers fought. The sentiment is that of a traitor."

Amistant: "He did. Here's his account of yesterday's afternoon tea: 'Mrs. Lovely poured. Mrs. Jabber roared, Mrs. Duller bored, Mrs. Rasping gored, and Mrs. Embonpoint snored.'"—Tit-Bits.

Yes, Builds! You Up in 5 to 10 Days

Iron For the Blood and Phosphorus For the Nerves

Weak, anaemic, run-down, nervous persons will be glad to know that they can be restored back to their youth vigor by the discovery of this new drug called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron.

It is spring time now and every person needs something to build them up. Now you know as well as any doctor will tell you, the cause of spring time is impure blood. It takes many people to their grave, ruins health, makes you weak, runs you down and finally you are a physical wreck.

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus. The iron acts directly on the blood while the phosphorus soothes and strengthens the nerves. You start today and take two or three tablets of Bonised Phosphorus with iron after meals and in 5 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent stronger.

This drug does not act like other iron tonics you have taken, but instead, it does not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach or make you constipated. This new drug is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. G. Weller dispenses it for Peterborough.

By LOUIS TRACY

Returning to the house by way of the main gate, which gave on to the highway, he bethought him of Mrs. Bates and Minnie. They must be enlightened, and warned as to the certain influx of visitors. He resolved now to tackle a displeasing task boldly. Realizing that the worst possible policy lay in denying himself to the representatives of the press, who would simply ascertain the facts from other sources, and unconsciously adopt a critical vein with regard to himself, he determined to go to the other extreme, and receive all comers.

Of course, there would be reservations in his story. That is what every man decides who faces a legal inquiry as a novice. It is a decision too often regretted in the light of after events.

Meanwhile, P. C. Robinson was hard at work. In his own phrase, he "took a line," and the trend of his thoughts was clearly demonstrated when a superintendent motored over from Knoleworth in response to a telegram. He told how the body had been found, and then went into details gathered in the interim.

"Miss Melhuish hadn't been in the village five minutes," he said, "before she asked Mr. Tomlin, landlord of the Hare and Hounds, where The Hollies was, and how long Mr. Grant had lived in the village. She went for a walk in the direction of his house almost at once. Tomlin watched her until she crossed the bridge. That was on Sunday evening."

Superintendent Fowler allowed his placid features to show a flicker of surprise. In that rural district an actual, downright murder was almost unknown. Even a case of manslaughter, arising out of a drunken quarrel between labourers at fair-time, did not occur once in five years.

"Oh, she came here on Sunday, did she?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. Yesterday, too, she spoke of Mr. Grant to Hobbs, the butcher, and Siddle, the chemist."

The two were closeted in the sitting-room of Robinson's cottage, which was situated on the main road near the bridge. It faced the short, steep hill overhanging the river. A triangular strip of turf formed the village green, and the houses of Stevnholme clustered around this and windows nearly every shop and residence in the village proper could be seen. In front of the Hare and Hounds had gathered a group of men, and it was easy to guess the topic they were discussing. The superintendent, who did not know any of them, had no difficulty in identifying Hobbs, who looked a butcher and was dressed like one, or Tomlin, who was either born an innkeeper or had been coached in the part by a stage expert. A thin, sharp-looking person, pallid and black-haired, wearing a morning coat and striped trousers, must surely be Siddle, while a fourth, the youngest there, and of rather sporting guise, was apparently a farmer of a horse-breeding turn.

"Who is that fellow in the legging?" inquired the superintendent irrelevantly. He was looking through the window, and Robinson considered that the question showed a lack of interest in his statement, though he dared not hint at such a thing.

"He's a Mr. Elkin, sir," he said. "As I was saying——"

"How does Mr. Elkin make a living?" broke in the other.

"He breeds hacks and polo ponies," said Robinson, rather shortly.

"Ah, I thought so. Well, go on with your story."

Robinson was irritated, and justly so. His superior had put him off his "line." He took it up again sharply, leaving out of court for the moment the various rills of evidence which, in his opinion, united into a swift-moving stream.

"The fact is, sir," he blurted out, "there is an uncommonly strong case against Mr. John Menzies Grant."

"Phew!" whistled the superintendent.

"I think you'll agree with me, sir, when you hear what I've gathered about him one way and another."

Robinson was sure of his audience now. Quite unconsciously, he had applied the chief canon of realism in art. He had conveyed his effect by one striking note. The rest of the picture was quite subsidiary to the bold splurge of color evoked by actually naming the man he suspected of murdering Adeline Melhuish.

CHAPTER III.

The Gathering Clouds.

Thus, it befell that Grant was not worried by officialdom until long after his housekeeper and her daughter had recovered from the shock of learning that they were, in a sense, connected at first hand with a ghastly and sensational crime.

Like Bates and their employer, neither Mrs. Bates nor Minnie had heard or seen anything overnight which suggested that a woman was being foully done to death in the grounds attached to the house. As it happened, Minnie's bedroom, as well looked the lawn and river. Grant's room lay in a gable which commanded the entrance. He had chosen it purposely because it faced the rising sun. The other members of the household, therefore, though in bed, had quite as good an opportunity as he, working in the dining-room beneath, of having their attention drawn to sounds disturbing the peace of the night in a quiet and secluded spot. Moreover, none of them was asleep. Minnie Bates, in particular, said that the "grandfather's clock" in the hall struck twelve before she "could close an eye."

At last, just as Grant was rising from an almost untasted luncheon, Mrs. Bates, with a voice of scare, announced "the police," and P. C. Robinson introduced Superintendent Fowler. This time Grant did not resent questions. He expected them, and had made up his mind to give full and detailed answers. Of course, the finding of the body was again described minutely. The superintendent, a man of experience, one whose manner was not fox-like and irritating like his subordinates's, paid close attention to the face at the window.

"There seems to be little room for doubt that Miss Melhuish did enter your grounds about a quarter to eleven last night," he said thoughtfully. "You recognized her at once, you say?"

"I imagined so. Until this horrible thing became known I had persuaded myself that the vision was a piece of sheer hallucination."

"Let us assume that the lady actually came here, and looked in. Evidently, her face was sufficiently familiar that you should know instantly who this unusual visitor was. I understand, though, that you had not the least notion she was staying in Stevnholme?"

"Not the least."

"How long ago is it since you last saw her?"

"Nearly three years."

"You were very well acquainted with her, then, or you could not have glanced up from your table, seen some one staring at you through a window, and said to yourself, as one may express it:—'That is Adelaide Melhuish'."

"We were so well acquainted that I asked the lady to be my wife."

"Ah, said the superintendent.

His placid, unemotional features, however, gave no clew to his opinions. Not so P. C. Robinson, who tried to look like a judge, whereas he really resembled a bull terrier who has literally, not figuratively, cmunt a rat.

Despite his earlier good resolutions, Grant was horribly impatient of this inquisition. He admitted that the superintendent was carrying through an unpleasant duty as inoffensively as possible, but the attitude of the village policeman was irritating in the extreme. Nothing would have tended so effectively to relieve his surcharged feelings as to supply P. C. Robinson then and there with ample material for establishing a charge of assault and battery.

"That is not a remarkable fact, if regarded apart from to-day's tragedy," he said, and there was more than a hint of soul-weariness in his voice. "Miss Melhuish was a very talented and attractive woman. I first met her as the outcome of a suggestion that one of my books should be dramatized, a character in the novel being deemed eminently suitable for her special role on the stage. The idea came to nothing. She was appearing in a successful play at the time, and was rehearsing its successor. Meanwhile, I—fell in love with her, I suppose, and she certainly encouraged me in the belief that she might accept me. I did eventually propose marriage. Then she told me she was married already. It was a painful disillusionment—at the time. I only saw her, to speak to, once again."

"Did she reveal her husband's name?"

"Yes—a Mr. Ingerman."

The superintendent looked grave. That was a professional trick of his. He had never before in his life heard of Mr. Ingerman, but encouraged the notion that this gentleman was thoroughly, and not quite favourably, known to him. Sometimes it happened that a witness, interpreting this sapient look by the light of his or her personal and intimate knowledge, would blurt out certain facts, good or bad as the case might be, concerning the person under discussion.

But Grant remained obstinately silent as to the qualities of this doubtful Ingerman, so Mr. Fowler scribbled the name in a note-book, and was particular as to whether it ended in one "n" or two.

Still, he carried other shots in his locker. In fact, Mr. Fowler, had he taken in youth to nicer legal subtleties than handcuffs and summonses, would have become a shrewd lawyer.

DYSPEPSIA
MOST DIFFICULT TO CURE
BUT B. B. B. DOES IT

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure.

You eat too much; drink too much; make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of time before dyspepsia follows.

That forty-year-old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia, and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we receive from time to time.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N. S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your great medicine Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled very much with dyspepsia for the past two years. I was recommended all kinds of medicines, but they did not help me any. At last a friend advised me to try a bottle of B.B.B. I took four bottles and was totally cured. I will gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

MACHINERY IS READY.

Regulation Prepared for Raising 625,000 Men in U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The American war machine, which is to grind out 625,000 soldiers for service in France, is geared up and ready to start work to-day. President Wilson's proclamation of regulations, which will start the machine by putting into operation the actual draft of men, is completed and ready to be issued. This proclamation tells in detail how the fate of every man eligible how the fate of every man eligible for army service will be decided. It directly affects every American on the registration lists. Within 24 hours the rules will probably be promulgated and the most vital phase of the selective conscription will begin.

HOSPITAL IN READINESS.

Institution in Kingston One of the Dominion's Finest.

KINGSTON, Ont., June 18.— The Kingston military hospital at Queen's University will receive a party of 300 returned and wounded soldiers on Monday next, according to information just received here. Authorization for this hospital for 1,000 beds was made some months ago. It was at first thought that the buildings could not be procured. Officials of Queen's University came to the front, however, and sacrificed two of their finest buildings, that of Grant Hall and of the new Arts buildings.

Since then, under direction of Architect Symons work has been rushed. Due to the nature of the work and care taken to preserve the buildings without too much damage, the most expert workmen had to be secured. These with the very highest class of equipment have made the hospital one of the finest in Canada and it is now complete.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Luigi Vampa

He Was a Bandit, but Treated With Consideration by the Government

By WARREN MILLER

In the days when the Bourbons were kings of Naples southern Italy was probably the worst governed country in the civilized world. The people were sorely oppressed by the government, and it was during this period that much of the crime that still exists in Naples obtained a foothold. During the middle of the last century Garibaldi overthrew King Bomba, as the last Bourbon king of Naples was called, and since then Naples has been morally improving. But it is easier to cast down than to build up, and many years must pass before the effects of the misrule of southern Italy and Sicily will be eradicated.

During the earlier part of the nineteenth century a famous bandit infested the mountainous region encircling the bay of Naples. What his real name was no one knew, but he called himself Luigi Vampa. His band was not large, but the deeds it performed were the wonder of all Italy. Vampa disdained small plunder, always devoting himself to obtaining large sums. If he captured a person for ransom that person was abundantly able to purchase his freedom with a large amount.

But the bandit chief's favorite field was the cities. He would rob an institution with far greater temerity than some outlaws in the old pioneer days of America would hold up a bank. On one occasion, when a theater was crowded with spectators, when the curtain was raised Vampa and his men were on the stage, covering the audience with rifles. While the main band held the people in their seats several bandits went down the aisles levying contributions. When they had taken all there was to be had they went on to the stage, the curtain was lowered, and the band, mounting horses in the rear of the theater, rode away.

By and by it began to be noticed that the government officials were always a little too late to capture the bandits. A few minutes after the latter had openly committed a robbery the soldiers would sweep down with a great clatter, then dash off after the robbers in the wrong direction. During Luigi Vampa's "administration of the country's finances," as some persons termed it, it was noticed that the government was less vigorous in collecting the taxes. Some said that it was because there was no money to collect except from the rich, while others averred that Vampa was the king's tax gatherer. In other words, it was hinted that the bandit paid the government the lion's share of the plunder for being permitted to rob.

A time came when these rumors gained so much currency that the government was obliged to do something to clear itself of these aspersions. An expedition was sent up into the mountains back of Sorrento, where Vampa was at the time. A battle took place, and the chief and a few of his band were brought in chains to Naples. Suspicion that the fight was a sham was excited by the fact that not a man on either side was killed or wounded. It was hinted about that the battle had been fought with blank cartridges. Most of the band made good a retreat and dispersed.

What became of the few men captured no one ever knew. Vampa himself alone remained a prisoner.

Wherever robbery has flourished the robbers seem to have had something of the sympathy of the class of people from which they sprang. Vampa was quite a hero among the poor, because it was believed among them that he had collected from the rich the taxes they would otherwise have paid, leaving the poor immune.

Though Vampa was a prisoner, he had every comfort. His trial was put off from week to week, from month to month. When so much scandal was occasioned by this failure to punish him for his crimes he was at last tried, convicted and sentenced to be shot. But no one believed that he would be executed.

Some persons supposed that the day he was to be shot certain of his band high in his confidence would bring forth evidence implicating the government that would incite a revolution or at least besmirch the king before the entire civilized world.

Be that as it may, Vampa's execution was deferred just as his trial had been deferred. Not only this, but he was permitted greater comfort, and at last, when the public gaze had been somewhat turned from him, he was allowed greater freedom.

One day a well dressed man resembling Vampa appeared in one of the principal restaurants of Naples. He had shaved his beard and made other changes in his personal appearance, but despite this he was recognized as the famous robber. He was accompanied by a woman of a Spanish type of beauty, to whom he appeared devoted. It was reported that the government had permitted the woman he loved to visit him in his confinement, and the government did not deny the report.

Gradually the condemned man was given more and more freedom and was permitted to go about with the Spanish senorita. This favor was, of course, granted by the government. No one knew surely why the government was so lenient with him, but every one believed that he held a sword over it as well as it held one over him. Nevertheless to satisfy appearances Vampa's quarters were still in the prison, though instead of a cell he occupied handsomely furnished rooms.

Vampa was now frequently seen walking with his ladylove in the public park on the shore of the bay of Naples. One day while they were strolling along on the path within the sea wall Vampa was attacked by a man whom he had robbed and whose brother he had murdered. Vampa drew a knife from under his coat and defended himself so resolutely and with such skill that he kept the man at bay till the police interfered.

This added to the scandal of Vampa's privileges, for it revealed the fact that he was permitted to carry arms. He did not appear again for some time in public, and it was generally understood that it was mutually agreed between him and the government that he had better withdraw himself from public notice.

The Spanish senorita was more of a mystery than the privileges granted to Vampa by the government. Few persons got near enough to her to learn what kind of person she was, but those who did reported that she had evidently sprung from better stock than Vampa. At any rate, she had something of the manner of a lady, though whether this was natural to her or assumed they could not be sure. If the bandit had been devoted to her while plying his vocation the fact had not been known, for no such person had ever been reported as being in his confidence.

A number of conflicting reports were circulated with regard to her. One was that she had been prominent socially in Madrid, but had been dropped from society. Another was that she had been a leader in one of the revolutionary plots in France against the empire and had been used by Louis XVIII. to further some secret diplomatic scheme. Still another was that she was the daughter of a bandit in Spain and had been a danseuse on the stage in that country.

One evening Vampa and the senorita were seen walking in the twilight by the sea wall, and when they came to a landing where there were boats for hire they got into a light skiff, and Vampa, taking the oars, pulled out for a ride on the bay. The water was of a deep blue. To the north the island of Ischia rose, a black rock against the red sky left by the descending sun; to the west Capri was enveloped in a thin veil of mist. The senorita was observed as her companion pulled away sitting in the stern of the boat, pointing here and there enthusiastically at the beauties of the scene. As they went farther and farther from the shore darkness fell, and they finally were merged with the black waters of the Mediterranean.

That was the last ever seen of the senorita in Naples, nor was the bandit ever seen by any one again alive. The next morning the boat in which they had gone out on the bay was found under the sea wall. It was not fastened. Whether it had drifted in or been pulled in and left where it touched the shore could not be determined. During the day some fishermen from Sorrento picked up the dead body of Luigi Vampa floating between that point and the island of Capri. No mark of violence was found on the body.

The mysteries that had so long puzzled the Neapolitans ended in a mystery. How Luigi Vampa met his death was never discovered. The government did not even make a show of trying to learn anything concerning it, not disguising the fact that they were relieved that the bandit would no longer trouble them.

A few years after all this occurred a man who had dined in a Neapolitan restaurant at a table near Vampa and his senorita, while in Paris saw at the races a woman who was making huge bets. He recognized her at once as the senorita. Inquiry brought the fact that the woman was very rich and that she had a title from the Neapolitan government. She was considered an adventuress and was shunned by respectable women.

There was no doubt in southern Italy so long as that episode was remembered that Luigi Vampa was put out of the way by this woman, that she was given a large sum and a title as her pay for the deed. That she was some time in effecting her object is accounted for by the fact that Vampa was never without a weapon on his person. But just how the woman committed the deed for which she was paid has ever remained a mystery. The only report of her that was ever received by the Neapolitans came from the person who had seen and recognized her in Paris.

The real story of the senorita is as follows. She was really the daughter of a Spanish bandit. She was a favorite with her father's men and was with them a great deal of the time when they were making their forays, but in time the band came to grief and her father was executed. The girl was a natural dancer and obtained a position as danseuse in a Madrid theater. A young nobleman fell in love with her and married her, but her past history having become known to him he left her to her own devices. After the work she had done in getting rid of Vampa she had all the money she wanted and appeared in Paris under the titular name of her Spanish husband. Her title was not Italian but Spanish. Her fortune came from Italy, her title from Spain.

There is a great change in the government of Naples as a part of united Italy from what it was under the old regime. A character such as Luigi Vampa could not flourish there today.

Help Canada Maintain Her Financial Freedom !

Do Your Share towards Financing the War with Canadian Savings Rather than with Outside Capital.

THE problem of meeting the enormous cost of this war is twofold. Not only must Canada get the money—most of it, of course, as loans—but she must get as much of it as possible here in Canada.

We can carry the war-debt if the bulk of the interest goes to Canadians, and so is used again in the country's development. But it will be a serious matter for us if a large proportion of the interest has to be sent outside the Dominion.

For the sake of our own and our children's future this drain on our resources must be avoided! Canada's financial freedom can and must be maintained! An average saving of 15 cents a day, invested by each man, woman and child in Canada in War Savings Certificates, would enable us to carry the whole cost of the war. To approach this average, hard work, thrift, self-denial and sacrifice are required of every citizen.

For each $21.50 you lend the Government now, you will receive $25.00 in three years—or you can get your money back at any time. Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, and may be purchased at any Bank or Money Order Post Office. 22

MRS. MAY'S LETTER to WOMEN

More Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves Suffering.

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a bad case of female ills. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and I took about six bottles. It fixed me up all right. The common symptoms of such a condition—pain when walking, irritation, bearing down pains and backache, nervousness and disordered digestion—soon passed away. I look much better now than I did before, and I recommend the Compound every time for female troubles, as it did for me all it is claimed to do. You have my permission to publish this letter." Mrs. J. MAY, 3548 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

If you have any of the symptoms mentioned in Mrs. May's letter, remember what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and try it yourself. It is a good old-fashioned medicine, made from roots and herbs, and it has helped countless numbers of women.

If you need special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

PRACTISE ECONOMY.

If You are not Fighting Buy War Savings Certificates.

Do not buy that suit unless it is essential. Put your money in war savings certificates instead. So with the coat and the hat, the boots and the shoes and the gloves, so with all expenditures. If you really need the article buy it. It is false economy to deny yourself essentials. But there is a great difference between true economy and extravagance. Most of the things you have to-day will last you until next year. Let them last and put the money into an investment that will help to win the war. The war burden of the Dominion increases every day. By extravagance, by wastefulness, by luxuriousness you are increasing that burden where you might be easing it. Think twice before you buy. Then buy war certificates; practise true economy, help your country and the men at the front and incidentally help your self. You can buy certificates in amounts of $25, $50 or $100. You can buy them at your nearest Money Order Post Office or Bank. Do it now. Give your little bit towards victory.

Black as Dirt About the Eyes

Liver Was All Upset and There Was Pain Under the Shoulder-blade—Two Interesting Letters.

TORONTO, Ont., June 20. — So many people suffer from derangement of the liver that we feel sure these two reports, just recently received, will prove interesting reading and valuable information to many readers of this paper.

Mrs. F. L. Harris, Keatley P.O., liver trouble—had a heavy pain under Sask., writes: "I was suffering from one shoulder blade all the time, and was nearly as black as dirt around the eyes, so I concluded to try some of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and before I had taken some 25c. box the pain had left me and I commenced to gain in flesh, and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and felt like a new person. My trouble was caused by heavy work out-of-doors, and, of course, heavy eating and constipation. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney or liver trouble to give Dr. Chase's Pills a trial."

Mrs. Charles Tarry, Tweed, Ont., writes: "Before I was married I was troubled with enlargement of the liver, and liver became so enlarged that you could detect that swellings in the side, and it was only with difficulty that I could get my clothes on. A friend advised me to get Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and take them. I commenced this treatment, and used nine boxes, which cured me at last time. Then, about two or three years afterward I was troubled again with the swelling, but only on my right side. I secured some more Kidney-Liver Pills, and took them, which finally cured me. I have not been troubled in this way since. I can sincerely recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone having kidney or liver trouble.

I also found Dr. Chase's Turpentine excellent for coughs and colds. In fact, any of Dr. Chase's medicines which we have used have been good."

Hints On Canning Fruits And Vegetables

With a large crop of vegetables, which should be the result of the prevailing widespread passion for gardening there is every reason why the housewife should store away as much as possible in jars and glasses.

There have been rumors that there will be a shortage of cans. This is a difficulty that can be met if all the glass bottles or glass jars with screw tops that come to the home in the course of a few weeks are utilised. Large-necked bottles are excellent for jams and preserves when sealed with paraffin. Fruit juices and catsup will keep perfectly in smaller necked bottles.

Any receptacles of glass, crockery or porcelain can be sealed with cork or paper or paraffin. So if all available containers are saved the regulation jars can be used for vegetables and soups which will be wanted in large quantities at a time other than the fruits.

A method of canning both fruits and vegetables, much in favor with experts and claimed to be very simple, is the cold-pack method. In preparation for this fruit is carefully washed, peeled and pitted, placed in the jars and syrup is added to fill the jar completely.

Brine or water is used to fill the jars in the case of vegetables. The rubbers are put on loosely (both rubbers and tops having been sterilised first in boiling water.) The filled cans are then sterilised and sealed.

The novel part of the cold-pack procedure is the sterilising process, which is simplicity itself when done over the burners of the modern gas range. A false bottom, easily constructed of laths, is laid in the bottom of the wash boiler, the jars are set on this, and the boiler filled with cold water up to within about one-third the height of the jars.

As soon as the jars come out of the boiler (and the length of the sterilising process depends upon the fibre of the fruit or vegetables), the tops are tightened and the jars set upside down to cool.

Soft fruits, like strawberries, blackberries, blueberries, cherries, etc., should be sterilised sixteen minutes, which means that the water must boil hard fully sixteen minutes. Hard fruits, such as apples, pears, quinces, etc., should be blanched in hot water a minutes and a half, then plunged in cold water.

Blanching, means boiling quickly in water by placing the fruit or vegetables in a cloth bag which is then lowered entirely under the water. This is done to eliminate acids and bitter substances. After the blanching hard fruits should be packed in the jars, and sterilised for twenty minutes.

Vegetables should be blanched for fifteen to twenty minutes. After their plunge into cold water they can be cut into convenient lengths and packed tightly in the jars. Add hot water to fill the crevices and a level teaspoon of salt to each quart.

Sterilising for vegetables is a longer process, taking ninety minutes. When the jars are removed from the boiler the covers should be tightened and the jars inverted as for fruits.

That is the process for most garden vegetables, but lima beans, string beans, peas, etc., should be sterilised one hundred and twenty minutes.

For tomatoes twenty minutes is long enough for the sterilising.

The giant burner of the gas range, so seldom necessary in ordinary cooking has its innings in the canning season, and the boiler used in the cold pack method requires this widest burner.

If fruit is stewed first before canning the standard burner is used unless the stewing is done in a large preserving kettle with a large bottom surface. To insure jams and fruits from sticking, set the kettle on the iron holder or griddle and the heat will be sufficient and evenly distributed.

With gas equipment in the kitchen, a plentiful crop of fruit and vegetables and the housewife's enthusiasm for keeping the household budget sheared everywhere possible, husband's prospects for delicious home-canned food next winter are unusually good.—N. Y. Evening Telegram.

There are said to be more than 900 languages used in Asia, almost 600 in Europe 275 in Africa and more than 1,600 languages and dialects which are American.

WOMEN WORTHY OF VOTE.

(Exchange.)

There have recently been many buryings of the hatchet in connection with the woman suffrage movement in England, but it was, surely, a peculiarly picturesque ceremony which took place at Leeds when Lord Faber, once a staunch opponent of woman suffrage, announced his conversion. "I have a treasure here," he said, addressing a woman suffrage meeting, "which I regard with great interest. It is a large piece of iron which you ladies were good enough to throw through the window of my house in London. You have a hundred times repaid me for that by the good service you have since done to the State. You have won the victory; you have shown yourselves worthy of the vote."

CANADA MUST PRODUCE MORE.

(Edmonton Journal.)

The commission of conservation has issued a report giving a review of its work during the last year. In a convincing way that was never so fully possible in pre-war days, it presents the gospel of thrift and economy of natural resources, and drives home the lesson that the war has been teaching. The "polite but somewhat academic interest" that people used to show in the work of the conservationists has now changed into a real and intelligent appreciation of their aims and purposes, and the work has been so much the more a success. For with all the other lessons the war has taught, it has forced especial emphasis upon the need of husbanding the country's resources and using them in ways that will contribute most effectively to national welfare. One of the chief necessities of the future, says the commission's report, will be an increase in food production.

CANADIAN CONSCRIPTION.

(Chicago Tribune.)

War soon taught Americans to admire Canadians and Canadians to despise Americans. While we were saying, "How gallantly the Canadians have gone in!" they were saying, "How cowardly of the Americans to stay out!"

We are in, now—in up to the hilt—and it is America, not Canada, that has dared to adopt selective conscription from the outset. It has taken our example, plus attendance at the imperial conference in London, to make Premier Sir Robert Borden propose selective conscription for Canada.

It would have come, of course, without Sir Robert's assistance, for Canada has reached the end of her volunteer resources. After sending 200,000 men abroad, with 100,000 more in training at home, she finds recruiting at a standstill, although anywhere from 50,000 to 100,000 recruits are needed to repair wastage.

No doubt Canadians still feel proud of the war-like fervour that so rapidly built up that magnificent army. It was superb. But it was destined not to last. No such fervour does or can. Moreover, we doubt if it is as fine a moral produce as the measured, calm, deliberate determination that appraises the situation coolly and shoulders the burden in a thoroughly businesslike style. There is nothing showy about our American adventure. There is nothing romantic. It is practical, however, and the only system bound to work and keep on working. Canada's experience proves that.

EMERGENCY ARMY RATIONS.

(Christian Herald.)

Of the emergency rations of the fighters of the world, the most ostentatious is Uncle Sam's ration of compressed maize meal with meat farina and three chocolate bars. This ration is deficient in fats, for the very good reason that, even though hermetically sealed, it would become rancid if it carried any more fat. It is not, therefore, a balanced ration; but the container holds enough actual food to keep a soldier from starving for 24 hours.

The British troops as well as the Dutch have a sausage made of ground peas highly salted, reported to have been originated by the Scotch, and which is put up in regular sausage skins. It is said to be the most sustaining emergency ration known.

The Italian butter-ball is interesting because of the perfect preservation of the unsalted butter within the dry cheese envelope. If the Chinese egg had ever been in a condition to be unwelcome, it had been thoroughly cured; the albumen was of an ebony blackness, although still soft like gelatine; and while it did not taste like the eggs we are accustomed to eat for breakfast, neither did it taste as bad as it looked. The Chinese consider these eggs a great delicacy, and Europeans are reported before now to have acquired the taste. The compressed tablets of tea make it possible for one to eat his tea, if water is not available, the Russians getting what they call a dry cup of tea by slipping a tablet of compressed tea into the mouth and allowing it to dissolve slowly. All sorts of meat and fish are dried in sheets and strips and hunks by the various armies, and the Russians even dry the spinal cord of the sturgeon, occasionally using this strange ration as a walking-stick.

These are not the foods, however, upon which armies live, but the emergency rations upon which the soldier depends when the regular rations fail.

Athletics To Be Big Feature of U. S. Army Life

Adopt Canadian Idea and Appropriate One Million Dollars for Expenses

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Canada's athlete training system will be adopted in its entirety by the United States Government. This was decided upon to-day, when Lieut.-Col. "Dick" Greer and Capt. Tom Flanagan of the Sportsmen's Battalion of Toronto, on invitation, came here and conferred with Commissioner Fordick, in charge of training camps.

The Americans of the North—the Canadians—went into the war exactly as we are going into it. Their people who, like our people, peaceful citizens of fine stock, and except for a small minority, untrained in military affairs. Yet the Canadians, from the first heroic fighting of the famous and heroic Princess Pats to the taking of Vimy Ridge, have been second to none on the firing line. To-day they are reckoned among the strongest, most enduring, most aggressive troops that have taken part in the Great War. And one of the most important factors in Canadian military preparation has been active athletic sport, both in the training camps and at the front.

Knowing the importance of the work carried on by Greer and Flanagan and their associates, the Toronto officers were invited to come to Washington for the purpose of giving the Americans the benefit of their experience.

REPUTATIONS PRECEDE THEM

"We know all about you and your work," said Commissioner Fosdick, as he grasped the hands of the Canadian visitors. "We have been studying the results of your athletic organization in Canada. We are so impressed with the magnificent results that we have already begun work on similar lines, and we will be very glad to have any assistance you can give us. The Government has set aside one million dollars for the encouragement of sport in the army."

The commissioner has already begun to organize for the athletic and military training. In some ways we have a great advantage over the Canadians. We are fortunate in having in the United States the finest lot of skilled handlers of athletic men in the world—the college coaches. These men will be used by the Government in putting the Canadian camp training system into operation. Needless to say, most of the athletic men of the United States will line up for war service, and it is from these men the greatest things are expected.

"It will be a fine thing to have men of such standing in every camp," said Colonel Greer. "I cannot exaggerate the importance of sport in the modern army. The psychological effect of any competitive sport is almost miraculous. No matter how patriotic men in the ranks are, and not matter how fit, with a continual grind, grind, grind of military work and drill there comes a time to try a man when he is desperately sick of it. He must have something to keep him from thinking all the time of his wife or his family or his sweetheart at home. His interest must be centred in the place where he must stay. Sport is the only thing that can turn a discontented soldier into a contented and happy one."

SPORTSMAN AS A FIGHTER.

Col. Greer spoke of the patriotism and the fighting qualities of the French soldiers, whose love of France has become almost a religion. The British soldiers do not fear death, but the Frenchman glories in being killed, if only he can strike a blow for France in his dying. The things the French have done are marvelous. But the English and Canadians and Australians fight in a different way. They make a sport of fighting. They go laughing and shouting into battle as if it were all a game. The moral effect of it is immense. The soldiers forget all about the bullet. And the moral effect on the Germans is just as great. They say the British are devils.

"The German soldier has no sport," says Col. Greer. "He is a machine; he is rigidly in his place. He can't understand the idea that fighting is sport to the British. That long line of men charging, laughing and kicking a football along ahead terrifies him. That is why you read of fifteen hundred or two or three thousand men surrender ing in a body, with hardly any resistance. The English and Canadians never surrender like that. They fight while they have a cartridge left or a leg to stand on. It isn't in the game to quit. It's against every principle of sport.

"Why, at the capture of Vimy Ridge the fight was hardly over when the Canadians were clearing ground for a ball field, and forty-eight hours later they were playing the final game in the battalion baseball championship series right on the ground the Germans had occupied. That's the sporting end of it."

And all that is why the United States recognizes the glory of the Canadian fighter and wants our men to emulate his example. That is why Col. Dick Greer and Capt. Tom Flanagan were invited to Washington.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged.

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FELT LIKE A NEW PERSON

After Taking Only One Box Of "Fruit-a-tives"

EAST SHEP HARBOUR, N. S.

"It is with great pleasure that I write to tell you of the wonderful benefits I have received from taking "Fruit-a-tives". For years, I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches, and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicines seemed to help me. Then I finally tried "Fruit-a-tives" and the effect was splendid. After taking one box, I feel like a new person, to have relief from these sickening Headaches".

Mrs. MARTHA DEWOLFE.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Col. Greer and Capt. Flanagan returned to Canada immediately after the interview. But they first assured Commissioner Fosdick that they will be ready and willing at any moment to volunteer the benefit of their experience in aid of men who train our soldiers when the Commissioner calls upon them.

GERMANS LET WOMEN GO.

But Tell Some American Men They Must Stay During War.

COPENHAGEN, June 18.—Michael J. Stark of Chicago, an employee of the International Harvester Company at Neuss, Prussia, arrived here from Germany Wednesday night. He had been trying since February 6 to obtain a passport and received permission to leave Germany only a short time ago. A number of American men of his acquaintance, he said, had been told they could not get passports until the war was over.

On the other hand, the German authorities have been pressing American women to leave the country. One woman, long a resident in Germany, who recently reached Copenhagen on her way to America, said that when she appeared for compulsory registration the German officer in charge asked her what justification she had for remaining and said that the Government thought all American women ought to leave.

Another recent American arrival is Miss Sjozilius of Duluth, an American singer who was engaged by the Mannheim Opera. She was released from a long-term contract owing to the war.

At the seventh inning, according to ancient custom, the crowd stood up and stretched. The tyro looked about him with a puzzled expression, then jumped to his feet and took off his hat. "I say, old chap," he whispered to the man who stood next to him, "there must be something the matter with my ears. I didn' hear the band play the 'Star Spangled Banner!'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When the quiet man makes a noise in the world it counts.

HOME DEFENCE

The safeguarding of your home and all it means to you is not a matter of armies and ships alone. The comfort and happiness of your family are exposed to the attacks of enemies much nearer to them than the marauding Huns of Central Europe.

What will become of your home and your wife and your children, if you be suddenly stricken down as thousands of others have been?

Will there be any bulwark of defence to keep the home and the family from destruction?

You can most easily provide such a line of defence by means of a life assurance policy. Home Defence is its purpose and it fulfills that purpose as nothing else can.

MANY BOATS LOST DURING THE WEEK

HEAVY ARTILLERY FIGHTING ON FRENCH FRONT

SUBMARINE LOSSES DURING PAST WEEK HAVE BEEN VERY HEAVY

Admiralty Advance Notice States Losses with Approximate Number and Tonnage Comparable with Week Ending April 22nd — Titanic Artillery Duel is Raging Along French Front Where Hindenburg is Apparently Preparing for a Counter Offensive

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

WITH THE AMERICAN DESTROYER FLOTILLA IN BRITISH WATERS, June 19.—After a record-breaking dash at night in response to wireless distress calls, two American destroyers arrived at their base in a British port to-day with eighty survivors of two torpedoed merchant ships. The rescues were made at a point at sea farther from land than any torpedoings having yet been reported. Vice-Admiral Sims, the American fleet commander, who is now in charge of all Allied naval operations in this section, personally talked with a number of the survivors on their arrival in port. The flag of the American Admiral now floats from a flagstaff on a promonotory on the coast where it is visible for miles at sea.

LONDON, June 20.—The Admiralty has given an advance notice that weekly list to be issued this evening of British ships sunk by German submarines will indicate the high mark of losses by the British in that direction. The statement says that the losses will approximate a number and tonnage comparable with the most serious week since the German submarine campaign started. That was the week ending April 22nd, when fifty-five ships were sunk and twenty-seven others attacked but escaped. It is stated that the sinkings for one particular day last week were greater than any other day on record.

At the same time the Admiralty is not pessimistic. It is pointed out that methods and means of fighting submarines are constantly growing.

PARIS, June 20. — A titanic artillery struggle is in progress on the greater part of the French front to-day's War Office statement revealed. Between the Ailette and Moulin Laffeaux, and in sections of Chevreux Wood and north of Rheims the fire was heaviest from the German batteries. A Violent bombardment of French positions was directed there late at night. Along the Champagne front it was more of a duel of violence, guns on both sides roaring unceasingly throughout the night. "The Germans unsuccessfully attacked a small post near Monts Teton and Cornillet and further west following a bombardment," the statement continued. "The German attack was dispersed and thrown back to the German trenches from which it started."

The violence of the German artillery fire suggests the possibility that Hindenburg may be preparing a counter-offensive move against the French. During the last three days the German fire has been intense. The positions under bombardment are mainly those commanding the valleys leading up to Laon, taken by the French in their April offensive drive.

ROME, June 20.—Formidable positions on Mount Ortigara, including the summit of Hill 105, were captured from the Austrians in a sudden offensive assumed by the Italian troops. The official statement this afternoon said 936 prisoners had been taken.

LONDON, June 20.—The British official statement to-day said: "On the Arras battle front our troops gained ground slightly during the day south of Cojeul River, and also north of the Souchez River, where we captured thirty-five prisoners. In addition to the captures already reported four German field guns were taken by us east of Messines in the course of our recent advance in this area on Thursday night. Valuable work was performed by our air planes yesterday in spite of the unsettled weather. Bombs dropped on an enemy dump caused an explosion. Six German machines were brought down in air fighting, and three of our machines failed to return.

LONDON, June 20. — Including his report on the British operations from December 18 to the commencement of the present offensive Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig says: "I wish to place on record here the fact that the successful solution of the problem of railway transport would have been impossible had it not been for the patriotism of railway companies at home and in Canada. They did not hesitate to give locomotives and rolling stock required to meet our needs, and even to tear up track in order to provide us with the necessary rails. The thanks of the army are due also to those who have accepted so cheerfully the inconvenience caused by the consequent diminution of railway facilities available for civil traffic."

LONDON, June 20.—I hope I shall not be misconstrued or thought impatient when I say that sooner your food administration measures are enacted sooner we will breathe easier, declared Lord Rhondda, Britain's new food controller, to-day. He was discussing the Congressional debate on the American food bill. If American resources are organized to their full capacity, I am confident the German hope of starving the Allies, or even causing civilian unrest, due to scarcity or high prices, is doomed to failure."

BOSTON, Mass., June 20.—German submarine warfare has taken toll of three vessels sailing from Boston to Europe, it was reported to local underwriters to-day. They are the British steamship Elele, the Dutch steamer Emdijk, and the British steamer Bay State. They carried cargoes valued at three millions.

MR. BURNHAM'S RESIGNATION WAS NOT DEALT WITH

Conservative Association Meeting Passed Off Very Quietly — Mr. Burnham's Letter Was Received.

AMONG THOSE PRESENT

The Executive Committee of the West Peterborough Conservative Association met last evening and disposed of General business. The meeting was really an adjourned meeting of two weeks ago. The correspondence which included Mr. Burnham's letter, tendering his resignation was received and no action taken, much to the disappointment of a few members, who, for the first time in many months, attended the meeting; also the local evening contemporary who following Mr. Burnham's action, went into hysterics in a futile attempt for forecast the probable result. The members who had been away for so long were on hand to add force to the fireworks which they expected.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE TO CHITTICK FAMILY

The Cheese Board this morning passed a resolution of condolence to the family of the late John Chittick, who was killed in the destruction of Trewern factory yesterday. Mr. Robert Duff, of Selwyn, president of the Board stated that the fatality had cast a gloom over the dairymen of the county.

"I'm very sorry to report that the worst accident that ever happened in the cheese industry of this district occurred yesterday in the total destruction of Trewern factory, and the death of Mr. John Chittick, the owner and cheese maker," said Mr. Duff. "The loss will be greatly felt in that community. Mr. Chittick had been in the cheese business all his life. He was known to all of us and will be greatly missed. Personally, I have lost my very best friend. As a cheese maker he was second to none. I am satisfied that his loss will not soon be overcome in that section of the county.

The motion of condolence was moved by Mr. Bullock and seconded by Mr. Anderson.

Public Meeting To Discuss Fire Protection

At the request of Mr. J. J. Turner, President of the Board of Trade, and Mr. Breyfogle, Chairman of the Manufacturers' Section of the Board, Mayor Duffus has called a public meeting for this evening, June 20th in the Council Chamber, to discuss the question of fire protection. The chief points to be discussed will be in connection with the strength of the fire department, and the advisability of having a pumper attachment on the new piece of motor apparatus which is about to be purchased. All manufacturers, merchants, professional men, the Trades and Labour Council and other bodies interested, are urged to be present at this important meeting.

The One Great Aim of the Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. has a broader aim than CREED, and wider ambition than SECT. It preaches self-respect. It weaves an ethical and moral woof into the warp of life. It is building stronger bodies to hold saner and cleaner minds. It's latch string fits into the hands of ALL MEN irrespective of race, religion or lineage. Its CHRISTIANITY strikes the clear note of HUMANITARIANISM. With one hand it is striving to help the straggler up the slope and with the other it is steadying the laggard and the disheartened. It has done more to impregnate young men with betterment than ANY SINGLE FORCE ever brought to bear upon YOUTH. It knows hundreds whom it COULD HELP if the helping FUNDS could be secured, WITHOUT which the organization must remain CIRCUMSCRIBED. The Y. M. C. A. does not ASK for CHARITY nor plea for ALMS. Its USEFULNESS exalts it to a CIVIC DIGNITY. It is the servant of the PUBLIC and its obligation to the future MUST become the obligation of the public.

Private F. Armstrong of Lakefield, Reported Killed in Action

Number of District Soldiers in the List To-day --- Private George T. Grist of Peterborough Is Reported Wounded --- Millbrook and Warsaw Soldiers Hit --- To-day's General Military News

KILLED IN ACTION.

Pte. F. Armstrong, Lakefield.

WOUNDED.

Pte. Geo. T. Grist, late 39th Battalion, Peterborough.

Pte. G. E. Purchase, Infantry, Warsaw.

Pte. A. Taylor, 21st Battalion, Millbrook.

Pte. Hugh B. Boorman, Canadian Infantry, 243 McDonnel street.

PTE. F. ARMSTRONG.

Pte. F. Armstrong of Lakefield is officially reported killed in action, his name appearing in to-day's list from Ottawa. Pte. Armstrong enlisted and went overseas with an outside unit.

PTE. GEO. T. GRIST.

Pte. Geo. T. Grist of Peterborough who enlisted here with the 39th Battalion, over two years ago, is officially reported wounded. Pte. Grist, who boarded at 309 McDonnel street, before he enlisted, went overseas with the 39th, and was transferred to another Canadian battalion at the front.

PTE. HUGH B. BOORMAN.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boorman, 243 McDonnel street, received official word from Ottawa to-day that their son, Pte. Hugh B. Boorman, Canadian Infantry, is reported admitted to No. 1 Canadian General Hospital, Etaples, on June 10, 1917, with severe gun shot wounds in the chest and knee. Pte. Boorman, who has many friends in Peterborough, enlisted with the 94th Battalion at Port Arthur. Previous to enlistment he had been employed as an engineer on the C.P.R.

ARE GRATEFUL.

The members of the Peterborough Branch of the Great Veterans' Association who have been attending the special class conducted by Mr. M. W. Clarke, principal of the King Edward School, wish to express their sincere thanks to Mr. Clarke for his kindness and patience in giving two evenings a week to helping the War Veterans.

Lindsay, June 19.—Major Charles Elliott Sutcliffe, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sutcliffe, Lindsay, is reported missing since June 6. He is the grandson of the late Mr. Joseph Sutcliffe, who was so well and favourably known in Toronto for a great many years. Major Sutcliffe went overseas just a year ago in command of C. Co. of an Ottawa battalion. After this battalion was broken up in England, Major Sutcliffe served in the trenches in France with a New Brunswick Battalion. Returning to England, he transferred to the Royal Flying Corps, and has been on active service in France since the middle of April. He was a scout pilot, flying the fastest British machine.

New York, June 19.—A recruiting headquarters for Canadians in New England and New York will be opened here by Major L. J. Daly Grogan, of the Canadian 236th Battalion, who arrived to-day from Quebec. There are 250,000 French-Canadian males in the district, he said.

A former member of the 93rd Band, now with the 236th, in England, writes to a member of the Examiner staff, as follows:

I have been going to write you before, but as the saying is, better late than never.

We have been here almost three weeks; it only seems about that long since we left here for Canada. I suppose it is because these grounds are so familiar to us 93rd boys. I guess you are already aware that Otterpool Camp is now a segregation camp, and to make things worse, one of the boys took the mumps and the seven of us that were sleeping together have decreased in number to six. He went to the hospital and the remaining unfortunate six were sent to the Quarantine Camp for a period of twenty-eight days or more, and as we marched out with tent and all belongings, like a crowd of prisoners, our Captain said to us: Boys, you have twenty-eight days more to live; that's consoling, isn't it?

We are there and have another couple of weeks to serve providing no more cases appear, which, of course, would delay us.

I suppose you have heard all about the air raid we had last week in daylight, over here. It was about 6 p. m. I heard unusual roars above and after peering into the sky discovered about sixteen German planes almost directly over us. They started bombing immediately, some of the bombs dropping in the neighbouring fields, doing little damage. They proceeded by way of Folkestone vicinity to the coast, where they inflicted terrible injuries on the residents of Folkestone, a number of whom were women and children; the total loss of killed and injured was 250, all told. Believe me, I thought we were going to get it in our camp at first, but fortunately we had no bombs dropped on us.

The weather has been very nice ever since we have been here and the scenery is very picturesque. We have a route march every afternoon which is very much appreciated by us, as we are shut up here every night.

The food has changed considerably since we left, last winter; nothing is wasted, and I suppose you have heard about the bread being a portion bran, and it also has to be 12 hours old before being allowed to be eaten.

I am going to try and take in Edinburgh and Glasgow on my leave if possible, so I will write after my leave and tell you what I think of the land of the heather, if I should go.

EYE TAX.

Greater demands are constantly being made on the eyes by our advancing civilization. Life is often a failure through poor sight. The eyes are the bread winners. Dr. Lacey can give you the best vision possible. See Him and See Better. 419 George street.

The Geological Survey has estimated that there are about 1,000,000 troy ounces of platinum in the United States.

Major-General Currie Commands Canadians

LANCE-CORP. J. S. THOMPSON

Of Warsaw, who has been killed in action. He enlisted here with the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles.

British Columbia Officer is at the Head of All Canadian Troops in France — Succeeds General Sir Julian Byng

HAS FINE RECORD

(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)

Canadian Headquarters in France, (via London), June 19.—Sir Arthur Currie, who has been acting Commander of the Canadian Corps since Sir Julian Byng left, returned to Headquarters this morning, having been authorized to take over the command. Sir Arthur came to France with the original Canadian overseas contingent as a Brigadier, and has had a part in all the major engagements of the corps. His appointment greatly pleases the men in the trenches. He is the first Canadian to command the corps. His predecessors, Generals Alderson and Byng, were both Imperial officers of long service and distinction.

Major-General Currie was born forty-two years ago in the village of Napperton, in Middlesex county, Ontario. This now very important village is not listed in the Canadian Almanac, but lies some miles west of the town of Strathroy, and not far from the dividing line between Middlesex and Lambton counties.

The son of William Currie and Jane Garner, he was educated at the Strathroy Collegiate Institute, and at the age of eighteen he left Ontario to seek his fortune in British Columbia. Arriving at Sydney, B.C., in 1893, he secured a precarious living in the position of teacher in the public school of that village. After some years in that profession he entered the real estate business, and later became head of the firm of Currie and Power, real estate agents, Victoria, B. C.

While in British Columbia he identified himself with the 5th Regiment of the Canadian Garrison Artillery, with which he served for fourteen years. Leaving the artillery, he joined a Highland regiment in Victoria, which is allied with one of the famous regiments of Highlanders in Scotland. He took a keen interest in all matters affecting the militia, and soon became Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment, the 50th, of Victoria. He also became President of the British Columbia Rifle Association in 1907, and retained that position for many years. Rifle-shooting was his recreation.

He married in 1901 Miss L. S. Chatsworth-Musters, of Victoria. He is a Liberal, an Anglican, and a member of the Masonic Order.

Major-General Currie was among the first Canadians to volunteer for active service when the war broke out, and immediately orders were received for the Canadian volunteers to mobilize at Valcartier he entrained with his Highland regiment for the great concentration camp in Quebec. Shortly after reaching Valcartier, he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General in command of the Second Infantry Brigade, and it was in that position he went to Salisbury Plains and eventually to the firing line.

There are few Canadians who do not know the part taken by the Canadians in the second battle of Ypres, their first big engagement after reaching Flanders. General Currie's brigade, which was in the hardest fighting of that terrific struggle, was composed of the 5th, 7th, 8th and 10th Battalions. His conduct was such that the King made him a Companion of the Order of the Bath, while France conferred upon him the Legion of Honour and the Croix de Commandeur.

At the battle of St. Julien General Currie's brigade was holding 2,500 yards of trenches, when the 3rd Brigade was forced by the German gas to retire. Currie's brigade had maintained its lines, but when the Canadian Highland Brigade had changed its position it became necessary for him to repeat the tactical manoeuvre.

Aged and Infirm Ministers' Fund of the Presbyterian Church in Canada	300.00
Widows' and Orphans' fund of the Presbyterian Church in Canada	300.00
Sabbath School of St. Paul's Church	300.00

Also to St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, the sum of $500 towards the liquidation of the Church or Manse debt, such sum to include and satisfy any outstanding subscriptions I may have given for a similar purpose, but in case there is no such debt at the time of my decease the said sum shall form part of my residuary estate."

Mr. Innes also instructed his executors, Messrs. Harry Rush and Alex. Gibson, to expend any sum up to $800 for a plain but substantial low monument to be erected in the Little Lake cemetery to the memory of his wife and himself, and a reasonable sum for the perpetual care of his lot in the cemetery.

SERGT. P. T. MARTIN WINS MILITARY MEDAL

Another Member of the 93rd Batt. Recognized for Gallant Conduct

Word has been received that Sergt. P. T. Martin, of 216 Bethune street, won a Military Medal on Easter Monday for gallant conduct on the battle field. Sergt. Martin enlisted with the 93rd, but was transferred to the 1st Battalion.

CROPS IN DUMMER LOOK GOOD

Mr. Robert Bullied was in the city to-day and states that the crops in his district look excellent. They were well put in and as there has been plenty of rain they have done well.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 20, 1917

CONGRATULATIONS.

In the appointment of Mr. Geo. W. Powell to the important post of agent of the Children's Aid Society, congratulations are due to both the Society and Mr. Powell, and also to the public interests concerned in the proper administration of the office. The Society evidently recognized the importance of its responsibility in filling it as it has done. Mr. Powell is personally a most estimable citizen, who has earned, and enjoys, public confidence to a high degree as a citizen, and if he will, as is morally certain he will do, justify this confidence in his more public capacity of agent of a society closely associated with the highest interests of the community, his administration of his trust will be eminently successful.

AT LAST.

When we see the oncoming crops in garden and field, perhaps our sense of the high cost of living is lost or sobered in the hope of a good harvest bringing down the altitudinous financial equivalent of our daily bread. But it appears that high prices for food are created by other conditions than the operation of the law of supply and demand, and that as long as the war lasts these conditions are likely to remain, unless drastically dealt with by some government action. There is more or less suspicion that trade combinations, contrary to the law of the land, and controllable circumstances, are largely responsible for high prices. The people, therefore, naturally look to the government for action, and in face of this trust we have a veteran minister, like Sir George Foster, the ablest man in the cabinet, confessing government inability to deal with the food situation. Last Friday, Sir George Foster said in the House of Commons:

> It is absolutely folly for anyone of us to imagine that we can appoint a food controller, and that he can go into the market in Montreal, Toronto, or anywhere else, and fix prices at his arbitrary discretion, without having regard to supply and demand and the conditions that are world-wide to-day. If we try to bolster ourselves up with such a remedy we shall be trusting in a quack remedy, and shall only meet with disappointment. In this world there are forces which no mayor of a city, and no man sitting on a nail-keg and talking to his fellows of the enormous prices that are demanded, is going to have much influence, as the results are being motived by world causes, and these are as the deep currents of the sea. Storage and speculation are but scum and froth upon the surface, not to be allowed if they can be kept off, but sedulously to be looked into, restrained and restricted; but to-day we are called upon to pay high prices, because of the basic conditions of the times in which we live supervening upon three years of the most disastrous and widely destructive war that history has ever recorded.

Yet, in the face of that declaration, we have the announcement of the appointment of Mr. W. J. Hanna, of Toronto, as food controller for the Dominion. When a minister declares that the government cannot do what has been done, and is bein done, in Great Britain and Australia to control and regulate food prices, and then votes in cabinet council for the government doing what he says it cannot do, we have evidence of a rather go-as-you-please way of doing things. The government does not seem to be agreed on policy of action. This may explain why it has "left undone many things it ought to have done." After years of urging the government has been thought of its duties enough to appoint a fuel controller and a food controller; and after years of perfunctory interest in recruiting it has come to conscription, which was forced upon it months and months ago.

Editors may logically favour conscription of wealth on the same principle that a man with a wooden leg favours conscription of manhood.

CONSCRIPTION.

The motion for the second reading of the conscription, or compulsory military service bill, definitely launches the proposal, and in the event of its adoption, the country is, with parliament, committed to its acceptance, with the best possible grace as a necessity in this crisis of our war cooperation. Conscription is like a dose of nanscoup but effective medicine, which, once taken, will do us good. The only thing that justifies conscription is its necessity, and the promise that its application will help us do our neglected duty towards the Canadian soldiers, who send across the seas the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us."

If, as seems to be, we are definitely committed to compulsory military service, it should be the aim of the government and parliament, to make it as effective and acceptable as a measure of force can be made. Its passage through the House affords opportunities for amendment and improvement, which Sir Robert Borden, in introducing the bill, said he would entertain.

Conscription should be made as fair as possible. It is a departure from the principles of democracy, in that it places compulsion on the people, theoretically, at least, held to govern themselves. In its provisions, conscription legislation should retain all of the democratic principle possible, and the vital principle of equality of treatment should be especially conserved. This is not done when manhood alone is conscripted—the individual and personal liberty alone acted upon. Enrolling soldiers is only one of the duties of Canada. We must strengthen our financial resources in relation to war measures; and it seems only common justice to demand that conscription should, in addition to commandeering manhood, commandeer also the wealth and resources of the country. This the present bill does not do, and much of the natural objection to compulsory legislation would disappear or be modified, if the bill provided for fair and equal treatment of the Canadian people. We are fighting for democracy, and we lose sight of our object if in the adoption of a necessary measure of compulsion we compel one class and exempt another. That the wisdom of conscripting wealth as well as manhood, engages the attention of other public men, is shown by notice of motion, made by Hon. G. P. Graham, who is credited by being in favour of conscription in this form:

> That in the opinion of this House it is desirable that steps should be taken forthwith by the government to provide that accumulated wealth should contribute immediately and effectively to the cost of the war, and that all the agricultural, industrial, transportation and national resources of Canada should be organized forthwith so as to assure the greatest possible assistance to the empire in the war and to reduce the cost of living to the Canadian people.

So far in this war, Canada has muddled along, without proper organization and mobilization of national resources. The government has taken a most perfunctory interest in recruiting, leaving it largely to the operation of the voluntary spirit. In this regard the government is virtually responsible for Canada not having contributed its quota of men, a failure which made conscription a disagreeable necessity. The government is therefore in duty bound to repair its failure, and make conscription as effective and fair and far-reaching a measure as possible, by providing that it be made to bear equally as far as possible upon all classes of the Canadian popultion.

Since we have come, in the thirty-fourth month of the war, to the government doing something officially to show an interest in enrolling soldiers, we should make the last resort measure as prompt and effective as possible. What seems to militate against the attainment of the desideratum, is the failure to include in the bill provision for a thorough and effective registration of the classes to be brought under compulsory service conditions. Without registration of the men liable to selective draft, it seems that the elements of delay and slow progress are provided. The bill, after specifying ten classes subject to its operation, provides, in section 4, that the Governor-in-council, shall by proclamation call out class, and all men within the class shall from the date of such proclamation, be deemed to be enlisted soldiers, subject to military law. Such men "shall report" and in case of failure to do so "shall be liable to be tried by court martial, and convicted and punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years."

This is an admirable provision as to coercion, but the problem seems to be to get at the offenders readily and effectively, without some such form of registration as was employed in the United States, with the splendid result of registering ten million elegible soldiers in one day. Under the conscription bill as it stands, every man is to be considered an enlisted soldier but an enlisted soldier at large, unidentified and unlisted, a condition that would be remedied by proper registration.

An old recipe for cooking a hare, begins: "First catch the hare."

WORKING TO SAVE THE BELGIAN CHILDREN

The committee of the "Oeuvre de la Sante de l'Enfance Belge" in Holland, moved by the alarming and ever increasing mortality among the little children in Belgium, have since August, 1916, and with the permission of the German authorities organized the bringing of starved, consumptive, rickety and ailing little ones from Belgium into Holland, where they are cared for, housed, intensively fed, medically attended and clothed for a period averaging six weeks, until they are restored to health. They are then returned to their Parents in Belgium, having gained in weight some 2 to 4 lbs. per week.

Unfortunately it is not possible to do more for lack of funds, for there are at the present moment 15,000 or more children waiting in Belgium for their turn to go to Holland, and the number increases weekly and especially since the deportations or slavery. Only a partial alleviation of the [illegible] possible, but we trust the appeal for the funds made in Canada for the carrying on of this work and perhaps extending it, will not be made in vain.

From the point of humanity the little children of Belgium should come before all in obtaining sympathy and relief, and you need only picture to yourself what you would do, were your child dying of starvation, to decide whether you will assist in this good work.

From the point of view of policy, remember that these children represent Belgium's future, and that this generation will have to build up the Belgium to come. How can it be done with a race of children, whose most important years have been passed in conditions of starvation and sickness.

All DONATIONS to be sent to the Belgian Consul-General, Ottawa, (Ont.), (earmarked "Oeuvre de la Sante de l'Enfance Belge.")

TO-DAY'S DEBATE

Crothers, Lapointe, Barrette and Pardee Will Speak

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., June 20. — The speakers in the resumed debate on the conscription bill to-day, include Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, Ernest Lapointe of Kamouraki, J. A. Barette, and probably Fred Pardee, the chief Liberal whip.

The debate this afternoon illustrated the fact that on this issue the whips exercise no power over members. Fred Pardee will oppose the referendum by his leader, and Earnest Lapointe will support it. Crothers will oppose the referendum, but stand by the bill. Barrette will oppose both the referendum and the bill. It will be a go as you please afternoon and evening. Mr. Barrette's stand will be taken by all Conservative-Nationalist members. They will oppose both the referendum amendment of the Liberal leader and the bill of the Conservative Prime Minister. In this way they will lobviate the danger of the government being beaten by the carrying of the amendment, and will also strengthen their own position in Quebec by "going Laurier one better" in their opposition to compulsion. At least a dozen Liberal members will vote against the Laurier amendment in for the bill. Several others will vote for the amendment, but will stand by the bill if the amendment is defeated. Under the circumstances the military service act of 1917 is practically sure of carrying. The anti-conscriptionists in the Senate are also lining up for a fight. Senator Choquette will probably introduce a resolution for the referendum.

Going Home : Joys of Leave

By PRIVATE JAMES HODSON

You're wanted at company office," the orderly with a broad grin. immediately my heart began to up madly and my face flushed and mile came into my eyes. I tried to as if I didn't care, but I couldn't smiling, and the others had seen orderly and they cried, "It's e. Good old Blighty! Cheero! d luck!" and they began to laugh and shake my hand. Their joy very real. My going meant that e had started again after the pace.

ood news spreads fast. The sentry the company office knew and grin- the officer came out of the room puffed his cigarette. "You're for e to-night," he said seriously, and he laughed too.

felt as every soldier fighting will when he is told "Peace is de- ed."

nly once before in my life have I so happy. Try to imagine it — standing in a trench, dodging ch mortars and minenwerfers, to unlit, empty, English road; from ding on sentry, worn out and so d that snipers' bullets have no to a luxurious bed, with warm, clothes and no "stand-to," from tea and jam ful lof earth and e bread made brown by clayey ers, to silver and serviettes and et, fond women-folk to attend you; n the middle of death and the life easts to home. Oh! but you can- imagine it! Nor could I. I could think about it and smile and e, and reflect on this most wond- l truth in the world's greatest the change in a day from the environs of death to all that spells heaven.

In its own inimitable way the Army exasperated even the thousand or so happiest soldiers alive. At the coast town, while we were buying tea and sandwiches at the coffee-stall on the quay, officials began shouting "hurry up, now, or you'll miss the boat," and, leaving the tea I had just bought, I hastened off. Lited up farther along, we learned the boat was not timed to go for four hours, and we were not allowed to leave to buy more food! Again, at Victoria, when we waited in long queues to change our French money at the bureaux, we were told after maybe one-tenth of us had been dealt with, that there was no more money! Not an English penny had we to procure a meal, a wash, send a telegram, or pay an omnibus fare. Fortunately I contrived to change mine at the booking office, but they must have known we were coming, they must have had a rough idea of the amount of money we should want to exchange, yet the great majority of us had to leave the bureaux run by the War Office and get our notes changed as best we might. But it was here, too, that I found the noble spirit of the New England.

As we stood in the queue a man with white hair, immaculately dressed, and carrying an A.B.C. railway guide, came along. In a second he was busy telling the men the time, and station for Glasgow, Newport, Birmingham, York; how to get to St. Pancras, Euston, Kings Cross the quickest, cheapest way. He was so helpful so quick, so kind, so affable! And he had hurried from his office to do this, to give the lads a lift. "Good old Blighty!" said somebody huskily.

• • • • •

And now I began to taste real joys. I rang a friend up on a telephone. "Is that So-and-so?" I said. I could hear the familiar calm, strong voice, and then, as I said, "This is ——," as if I had been saying, as in the old days, "See you at the club," I felt the little moment of silence and surprise as the news sank in.

Next I walked to the taxicab ranks and looked at them. Any one of them I could have to carry this rifle, accursed equipment, these poor old feet that had been slogging along for four months. I nodded to one, and it gurgled and whirred and aidled up. I flung in my rifle, said "Euston," clambered in, and sank back. Oh, but it was heavenly! This, after carrying planks when waist-deep in water, this after carrying ninety pounds of equipment to and fro for an age. And it was just taking me—nobody else in the world—whither I chose it should go. Aladdin never commanded his wonderful lamp with more delight than I my first taxicab.

• • • • •

At Euston I left my kit and washed and was shaved. Delicious warm water, heaps of it, and then to lie back and feel the keen blade running softly over my face! Ah, but men are luxurious beasts! Then to the buffet with tolerably clean fingers and brushed hair— not for four months had my hair known a brush—to eat the buffet ham that once was so tasteless and that now was delicious. And then by tube to my friends office. Great joy that, too, to talk about trenches and the grim humour of dodging mortars and falling over one's own feet so doing ,and to laugh over it, and to tell what wonderful, glorious lads are those out yonder.

But all these joys, great as they were, were as naught compared with meeting one who would rather return to France in my stead than I should go.

• • • • •

But now, if I must say what is most wonderful about leave, I should reply, "It is the speed with which one ceases to notice domestic comforts." After the first day baths and easy-chairs and the rest are commonplace. The joy of sleep in bed lingered longest. The comfort and culture of twenty years is not easily stamped out by a few months' hardship, and I would assure my friends in France that they will have no difficulty in curbing thir tongues. I only swore once, I think, before women, though my friends tell me I am a little blunter than I used to be. Maybe.

I am lying on a hillide watching the sea lazily roll itself up a sandy beach. The sea is asleep in the warm sunlight, and the wind that sighs in the spare trees is too loving to do more than kiss the waters into ripples. No sign, no thought of the war that is just across these wave.

Ah, for peace and leave eternal.

CROWDS PRAY AS WOMAN SWAYS ON CHURCH ROOF

BOSTON, Mass. — Hundreds of parishioners dropped to their knees during the nine o'clock mass at St. James Church on Harrison avenue, recently, and prayed that a woman might not throw herself from the ridgepole of the chuch, to which moved by a strange obsession, she had climbed in the early morning hour.

And while the hundreds prayed firemen raised ladders and spread life nets around the structure; the woman's husband pleaded with her again and again to come down, and the Rev. John J. Fitzgerald, mounting to the roof, besought her to place her confidence in him.

But while the firemen tried to save her, while her husband uttered reassuring words, while the priest murmured of God, she cried out that they wished to lock her up, and that she would jump. And so for two hours, the parishioners praying for her safety, listened to her shrieks and the spectators on the streets and roofs time and again turned their heads when it seemed she would leap 75 ft. to the ground, as one of her rescurers attempted to approach her.

But when the priest, his arguments and coaxing words nearly exhausted, held up a rosary and for the last time urged her to descend, she obeyed—but only after every uniformed man had been withdrawn from sight.

The story has its beginning shortly before midnight, when the woman, who said that she was Mrs. Celia Vernard, called at the parish house and was ushered into the presence of Father Fitzgerald. She implored him to protect her, intimating that her husband thought her insance and had had threatened to have her confined.

The priest attempted to console her and then urged her to return to her home. He thought that she had done so.

At the close of the nightworkers' mass, however, she appeared in the church and approached the Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, the pastor, who had said the mass. She asked him to have a curate take her home as she was afraid that they would lock her up.

There were many confessions to be heard, so the pastor asked her to take a seat in one of the pews and wait until he had finished his duties. She was seen to walk to a pew. It was then nearly four o'clock.

When the last words of confession had been heard the pastor looked around for the woman, but she had disappeared. Thinking that she had become tired of waiting and gone home, he dismissed the thought of her.

But she had not gone home. Instead, she had ascended to the choir loft on the Harrison avenue side of the building, and by means of a ladder had climbed through a skylight to the flat roof which covers the loft. From this position it was an easy task for her to swing to the ridgepole, and to this she clung, bracing her feet against a ledge which is placed on the slanting roof to prevent a snowslide. There she stayed, unseen, until dawn had broken.

When an attempt was made to put her in a taxicab for the journey to the hospital she displayed more terror on seeing a uniformed policeman. It was only after a struggle that she was finally placed in a motor car and carried away.

The Company Quarter-Master-Sergeant and His Manifold Duties —By Francis D. Grierson

A company of British infantry is a complete little army by itself, numbering normally six officers and about two hundred and fifty rank and file. Although, of course, a part of the battalion, so far as training and duties are concerned, it has its system of accounts and its commander is responsible for the payment, feeding and clothing of its members.

So far as the internal economy of his company is concerned the Company-Quartermaster-Sergeant is the Commanders right hand man. If you asked him what his duties are he definitely not concerned with is drill; that is the affair of the Company-Sergeant-Major.

The C. Q. M. S., who is known to the irreverent as the "Quarterbloke," has charge of the Company's accounts. The Company Commander is, of course, actually responsible, but it is the duty of the C.Q.M.S. to prepare for him the necessary documents for his perusal and signature. The "Quartel-Bloke" is a mine of information; he knows when Private Jones had his las pair of new boots, and how much separation allowance Corporal Smithson is entitled to draw. He can quote the last regulation concerning the issue of dubbin, or tell you the number of parts in a set of web equipment with equal facility. He keeps a sort of young "Domesday Book" in which he records all sorts of particulars about the men—name, age, physical description, civilian occupation, religious convictions, military qualifications (such as musketry, signalling, etc.), and size in hats and boots.

The Pay and Mess Book is his special pet. With the help of a clerk he enters in it all monies paid to each soldier and all stoppages of pay for fines, loss of equipment, and so on. He can tell to a half-penny the amount of cash due to each man every pay day. In this book he also enters particulars of the cost of feeding the Company, and every month the book is sent away to the paymaster of the district so that the entries may be carefully checked.

"The "Quarter-Bloke" has a little store of his own, in which he keeps necessaries drawn in bulk from the battalion stores. Here one may see boots, blankets, arms and equipment, clothing, brooms, mops, rifle oil, and a dozen other articles which he issues to the men as required, each item being logged down in the Company's books—for everything must be strictly accounted for. The official nomenclature is used; for instance, a couple of rifles of a certain class would be described as "Rifles, Short M.L.E., Mark III., two." This is sometimes amusing, as in the case of "Mallets, wooden-headed, soldiers' three." The loss of a comma would be serious.

In some battalions it used to be customary for each Company to do its own messing, i.e., to obtain, cook and serve the men's food without reference to the other companies. In those cases the C.Q.M.S. would, with the sanction of the company Commander, draw up a complete menu for each day in the week, and it was wonderful what excellent and varied meals could be provided by a judicious and economical use of the supplies and money provided. One sometimes hears complaints that the men are badly fed, but many of these are made by the type of man who would "grouse" if he were billeted in the Savoy Hotel. If proper care is exercised to avoid waste, the government allowances are amply sufficient.

A competent C.Q.M.S. is a very valuable asset, and thoroughly deserves the slightly increased pay which his rank carries. He can relieve the Company Commander of a great deal of office work, thus setting him free to supervise the outdoor training of his company.

DUTCH MORE DEMOCRATIC.

Chambers to Revise Constitution — Universal Suffrage a Possibility.

THE HAGUE. — A democratic spirit is fast gaining in Holland. The provincial States or councils proceeded to-day to elect members of the first chamber and to-morrow fifty electoral districts will choose their representatives in the second chamber. The great question will then be the revision of the constitution and if it is confirmed Holland will have universal suffrage, proportionate representation, and obligatory voting, with the prospect of suffrage for women also.

Bills for the revision of the Constitution are to be definitely put through.

THE MASQUE OF LIFE

Signet Films presents the greatest of all Screen Thrills

The prince of the realm has fallen in love with Evelyn, a circus girl, and plans to elope with her, but is prevented by the sudden death of the king and his accession to the throne. Her lover, who had been willing to renounce his kingdom for the sake of the girl he loves, is told that Evelyn and their child have been drowned and marries a woman of royal blood. Evelyn becomes a wanderer and finally joins a travelling circus. Through all the hardships she subsequently endures, Pete, a trained chimpanzee, is her devoted friend. One day Pete, realizing that Evelyn is mourning for her child who has died, determines to secure one for her. So he climbs over the palace wall, snatches the king's baby from the royal crib and runs with it to the top of a 360-foot chimney. Evelyn decides to save the king's heir. Reaching the top of the chimney, she tears the baby from Pete's grasp and hurls the monkey to his death. Later, during a spectacular performance for the king, in which Evelyn is to appear, the circus catches on fire. In the panic that ensues the queen dies of shock. In the end the king gives up his crown and weds the girl who has been so faithful and devoted.

Hugh Guthrie Will Support the Bill

Liberal Member Criticizes Some of Its Provisions and the Limitations of Its Scope Purely to Military Service — Sir Sam Hughes Reviews His Colleague's Mistakes

OTTAWA, June 19.— From varying standpoints, and in marked contrast of tone, style and arguments, Sir Sam Hughes and Mr. Hugh Guthrie made two notable contributions to the conscription bill debate in Parliament today. Both arrived ultimately at the same conclusion: that they would have to support the bill, failing something better. Both criticized some of its provisions and the limitation of its scope purely to military service.

Sir Sam, however, devoted most of his attention to reviewing past mistakes of his former colleagues in regard to the administration of the voluntary system. He handed out Hughesonian thrust at Sir Robert Borden, Sir Thomas White and the other "meddlers" in the Borden Cabinet who had hampered his own efforts to raise men, and who were responsible, he believed, for the falling down of the voluntary system. He had, too, little use for the bona fides of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who, he declared, was really responsible for the Quebec situation. It was the real speech which Sir Sam was expected to have made early in the session. He charged that there was a deliberate intrigue to slow down on recruiting. He found in the plot some evidences of German gold, as to which he has referred repeatedly before. He made covert references to the influence of the Finance Minister, the Imperial Munitions Board and Lord Shaughnessy. He dilated upon all the varying influences which were brought to bear upon Sir Robert Borden in the spring of 1916 to slow down on recruiting, and he repeated the specific charge made in his Lindsay speech that direct orders were given to retard him recruiting efforts and to change his plans. He quoted instances, and would have quoted a letter from Sir Robert Borden to himself marked "Confidential," only Sir Robert, somewhat testily, declined Sir Sam's invitation to decide whether or not the letter should be made public. Sir Sam evidently has no love for his former leader. He lowered to-day to the lack of control in the Cabinet and the "dabbling and meddling" allowed other Ministers in connection with his own department.

In connection with the confidential letter incident, Sir Sam declared that he did not think it was necessary to consult Sir Robert in regard to reading letters in the House. "As soon as the Prime Minister treats me in a courteous manner," he said, "I will act in the same way towards him."

After seeking afresh to vindicate his own administration of the Militia Department, and putting all the blame for the present falling down of the voluntary system upon his ex-colleagues, Sir Sam declared his firm adherence to the compulsory system. He believed better results could be achieved under the Militia Act, but failing that, he wanted quick action of some kind, and would stand for the conscription bill and help to make it a success, "if such is possible."

Mr. Guthrie Follows His Conscience.

Mr. Guthrie, in a moderate and earnest appeal for the adoption of the conscription principle, applicable not only to military service, but to all forms of war effort, declared that, in differing from his leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the referendum amendment, he was following the patriotic advice of Sir Wilfrid that each man should be guided solely by the dictates of his own conscience. He believed that the present bill did not go nearly far enough, but, like Sir Sam Hughes, urged that it would be far better simply to invoke the Militia Act, with its wider and more drastic powers. In regard to the referendum, he maintained that such a course was merely shirking the duty of Parliament in the hour of crisis. He noted that Sir Wilfrid himself had not previously been an advocate of such a course, as instanced in the case of reciprocity and the naval issue. Mr. Guthrie did not want the question left to the decision of the slackers at home, while the soldiers at the front were busy fighting. In conclusion he made an eloquent appeal for a further attempt of the leaders to get together and make an honest endeavour to achieve a coalition Government, so that conscription might have a fair chance and a general election be avoided.

Mr. Lemieux's Arguments.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, in supporting the referendum amendment, followed somewhat along the lines of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's argument, maintaining at the same time that the loyalty of any man who sought first to know the people's will before plunging the country into conscription should not be impugned. He criticized severely the administration of the voluntary system in the Province of Quebec, pointing out that the chief recruiting officer for the Province was a Methodist minister. Suppose, he said, a Jesuit priest had been put in charge of recruiting in Toronto, what would have been the result.

Careful Consideration of Good Roads System Was Recommended by Committee

The special committee of the County Council appointed to consider Warden Brown's address presented the following report read by Mr. Squire this morning:

Your Committe joins with the Warden in his expression of gratitude at the prospects of an abundant harvest particularly in this year when so much depends upon a large production upon the farm to aid the great cause in which we are engaged.

We agree that so far as possible County projects should be postponed so that every effort may be put forth to bring a speedy and successful termination of the present war.

The repairs of the Court House will no doubt receive full consideration at the present Session as the work requires immediate attention, the want of a Court Room and offices for the officials being much felt and funds should be borrowed if necessary in order to complete the work in a successful manner.

In view of existing legislation the adoption of a County Road System cannot be long postponed and we trust careful consideration will be given to this question during the present Session.

We, with the Warden, feel intensely how necessary it is to devote all our energies, our man power, money and supplies to the purposes of War and that all should unite regardless of political or other differences with this great end in view.

We desire to acknowledge the valuable services rendered this County by the Warden and to recognise the careful attention he has given to the many matters which it has been necessary to deal with during his term of office.

$7,000 the Estimate of Repairs to County Bridges This Summer

That $7,000 be borrowed by debentures for bridge work this year was tentatively proposed at this morning's session of the County Council. Repairs to four bridges were estimated as follows: Peters of Norwood, $2,000; Belmont bridge, $1,500; Chandos bridge, $1,000; Payne's of Monaghan, $2,250.

Messrs Fitzgerald and Young moved that the Warden, Mr. Bullied and Mr. Rye inspect Payne's bridge with power to act.

Mr. Griffith pointed out that the necessary attention to the Monaghan bridges had been provided for at the January session, and another motion was not required.

The matter was not definitely decided upon, but apparently $7,000 will cover the improvements outlined and will be borrowed in the unusual way.

Monaghan's Bridges.

Mr. Rye presented the needs of immediate repairs to Payne's and Dunlop's bridges. Something should be done right away, he said. Two weeks ago, he and Mr. Baptie had inspected Dunlop's, which is on the Northumberland boundary and both counties should contribute to its repair. Mr. Rye stated that he and Mr. Baptie had ordered temporary repairs. The piers had settled badly, and in the last inspection certain work was recommended, but had not been performed. The Monaghan Reeve also stated that Hogg's bridge needed repairs.

To Mr. Squire, he stated that Payne's bridge was probably in the worst condition.

Mr. Anderson stated that Hogg's bridge was repaired last year, but Mr. Rye replied that it was not satisfactory and the repairs were only of a temporary character. This bridge had been a great expense to North Monaghan.

Press Comment On Situation In Greece

"Allies Held in Inactivity."

Pittsburg Gazette-Times: "The abdication of King Constantine of Greece knocks a prop from German strength in the Balkans and immeasurably increases the effective power of the Allies at a point where their large armies have been held in inactivity because of the Greek situation."

"Will take Its Proper Place."

Albany Journal: "With Constantine and the likewise pro-German crown prince out of the way, Greece will take its proper place with the Allies. It will strengthen greatly their strategic position. Freedom of the Allies to operate on Greek soil, and in Greek waters will be of great advantage to them."

"Light Breaking in The Balkans."

Brooklyn Eagle: "Even the freeing of Sarrail's arm may turn the scale. At the least, light is breaking in the Balkans. Another imperial dictator and his Hohenzollern queen has been put aside and the cause of democracy has triumphed in one more country."

"Prussia Has Lost An Army."

Philadelphia Press: "Germany has lost an army. Constantine was nothing less than that to her. He is being spoken of as if he were a fool or a puppet, but he was a shrewd and wily politician, and the man who overrode the constitution and the wishes of the people alike is not to be dismissed as a weakling."

"Abused Confidence of People."

Providence Journal: "Constantine steps down quietly, throws himself on the generosity of the Allies, and Crown Prince George will accompany him on his departure from the land and the people whose confidence he has abused and whose constitution he has been too long permitted to override."

"Dismal News for Kaiser."

New York Times: "This will be dismal news for the Kaiser. His brother-in-law and obedient servant chased from the throne, a country that has materially aided in the execution of his design gone over altogether to the enemy, another foe probably soon to be in the field and at a dangerous point."

"Sealed the King's Fate"

Springfield Republican: "The Russian revolution probably sealed the King's fate; its influence has been widely felt in Eastern Europe, and must greatly strengthen Venizelists, who would probably be dominant now in Greece but for the long scandal of the Entente's paltering with Constantine."

"Curtain Down on Royal Fiasco."

Troy Record: "With the curtain rung down on the royal fiasco at Athens, the vision of the greater Greece may now be realised through the statesmanship of its real leaders."

Released Prisoners Reach Dublin Without any Disturbance.

LONDON, June 19.—Large crowds gathered in Dublin this morning to welcome the released Irish prisoners, all of whom with the exception of the Countess Markievics, arrived at eight o'clock. Men with hammers escorted the former prisoners to their homes. There was much singing of Irish songs and a great deal of cheering but there were no signs of disorder.

GEORGE W. POWELL IS AGENT FOR CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY

Appointed at Regular Meeting Yesterday — Ten Applications Were Received

Mr. George W. Powell was appointed agent for the Children's Aid Society at yesterday's regular meeting. Ten applications were received for the position, but by a process of elimination the choice of the members was soon resolved to Mr. Powell and to Mr. A. C. Herridge. When the vote was taken to make a selection from these two men, the ballot showed eight for Mr. Powell and seven for Mr. Herridge. Dr. King then moved seconded by Mr. C. H. Pennefather that Mr. Powell be appointed, and the motion was unanimously adopted.

In the absence of Mr. E. A. Peck, Rev. C. J. Phelan presided with the following members present: Mrs. Stocker, Mrs. Walter Evans, Mrs. McElhiney, Mrs. W. Gibbs, Mrs. Hopwood, Mrs. Montgomery, Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. R. B. Grobb, Mr. Joseph Wearing, Dr. King, Adjutant McElhiney, Mr. John Edgar, Mr. C. H. Pennefather, Dr. Fortune.

Applications were received from the following:

Alexander Mahood, London street.
D. A. McDonald, B.A.
S. M. Touchbourne.
J. Gates.
W. L. Abbot, Patterson street.
Geo. W. Powell.
A. C. Herridge.

BIG MAKE OF CHEESE LISTED THIS MORNING

G. A. Gillespie Swept the Cheese Board of 2638 — Price Higher Than Year Ago

CHEESE BOARD FIGURES

June 20th, 1916—2,772 boxes, at 15 15-16c.

June 20th, 1917—2,638 boxes, at 21 1-4c.

After taking 500 cheese at 21 5-16c, Mr. G. A. Gillespie secured the rest of the 2,638 boxes at 21 1-4 cents, and thereby sweeping the Board. The make for the first half of June was extremely heavy and the price is six cents better than last year.

There was a gap in the ranks, caused by the destruction of Trewern factory, and it remains unfilled. Mr. G. W. Mann was present as usual. Trewern had ninety cheese, he said, but most of them were damaged and none were offered on the Board.

THE BOARDING.

The factories reported as follows:
Keene	100
Warminster	125
Shearer	130
Selwyn	135
Villiers	80
Warsaw	170
Westwood	240
Oakdale	100
Missing Link	75
Lakefield	65
Pine Grove	75
Ormonde	175
Young's Point	345
Lang	142
East Emily	112
North Dummer	80
Norwood	216
Stony Lake	40
Mt. Pleasant	60
Fleetwood	190
Killarney	103
Myrtle	150
Totals	2,638

Mr. Gillespie opened at 20 cents, and got first call when the bidding stopped at 21 5-16. At this price he bought Keene, East Emily, Shearer, and Myrtle, and at 21 1-4 cents he got the rest of the Board.

MAJOR-GENERAL CURRIE

es of the 3rd Brigade against overwhelming odds. It is written of him that "in the very crisis of this immense struggle he held his line of trenches from Thursday at 5 o'clock till Sunday afternoon. And on Sunday afternoon he had not abandoned his trenches. There were none left. They had been obliterated by the artillery. He withdrew his undefeated troops from the fragments of his field fortifications, and the hearts of his men were as completely unbroken as the parapets of his trenches were completely broken.

Some months later, in September 1915, General Currie succeeded General Alderson as General Officer Commanding the 1st Canadian Division, the operations of which he has since directed with the same skill, gallantry and determination which he exhibited at Ypres.

General Currie's division won more glory and victory at the Somme, when at Courcelette and Thiepval his troops proved just as brilliant and just as successful in the offensive as they were on the defensive in the second battle of Ypres. The same division, with much fresh blood, of course, has again performed a brilliant feat of arms in the capture of Vimy Ridge recently. It is General Currie's proud boast that his division "has never lost a trench."

Motor Lorries Damage Township Roads Says Mr. Rye

The big motor lorries hauling sand and gravel from a pit in North Monaghan are damaging the township's roads, according to the statement made by Reeve Rye at the County Council meeting this morning in putting forward a claim for county assistance in maintaining these roads. One road has been broken down so badly that the lorries have been forced to change their route. Culverts have been caved in by the big loads and the highways otherwise reduced to a state of disrepair. Mr. Rye pointed out that the Council had properly joined the city some months ago in a movement to hold the Quaker Oats Company, but Monaghan ratepayers felt that they should be assisted in meeting the additional expense of road upkeep necessitated by this new traffic.

Street Car Smash When Brake Failed

The Street Railway rolling stock sustained a double blow last night when the round trip car on its second day's service, smashed into a George street car near Antrim street, severely denting two vestibules to the extent that both cars will be temporarily laid up for repairs.

The regular car had stopped to permit passengers to get off at Antrim street. The special round "fresh air" car, all fussed up with new paint, varnish and other features, was following at the usual safe distance. Motorman Collins commenced to apply the brakes, but they failed to grab the wheels. At once he realized that something was wrong, and his further efforts failed to materially retard his car. He shouted to the conductor on the regular car, but a moment later came the collision, that resounded more than a block away.

It is known that the supply of cars on the local service barely meets the ordinary demands, and the withdrawal of two cars even for a day or two is therefore felt more acutely. The company has been promised new cars, but their delivery is already long overdue.

The cause of the accident was due to a nut dropping from the brake beam, rendering it practically useless.

Funeral of the Late Richard Clegg

The funeral of the late Mr. Richard Clegg, who died in Wingham, was held this afternoon from the residence of Mr. Samuel Clegg, 295 Stewart street, to the Little Lake cemetery. The funeral, which was largely attended, was held under Masonic auspices. The large number of friends of the deceased who came from Wingham for the funeral, testified to the great respect in which Mr. Clegg was held. An exceptionally large number of beautiful floral tributes were received, including a pillow from the Walker, Clegg Furniture Company, Wingham.

When they treated a man with X-rays for an ulcer on his tongue Paris surgeons also cured his long-standing deafness.

Some New Sports and Dress Blouses Have Arrived

Georgette crepe, softly winsome, embodies the airiness of summer blouses. We find it beaded, embroidered or simply hemstitched in such delicate pastel colorings as flesh, amber, tea rose, orchid, white, maise.

Crepe de Chine & satins are the other popular silken fabrics for waists, while fine batistes and voiles with the aid of real filet form many pretty lingerie blouses.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

A CANADIAN OFFICER IN A DIVORCE SUIT

Captain Charles Oliver Gervais Named as Co-Respondent by Wealthy Manufacturer

Some piquant facts came to light in a divorce case heard in London. They included two ladies who went about armed with revolvers, a maid disguised in her mistress's robes to hoodwink divorce detectives, and a raid on a big wine cellar.

Mr. Justice Hill heard the suit, which was brought by Mr. William Edward Pearson, a wealthy chemical manufacturer, of Hull, who alleged misconduct against his wife, Florence with Capt. Charles Oliver Gervais, of the Canadian army, and Commander Frederick Ernest Cooper. Both charges were denied.

Mr. Marshall Hall, K. C., said Mr. Pearson had carried out large government contracts, which necessitated his absence from home except at week-ends. Some years ago he married an American lady in France, where he was domiciled, and afterwards divorced her. On March 31, 1905, he married the present respondent, a French or Belgian lady, counsel was not sure which. She used to visit her mother in Paris, and the petitioner remonstrated with her.

In September, 1905, he took Holly Court, Merton lane, Highgate, a large house, with grounds. Mrs. Pearson, added counsel, was very extravagant, used to frequent West End resorts, and ultimately from 1914 took to drinking, and made undesirable acquaintances.

Mrs. Pearson had a sister (whose husband was in Corsica), who came to England in August, 1914. From that time serious trouble began. Mrs. Pearson and her sister were constantly together in the West End.

CHARWOMAN DINED.

It was at her sister's flat she met Captain Gervais, who lived in the same block, and misconduct was alleged there. Mr. Pearson trusted his wife so much that he had her sister watched, and during the enquiries a good deal of information was obtained as to Mrs. Pearson's mode of life.

Sometimes Mrs. Pearson took her charwoman out to dine, and the latter used to pawn things for her mistress. Moreover, a servant named Bertha used to dress up in her mistress's clothes, evidently with the idea of drawing off the watching detective. Early in 1916 Mr. Pearson tried finally to get rid of the sister, but that lady and Mrs. Pearson carried loaded revolvers and threatened to shoot him.

It would be shown, said Mr. Hall that in 1916 Commander Cooper used frequently to visit Holly Court in a Government motor-car. He would telephone from his flat in Dover street, make appointments with Mrs. Pearson and her sister, and they would visit various West End resorts. At night he would drive the two home to Highgate. Finally, acting on advice, Mr. Pearson left his wife and went and lived in Hull. On June 20, Mrs. Pearson went to Hull, but her husband refused to allow her to remain, and she returned to London next day. She wrote him a letter, saying:

"You refuse to allow me to stay in Hull, and you said you would not live with me any more. Why, I want to know, William, I have a heart, and I suffer. I tremble. I am ill. It is necessary I should know the cause of our separation. If we are to separate, don't let us separate as enemies."

Later, Mrs. Pearson wrote asking for 30,000 francs to enable her to live without the help of her family, and saying that she would go to Rouen. On October 31, 1916, the petitioned gained possession of Holly Court, and put two members of the Veterans' Corps in charge. Mrs. Pearson and her sister gained access to the house, and when told they could not remain, were very violent.

On November 2 Commander Cooper drove the two ladies, who, it was alleged, were the worse for drink, up to the house. Both ladies smashed the windows with their umbrellas, assaulting the members of the Veterans' Corps, slashed a picture, and knocked the furniture about.

Misconduct between the respondent and Commander Cooper was alleged at Holly Court on different dates.

Mr. Pearson admitted in evidence that he had his wife watched in 1906 when on her visits to Paris. He added that he missed about 2,000 bottles of wine from his cellar at Holly Court, and his chauffeur told him that it had gone to Savoy Mansions, where the sister lived.

In cross-examination Mr. Pearson said his suspicions became confirmed in September, 1916.

Did you take any steps to prevent your wife drifting into this trouble —Yes; I asked her to leave her sister.

Is that all?—Yes.

Did you want her to go wrong?—No.

Then why did you not turn out the woman who was leading her wrong? —She had too much influence over my wife.

On the occasion when his wife threatened to shoot him, he did not attach much importance to the event.

Did you get under the bed?—Oh, no.

Miss Mary Roberts, a chambermaid at the Savoy Mansions in 1914, said Mr. and Mrs. Robinson used to live on the third floor. Mrs. Pearson visited them there. She remembered a Captain Gervais taking a flat in the mansions, and she saw Mrs. Pearson visit him on several occasions. After one visit she went into the flat to tidy up, and found the rooms in disorder, with empty wine bottles lying about.

MAID IN MISTRESS'S SABLES

Edward ames Hawkins, home from the front on sick leave, said he was a carpenter by trade. In October, 1915, acting on instructions from private inquiry agent employed by Mr. Pearson, he obtained a situation at Holly Court in order to watch Mrs. Pearson.

Besides Mrs. Pearson and her sister and a maid, only an old man called "Jim" slept in the house. Jim was "a peculiar individual—rather dull-witted."

Bertha, he said, used to dress in her mistress's clothes—a sable coat and a "Russian hat"—so that he mistook her for Mr. Pearson. He watched Mrs. Pearson for about twelve months, acting as carpenter-detective for seven months of that time.

George Bardrick, an inquiry agent, said he had seen Mrs. Pearson dining at the Cafe Monico with her charwoman and visiting various other places in the West End. Sometimes she was with her sister and Commander Cooper. He visited Captain Gervais in hospital at Brighton and the captain that admitted he was very friendly with the sister of the "little lady" (Mme. Vivier.)

When served with the divorce papers last October, said the inquiry agent, Captain Gervais "took it like a good sportsman, pulled out a whisky bottle and we had a drink." Captain Gervais denied the misconduct at Savoy Mansions, but admitted it at other places. He had not seen Mrs. Pearson for 12 months, as "the little lady" had given him up because she had seen him with another woman.

Another watcher employed by Mr. Pearson said that in November last he and six or seven others were at Holly Court. Mrs. Pearson and her sister gained access to the grounds somehow—probably by climbing the locked gates, counsel suggested—and smashed some windows. Both the women were excited, and Mrs. Pearson struck one of the private detectives.

The case was not concluded.

President Works Quietly But Hard On War Problems

First Impression of "Hermit President" Soon Dissipated

Takes But Very Few Persons Into His Confidence.

WASHINGTON, June 16. — After one has been a brief time in Washington one finds himself thinking of Mr. Wilson as the hermit President. One hears that he sees no one, talks to no one, secludes himself in his library. By and by that view of the man changes. The bystander begins to think of him as in some measure typical of the whole people. He is going about his business about as he always did go about his business—more soberly, perhaps, very much in earnest, quite self-contained, keeping himself fit. That is about the way the people are doing.

"Whom does the President see? What does he do?"

"No one knows."

Yet there is no mystery about the President or the manner in which he disposes of his time. There is a fierce white light, etc., which beats upon a throne, but it has always been understood that there is a backdoor to most palaces. The white light that beats upon the White House is as fierce as need be, yet for practical purpose there is no backdoor to that excellent dwelling. Every one in Washington knows Mr. Wilson by sight. If he goes riding or walking or in an automobile some one is sure to see him. If he varies from his accustomed tour that fact is reported. If he were to be out at an unusual hour those whose duty it is to know these things would assuredly know it.

Grayson Daily Companion.

Dr. Cary Grayson is his most intimate companion. They play golf together almost every morning. If the golf game is shelved it is because of necessity. Mr. Wilson realizes the necessity of perfect physical fitness that he may be equal to the tremendous demands made upon his strength and nerve by the events of the day. The pair play a good game of suburban golf in which Col. Bogie rarely enters. It is Grayson's duty to watch the President's health, and he does his duty well. The President spends more hours with him than with any person outside his immediate family.

"Is Grayson a confidant of the President?"

"No one knows."

If the President ever tells Grayson secrets or ever drops little hints or ever asks his advice, no one knows. Neither is in the chattily discoursive class. So far as anyone knows their relation is purely professional, except of course, there must be liking and understanding on both sides or this quasi-intimacy could not be supported. The President's luncheon is governed by the events of the day. Sometimes he eats alone. He very rarely has a guest at luncheon. Sometimes not often, one of the members of his immediate family lunches with him. The afternoon is spent in his library.

No One Knows His Detailed Life.

"What does he do?"

"No one knows."

No one knows in detail. He is an astonishing close student of international politics and it is generally understood that much of his time is given over to the minute examination of reports rendered by American representatives abroad and by the foreign offices of our allies. He glances at a few newspapers, rather than reads them, and a digest of the news of the day is placed before him for his information. This is free from any suggestion of editorial opinion. American and foreign editorial matters is passed up by the White House clerks and the President may ascertain the trend of world thought in a few moments only.

It is in the afternoon that he receives his few visitors. There has been complaint from the upper house that he has not taken the legislative branch into his confidence, nor has he permitted its members to take him into their confidence. Now and then a senator asks for an interview and now and then the President asks a senator to call. Such interviews are usually brief. Herbert C. Hoover, is popularly supposed to be the most frequent visitor at the White House. It is apparent, however, that the President is a very busy man. He has no time to spare for story telling or bores. The day is given over to hard work.

Dinner Guests Infrequent.

At rare intervals some one of his intimates dines with him, or a distinguished visitor is asked to make one of the party at the presidential board. It is the assumption that the names of all guests are made known to the reporters by the White House bulletins and so far as known this rule is never broken. It is obvious, then, that dinner guests are infrequent. The gates of the White House yard are locked nowadays and policemen stand guard. Soldiers pace the pavement outside at night. It would be difficult for a guest to pass these barriers without that part of the world which is particularly interested becoming aware. Sometimes Mr. Wilson goes to the theatre. Occasionally he goes for an automobile ride with Mrs. Wilson.

Most of the time he works, just as the rest of the American people do. His outward appearance has not changed, and if he worries he does not show it. Neither do the people. There might be a good deal more hooray and tumult about the White House these days — automobiles dashing, aids dashing, messengers dashing, senators dashing, lights flashing, every one holding heads. That would be quite in keeping with the war novelist's idea of what should happen in the White House in time of war. Only Mr. Wilson doesn't do things that way. Neither do the people.

No, Eleanor, it isn't necessary to be foolish in order to live the simple life.

FISHING GOOD AT BURLEIGH

Season Opened With A Bang on Saturday

Park Hotel, Burleigh Falls, June 19th.—The fishing season at the popular resort opened with a bang. Some very fine catches were made, everybody securing their allotted number. The fishing never was better. Among the tourists from a distance are: A. J. Patterson, F. P. Miller, G. E. Thomas and M. Howard. The party are occupying Burleigh cottage and are having the time of their lives.

David Curtin, Peterborough; Mr. Jewel, Lakefield; E. Salome, Norwood, Miss L. Yeates, Peterborough; W. Martin, Peterborough; R. Jones, Peterborough; E. Sargent, Moose Jaw, are registered at the hotel.

Mr. J. Blewett is to be found in his old quarters and is prepared to furnish all kinds of bait, including live minnows, frogs, etc. He also has a new supply of boats for the accommodation of tourists. Careful guides can be had at a moment's notice.

Among the callers on Sunday were: T. C. Elliott and family, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron, A. Cranfield and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, F. Brownscombe and son.

The cottages are rapidly filling up and as the island and shores are looking their best with their deep green foliage, it makes an ideal place to spend one's vacation.

LIBERATION OF ARMENIANS.

Will Be Urged in Final Peace Negotiation.

STOCKHOLM, June 19, via London, —Mikael Valandian, Armenian representative in the International Socialist Bureau, sent a telegram from Paris to Hjalmar Branting, the Socialist leader, protesting against any peace which would leave the Armenians in the power of the Turks.

M. Valandian refers to the butchery of 800,000 of his people, "with Germany looking on indifferently," and adds:

"I hope that when the different sections of the international proclaim peace without annexations they will not thereby sacrifice the Armenian people, but will demand Armenia's liberation. Until this is done there can never be any durable peace in the east."

Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must be signed with the writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Peterborough,
Ontario,
Canada.

Dear Sir,— I have been in correspondence with the High Commissioner for Canada, Sir George E. Foster, Acting Prime Minister and our Belgian Consul General at Ottawa, with reference to an appeal which I am desirous of making on behalf of the "Oeuvre de la Sante de l'Enfrance Belge" (a Belgian Children's Fund in Holland), for which my committee have undertaken the propaganda in Great Britain and its dependencies, and I am pleased to have the assurance that we have the sympathy of the Canadian Government.

Mr. Goor, the Belgian Consul General, has suggested to me that an appeal made through your intermediary, would in all probability lead to good results and I venture to approach you on the subject and to ask your kind co-operation.

I enclose a leaflet which gives succinctly the objects of the Fund in question, which you will agree, is one of the most worthy. In addition, I may tell you that two of our committee men, personally investigated in Holland, the question of the care given to the Belgian children and have satisfied themselves and us to the fullest extent, of the very good work that is being done there, although much larger funds than they dispose of are necessary for developing the work to its fullest extent. For the moment it is only palliative, but I hope to be able to get such an amount that the worst cases may be kept in Holland until after the war, instead of having to be returned after about 6 weeks. Nevertheless the children gain from three to four pounds per week. They then go back to Belgium, reclothed and restored and, to great extent, able to face a new spell of privations.

This is the best that can be done at present for them, but we hope to do more, and instead of bringing some 500 per month into Holland, we hope to bring 3,000 and to keep them longer. They are under the care of experienced and careful people and watched over by a competent Medical Council. They are mostly housed by the seaside in the best of conditions. We have been fortunate in obtaining important gifts of boots and clothing for them, and this department is looked after by a special committee.

The Belgian Consul General, Mr. Goor, at Ottawa, has kindly consented to receive and transmit me all contributions which should be specially earmarked "Oeuvre de la Sante de l'Enfance Belge" or (Belgian Children's Fund in Holland).

Thanking you in anticipation for your kind notice, I am, dear sir,

Yours very sincerely,
C. Graddon,
Hon. Secretary.

One Way of Solving the Housing Problem

SARNIA. — The Builders' Exchange, recently organized in this city has been granted a charter by the government, as announced in the recent list of charters, and active steps will be taken at once to provide more houses in the city. It is the intention of the Association to make a canvass of the city to endeavour to secure stock subscriptions for approximately $100,000 to be used in the erection of workingmen's houses. The exchange would finance the construction of homes to reliable parties and the cost to be paid by regular monthly payments, according to the tentative plan projected at a recent meeting.

The house shortage in this city for the past two years has been a matter of much discussion by both the civic officials and the board of trade, and it is believed that the organization of this exchange will act as an incentive to the workingmen to own their own homes. The exchange has signified its willingness to co-operate with the board of trade in this question, and also to share the new club rooms that were formally opened on Friday last. Further developments of the scheme are now under way.

Mock Marriage Stands So Court Says

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of New York has decided that Mrs. Marie G. Genntison, of 75 West Seventy-first street, must remain a wife, whether she cares to or not. The court refused to annul her marriage to Philip Genntison.

Mrs. Genntison came to New York from Sanderaville, Ga., with her mother before she was 18 years of age. She said she had a girl friend down south who was engaged to a man who insisted upon forcing his attentions upon her instead of his own fiancee. She and her mother tried to escape him by going to Boston, to New Jersey and to Washington. He followed her everywhere. At last, in desperation, she agreed upon a mock marriage with Mr. Genntison, so that her annoyer might be told she was a married woman. Immediately after the ceremony had been performed by a regularly ordained minister, the certificate was destroyed and the ring—a twenty-five cent brass one—was thrown away.

Philip Genntison said he never considered the young woman as his wife. He escorted her to a train after the marriage, and she and her mother went to Ohio. He had never lived with her or supported her.

Notwithstanding the intent of the parties, the court decided the joke is on them. They are man and wife. As there was no fraud committed, there was no ground for annulment.

POTATOES GERMANY'S NEED.

Must Import Some Before June 22 in order to Pull Through.

THE HAGUE. —Vorwarts has an editorial on the potato problem and the coming harvest, pointing out that Germany can just pull through by the "skin of her teeth," if a sufficient quantity of foreign potatoes can be procured before June 22.

The ration of five pounds a week cannot be kept up and if the government fails to get the foreign potatoes the ration shortage will be made up in flour, fish, dried vegetables and sauerkraut.

Prussian Soldiers Seize Polish Wheat

The iron hand with which Prussia is controlling everything in Poland is evidenced in a circular, printed in Polish, which was sent to the landowners recently in the zone of German occupation by the German district chiefs. The following is a literal translation of the circular:

"All wheat provisions should be given up to the bearer of the present letter. Threshed wheat will be put in the granary, the keys of which will be given to the bearer (soldier) of the present letter. If you need wheat you will have to inform the soldier, telling him of the quantity of wheat you need and for what purpose. You will give receipt for it to the soldier.

"You must now thresh the wheat which has not been threshed and this in presence of soldiers. It will be necessary to give notice in time to the soldiers the moment you intend to thresh the wheat. Threshed wheat should be handed over to the soldiers and kept locked up in the granary.

"You must permit the soldiers to enter all farm buildings, stables and fields and furnish all information desired.

"The soldiers have the right to control the circulation of vehicles and people on the estate and to carry out the revision or vehicles.

"You must give convenient lodging to the soldier and besides furnish him free with fuel, lighting and for the daily maintenance for each man with 200 gr. of food, 300 gr. of bread, 100 gr. of fat or lard and a half liter of milk, two eggs and potatoes at your discretion.

"I hope you will not give any difficulties to the soldiers in the doing of their duty, for in that case I will be obliged to reinforce the post."

Mystery from Canada Charged at Folkestone

How a German-speaking Russian could not explain his coming to England was told at Folkestone, when John Shlackowski, described by the chief constable as a man of mystery, was remanded for a week on a charge of wearing military uniform without authority.

When arrested he was wearing Canadian uniform, but he did not know to what battalion he was attached; nor the name of the ship in which he came to England.

According to the interpreter he understood German but not Russian, which was explained by his statement to the chief constable that he was born in Russia but was taken to Germany when he was five years old, and subsequently to Canada.

Shlackowski also said he came to England from Winnipeg. He bought the uniform because he thought that it would be stronger for working in than ordinary clothes.

FINE ADDRESSES FOR FRIDAY'S BANQUET

The board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association is arranging a men's banquet to be held at the Empress Hotel Friday evening. The speaker guests will be Capt. (Rev.) W. A. Cameron, who has been acting as one of the overseas representatives of the Y.M.C.A. for the past year, and W. E. Rundle, manager of the National Trust Co., of Toronto. Both of these men are interesting speakers, and it is anticipated that a large representative gathering of men will be in attendance. This meeting is not for the solicitation of funds, but one held for the purpose of giving our men a chance to hear of the work of the Association in its lower aspects from men of wide experience.

New York Stock Market

Summary of To-day's Activities on the New York Stock Exchange

There is likely to be some weak selling and good buying to-day. Not that this will mean a sudden rebound from yesterday's drop for strong buyers, when they find selling coming into the market naturally like to do their business as favourably as possible. Steel stocks should be watched for buying opportunities. The dispute about prices the Government will pay will likely be settled this week at least so far as the ship deals are concerned. The president is anxious that business shall go ahead, especially the business of the war and is not inclined to flout the masters of our industries. The suggestion that munitions makers have been concealing their profits to avoid paying full income taxes, is from shareholders standpoint, more of a bull than bear argument. Pig Iron is still going up, a circumstance that speaks volumes industrially. There are two classes of potential buyers in the market now, shorts and bulls who realised on some of their stocks recently. Money will not for long delay pools in their operations. Imports of gold help a good deal. Russia and Japan situations look much better. We would take on some coppers, Wright martin, Sugar, Corn products, Ensmling, Woolen Savage arms, The leather, Rock Islands, Missouri Pacifics and Nails generally on weak places to-day. Cotton is due to go much higher. Grains will fluctuate with the weather, but far options look much too high.

COUNTY COUNCIL OFF TO HOUSE OF REFUGE

To Receive Superintendent Campbell in His New Position.

The County Council motored to the House of Refuge, near Lakefield this afternoon to hold a sort of induction ceremony, with Reeve Walsh of Douro officiating. Some one intimated that their intentions were to initiate Superintendent Campbell in his new position. This morning arrangements were made for motor cars, but a count of the members showed that many of them had "Lizzies" of their own.

In view of the change that has recently taken place in the management of the House of Refuge, it was deemed advisable to undertake this afternoon's expedition to formally receive Mr. Campbell encourage him, and otherwise afford him a rosy start in his new position.

Reeve Ingram suggested that the superintendent in future be required in the event of resigning, to send in his resignation at least one month before a regular session of the County Council.

Enjoyable music was furnished by Tucker's orchestra.

TREWERN FACTORY MAY NOT BE REBUILT

Some Doubt Exists Among Patrons Now Sending Milk Elsewhere.

Mr. G. Willen Mann, salesman for Trewern factory, stated to The Examiner this morning that the patrons had not yet decided what steps they would take to dispose of their milk in future. Some are sending to Lakefield factory, others are separating and sending the cream to Central Smith butter factory, some are forwarding to the Peterborough creamery, and others even to Toronto. There is a demand for both milk and cream, and the present conditions indicate that whatever unity has existed around the Chittick factory is about to be lost. Some of the farmers yesterday doubted the success of a community enterprise, openly stating that they generally failed to agree.

There have been so many evidences, however, of their co-operative dealings that surely a cheese factory could be profitably conducted. It might be suggested that a motor truck to carry the milk would solve the problem for farmers in certain sections. In any case the permanent closing of Trewern will be a loss to the community it served.

Many automobiles from the city made the trip to the ruins last night, and the entire countryside seemed to have called at the Chittick home to extend sympathy to the family.

OVER A MILLION WAS PAID OUT IN BENEFITS.

Friendly Societies of Ontario Have over Four Millions out in Investments.

A total of 135,372 societies in Ontario connected with lodges and manufacturing concerns transacted sick and funeral benefits among their members during the past year according to the annual report of the Registrar of Insurance Branch of the Provincial government, thus doing a great amount of good and relieving distress which would otherwise fall upon the towns and the cities in which they are located.

The number of members of the societies who died in 1916, which includes members' childrens and wives, is 3,095. Funeral benefits paid total $138,455.78.

The number of members sick during the year was 41,571, and the number of weeks sickness experienced was 220,890. In sick benefits the amount paid was $936,773.83. For medical attendance an amount of $96,694.34 was expended.

The amount paid for special relief, which in a number of cases means nurse hire and hospital attendance, was $43,566.42.

The 135,372 societies which reported to the registrar have $4,007,636.23 invested, principally in bonds and real estate mortgages. Their total liabilities amount to but $104,716.05

WEDDING BELLS

DOBBIE—HANMER.

There was a war wedding in Littleham Church, Exmouth, Devon, England at 2 p.m. on Wednesday May 30th, when Captain Wallace Hugh Dobbie, 1st Canadian Siege Battery, R.G.A., who is at home on short leave from France, was married to Miss Marguerite J. Hughes Hanmer, only daughter of Mr. J. Hanmer, J.P., and of Mrs. Hanmer, of Peterborough, Ontario, Canada. The bride, who wore a blue moire travelling suit and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley, was given away by Mr. Herbert D. Vansittart. The bridegroom and his best man, Doctor Willoughby Hodgson, were in khaki. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. W. Millett. The wedding was very quiet, as there was no time to issue invitations. Amongst those present were Mrs. Dobbie (the bridegroom's mother), Miss Dobbie, Mrs. Hunter, Miss Shadbolt, Mrs. Vansittart, Miss Vansittart, Miss Hilda Vansittart, Miss Kensington, Miss Galpin, Miss E. Metcalfe, Miss Torrie, Miss N. Douglas, Mrs. Millett and others. After the ceremony the party all went to St. George's Littleham. The presents were numerous. The bride and bridegroom left at 4 for their honeymoon, which will be short, as Capt. Dobbie returns to his battery in France on June 3rd, and his bride resumes her work as Sister in the military Hospital in Sheffield. Capt. Dobbie is the grandson of the late Admiral W. H. Dobbie, of Exmouth and only son of the late Mr. Wallace H. Dobbie, of Dehra Doon, India, and of Mrs. Dobbie of St. George's, Littleham Cross, Exmouth.

66 BILLIONS SPENT BY OTHER NATIONS.

America's contribution of nearly $3,000,000,000 on the altar of war pales into insignificance when it is placed against the staggering amounts raised by the other belligerent nations.

Revised figures show that, exclusive of the American loan, the nations at war have raised—and virtually expended—a total of $66,521,400,000.

The amounts are as follows:
Great Britain	$21,021,400,000
France	12,140,000,000
Russia	8,535,000,000
Italy	2,845,000,000
Belgium	100,000,000
Japan	26,000,000
Serbia	18,000,000
Germany	14,226,000,000
Austria-Hungary	7,610,000,000
Total	$66,521,400,000

MUST TAKE TREATMENT.

Changes Made in Regard to Soldiers Who Have Tuberculosis.

OTTAWA, June 19.—The conference of medical officers in charge of sanatoria conducted by the Military Hospitals Commission has adopted some strong resolutions on the professional aspect of fighting tuberculosis. Soldiers who wish to refuse treatment are not to be allowed to sign waivers releasing the Government of its obligation. The medical men hold that treatment should be compulsory, in the interest not only of the afflicted, but of the community generally. Indeterminate periods of treatment are recommended.

Soldiers who are to enter senatoria will be allowed to make a short visit to their homes on leave. Directorate of small sanatoria were criticized for expecting medical officers, in addition to looking after patients, to keep books, buy supplies, and tend horses and cows. Granting leave at holiday times to patients who would travel on crowded trains was condemned Officers requiring treatment will have separate provision from the men.

Dr. Elliott, of Toronto; Capt. Byers, of St. Agatha; and Dr. Barfett, of Gravenhurst, were appointed an advisory committee on tuberculosis.

How To Make a Good Hair Tonic at Home

If you have been using hair tonics purchased readymade at the drug stores you can probably save some money and get a great deal better results by using the following recipe which has been remarkably successful in stopping loss of hair and making new hair grow on bald and thin spots. Anyone can easily make it at home. Simply mix 3 oz. of Lavoptine Compound with 6 oz. of pure Bay Rum and then add one-half drachm of menthol crystals and a little perfume if desired. The preparation should be well shaken and then allowed to stand a few hours before using. All these ingredients can be obtained from any well stocked drug store. In applying be sure to not merely wet the hair but rub the tonic right into the scalp as its ability to grow new hair depends entirely upon the nourishment being absorbed by your hair roots. This preparation has been widely used for years and is entirely harmless and will not make the hair greasy or sticky. Ladies should be careful not to apply on face or where hair is not desired. G. L. SPRING GRAINS ARE ALL COMING FORWARD IN SATISFACTORY WAY

Weekly Report on Farm Conditions — Potatoes Have Been Slow Coming Up — Vegetables Are Coming Along Well — The Labour Situation — Demand for Help Is Being Met in Most Cases

PASTURES ARE GOOD

Spring grains are coming forward in a most satisfactory way. Oats and barley have never looked better, and there has been a wonderful recovery of fall wheat.

Wet weather during the week has still further delayed the planting of late crops. On Sunday, the 10th inst, a precipitation varying from 2 1-4 to 2 3-4 inches becurred in the Prince Edward Frontenac region, and some newly planted corn and potatoes were injured.

Corn planted late, taking the Province over, has done better than the seed put in earlier in the season, some of which rotted in the hills and had to be replanted. There is some planting of corn and beans yet to be done, and considerable millet and buckwheat will yet be sown.

Potatoes have been slow in coming up, but the warmer weather of the week has given them a nice start, and most fields are looking encouraging.

Roots generally are looking well; many have some turnip land yet to sow.

THE PASTURES ARE GOOD

Pastures have come along amazingly well of late, and at present look in first-class condition where not too closely cropped by live stock. Clover and timothy are growing rapidly, and an average yield of hay is now looked for, while earlier in the season a small return was anticipated.

Vegetables are coming along well. Early tomatoes are doing nicely, and there will be more grown than usual in both town and country.

Orchard fruits, with the exception of winter apples, will do fairly well. cherries and plums being in the lead. Many growers are through with the third spraying. Small fruits are described as being very promising.

All classes of farm stock are in good general condition. The market for horses is improving, as they are not so plentiful, owing to heavy shipments to the West in the spring. Prices for cattle have had a downward tendency, beef animals selling at $11.50 a cwt, and dry cows 1 1-2c lower. Good grade milch cows, however, can still command $100 for the dairy. Cattle on the grass are putting on flesh. Welland County reports Breeders' Clubs as exerting a most marked influence in encouraging farmers to take an interest in raising purebred stock.

BACON HOGS ARE DOWN

Bacon hogs are a little down in value, although young pigs from six to eight weeks can hardly be got "at any reasonable price," as one representative puts it.

With most farmers all kinds of fodder except hay are practically exhausted, although here and there a little ensilage or other feed is yet in store.

The pastures are having a marked effect upon the milk flow, which was never fuller, taking the number of cows into consideration. 2,000 boxes of cheese were sold at Peterborough during the week for 20 3-4c a pound, while over 21c a pound was offered in Frontenac County. Dundas County reports that the price fixed for cheese at 21 3-4c a pound f.o.b. Montreal, nets the producers only 20 1-2c a pound or a trifle over.

THE LABOUR SITUATION

Requests for help during the hoeing and harvest seasons are now being made to representatives, the enquiries for boys and men being about equally divided. Fruit and vegetable growers are also asking for assistance. The demand for help is being met in most cases.

GRAIN PRICES TAKE ANOTHER DROP

Good Crop Weather Provides Fresh Downward Impulse

CHICAGO, June 21.—Improvement in crop prospects gave a fresh downward impulse yesterday to wheat prices. Rains in the spring wheat region were deemed of especial advantage to the bears. Opening quotations, which ranged from the same as Tuesday's finish to three cents lower, with July at 202 to 204, and Sept. at 179 to 181 were followed by a material setback all around.

America Must Feed Allies or Fight Great War Alone Administrator Tells Senators

Modifies Opposition to Bill Except from Senators Reed and Gore — Laws Needed to Protect Patriots Who Volunteer To Husband Resources,— Dictatorship Unnecessary

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21. — Herbert C. Hoover, food administrator, exerted his efforts to clearing misapprehension in the minds of Senators concerning the purpose and scope of the newly created food control department of the government, regulations for which Congress is now considering.

Mr. Hoover, after four hours before about forty Senators, succeeded in modifying the opposition of some of the bill's antagonists. But it was evident from the questions of Senators Gore, of Oklahoma, and Reed, of Missouri, both democrats, that they will fight the measure to the last ditch.

"It is simply a question of getting the food situation in this country in such form that we can feed our allies, or of fighting the great war by ourselves," Mr. Hoover declared in opening his statement. "England and France are virtually isolated from food producing countries except the North American continent. The Argentine supply is gone until next spring. It is up to the United States."

Outlines Vital Issues.

He then outlined what he deemed were the vital issues ahead of the food control department. They are: Controlling exports so that the European vacuum will not drain this country's all by next spring; preventing the hoarding of and gambling in edibles; mobilizing the men and women of the country in a great volunteer organization bent on destroying waste and encouraging economy and conservation, and the organization of States food bodies to encourage such economies.

Mr. Hoover dissipated all idea that he intends to set up any "dictatorship." He said he wanted to handle only food—no fuel, etc., such as is provided in the bill. He declared he had no intention or wish to regulate the food people should place on their tables.

But certain steps must be taken by the government immediately, he said, or prices would rise to such a point that "the time will come when we will look back on this day as one of comparatively moderate and average prices."

The work he purposes to do is on a voluntary basis entirely, he said, a chain of volunteer agreements from the producer to the consumer. Laws are needed only to keep in line those who refuse to join the procession of men and women with the interests of their country first.

Laws Needed to Protect Patriots.

"We need these laws for the benefit of the patriots who fall in line as well as ourselves, in this undertaking," he said. The bread ticket he designated as a "symbol of food control in desperation." He said this country had not reached any such stage and hence there was no intention of putting such a measure into effect here. At the same time, he added:

"The present high cost of living is such that men employed in many callings cannot properly nourish themselves or their families at the present wage level. There must be a change or else a falling off in efficiency, industrial unrest and great social disturbance."

He mentioned speculation in wheat and flour, declaring that "some one" is getting an excess profit of $5 a barrel on flour which is costing the American people $250,00,000 every five months.

His antidote for speculation in these and other necessities is found in a proposition to set up commissions for each of the eight or ten principal products needed by the people, to buy the surplus of each product in the country, regulate its storage and carry it until it is ready for export or for unloading on the domestic market. He would provide an agency to buy supplies for all the Allies and would make it impossible for the neutral countries to bid these prices above the amount set by the Allies, including the United States.

EIGHT BOXES CURED PSORIASIS.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Comeson, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis and one said I could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and the burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and am now entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

SAVE AND SERVE

Every Dollar is a Contribution Towards Victory.

The public demand for a national form of war service open to all has been met by the Government's thrift and saving campaign. Some can fight. Others can work on munitions. Others again can do farm work. Still others can do none of these things, but all —every man and woman in Canada—can join in the great patriotic effort to serve by saving. It touches the whole life of the Dominion—industrial, commercial, financial, professional and domestic. Factories can save by the prevention of waste and the utilization of waste product. Business men can scrutinize every expenditure. Nothing should be brought that is not essential. Domestic economy should be rigidly observed in every household. Every dollar invested in War Savings Certificates is a dollar toward the cost of maintaining the Canadian divisions in the field. Every dollar so invested is a direct contribution to victory. Save your money and serve your country by giving it to the nation for war purposes. B-6

By LOUIS TRACY

"We'll leave Mr. Ingerman for the moment," he said, implying, of course, that on returning to him there might be revelations. "I gather that you and Miss Melhuish did not agree, shall I put it? as to the precise bearing of the marriage-tie on your love affair?"

"I'm afraid I don't quite follow your meaning," and Grant's tone stiffened ominously, but his questioner was by no means abashed.

"I have no great acquaintance with the stage or its ways, but I have always understood that divorce proceedings among theatrical folk were, shall we say? more popular than in the ordinary walks of life," said Mr. Fowler.

Grant's resentment vanished. The superintendent's calm method, his interpolated apologies, as it were, for applying the probe, were beginning to interest him.

"Your second effort is more successful, superintendent," he said dryly. "Miss Melhuish did urge me to obtain her freedom. It was, she thought, only a matter of money with Mr. Ingerman, and she would be given material for a divorce."

"Ah," murmured Fowler again, as though the discreditable implication fitted in exactly with the life history of a noted scoundrel in a written dossier then lying in his office. "You objected, may I suggest, to that somewhat doubtful means of settling a difficulty?"

"Something of the kind."

Assuredly, Grant did not feel disposed to lay bare his secret feelings before this persuasive superintendent and an absurdly conceited village constable. Love, to him, was an ideal, a blend of mortal passion and immortal fire. But the flame kindled on that secret altar had scorched and seared his soul in a wholly unforeseen way. The discovery that Adelaide Melhuish was another man's wife had stunned him. It was not until the fire of sacrifice had died into parched ashes that its earlier banality became clear. He realized then that he had given his love to a phantom. By one of nature's miracles a vain and selfish creature was gifted in the artistic portrayal of the finer emotions. He had worshipped the actress, the mimic, not the woman herself. At any rate, that was how he read the repellent notion that he should bargain with any man for the sale of a wife.

"You might be a trifle more explicit, Mr. Grant," said the superintendent, almost reproachfully.

"In what direction? Surely a three-years-old love affair can have little practical bearing on Miss Melhuish's death?"

"What, then, may I ask, could bear on it more forcibly? The lady admittedly visits you, late at night, and is found dead in a river bordering the grounds of your house next morning, all the conditions pointing directly to murder. Moreover—it is no secret, as the truth must come out at the inquest—she had passed a good deal of her time while in Steynholme, unknown to you, in making inquiries concerning you, your habits, your surroundings, your friends. Surely, Mr. Grant, you must see that the history of your relations with this lady though, if I may use the phrase, perfectly innocent, may possibly supply that which is at present lacking—a clew, shall I term it, to the motive which inspired the man or woman, who killed her?"

P. C. Robinson was all an eye and an ear for this verbal fencing-match. It was not that he admired his superior's skill, because such finesse was wholly beyond him, but his suspicious brain was storing up Grant's admissions "to be used in evidence" against him subsequently. His own brief record of the conversation would have been: "The prisoner, after being duly cautioned, said that he kept company with the deceased about three years ago, but quarrelled with her on hearing that she was a married woman."

The superintendent seldom indulged in so long a speech, but he was determined to force his adversary's guard and sought to win his confidence by describing the probable course to be pursued by the coroner's inquest. But Grant, like the dead actress, had two sides to his nature. He was both an idealist and a stubborn fighter, and ideality had been shattered for many a day by that grewsome object hauled in that morning from the depths of the river.

"I am willing to help in any shape or form, but can only repeat that Miss Melhuish and I parted as described. I should add that I have never to my knowledge, met her husband."

"He may be dead."

"Possibly. You may know more about him than I."

"Even then, we have not travelled far as yet."

Fowler was puzzled, and did not hesitate to show it. He believed, not without reasonable cause, that this young man was concealing some element in the situation which might prove helpful in the quest for the murderer. He resolved to strike off along a new track.

"I am informed," he went on, speaking with a deliberateness meant to be impressive, "that you did entertain another lady as a visitor last night."

Grant allowed his glance to dwell on Robinson for an instant. Hitherto he had ignored the man. Now he surveyed him as if he were a viper.

"It will be a peculiarly offensive thing if the personality of a helpless and unoffending girl is brought into this inquiry," he cried. "'Brought in' is too mild—I ought to say 'dragged in.' As it happens, astronomy is one of my hobbies. Last evening, as the outcome of a chat on the subject, Doris Martin, daughter of the local postmaster, came her to view Sirius through an astronomical telescope. There is the instrument," and he pointed through P. C. Robinson to a telescope on a tripod in a corner of the room. The gesture was eloquent. The burly policeman might have been a sheet of glass. "As you see, it is a solid article, not easily lifted about. It weighs nearly a hundred-weight."

"Why is it so heavy?"

The superintendent had a knack of putting, seemingly irrelevant questions. Robinson had been disconcerted by it earlier in the day, but Grant seemed to treat the interruption as a sensible one.

"For observation purposes an astronomical telescope is not of much use unless the movement of the earth is counteracted," he said. "Usually the dome of an observatory swings on a specially contrived axis, but that is a very expensive structure, so my telescope is governed by a clock work attachment and moves on its own axis."

Mr. Fowler nodded. He was really a very well informed man for a country police officer; he understood clearly.

"Miss Martin came here about a quarter to ten," continued Grant, "and left within three quarters of an hour. She did not enter the house. She was watching Sirius while I explained the methods whereby the distance of any star from the earth is computed and its chemical analysis determined——"

"Most instructive, I'm sure," put in the superintendent.

He smiled genially, so genially that Grant dismissed the notion that the other might, in vulgar parlance, be pulling his leg.

"Well, that is the be-all and end-all of Miss Martin's presence. It would be cruel and unfair if a girl of her age were forced into a distasteful prominence in connection with a crime with which she is no more related than with Sirius itself."

The older man shook his head in regretful dissent.

"That is just where you and I differ," he said. "That very point leads us back to your past friendship with the dead woman."

"Why?"

"Surely, you see, Mr. Grant, that Miss Melhuish might be, probably was watching your star gazing, especially as your pupil chanced to be, shall I say, a remarkably attractive young lady....No. No," for Grant's anger was unmistakable—"It does no good to blaze out in protest. An unhappy combination of circumstances must be faced candidly. Here are you and a pretty girl together in a garden at a rather late hour, and a woman whom you once wanted to marry, spying on you, in all likelihood. I've met a few coroner's juries in my time, and not one of them but would deem the coincidence strange, to put it mildly."

"What in Heaven's name are you driving at?"

"You must not impute motives, sir. I am seeking them, not supplying them."

"But what am I to say?"

"Perhaps you will now tell me just how Miss Melhuish and you parted."

The fencers were coming to close quarters. Even P. C. Robinson had to admit that his "boss" had cornered the suspect rather cleverly.

Grant realised that there was no room for squeamishness in this affair. If he did not speak out now, his motives might be woefully misunderstood.

"We parted in wrath and tears," he said sadly. "Miss Melhuish could not, or did not, appreciate my scruples. She professed to be in love with me. She even went so far as to threaten suicide. I—hardly believed in her sincerity but thought it advisable to temporize and asked for a few days delay before we came to a final decision. We met again, as I have said, and discussed matters in a calmer mood. Ultimately she expressed agreement with my point of view, and we parted, ostensibly to remain good friends, but really to separate for ever."

"Thank you. That's better. What was your point of view, Mr. Grant?"

"Surely I have made it clear. I could not regard my wife as purchasable. The proposed compact was, I believe, illegal. But that consideration did not sway me. I had been dreaming, and thought I was roaming in an enchanted garden. I awoke and found myself in a morass."

The superintendent nodded again. Singularly enough, Grant's somewhat high flown simile appeared to satisfy his craving for light.

"Do you mind telling me—is there another woman?" he demanded with one of those rapid transitions of topic in which he excelled.

"No," said Grant.

"You see what I am aiming at. Let us suppose that Miss Melhuish never, in her own mind, abandoned the hope that some day the tangle would straighten itself. Women are constituted that way. If her husband is now dead, and she became free, she might wish to renew the old ties, but being proud, would want to ascertain first whether or not any other woman had come into your life."

"I follow perfectly," said Grant, with some bitterness. "She would be consumed with jealousy because my companion in the garden last night happened to be a charming girl of nineteen."

"It is possible."

"So she went off and got someone to kill her, and tie her body with a rope, and arrange a dramatic setting whereby it would be patent to the meanest intelligence that I was the criminal?"

Mr. Fowler smiled and looked fixedly at P. C. Robinson.

"No, no," he said, quite good-humoredly. "That would be carrying realism to extremes. Still, I am convinced Mr. Grant that this mystery is bound up in some way with your romance of three years ago. At present, I admit, I am working in the dark."

He rose. Apparently, the interview was at an end. But, while pocketing his note book, he said suddenly—

"The inquest will open at three o'clock to-morrow. You will be present, of course, Mr. Grant?"

"I suppose it is necessary."

"Oh, yes. You found the body, you know. Besides, you may be the only person who can give evidence of identity. In fact, you and the doctor will be the only witnesses called."

"Dr. Foxton?"

"Yes."

"Has he made a post mortem?"

"He is doing so now. You see, there is clear indication that this unfortunate young lady was struck a heavy blow, perhaps killed, before she was put in the river."

"Good heavens! Somehow, I was so stunned that I never thought of looking for signs of any injury of any sort."

Grant's horror-stricken air was so spontaneous that it probably justified the severe test of that unexpected disclosure. He was so unnerved by it that the two policemen had gone before he could frame another question.

Once they were in the open road, and well away from The Hollies, Robinson ventured to open his mouth.

"He's a clever one is Mr. Grant," he said meaningly. "You handled him a bit of all right, sir, but he did not tell you everything that he knew, not by long chalks."

The superintendent walked a few yards in silence. Even when he spoke his gaze was introspective, and seemed to ignore his companion.

"I'm inclined to agree with you, Robinson," he said, speaking very slowly. "We have a big case in our hands, a very big case. We must tread warily. You, in particular, mixing with the village folk, should listen to all but say nothing. Don't depend on your memory. Write down what you hear and see. People's actual words, and the exact time of an occurrence, often have an extraordinarily illuminating effect when weighed subsequently. But don't let Mr. Grant think that you suspect him. There is no occasion for that—yet."

Mr. Fowler could be either blunt or cryptic in speech at will. In one mood he was the straightforward, outspoken official; in another the potential lawyer. P. C. Robinson, though unable to describe his chief's erratic qualities, was unpleasantly aware of them. He was not quite sure, for instance, whether the superintendent was encouraging or warning him, but being a dogged person, resolved to "take his own line" and stick to it.

Grant passed a distressful day. Work was not to be thought of, and reading was frankly impossible. His mind dwelt constantly on the tragedy which had come so swiftly and completely into his ordered life. He could not wholly discard the nebulous theory suggested by Superintendent Fowler, but the more he surveyed it the less reasonable it seemed. The one outstanding fact in a chaos of doubt was that someone had deliberately done Adelaide Melhuish to death. The murderer had been actuated by a motive. What was this motive? Surely in a place like Steynholme no man could come and go without being seen, and the murderer must be a stranger to the district because it was ridiculous to imagine that he was one of the residents.

Yet that was exactly what a dunderheaded policeman believed. P. C. Robinson had revealed himself by many a covert glance and prick-eared movement. Grant squirmed uneasily at the crass conceit, as there was no denying that circumstances tended towards a certain doubt, if no more, in regard to his own association with the crime.

The admission called for a fierce struggle with his pride, but he forced himself to think the problem out in all its bearings, and the folly of adopting the legendary policy of the chased ostrich became manifest. What then should he do? He thought at first of invoking the aid of a barrister friend, who could watch the inquest in his behalf.

Nevertheless, he shrank from that step, which to his super-sensitive nature, implied the need of legal protection, and he fiercely resented the mere notion of such a thing. But something must be done. Once the murderer was laid by the heels his own troubles would vanish, and the storm raised by the unhappy fate of Adelaide Melhuish would subside into a sad memory.

He was wrestling with indecision, when a newspaper reporter called. Grant received the journalist promptly, and told him all the salient facts, suppressing only the one-time prospect of a marriage between himself and the famous actress.

The reporter went with him to the river and scrutinised the marks now rapidly becoming obliterated, of the body having been drawn ashore.

SPOTS OF INTEREST AROUND BANFF

THERE are many beautiful scenic views to be seen in the vicinity of Banff and none more attractive than that of the illustrations below. Apart from the most beautiful mountain scenery in the world to be found around this delightful district Banff holds the distinction of being a very important town in the Canadian Pacific Rockies, and has a large number of attractions.

Natural Sulphur Springs lie a mile west from Bow River bridge, at the base of Sulphur Mountain, on the road to Sun Dance Canyon. It is approached through a small building and a short subterranean passage. The chamber within the mountain was formed partly by a subsidence of the rocks while cooling and partly by water erosion. It is somewhat conical in shape, having a base of thirty-six feet and a height of forty-five.

Two and a half miles beyond the cave and basin, at the foot of Sulphur Mountain, is Sun Dance Canyon. It is said, that in olden days the plateau above was a favorite camping place of the Indians. It was here that the copper-colored aspirant of tribal honors passed through the final ordeal of courage—the suspension by the skin of the shoulder-blades, and other tests of endurance—before being admitted to the symbolic rites which signified that the Great Spirit had endowed him with powers essential to the full-blooded brave. Besides the numerous drives the National Park is one of the principal attractions of the village is the museum, maintained by the Government, situated at the north end of the Bow bridge. It is a handsome frame and log structure, finished in rustic design on the outside, and the inside with British Columbia fir and cedar. The building contains the museum, the offices of Mr. Howard Douglas, the Park Superintendant, a public reading and writing room and a dark room with necessary appliances for the amateur photographer. Within the museum are many fine specimens of the flora, fauna and mineralogy, etc., of the mountains, besides private collections of Indian relics, specimens of Indian workmanship and curios. Here too are kept the meterological records.

Adjacent to the museum are the aviary where a collection of imported pheasants is to be seen, and the Royal North-West Mounted Police barracks. It is a great tourist centre and all the fascinating spots in the district are accessible by good carriage roads or bridle paths within a radius of three miles are the Hoodoos, Cascade Mountain, Stoney Squaw Mountain the beautiful vermilion lakes, the animal paddocks, the golf links, and many other delightful spots.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE GREAT GAME

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The villagers of Chatham and Coburg were four miles apart, and there had been rivalry between them ever since they were founded. If one claimed 400 population the other claimed 450. When the one built a church building with a spire thirty feet high, the other built a church building with the spire seven feet higher.

There was one point which had never been settled between the towns. This was the championship checker player. Sometimes one village held the championship for a year or two and then had to relinquish it to the other. There was talk for several years of having the question permanently settled, but it hung fire until a man named Bob Wittiker moved over to Chatham from a village forty miles away. He had played checkers ever since he was five years old. At ten he could beat any man they could bring against him. At fifteen he won the championship of the state. But no one in either village knew of this. It was given out that he played a pretty good game, and when the Coburg people heard of it they sent to Chicago and hired a man to become a resident of the town long enough to settle the question of championship. Each town made up a purse, and the victor in the game was to receive $25.

Ten men went over from Chatham with their champion, and another ten men met them. The twenty were to see that the game was a fair one. It was to be the best three games in five and was played in the town hall.

The game began on Thursday morning, and that night nobody turned out to the regular prayer meeting. The first game lasted all that day and all that night and was not decided until Friday noon. The champion of Chatham won it. This fact was telephoned over to Chatham, and it set the village wild with delight. New wagers were made. New boasts were made. A lecturer was to give a talk Friday night, but he had to skip it.

The second game lasted through Friday night and all day Saturday. Now and then the champions fell asleep for five minutes, but they were aroused by the pricks of pins. At 7 o'clock at night the second game was won by the Coburg man. This made a game apiece, and the excitement went up to fever heat.

There were two churches in each village, and the Sunday congregations counted up about five women apiece. Not all the sermons ever preached could have induced the men to come away from the telephones. About 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon both checker players were allowed to sleep for twenty minutes and then given a rub down with hot vinegar and red pepper. They started out playing again feeling pretty lively. The four churches were closed Sunday night.

All day Monday passed and that third game of checkers was not yet decided. The champions were allowed a little sleep and given another rub down, and they got through the night fairly well. At noon Tuesday old Ephraim Watkins, eighty-five years, who was the greatest weather prophet for fifty miles around, sat on the post-office steps at Chatham and said to the dozen men about him:

"Boys, we are going to have a change of weather within a few hours. I'll bet my old hat again a chip that we'll have the rippinest old thunderstorm any of you have seen in ten years."

"Well, let 'er come," replied one of the men. "It won't make any difference to the checker players over at Coburg."

"Don't you be too sure about that," piped the old man. "I don't say that a friendly game of checkers is wicked, but I do say that keepin' up a game of checkers until it interferes with prayer meetin's and sermons is kinder defyin' the Lord."

In about two hours a black cloud arose in the west, and all could see that a thunderstorm was coming. The latest news from Coburg was that the third game was about an even thing so far, and would probably not be decided before the next morning. Old Ephraim had come back just as the announcement was made, and on hearing it he exclaimed:

"That 'ere game of checkers will be decided within an hour, no matter what the telephone says."

He would not say more, though hard pressed to do so, and half an hour later the first flash of lightning and the first roll of thunder came to announce a hard storm. It was a hard one both in Chatham and in Coburg.

The hall where the game was being played held a big crowd, and the lightning picked it out first. It struck on the roof, and most of the boards and shingles were ripped off, and the bolt knocked down every man who was on his feet. Both champion checker players fell off their chairs unconscious, and the checkerboard was split into a dozen pieces. There was a call for every doctor in town, and, though no one was actually killed, there was a heavy call for medical services. Such a thing as going on with the champion game was not to be thought of and has not been thought of since. All took it as a warning from heaven, and the ministers on the next Sunday clinched the matter by saying if it was not punishment for such dreadful wickedness why didn't the lightning strike one of the churches or Deacon Bennett's big barn?

Isn't This True?

When you "feel mean" — dull, tired, nervous, bad digestion, no appetite—

Don't you find out, afterwards, that your bowels were not acting freely and naturally?

Due, of course, to a liver gone on a strike.

Take two or three pills—once. After that, only one, until your're all right.

NERVOUS CHILDREN

The Trouble Is Often Really St. Vitus Dance — Do Not Neglect It

Many a child has been called awkward, has been punished in school for not keeping still or for dropping things when the trouble was really St. Vitus Dance. This disease may appear at any age, but is most common between the ages of six and fourteen years. It is caused by thin blood which fails to carry sufficient nourishment to the nerves, and the child becomes restless and twitching of the muscles and jerking of the limbs and body follow. In severe cases the child is unable to hold any thing or feed itself. St. Vitus Dance is cured by building up the blood. The most successful treatment is to remove the child from all mental excitement, stop school work and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills renew the blood supply, strengthen the nerves, and restore the child to perfect health. Here is proof of their power to cure. Mrs. S. Sharpe, Oakville, Ont., says:—"When my daughter was nine years old she was attacked with St. Vitus Dance. She was sent to a sanatorium where she remained for nine weeks, without any benefit. Indeed when we brought her home she was as helpless as a baby. I got a supply of Dr Williams' Pink Pills and continued giving her half a pill after each meal for several months, when she had fully recovered and has never had a symptom of the trouble since."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TO PREVENT EXTORTIONS.

President Wilson Outlines Duties of Food Controller.

WASHINGTON. — The appointment of Herbert Hoover is not to control the food of the country but to release it from the grip of speculators and other persons who seek to make inordinate profits out of it, and to protect the people against the extortions which would result. President Wilson said to-day in a letter to Representative Borland.

Mr. Hoover to-day named Sunday, July 1, as food conservation day, when he urged newspapers, magazines ministers, fraternal organizations, motion picture theatres, bill board owners, etc., to join in a nation wide campaign to "awaken the American housewife to her opportunity and duty."

In this campaign, which Mr. Hoover hopes to save $2,000,000,000 annually through elimination of waste in the kitchen alone, all summer schools will be utilized. Through summer schools alone, Hoover expects to educate 250,000 housewives to the art of saving.

Specially directed campaigns are to be made in hotels, railway dining cars, cafes, and all manner of public eating places

Hoover pointed out that "if only two cents is saved on every meal an annual saving of another $2,000,000,000—equal to the liberty loan—will have been saved to this nation and her allies."

BEWARE OF GERMAN TRICKS.

French Families Warned Not to Send Food or Information.

PARIS, June 19.—An official note issued last night warns families of prisoners of war in Germany against letters purporting to come from prisoners which contain requests for parcels of food or for certain information of a military character, to be conveyed by means of underlining certain words, which together form phrases. Sometimes it is suggested answers can be written in saliva on the inside of envelopes.

The Ministry of War has prohibited the mailing of newspapers and magazines to neutral countries by private persons. Travellers proceeding to neutral countries will no longer be allowed to take newspapers or periodicals across the frontier.

French blouses show preference for kimono sleeves and flat collars.

Blouse of beige georgette worn with an old blue satin skirt is very effective.

Sable, Ermine and Kolinsky lead in popularity for summer furs.

Coloured bead handbags are fashion's latest edict.

Canning Strawberries

The "cold pack" method of canning is the best and easiest. This means that foods are to be cleaned, prepared in suitable shape, and packed cold into a sterilized jar. After this, either syrup of boiling water is poured on the jars and they are then submitted to a sterilizing period of longer or shorter duration.

Now for some concrete recipes which the housekeeper can follow with trust:

Strawberries—if possible can the same day as they are picked. If not, use only the soundest berries. Twist the hulls off, using a strawberry nipper, and place in strainer, a few at a time. Pour water over the cleanse. Pack in quart jars carefully, without crushing. Pour hot syrup over berries to the top. Place rubber and cap in position, but not tight; if using any kind of hot water bath outfit (wash-boiler, steam cooker, etc.), sterilize eight minutes. In a pressure cooker, the time will be four minutes.

Remove the jars from sterilizer and tighten cover. Invert to cool, and test the joining of cap and bottle. Wrap jars with paper to prevent bleaching. The syrup is made in the proportion of one and one-half quarts of sugar to one quart of water boiled to medium thick. This is poured on boiling and the jars sealed and sterlized immediately.

Strawberries, No. 2—(Besides canned by this method will not rise to the top, as they will by other methods.) Choose very large, firm berries, hull and clean. Add eight ounces sugar and two tablespoonfuls of water to each quart of berries. Boil slowly for fifteen minutes in wide enamel kettle, fitted with tight cover while boiling. Allow berries to cool in the syrup and remain over night in the covered kettle. Pack the cold berries in glass jars; put rubber and cap in position, not tight. Sterilize in hot water outfit ten minutes, in pressure cooker for four minutes. Remove, tighten, invert and wrap with paper.

Strawberry Preserves—Make syrup—one quart water, eleven pounds of sugar, and cook in open kettle until candy thermometer registers 236 degrees when placed in the syrup. Add eight pounds of berries to the syrup. Cook very slowly just at the boiling point. Stop the cooking when thermometer registers 220 degrees and pass into shallow pans to cool. Hasten cooling by pouring syrup over berries. Skim whilst cooling. Fill into jars when cold and allow to stand unsealed for four days. Put rubber and cap in position. Sterilize twenty minutes in hot bath for fifteen minutes in pressure cooker. Remove, tighten and invert, then wrap with paper.

ATTACKED BY STRIKERS.

How Trouble Started at Port McNicoll Few Days Ago.

TORONTO, June 19.—The trouble at Port McNicoll is about all over. Provincial Inspector Boyd was back this morning and made his report to Superintendent of Provincial Police, Joseph Rogers.

From his report it appears that the trouble started while the C. P. R. police were escorting a number of workmen to a hotel for supper when they met some 200 strikers. Stones were thrown at the men and some shots were fired, one taking effect in the arm of a Bulgarian. This bullet was found to have been fired from a 25 automatic revolver.

The leaders of the rioters got out of town suddenly when the report was made that the mayor intended to have them arrested, and thus the police were unable to lay their hands on them.

GERMAN PENSIONS SMALL.

Public Appealed to for Creation of An Assisting Fund.

COPENHAGEN, June 19.—German newspapers print an initial appeal for the collection of a great national fund to supplement pensions for war cripples and the families of soldiers in the same fashion as widows and other dependents of fallen soldiers are now assisted from a fund collected by popular subscription. The Government pensions are described as utterly inadequate, and instances are cited by figures from the Rhine district where pensions for men with families is only 67 marks.

The Vorwaerts calls it a crying shame and a disgrace to appeal to private generosity for the relief which a grateful Fatherland should grant adequately from the public treasury.

"D. H." IS TOMMIES' IDEA OF A MARSHAL.

Behind the British Lines in France.—Popularity is the forerunner of a nickname in the British army.

Soldiers still think of Lord Roberts as "Bobs," and of Lord Kitchener always as "K" or "K of K."

Sir Douglas Haig to the British private is never anything but "D. H."

Sir William Robertson, the Chief of Staff, is always "Willie."

General Sir Robert Whigham's army name is "Wigwam."

General Sir Hubert Gough is "Goffy," and General Allenby is "The Bull."

No one ever thinks of General Rawlinson except as "Rilly."

General Maude rejoices in the title "The Strafer."

Was Anaemic FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ANOTHER RETIREMENT BY THE HUNS
EVACUATE THE RIVER LYS BEND

GERMANS HAVE RETIRED FROM TERRITORY WEST OF THE LYS

Hindenburg's Forces Evacuate Some Eight Square Miles of Territory South of Warneton in the Lys River Bend Where Their Position Was Precarious as a Result of the Capture of Messines Ridge --- German Sub Rammed and Sunk by American Destroyer

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

Special to the Examiner:

(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE (via London), June 20.—The approach to Lens has been made less difficult by a successful miner operation north of Souchez River. The object of the attack was a nest of German trenches lying at the foot of Reservoir Hill. These trenches radiate from the ruins of mining buildings, and were the chief places of shelter for the enemy between our front and Lens. Yesterday afternoon parties of bombers went out to capture these trenches by bombing operations. The attack was entirely successful. The trenches were cleared of the enemy, and the dugouts in which the Germans were believed to have been lurking were blown in and the ground incorporated into our system. Thirty-five prisoners were taken.

FOE COUNTERS VAINLY.

During the evening and night the enemy, after an exceptionally heavy bombardment, made three separate and sustained assaults with the object of recovering the ground he had lost, but all were beaten off. This morning the situation is reported as again normal. The Germans are still hard at work upon their new line of trenches, concrete dugouts and wire entanglements, which run across the open ground east of Reservoir Hill.

A striking testimony to the growing supremacy of the British aerial service is contained in a letter captured during the Messines operation. A German infantryman, writing from a point near Ypres, on June 16, to a brother in the flying service, said:

"One day we had a nice bombardment. All the dugouts were blown in, although they had a concrete head cover a metre thick. One gun was smashed up, too, and the artillerymen had to clear out. This was mainly the work of the English airmen. They were so bold and impudent that they came down to a height of 100 metres and fired on us with a machine gun. None of our airplanes could show themselves. They were driven off at once. The English airmen did what they liked, and this was why the bombardment was so good."

LONDON, June 21.—A German submarine was rammed and sunk by an American destroyer, after a German-born American blue jacket had spied out the under-water craft, according to official reports here. U.S. destroyers are in the thick of the submarine fighting off the west coast.

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 21.—Some time within the last twenty-four hours the Germans retreated out of all the territory west of the River Lys, from near Warneton, southward. British patrols reported to-day they had failed to encounter a single Prussian in this section. The enemy evidently realized the critical position it occupied in the Lys River bend, and hurriedly decamped in the face of the British pressure. Fighting keeps up locally all along this southern part of the front. Late Tuesday night the Canadians took the remainder of the trenches below Reservoir Hill, on the outskirts of Lens. Three violent German counter attacks which came immediately after this victory were promptly crushed. The days are terribly hot, the only relief being almost tropical thunderstorms, accompanied by typhoon-like rains, and sometimes hail — some pieces reporting merely rain, while just adjacent the icy pellets rattle against the soldiers' steel trench helmets like spent bullets. Most of the fighting is occurring at night. In one of the battles of the dark yesterday the British made a further slight advance south of the Cojeul River, but north of the same stream, on Infantry Hill, the storm of German artillery literally wiped out the front line British trenches, necessitating the establishment of Tommies' lines to posts immediately behind. One of the "dog days" stories which was passed along the trenches to-day was that heavy artillery fire in the region of Bullecourt had uncovered the skeleton of a watermelon.

The withdrawal of German forces around the Lys, mentioned above, has been predicted in previous United Press despatches. In this section the Ypres-Lille Canal and the River Lys converge, meeting at Comines. The angle of this convergence is roughly embraced between Hollebake and Houthem on the north, and Warneton, Houplines and Armentieres on the south. Warneton is about two and a half miles south-west of Comines, on the Lys. "West of the River Lys, from near Warneton southward," presumably means that about eight square miles down to Houpene has been evacuated. The territory in the angle formed by the canal and the river is low and marshy, and is commanded by the Messines-Wytschaete Ridge, now held by the British.

ATHENS, June 21.—The Official Gazette to-day published a letter from Alexander, the new King, to Premier Zaimis, declaring that he was convinced of the good intentions of the Allied Powers, and would co-operate with them in maintaining tranquility and re-uniting the different elements of the nation.

DUBLIN, June 21.—Sinn Feiners had another demonstration to-day in celebration of the release of their compatriots, and five hundred of them attacked residences of returned soldiers, smashing windows and stoning the police. Fourteen persons were arrested.

TORONTO, Ont., June 21.—In regard to the Canadian Associated Press despatches to the morning papers regarding the liner Olympic, there is still no definite information as to whether the Secretary of the Admiralty meant that the Olympic was not sunk, or merely that no Canadians were lost when the Olympic was sunk. It has never been officially announced that the Olympic was sunk.

PARIS, June 21.—Germany is getting worried now about America's entrance into the war. Therefore she is redoubling her efforts towards a separate peace with any of the Allies, according to the belief of Former Foreign Minister Cambon, in viewing developments in Athens, Stockholm, and Petrograd.

"Germany is fearful of America's strength," he declared to-day. "She is multiplying her efforts to scatter the germ of separation among the Allies."

PARIS, June 21.—The official statement to-day says: "The enemy made an extremely violent attack east of Vauxhallon with fresh troops from the Russian front. Our counter attacks, breaking up advantages gained on the first onset, were fiercely resisted. The Germans finally penetrated our front trenches south of Monkey's Mountain and north of Moisy Farm. We regained the former positions this morning."

Vauxhallon is about 12 miles south-west of Laon, and has been some of the fiercest fighting of the whole French front. The position, as held by the French, has been a constant menace to the German flank along the Chemin Des Dames, and because of this, has been incessantly under German attack.

SERGT. P. T. MARTIN.

Peterborough member of the 93rd Battalion, who has been awarded the Military Medal, the second 93rd man to win this honour. Sergt. Martin who was a reservist, left Peterborough at the beginning of the war to rejoin his regiment, saw many months service at the front, was wounded, invalided home to Peterborough and discharged, but afterwards re-enlisted, this time with the 93rd Peterborough Battalion. He went overseas again with Lt.-Col. Johnston's unit and was transferred to the 1st Canadians.

MEMBER FOR WEST PETERBORO TO SPEAK TO-DAY

Capt. J. H. Burnham Will Explain His Recent Departure from His Party and His Sudden Reconciliation After

TO-DAY'S "BATTING ORDER"

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 21.— The "batting order" for this afternoon's debate on the military service bill is as follows: F. F. Pardee, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Hon. Charles Murphy, J. A. M. Armstrong, Mr. Nesbitt Oxford, and Captain Burnham, of Peterborough. The last named will explain his recent departure from his party and his later reconciliation.

Le Canada Attacks General Wilson

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, June 21.—Le Canada this morning continues its attack on General Wilson, G.O.C. of Montreal district. It says:

"We ask General Wilson if it is true that an order has been given to all troops in Montreal to hold themselves in readiness for a call for next attempt at rioting in Montreal. Will General Wilson tell us if there are machine guns held in our armouries to complete the bacchanalia that is preparing.

DOMINION DAY SPORTS HAVE GREAT PRIZE LIST

Three Prizes Donated by The De Laval Company for 100 Yards Race

The committee in charge of the Dominion Day sports have prepared an excellent list of prizes which have been donated by the merchants, manufacturers and citizens. They will be published in a few days in the city papers.

One added event is the 100 yards race open to farmers' sons or to boys working on farms, under 17 years.

The De Laval Company is giving these prizes to the winners:

First—Milk stool.
Second—Milk pail.
Third—Butter mould.

The Peterboro Y. M. C. A.

A Statement of Its Conditions and Needs

The Y.M.C.A. is like a church; it is not conducted for financial gain, but for the good it can accomplish in the raising of the spiritual ideals of the community where it exists and the building of a better young manhood, and each year the friends of the movement are looked to for financial aid and other forms of assistance the work requires.

In 1912, the friends of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. contributed so generously to its needs that a deficit which had been burdening it for some time was wiped out. Since then, through uncontrollable circumstances, another deficit has accumulated. This is how.

Usually a canvass is made each year to meet the current year's needs. There was to have been a Fall Canvass in 1914. In August the great war started, therefore the regular canvass was not made that year. The Association ended the year with a deficit of $3,300.00.

In 1915, the addition of the 13 dormitories and the making of much needed alterations in the building became necessary. Other improvements were required. To enable the Association to meet the situation and end the year without a deficit it was decided to ask the public for special contributions to a total of $15,000.00. The first survey of the field to raise this amount indicated that only $12,000 should be asked for, and after earnest effort this amount was fully obtained. Since then, this deficit has increased, due largely to the war conditions, until it is approximately $5,000.00. There has been a heavy annual loss in membership fees, due to 285 senior members being at the front. In addition, free privileges have been extended since the outbreak of the war to 1,600 soldiers during their stay in the city. The increased cost of absolutely necessary supplies has constituted an extra and unavoidable burden.

The aim of the Board of Directors has been to make the local Y.M.C.A. as nearly self-sustaining as possible. The improvements in 1915 were to this end, when 13 more rooms were added. These improvements have been amply justified in that they have brought in an added income of approximately $100 per month, in addition to allowing a better arrangement of the facilities, and permitting improved supervision. The financial aid so generously given by friends at that time made these excellent results possible. The Association is now appealing to the public for a fund, by which all unpaid obligations may be met, a provision made for the current expenses of the present year, with every prospect of success.

Private J. Huffman Millbrook Soldier Dead from Wounds

Went Overseas With 136th Battalion and Has Made Supreme Sacrifice --- Private J. A. Seaborn, of 93rd Battalion, Wounded --- Another Alderville Indian on the List --- To-day's General Military News

DIED OF WOUNDS.

Pte. J. Huffman, late 136th Battalion, Millbrook.

WOUNDED.

Pte. G. B. Seaborn, late 93rd Battalion, Coe Hill.

Pte. S. Comego, late 139th Battalion, Alderville.

Pte. Wm. D. Kearns, late 93rd Battalion, 192 Elm street.

PTE. J. HUFFMAN.

Pte. J. Huffman, a well-known Millbrook boy, who enlisted last year in the 136th Battalion, Port Hope, and went overseas with that unit, is officially reported died of wounds. Pte. Huffman has many friends in Peterborough who will be grieved to learn of his death.

PTE. G. B. SEABORN.

Pte. G. B. Seaborn, a Coe Hill boy who enlisted in the 93rd Peterborough Battalion, in May of last year, and went overseas with Lieut.-Col. Johnston's unit, is officially reported wounded. He was transferred to another Canadian Battalion at the front.

PTE. S. COMEGO.

Pte. S. Comego of Alderville, is officially reported wounded. Pte. Comego was one of the many patriotic Rice Lake Indians who donned the khaki and went out to fight for Canada. He went overseas with the 139th Durham Battalion.

PTE. W. D. KEARNS.

Mrs. John Kearns, 192 Elm Street, this morning received an official telegram from Ottawa, reporting, with regret that her son, Private William Dennis Kearns, infantry, No. 195670, has been officially reported admitted to No. 7 Canadian General Hospital, Letreport, on June 10th, suffering from a gunshot wound in the right arm. Pte. Kearns went overseas with the 93rd Battalion.

With the near approach of conscription there will be a great need of non-commissioned officers and Lieut.-Col. Walker has received instructions to enlist bright young men who will be trained to act as instructors. There is a splendid opening for such men and they are to be advised to consult Col. Walker in regard to this matter.

The Kingston Whig says:

Forestry recruiting in Kingston has stopped with the order issued to Capt. J. E. Freeman to stop recruiting for this company. There are now 116 men in this unit and it is expected that it will be proceeding overseas in the near future. Capt. Freeman with Lieut. Britton as his only officer, has done splendid work in the last few weeks. The men have been coming in steadily and if the recent order to stop the work had not been issued it would certainly have been up to the strength of 170 in a very short time.

PRESENTED WITH WATCH.

An event of more than passing interest and unique in its character from the fact that it was the first of its kind held in this community, took place in the Cavanville Methodist Church on Thursday evening, June 4th, when the community in general, irrespective of denomination, gathered together to pay a tribute of respect and homage to Pte. Walter oward of the 20th Battalion, C.E.F. The event was one of widespread interest, as everyone showed himself anxious to welcome the hero home again. The chairman of the meeting was the Rev. W. H. Clark, who presided in his usual pleasing manner. The meeting was opened by a selection by the choir, under the able leadership of Mr. B. F. Carley, and later on in the evening Miss Annie Tinney contributed a solo in a very acceptable manner. Mr. James Douglas, being called to the platform on behalf of the committee, read an address and the presentation was made by Mr. Howard Keegan.

Corp. D. J. McIntosh left for Kingston on Wednesday to undergo an operation on his eye, if he is strong enough to stand it. He is one of the 93rd boys who returned home on June the 5th and has been home on leave ever since. Corp. McIntosh has been wounded twice. The first time he was hit was sometime in October. He received a bayonet wound on the chin, the wound being so bad as to require fourteen stitches to close. He also had his jaw broken at the same time and twenty-seven pieces of shrapnel. In his hip he had seventeen pieces, and his hip was also broken. One piece of shrapnel went through his arm on one side and came out the other side, and one piece also went through his foot.

Corp. McIntosh was also buried four times. The first time he was buried he was under ground for 6 hours and 43 minutes. He had his chest broken and badly bruised and when he was uncovered he was unconscious for over a day.

Corp. McIntosh belonged to the headquarters staff of the 42nd Highlanders and was on his way to the sergeant-major's dug-out for hip boots. The only thing that saved him was

Six Months' Hoist Proposed for Bill

French Conservative Members Move Amendment to This Effect During Debate on the Conscription Measure Yesterday

TO SHELVE ISSUE

OTTAWA, June 20.—Six months' hoist to the military service bill of Premier Borden was the proposal submitted to Parliament to-night from Government benches. It came in the form of an amendment to the referendum amendment of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and was launched by Mr. J. A. Barrette, Berthier, elected as a Conservative with combined Conservative and Nationalist support. It was seconded by Mr. Honore Achim, Conservative member for Labelle.

Mr. Barrette's amendment, submitted amid the amazing spectacle of considerable Conservative applause, is interpreted to mean that the Nationalist sentiment of Quebec Province will fight Sir Wilfrid Laurier's proposed referendum and the pledge of the Liberal leader that, in event of conscription being approved by the people of Canada, Quebec will loyally accept it. The Conservative applause which greeted Mr. Barrette's rising seems to carry equally serious significance. Parliamentary corridors interpreted it to mean that the Nationalist is again working with the Conservative in an endeavour to prove Laurier too Imperialistic in Quebec and not Imperialistic enough in the English-speaking Provinces. Liberals of all provinces are expected unitedly to oppose the Barrette shelving of the conscription issue.

Recruiting Discouraged in Quebec.

The eloquent speech of Mr. Ernest Lapointe, Kamouraska, was a feature of the day's debate. It came late in the evening and held the undivided attention of both sides of the House. It was a moderate and masterly plea for consulting the people. Speaking for the French-Canadians Mr. Lapointe pleaded earnestly that Parliament give them opportunity, under fair and encouraging conditions, to develop the true spirit of the people in war service. He deplored that French-Canadian recruiting had been so small, but pointed out that everything had been done in Quebec to discourage recruiting.

"Do not let us," he urged, "lose our own democracy in order to democratize Germany. May I quote the words of Lord Derby in London on October 15, 1915, when he said: 'Any system is a failure unless we have done our best to make it a success.'

"Can the Government—I want to speak entirely free from party recrimination — can the Government, collectively and individually, honestly say it has done its best to make voluntary recruiting in Quebec a success?"

At the conclusion of Mr. Barrette's speech, submitting his amendment, Mr. F. F. Pardee, Chief Liberal Whip, moved the adjournment of the debate.

MR. R. J. DEVEY.

Director of the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society which, by means of three plays, has raised $850 net for patriotic purposes. Mr. Devey's latest effort, "A Greek Slave," netted $400 for the Canadian Kitchener League.

THE SIX MONTHS HOIST AMENDMENT WILL BE CRUSHED

Liberals Will Welcome Opportunity of Voting Against It and Thus Declare Themselves in Favour of the Principle of Conscription Bill

MAY BE RULED OUT

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 21.—Last night's development in the conscription fight, the moving of the six months' hoist by the Quebec wing of the Conservative party, is not so disconcerting to the Liberals as the movers apparently hoped. Their reckoning evidently was that the French Liberals would have to vote for the hoist or lose strength in Quebec. This may be the case, but many English-speaking Liberals welcome the chance to vote against the hoist and thus declare themselves in favour of the principle of the conscription bill before voting for Sir Wilfrid Laurier's amendment to refer that principle to the people. The Barrette-Achim amendment may, of course be declared out of order. It is rather an amendment to the bill than an amendment to the amendment, say some. And if this is the case, the proper time to present it would be after the Laurier amendment has been defeated. In an event the six months' hoist will be snowed under.

WILL TRY TO HAVE IT RULED OUT OF ORDER

Special to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, June 21. —Apropos of the Barrette "six months' hoist" amendment to the conscription bill, the Gazette says:

"An attempt will be made by Liberal anti-conscriptionists to have the new amendment ruled out of order, but failing, it will have to support of all the Conservative and Liberal anti-conscriptionists as it goes a step further in opposition to the government's proposals than does the amendment of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It will equally meet with opposition from pro-conscriptionists on both sides of the Chamber."

It says editorially: "The reception of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's amendment by leading Liberal newspapers in the English speaking provinces has been almost unanimously adverse. It could hardly be otherwise. Canada as a whole sacrificed too much in manhood, has staked too much on the defeat of militarism, to submit now to a proposal which means a dangerous delay if not a fatal relaxation of effort."

MAKING WOMEN HAPPY.

The feeling and belief has long been held, especially by men of matrimonial experience, that the best way to make a woman happy is to give her her way—meet her demands. Women have been clamouring for responsible recognition of their claims to be placed on an equality with man, especially in the matter of franchise privileges. Women have been granted their wish, and from what a few years ago would have been regarded as the most unlikely quarter, the British House of Commons, which has passed by a large majority the final reading of the Electoral Reform Bill, which gives the women of Great Britain votes, presumably on the same basis as men. This implies the right to be elected and sit in Parliament also.

In this war women by their works have shown a capacity for detail and executive work, equal to almost any man, so that giving them votes is only a logical recognition of the services of the sex. We must make up our minds to seeing women take their places in our legislative halls. A woman now sits in the United States Congress, and there is a possibility of a woman being elected to the Legislature of Saskatchewan. A farmer's wife is among the nominees who will be voted for next Tuesday. Thousands of women will be looking for what becomes of Mrs. Haight on polling day.

Hon. J. W. Hanna, in accepting the position of Food Controller, without salary, shows either that he is a man of big patriotism, or that he is not yet out of politics.

A COMPLEX SITUATION

The situation at Ottawa is complicated in more ways than one. Conscription has been proposed, to be settled by Parliament; a counter proposal is for submitting conscription to a referendum—an appeal to the people. Sir George Foster calls this proposal "miserable and dilatory." A referendum is opposed because it would involve delay. Yet we are told that conscription will be passed, and hung up till after a general election—not at once applied or enforced. If a general election should result in an endorsation of conscription, precious time will have been lost in meeting the demands of an urgent situation. Then the competency of Parliament to deal with one of the most important issues ever persented to its consideration is questionable. Constitutionally, we have no parliament; it has been, and is, holding its life on sufferance. It is not a full parliament, either. There are twenty seats vacant, and the western provinces are entitled to twenty additional representatives, which should have been elected a year ago, if a general election had been practicable. Thus we have a parliament shorn of nearly a quarter of its numerical strength with no jus vivendi undertaking to deal with a momentous question that is so grave that there are splits in party allegiance. The complications are many in the present situation, and there will have to be much restraint and much patriotism used; much appeal to reason and right heard and heeded if Canada comes out of the present situation with credit and profit—not only to its self but to the cause in whose interests we seem to be fighting, at cross purposes.

Sir Robert used the elements of disloyalty—fostered and encouraged embodied treason, in order to kill Laurier; now he blames him for the harvest Sir Robert's sowing has yielded.

If you will tell me why some people can tell a story which you eagerly listen to, and why others always bore you when they try to tell one, I will tell you why everybody listens to the Edison Diamond Disc exclaims: "That's the best I ever heard." UNDULY POSITIVE.

Sir George Foster, speaking in Parliament upon the conscription issue, said that—

"The principle of voluntary enlistment, if it was ever thoroughly tested in a country with confidence that it would do its work, was so tested in Canada, and it fell down."

Does anyone recognize an element of justification of correctness and accordance with fact, in this sweeping rhetorical generality? It is only true to the extent that voluntary enlistment, unaided by official and efficient government assistance, lost its force when the voluntary material became exhausted. It was the complaint of representations, remonstrances, and even reproaches, addressed to the government, that the government did not take the necessary official interest in recruiting; did not uphold the hands of the private patriotic organizations, that were almost solely responsible so far as the machinery of organization was concerned, for the success of voluntary recruiting. In providing for the officering of proposed regiments it is well known that the exercise of party favouritism represented the chief interest the government took in recruiting, and it is equally well known that the full play that was permitted this spirit had a discouraging effect upon recruiting. And, according to Sir Sam Hughes, Sir Robert Borden himself, gave instructions to "go slow on recruiting," in the interests of conserving labour for munitions productions, a confession that he did not consider the provision of men as essential then—though it was equally so—as he now does to justify a measure of compulsory service.

Was voluntary enlistment thoroughly tested in Quebec? Or were the action and attitude of the government of a nature to not only discourage but to antagonize voluntary recruiting? The government not only permitted but encouraged the operations of disloyal propagandism in Quebec, whose central idea and argument was that Canada owed no duty to Great Britain and was under no moral or patriotic obligation to actively assist in the wars of the Empire. At first this propaganda was comparatively insignificant in its personnel and influence. But the party of the present government was quick to see the use that could be made of it, to discredit Sir Wilfrid Laurier's influence in Quebec, by antagonizing this Imperialism. The first Nationalist elected in Quebec was in Drummond-Arthabaska—with Conservative sympathy if not by more active support; and a prominent member of the party now a Minister of the Crown, sent a telegram of congratulation to the successful candidate on his election on the platform of no help to Great Britain in her wars. In 1911, the anti-British Nationalist candidates were helped from the official Conservative fund, and the whole Nationalist gang elected by this help, became pledged government supporters upon the condition of the killing of the Laurier Canadian Naval Act. In further and practical government approval of the policy of no Canadian help to Britain—involving, of course, no recruiting—Sir Robert Borden placed in his cabinet—and has maintained the supply—three of the most prominent, violent and virulent preachers of the doctrine that Canada owed no duty—had no obligation to recruit soldiers—to the British Empire. In view of this condition is it any wonder that Quebec, thus infected with the poison of government-recognised and encouraged and rewarded, no-recruiting Nationalism, did not furnish a desirable number of recruits? Would Sir George Foster consider that the "principle of voluntary enlistment" was fairly "tested" in Quebec?

Sir George Foster says the voluntary principle of enlistment has been thoroughly "tested" in Canada. His government has seen to it that it is thoroughly de-tested in Quebec.

WOULD CARVE UP AUSTRIA

Already Germany is Disclosing After War Expansion

LONDON, June 20. — Increasing friction between Germany and Austria is indicated by an article in the Frankfurter Zeitung, which points out the undesirability of permitting a German irredenta, of 10,000,000 Germans living in Austria.

The newspaper suggests that the residents of the German inhabited sections of Austria cannot be good Austrians and good Germans simultaneously. It intimates that these Germanic portions of Austria should become German and that Austrian Poland should be included in the rehabilitated Kingdom of Poland, though it is not suggested that the German parts of Poland should be included.

This is the most pointed expression on the subject yet given in the semi-official German press, though a considerable number of suggestions have been made lately looking toward Germany's expansion at the expense of Austria after the war.

KERENSKY

By JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT

STOCKHOLM.—The first description of War Minister Kerensky of Russia to be made by a neutral observer was given me to-day by Ernest Klein. Mr. Klein's description of the young Russian leader follows:

"His face is like an ancient Egyptian sculpture. His head is like a lion's, or rather a lioness', for his unbearded yellow skin is tight drawn. He has shining brown almond shaped eyes, narrowing at the top; his nose is broad, with deep lines on each side of the nostrils. His mouth is broad and soft, with lips indrawn. His head droops on a long neck. His eyes are like those of an animal which sees best at night. The pupils are large and soft, gleaming in his eyes as if covered by a thin veil. Sometimes this veil lifts in them and the light streams out as if from two big lamps.

"Owing to his physical ailments, this man should be dead if it were not for his immense will and the spur of his great responsibilities, which have kept him alive. He walks slowly and cautiously, as fearing that something inside him might burst. He carries his right arm in a broad bandage. His voice is hoarse and not well controlled. He speaks rapidly in clear, business-like phrases. His tone is amiable, but he never laughs. His utterances are forcible and earnest and they show how far the man is removed from the easy tactics of bluff."

BROCKVILLE, June 20.—To-night at 10 o'clock, under Major L. F. Howard of Ottawa, the last detachment of the 236th Forestry Battalion left here for another training point. Since coming to Brockville on the 3rd of November last the battalion has enlisted more than 2,000 men, and from the first of the year have sent overseas 52 officers, 184 non-commissioned officers, and 1,726 men, making a total of 1,962 of all ranks. When the final draft left to-night, 16 officers and about 275 other ranks were added to this number.

At Petawawa.

PETAWAWA, June 17. —From the day that the men of the Kingston artillery brigade arrived at Petawawa camp they have been kept on the jump all the time. From five in the morning until five-thirty in the afternoon they are busy. Every man who left Kingston three weeks ago Sunday is enjoying life under canvass in the best artillery camp in America.

The Engineers, and, in fact, every man who had anything to do with laying out the camp did not allow anything to be missed which went for the comfort of the men. The water supply is excellent. All the main roadways are paved with asphalt macadam. In the lines of each unit a series of shower baths are arranged for the convenience of the men.

The instructors and sergt.-instructors from the Royal School of Artillery have been assigned to the different batteries. These men are giving the men all the fine points of the war game.

The men were rather amused the other evening upon reading the Kingston papers to see it announced that the artillery men were being trained as infantry. As yet no infantry drill had been given. Every morning of the week, with the exception of Sunday, mounted parades are held.

Some changes have taken place in the batteries of the Kingston brigade. Major Crockett, who commanded the 74th, is brigade major, while Major Barrett's place as commander of the 73rd has been taken over by Lieut.-Col. Odell.

The men of No. 3 section, D.A.C., under the command of Capt. J. F. Shaughnessy, the old Ottawa baseball manager, are now attached to the 74th battery for duty and instruction. The reason for this is that the 74th battery had not sufficient men to carry on the work, and all the men in the ammunition column must be trained artillery men before leaving Canada, if possible. Capt. Shaughnessy was promoted to the rank of acting captain just a few days ago. The men who left Kingston with his section have already shown by their work that they are among the smartest bunch of men under canvas at the camp.

Since the order was issued by the Militia Department stopping recruiting for the artillery all of the recruiting sergeants have been ordered to report at camp, and practically all have reported.

The Y.M.C.A. tent is probably the most popular place in camp. Every evening the tents occupied by the "Y" are filled to the doors. Not only do the men get lots of amusement there, but they are able to attend religious services, which are held three and four times a week. Mr. Andrews, who is in charge of the religious work, is the right man in the right place. Through his addresses many young khaki lads have already signified their desire to live a better life.

THE OFFICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Newly Appointed Agent for Children's Aid Society Will Do Business Under the Family Roof

To-day Mr. G. W. Powell, newly appointed agent for the Children's Aid Society had the office fixtures and supplies of the Society removed from the City Buildings to his home at 588 George street where he will conduct the affairs of the office. This is an innovation in this connection and whether or not it will work out to the satisfaction of everybody concerned, remains to be seen. The person which such an arrangement will best serve, is the agent himself who will be able to conduct the affairs of his office without leaving his own home.

COUNCIL TOYS WITH THE DOG QUESTION

Now Instruct the Police To Enforce the By-law

The Council last night decided to ask Chief Thompson to have the dog by-law enforce thereby leaving the implication that the police have not been prosecuting with sufficient ardour the warfare the Council considers it set in motion several months ago. Apparently the Council's attitude is that the police should prosecute every citizen who allows his dog on the streets unleashed and unmuzzled. Does this mean that the police are to round up dogs, and in some manner discover their owners? If it does, then every policeman thereby becomes a dog catcher, and right now it is far from the thoughts of the police force to undertake that hilarious work. The Council took the easiest way, beguiling themselves that they were actually doing something effective to have the by-law scrupulously observed for the protection of the public and of valuable dogs.

Early in the evening, Ald. Smith broke the news that when citizens have dogs to be killed, to bring them to the police station. There the police despatch them, and then call a carter to remove the bodies to the incinerator at fifty cents a trip. Here was waste, indeed. Let the cops lead the dogs to the incinerator, Ald Smith, advised, and kill them there. This idea might have been improved by something of an executioner's parade with the dog wearing a black cap and other ceremonies added. But as the matter now stands, the police are instructed to put the by-law into force. Persons who own dogs are, for the most part, keeping them tied up, but the mongrels who have no owners are allowed run at large. How are the police to prosecute owners, when, as in many cases, there are no owners. And these are the dogs that should have been long since exterminated.

Urge Govt. Control of Coal, Ships, Railways

SUFFER NEXT WINTER

If Conditions Continue Industries and Public Corporations Will be Hard Hit.

WASHINGTON, June 20—Complying with Congressional requests for a coal probe, the Federal Trade Commission to-day pointed out that the coal situation threatens industries and individuals, and recommended:

"First that the production and distribution of coal and coke be conducted through a pool in the hands of a government agency; at the producers of various grades of fuel be paid their full cost of production plus a uniform profit per ton (with due allowance for quality and efficiency of service); and

"Second, that the transportation agencies of the United States, both rail and water, be similarly pooled and operated on Government account under the direction of the President, and that all such means of transportation be operated as a unit, the owning corporations being paid a just and fair compensation which would cover normal net profit, upkeep, and betterments."

WOULDN'T RECRUIT MINERS

In addition to those main recommendations, the commission advised against recruiting miners for the army. In brief, the commission finds that while anthracite production has been stimulated, uncertainty of transportation—lack of cars chiefly—plus uncertainties in bituminous production, have offset the increase.

Gambling in coal has been going on. And, to meet the shortages in bituminous coal, many industries have used anthracite in steaming sizes, thus lowering the output of domestic sizes. The commission warned that if conditions continue as they now stand there will be real suffering in this country next winter, while industries and public service corporations will be hard hit.

The speculative element in coal prices is causing "an irreparable situation," and a dangerous tendency toward inflation in all businesses due to the fact that all contracts allow a liberal margin for skyrocketing of coal prices.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

"SINGING MEN ARE FIGHTING MEN!"

General Bell in an Address to Men at Plattsburg Urges Them to Sing.

The power of music has long been extolled by people who have made that field of art their chosen work. What is of unusual interest, however, is the fact that an appreciation of its value as a builder of strength and courage was voiced by an officer in the army. At the opening day of the officers' Training Camp at Plattsburg, General Bell, one of the officers at the head of the Training Corps, made an address before the men gathered there, emphasizing the seriousness of the work undertaken by them. During the course of the talk he made the following statements:

"A soldier must think only of his duty and must do it in a way that all who survive him will be proud of the way he gave up his life. You know whom we are going to fight. German soldiers sing while they march. I want you to see that our army beats them at their own game, for singing men are fighting men.

"From you will be selected part of the first 10,000 officers, and I want you to take it upon yourselves as a duty to see that every company of our army has its marching tune, and that the men learn to sing it. You don't know how much farther men can march when they sing. Any rousing air will do. 'A Hot Time in the Old Town To-night' has a swing to it that will put ginger and courage in the hearts of men. Go to it. Sing and fight."

The Need of Song Among the Civilian Army.

The advice of General Bell might well be followed by the citizen army at home. In spite of the fact that they are not out on the battlefield, they are as actively engaged in the world struggle as any soldier armed with a gun. They too need the "ginger and cold courage" of the men in the midst of the battle.

DEFENDS RAG-TIME MUSIC

Makes Music Study Easier.

The recent issue of "Ragtime Review" prints a defence of Ragtime from the pen of Armenia Chalfee Thomas, who says.

"More people would admit their love for ragtime music if they understood what it meant by the term classical.

"Nothing is classical unless it is written in strict regard to form. Grand opera, the symphony, and sonatas, are examples.

"In that kind, form predominates over content, better known as melody, or tune, which is the highest form of a musical composition. Only musicians like this kind of music, because it must be understood to be enjoyed, and it does not please those who are not prepared to hear it.

"The music that is heard so much, and is used in teaching, and is usually called classical, does not belong to that class at all, but belongs to the romantic type, and melody predominates over form. If this style of music is well played, and the melody heard distinctly, all through the selection, it is well liked, and they want to hear it again. But if not it is a jumbling mass, and is disliked at once.

"Ragtime has come to stay, for it has reached the heart, makes music study easier and more interesting, brightens the home and makes it the most desirable place on earth, brings peace and happiness to all. What greater blessing could be asked for?"

MUSIC NOT NEGLECTED IN PRAIRIE PROVINCE.

Alberta has a Musical Festival.

The Alberta Musical Festival held at Edmonton this year was an unqualified success. Perhaps it should be called a competition rather than a Festival, for it offers prizes to individual players and singers, as well as to choirs and quartettes. It was decided at a meeting of the committee to establish the competition on a similar basis to the Festival of the Three Choirs in England, Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge will unite on the committee, and the contests will be held in annual rotation. Next year Calgary will have the festival. Mr. Hamilton Earl and Mr. Frederick Chubb were the adjudicators at the Edmonton trials and their decisions were well received. All Saint's Edmonton, won the choral competition with the fine Russian anthem "Hymn to the Trinity." With such an organisation as has been perfected it may be possible to develop in the near future a joint Festival chorus under one conductor, with sub-conductors training the sections in each city. Thus some of the greater choral works might be presented to the great advantage of the music lovers of the Province.

A LITTLE LATE.

The German Stage League has passed a resolution to boycott in future any German singer who leaves the country to accept a more profitable engagement in America. There is no more persistent humorist than the average Teuton, particularly when he imagines himself to be serious. If the present temper of Canada and the United States continues the chance of a German singer securing a lucrative engagement on this continent is decisively slight. Madame Gadski is a great and impressive singer, but her private opinions about the war are such that no Allied audience would listen to her. There must be character behind music if it is to be moving and spiritual. The defender of frightfulness in any of its numerous and diabolical phases cannot sing the poetry of the soul. Every hearer would be inclined to think, not about the music, but about the Lusitania.

UNDER PROPER CONTROL FLOUR SHOULD NOT HAVE GONE ABOVE $9 A BARREL.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Food speculators have been taking $50,000,000 a month for the last five months—a total of a quarter of a billion dollars—from the American people, Herbert C. Hoover told the Senators in explaining the purposes of the food control bill now before Congress.

Disclaiming entirely that the bill sets up a food distatorship, Mr. Hoover told the Senators its purposes were entirely to organize the resources of the country and the people themselves into a food administration to limit middlemen's commissions and prevent extortion.

"With righteous manufacturers and distributors' prices," he said, "the price of flour should not have been over $9 a barrel. Yet it averages $14. In the last five months $250,000,000 has been extracted from the American consumer in excess of normal profits of manufacturers and distributors."

THE CHINESE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AND ITS MUSIC.

Plans from Memory—Its line up—The Conducting Takes Many Liberties in Interpretation.

Our Chinaman comes around every Monday morning for our laundry, we see his helpers and his competitors ironing on into the night, and we forget that he takes some recreation now and then. The times of recreation are perhaps longer and more frequent for many celestials now that such a large percentage of them are engaged in work other than laundry. Once in a while in the press we are informed of a social function being broken into by the police in an endeavour to enforce the laws against gambling. Sometimes, too, items appear about the church work among the Chinese in our land, but little comes to light about the musical activities of these people.

A Canadian gentleman recently had a letter from a relative in Seattle in which city there is a goodly group of Chinese, and enclosed in this letter was an account of some impressions of their local Chinese music which appeared in the Post-Intelligencer of that city, and of which a condensed account is here given. Chinese music is said to be performed according to rule, but the rules are the same now as they were a thousand years ago. Not everyone has been so fortunate as to be the guest at a Chinese social function of real importance, but many who have strolled through Chinatown have heard echoes of the music which accompanies them. The air usually goes something like this:

D-e-e, d-a-da-da-da-da-da-da, doc.
tok, tok, tok,
Ai-ai-ai-ai-ai!
Zum!
D-a-a-a-a-a-a, de-e-e-e-e.
Bong, bong, bong, bong.
Zowie!

When one hears strains of that sort, he is listening to an orchestra led by, or at least managed by Eng Tung. On all occasions of state, weddings, funerals, christenings and the entertaining of high dignitaries, Eng Tung is responsible for the musicians, who "concealed behind a bank of potted palms and flowers rendered various numbers during the evening" as the write-ups have it. Eng Tung is the local Chinese music trust. The Chinese leader is a master of the yute kum, the wong yiu, the sam yin, the sak ban, the dee da, the kwoo, the gong-gong, the chacha, the dai-low; the diu bute, the pang-pang, and various other Chinese musical instruments.

A really good Chinese orchestra should have at least thirteen pieces, five men being needed to play the trap-drums, or what corresponds to the trap-drums. Despite the fact that the uneducated believe the Chinese music quite without sense, there is both rhyme and sense to it and the Chinese musician must be more skillful than the European musician. The reason for this that the Chinese music is not written. The words of some of the favourite songs have been preserved, but the music has been handed down from father to son for generations that go far, far back of the troubadours.

When the music is played it is played according to the memory of the musician and his ideas of interpretation. The field for interpretation is far wider than in European music. A musician varies the performance as his best judgment dictates and the strings, reeds, or brass may break in at almost any time. The Chinese performers are a survival of the wandering minstrels and it must be remembered that to-day the Chinese musician is the same wandering minstrel so far as methods are concerned, as he was when Confucius was a boy.

The leader of this orchestra although born on this side of the Pacific, returned to China for a ten years' study and returned in 1909. While he is familiar with all the various instruments, he is most in love with the Woo kum or the moon piano. It is described as a sort of banjo with a stunted neck looking very much like the full moon it is named after.

The Chinese orchestra is led by the dee da, continues this description, which is a brass cornet with a flat note that sounds like its name. This and the wong su, a flute, carry the air. The wood kum and its brother the qute kum add their banjo accompaniment on the after beat, very much like ragtime, and the e-in, a violin with a sound box made of hollow bamboo, a very long neck, three strings, and a generous supply of rosin embroiders upon the theme with a voice like that of a file upon brass. Who would like to hear this Chinese Symphony Orchestra?

THE GREAT CIVILIZER.

It is commonly said that the automobile has brought the special advantages of the city to every country home. In a measure that is true, for few country homes are more than 20 miles from some centre of population. Social pleasures once denied to rural dwellers are now easily attainable, for twenty miles in a car is less than five miles in a buggy. The owner of an automobile can give his family the pleasures of dramatic entertainment and the great musicians on tour can count on a wider clientele than ever before.

Yet it is doubtful if the motor car is as valuable a civilizing agency as the talking machine. Not everyone can buy the one. All can possess the other. Last summer the writer visited Alberta. In a farm house fifty miles from Calgary and eight miles from a post office we had an evening concert with solos by Caruso, Anna Case and Scotti. Mischa Elman played the Romance by Wienlawski, and an orchestra was heard in two movements from the Peer Gynt Suite. "In the Hall of the Mountain King" was a favorite in that household and there was a knowledge of Grieg and his work which would put to the blush many residents of Toronto or Montreal. Unquestionably the vogue of the phonograph in some of its many guises has done more for art education in this country than any other single agency. The country and the town are both profiting and the time is coming when the inhabitants of "The Back Fifty" may laugh at the art ignorance of some city folk who in the midst of opportunity are content merely to eat and sleep.

Even when the phonograph was merely a toy, it brought keen pleasure to thousands. To-day it is a perfected instrument giving us so close a reproduction of the human voice and of the various musical instruments that the most critical ear is satisfied. While much "popular" music has been recorded, the manufacturers have realized the folly of giving permanence only to transitory music, and therefore they have contracted with most of the great artists to sing and play before the recording horn. Naturaly they have chosen the everlasting beauties of Grand Opera or of the instrumental composers, and one can hear to-day on the prairie as in the city such masterpieces as "Celeste Aida," the Bell Song from "Lakme," the Miserere from "Il Trovatore," the Sextette from "Lucia" the Quartette from "Rigoletto" Depuis Le Jour from "Lousie" and the Aria from "Madam Butterfly." Instrumental music of the best-beloved type is also obtainable, and after it has been played a few times the common-place music of the vaudeville stage gets only an occasional hearing.

There is another point in which the phonograph can be an educating agency. It has been said that the only way, to learn to sing properly is to imitate a good singer. It is true that in these latter years we have heard from professors of vocal about the anatomy of the vocal chords and the muscular tissue of the diaphragm. But there are thousands of men who know all about anatomy who cannot sing. We are told hat kissing goes by favour. It goes by imitation also. It is not necessary to teach a girl how the muscles of her lips are contracted while she is engaged in the pleasant operation of kissing—her sister. Neither does one learn to trill on High C by studying the larynx. It can scarcely be gainsaid that a girl with a good natural voice, a phonograph and a determination to learn could at least do as well as if she had spent a year with a cheap professor, not certain about his method.

WANTED—BOUQUETS FOR THE ACCOMPANIST TOO.

The soprano, contralto, tenor, bass, violin, 'cello and cornet soloists are applauded, encored and showered with bouquets—and rightly so. But what of the poor man at the piano! "Oh but anyone can play an accompaniment," says the average listener. Yet the poor accompanist, he meekly follows the soloist to the platform with an air that suggests he is profoundly sorry that it is necessary to inflict his unworthy presence on the audience. When the number is over he must retire in the rear of the procession in a self-obliterated manner calculated to dissociate himself from any claim upon even a fraction of one per cent of the applause.

But what are the demands made upon the accompanist to-day? He must be able to play anything at sight for often songs are introduced without the possibility of a rehearsal. Especially is this true of encore numbers. He often must transpose the accompaniment on a minute's notice. He must be able to skip a line now and again when the soliat does likewise, or when the music falls over the keys. Apart from these extra demands, the piano accompaniments of many pieces are in themselves sufficiently difficult to test the player's ability by a stiff standard.

See more thoughtful performers insist upon their accompanists sharing the applause their joint efforts have won, though unfortunately these are altogether too rare.

Barber Cured of Eczema

TORONTO, Ont., June 21.—No one is better qualified to judge of treatment for skin troubles than the barber. He finds his customers bothered with barber's itch, pimples and eczema and has his own difficulties in treating these conditions after shaving.

Mr. Lewis learned from a customer about Dr. Chase's Ointment, and when he contracted eczema, applied this treatment with most satisfactory results. He is naturally enthusiastic now in recommending this ointment to any one suffering from similar skin troubles.

Mr. George Lewis, barber, 202 1-2 Wellesley street, Toronto, writes: "I was for some time troubled with an eczemic eruption on the scalp and obtained temporary relief by he use of a tonic. About six months later little blotches broke out on my face and the doctor pronounced the trouble to be eczema. I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment through a customer who was cured by this treatment, after trying many remedies in vain, so I began the use of this Ointment and in a short time the eczema entirely disappeared from my face and scalp. You can imagine my relief, as I am a barber by trade and having a face covered with pimples or blotches was not conducive to good business. I shall take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Chase's Ointment to any customers with facial or other troubles of this nature."

Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co. Limited, Toronto.

HERE is a record of "Old Black Joe," by Louis Graveure, the world-famed baritone, that is nothing less than a perfect gem of inspired song-interpretation. The very soul of the whole dying darkey speaks in moving tenderness in each phrase, and as the soft, scarce-breathed last words die away, the hearer is left with tears in his eyes. And "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" voices the longing expressed in the words with such rare, touching and true expressiveness, and the ending is so wholly beautiful, that the listener finds himself silent—enthralled!

Of the same class is Lucy Gates' rendering of "Aloha Oe," the Hawaiian farewell song, with the sweet sound of guitars and four fine male voices bringing out the tender beauty of her voice; Francis MacMillen's first recording (exclusively for the Columbia Company) of two of his own violin compositions; and the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra's recording of the "Barcarolle" from "The Tales of Hoffmann." These are indeed unusual

Battle Stories from the West Front

WITH THE HEAVY GUNS

Comfortably settled in a London hospital three days after he was wounded in France, a Scotsman who had been with the heavies was more inclined to talk about the excellence of the medical arrangements for the wounded than any such—to him—routine matter as strafing Huns. He was more than content; he was frankly enthusiastic regarding the treatment he had received.

"Ye know?" he said, "It wasnae three days after I was hit before they had me brought to England. The hospital in France—the clearing hospital—was just splendid. They wait on you hand and foot and you get the best of everything, food, comfortable beds—there's not a single thing wantin' Ye couldnae be better servit if ye were a prince.

"Then there was the hospital ship. It was a treat. They put ye aboard as canny as if ye we were fa'in' tae pieces, and yet get intae a comfortable cot. The first thing the doctor asks ye is if ye are all right and if ye could eat something. When ye get tae the dock, ye're whippit off the ship like magic, an' the train is just like a wee hospital in itsel'. The whole thing's perfectly astoundin'.

'The doctor at the clearin' station made me laugh. Ye know, he was goin' about the rest o' the chaps an' talkin' tae them like an ordinary Englishman. He cam' tae me and looks at my ticket —the label that shows where ye are wounded—an' he says, as soon as he saw my name, "Whaur dae you come frae?" as Scots as bedamnt. Says I, "Strathmiglo, Fife, sir." "Man," says he, "A ken your grandfather." An' it turnit oot that he was a doctor not five mile from where I stoppit. But it was funny tae hear him suddenly start talkin' as broad as mysel." I couldnae help laughin'.

"No, I wasnae oot in France very long—just aboot three or four months. We were on the Arras front nearly a' the time. We were bangin' away at the Germans since the beginnin' o' Aprile, an 'we were scorin' heavily a' the time. For five days before the infantry went forward, we put over a tidy wheen o' shells; there's nae shortage o' ammunition there! The infantry went on and we went forward aboot twa mile. It was heavy goin' over the shell holes that we'd plastered in the German lines. It was a case o' man-handlin' the guns a' the way.

"The German guns got better after a bit, but they didnae disturb us much, though they seemed to think there was a battery where we were. They droppit a lot o' stuff roon about us. We were movin' forward again, along a road, when I got hit. I think the Germans spotted us by aeroplane, because they droppit a shell in front, one behind, one on the richt, one on the left an' then—just plunk! Plunk on the team! It was a good shot an' it laid me oot an' a few o' the others, but I think the gun was safe. Well, we cannae grudge the Germans one hit, for we gave them a sorry pastin'. As it was, I saw a little after that I was laid oot wi' seven hits, as neat's yet like. But a wee while in hospital an' I'll be on my feet again, ready for anything from dambrod to heavy gunnery."

An officer, also of the heavy gunners, told an interesting story of the work his arm of the service had to do.

"I was observing," he said, "at the O Pip, when I got hit. Fritz gets our observing posts sometimes, but it is usually because some of the infantry Tommies are hanging around; if it isn't infantry, it's signal sappers looking after lines. The Germans spot them, of course, and let go with shrapnel. It is amazing how our fellows expose themselves; it sometimes looks as if they had simply got tired of the cramped trenches and had got out to stretch themselves, or to look for souvenirs. Their officers have to tick them off occasionally for being so foolhardy. The Boches seldom come out of their lines. They come out only if they have to, for an attack or a raid; they keep well down otherwise.

"Our gun position was behind Athies—ours was a six-inch how'— and the Germans kept everlastingly trying to shell us. But their shell dropped either in front or behind. The only trouble, naturally, was with splinters, but our men never seemed to heed them as long as there was work to do. They would keep on working with the bits fairly flying and never thought of sheltering until they got the word of command to cease fire. They were new men, too, they came out with the battery in the spring—a complete new outfit. They were smart as paint, and worked like niggers. The Major in charge of the battery said that he had never seen a smarter team, and he'd had charge of three separate batteries since the beginning.

"Fritz's counter-battery was jolly good, but he was dished as far as our battery was concerned. He was too far away to drop his stuff at the necessary angle—angle of eighty degrees—and, as I say, his stuff dropped either behind or in front.

"I don't think they ever scored a direct hit on any of our guns at least, I never saw one. We have direct hits now and then, and we saw the evidence of them when we went forward over the captured ground. Along the Point du Jour Road, the whole place was studded with wrecked Boche guns;; any amount of field guns and 5.9s. There was one 5.9 there with a great chunk knocked out of its muzzle by a direct hit from us. It was exactly as if some huge knife had sliced a large circular scoop out of it.

"Observation work is quite exciting. We can watch everything that is going on in front, and we report even the most trivial thing that happens on Fritz's side of the line."

Warsaw Women's Institute Holds Its Annual Meeting

Letter from the Late Private T. W. Cooper to His Mother

WARSAW, June 20. — The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday last. The following officers for the coming year were elected:

President—Mrs. Arthur Edwards.
Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Chas. Ellis.
Secretary—Mrs. Wallace Anderson.
Directors—Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. Richard Batten, Mrs. W. H. Clements, Mrs. Alex. Calder.
Auditors—Mrs. J. A. Crewe, Mrs. T. H. Crewe.
Librarians — Miss Margaret Purchase, Miss Edith Tucker.

Mrs. Richard Dunford, of Lakefield, is visiting her niece, Mrs. W. H. Clements.

Rev. H. Brown returned on Monday from Montreal, where he has been attending the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church.

Mrs. John Freeman, of Bobcaygeon, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Thompson, this week.

Miss Allie Cooper, Peterborough, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cooper.

Miss Maragret Purchase has received word that her brother, who has been in France for some months, has been wounded.

The Misses Ada Wilson and Bessie Lonsdale were the guests of Mr. Albert Cooper on Sunday.

Messrs. George Forsythe and Max Tucker of Peterborough, spent Sunday in the village.

Mrs. A. F. Choate returned home yesterday from a two months' visit with her daughter, Mrs. W. H. E. Graham, Rosetown, Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cooper wish to thank their many friends for kindness shown in their recent bereavement.

Following is a letter from Pte. Percy T. W. Cooper to his parents, here, after word was received of his death at Vimy Ridge, on April 9th:

France, April 4.

Dear Mother.—Just a few lines to let you know I received your letter and the birthday parcel to-day, and was glad to get it and know that you are all well, as it leaves me at present. I also had a letter from Eva. She said that she had not got a letter from me for a month, and you said that you had not had a letter for three weeks, but I do not know the reason, for I write every chance I get.

Well, mother, I am going to see Bert Cooper to-morrow, for I have found out where he is and it is only about a mile and a half from where we are, so we are not as far apart as I thought. There are quite a few of the other boys in the same Battalion. Well, mother, I have not got time to write to all those friends that sent the things in that parcel just now, but I want you to let them know and thank them and tell them I will write as soon as possible for I guess they all know what it is like writing a letter in the trenches, but I will do my best to remember them all. I also got a parcel from the Women's Institute, but in your next letter I want you to let me know who to write to about it.

Well, mother, I think I will have to come to a close for this time, as I have no more time. With love and kisses to you all from

Your loving son,
PERCY.

Good-bye. Write soon.

Below is given the letter written by the Chaplain of the 75th Battalion to Mrs. John Cooper:

In the Field, 10. 5, '17.

Dear Madam,—I regret to have to write and confirm the news of the death of your son, Pte. P. T. W. Cooper, No. 195895, 75th Battalion. He was killed in action on April 9, on the taking of Vimy Ridge. His body was recovered and buried in the 11th Brigade Burying Ground, Vimy Ridge, Grave 362. This is close to where he fell, and on the site of the great struggle for the Ridge, the taking of which by the Canadians has made possible our successful advance. A cross has already been erected and the ground will be enclosed and preserved for all time.

In all your sorrow it must be a great satisfaction to remember that your son gave his life, and thereby made the supreme sacrifice while discharging his duty to the full to King and Country and to humanity in their great need. Surely God will intervene and over rule this cruel war with all the consequent effects—sorrow and suffering and sacrifice, which we cannot yet fully understand—to the bettering of conditions in the world, and the general uplift of humanity—in some measure to compensate for personal losses.

On behalf of the officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the Battalion I tender you our sincerest sympathy, and with the earnest prayer that you may be upheld in your great sorrow by the consolation which our Christian Faith affords to us. I remain,

Yours truly,
W. L. B.—
C. F., Major.

DEMURRAGE RULES AND COAL SUPPLY

A Serious Situation Faces Canada If Present Regulations Are Not Revised

Judging from the opposition at the recent hearing before the Board of Railway Commissioners to the proposed revision of the existing car demurrage rules, applicable to Canada, it is evident, railroad men state, that the consignees of traffic coming from points in the United States, particularly coal, do not realize how acute is the situation which exists to-day in car supply and transportation.

The car shortage on the railroads which are members of the American Railway Association, on February 1, 1917, totalled 109,988 cars; March 1, 130,082; April 1, 144,797, and on May 1st, 145,449, showing a rapidly increasing shortage of cars, and with the United States now getting down to the war work in earnest the transportation problems will become more pressing and the car shortage more intense.

Canada's coal supply, at the present time is entirely dependent upon the car supply. One railway official here stated that his road could not get a pound of coal unless they sent their own cars for it. With the demand increasing in their own territory it is only natural to expect that the United States railroads will, as far as possible, confine their cars to their own country where, they state, that they are able to get better service out of them than by allowing them to come into Canada, where the demurrage rules are such as to reduce rather than increase car efficiency.

PRESENT RULES.

The present Canadian rules were framed in the year 1906. They may have suited the conditions which prevailed at that time, but they are undoubtedly not suited to meet present day conditions, railroad men declare. It is claimed that consignees in Canada have three times the length of free time to unload cars before any charge is involved, compared with what is allowed in the United States, where the demurage rate at the present time is $2.00 per day, for each of the first five days, and $5.00 per day for the sixth and each succeeding day, whereas in Canada the old 1906 code of one dollar per day, after a much longer free time, still prevails.

The shipping public, in their own interest, it is urged, should not oppose the proposed changes, as if the rules are not changed, and the United States railroads for this reason, decline to allow their cars to come into Canada with coal and other commodities, and Canadian railways are unable to provide equipment to take care of traffic offered, the railroads of Canada will feel that they are not wholly responsible, from a transportation point of view, for any shortage of cars and possible scarcity of coal in Canada this fall and coming winter.

ROADS ARE REPAIRED BY THE COMPANY

Leonard Construction Company Are Repairing Roads Every Day

At a meeting of the County Council a complaint was made to the effect that the two motor lorries of the Quaker Oats Company were tearing up the roads over which they travelled to and from the gravel pit in North Monaghan. The Reeve who made the complaint forgot to mention that when a break occurred in the road it was immediately repaired by the Company and that each day repairs are being made to the road, also the culverts. Only a few days ago the Company replaced an old culvert with an entirely new one, using heavy square timbers and double two inch planking on top. The longer the Company use the road the better will it become. As with the addition of a much needed quantity of gravel and the weight of the machines to press it down a good road can be the only result.

Salvation Army and 57th Bands Get $300 Each

The Council in Committee of the Whole last night split $600, fifty-fifty, between the 57th Regimental and Salvation Army Temple bands. Last year Mr. Gliddon's musicians received a grant of $450 and Adjutant McElhiney's players got $150. This summer they will each be granted $300. Mayor Duffus introduced the question stating that he was unaware of the fact that no grants had been made, although $600 had been appropriated early in the year for musical purposes. Ald. Stratton moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that $300 be granted each organization. Ald. Weir moved an amendment, seconded by Ald. Langford that the division be $400 and $200 with the 57th getting the larger portion. The motion carried.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed.

The Slight Waist Curve---

AS HAS been pointed out, time and time again by Anatomists, the feminine figure curves in at the waist, and all corsets which do not follow this natural curve, necessarily stand away from the waist line, or, in technical corset terms, bridge the waist at that point.

The slight waist curve, which the season's fashion makes desirable, is so skillfully placed in our Corsets, as to retain a practically straight hip.

In purchasing "your" Corset, be sure that you get the model which will give you just the right curve at the waist and still retain the desired practically straight hip effect. Prices range

$1.00 to $6.00

Body of "Missing" New York Girl Found in Cellar

Disappeared Last February — Last Seen in Shop Beneath Which Her Body Was Buried — Alleged Slayer in Italy

NEW YORK, June 20.—The body of Ruth Cruger, a high school girl, missing since February 13, was found on Saturday buried in the cellar of the motorcycle shop formerly conducted by Alfredo Cocchi, who is now conducting a similar business in Bologna, Italy.

A thorough search of the cellar showed that before digging the pit in which the body was buried, the murderer had started to excavate in another part of the basement, but had encountered solid rock at a depth of eighteen inches. A large locker was found where it was thought that Cocchi hid the body until he completed the second pit in the basement. The body was probably in this locker while the police were questioning Cocchi on the floor above on Feb. 14, and when Cocchi was insisting that he had seen the girl leaving the shop on the day before with her skates under her arm.

This statement by Cocchi is the strongest evidence against him from his own mouth, as the skates and the shoes to which they were attached were found yesterday in the pit from which the body had been removed. The investigation of the basement showed that Cocchi toiled desperately on the nights of Feb. 13 and Feb. 14 to cover the evidences of the crime which must have been plentiful in the basement at the time the police first interrogated Cocchi on the street floor. By the time the first investigation of the premises was made on the night of Feb 15, after Cocchi had disappeared, the traces of murder had been so well effaced that the police saw nothing out of place.

HOLE THROUGH FLOOR.

On Monday the police discovered that a hole had been cut through the tin lining of a furnace register, by means of which the motorcycle shop was heated. The only entrance to the cellar was an outside stairway that would have necessitated the carrying of the body out of the shop to the street and thence down the stairs.

Mrs. Grace Humiston, the woman lawyer whose shrewdness led to the finding of Ruth Cruger's body, has hinted at an organized clique of procurers, and declares she knows the location of twenty-two other cellars where High School girls have been lured and ruined.

"I do not want to go into details," she said, "but there is a method by which it is possible to wipe out this loathsome business. If I could get a list of the girls who have disappeared from their homes within the past year, I would wager that ninety per cent. of them are now in the hands of men engaged in this traffic. Two weeks ago one of their victims, a girl of 18, came to my office and told how she had been decoyed by a method which is regularly employed by men of this type.

"Before I entered upon the search for this girl I was collecting evidence on the white slave evil, and I have learned a good deal during this investigation."

"My belief from the first, she said, "was that the girl had been murdered in Cocchis shop, and buried in the basement. When I read the interview obtained from him at Bologna, in which he said he believed that she had eloped with a man and gone to Europe, I instantly came to the conclusion that he was telling just the opposite of the truth, and my impression was strongly confirmed that her body would be found in the cellar.

"One of the things that convinced me that he had accomplices was the fact that he disappeared in his working clothes and with only $15, but that he had turned up in Italy, according to information from an American Consul, with good clothes and plenty of money."

A motor cycle uniform found buried with the roped body of the high school girl under the cellar of the Cocchi shop was tried on the unusually tall form of Victor Blady, a chauffeur held in connection with the crime. Although he is six feet five inches tall, the suit fitted him perfectly.

SUSPECTS ADMITS LYING.

Close questioning compelled Blady to admit he lied at the investigation in March in saying he was not in Cocchi's shop the day Ruth Cruger was murdered. Questioned by the Assistant District Attorney, Blady admitted having been in Cocchi's shop on the night of February 13.

Blady swore he left the shop at 9.30 that night. He admitted three other men were there and he gave their names o Dooling. Blady is catalogued as one of Cocchi's close friends. He said he drove Cocchi to his home that night when he left at 9 30.

"New York does not yet realize how systematized is the danger for the girls who live in it," said Mrs. Humiston. "The public readily says, when a girl disappears, it was as much her fault as the man's. I know better. "When a girl is insulted in one of these places she usualy broods over the horror of it. Never would she tell her parents for she feels she is partly to blame. Little by little her seducers batter down her moral stamina, and soon another girl is 'missing.'

"With the right sort of assistance I could show you a case equal in horror to that of Ruth Cruger's every month in the year."

The State Department at Washington has cabled the Italian Government asking for the provisinal arrest of Alfred Cocchi, adding that additional evidence had been obtained against him and that formal extradition papers would be sent.

The department assumes that its request will be granted, though Cocchi may have to undergo preliminary hearing in Italy before he is returned to this country.

In the meantime a rigorous investigation of the Police Department is being held.

LIGHT PENALTY IN ITALY.

"My understanding," said District Attorney Swann, "is that the average sentence for murder in Italy is about three years. There is no death penalty. Porter Charlton's net sentence was about three months. I want a statement from the Italian authorities that if they do try Cocchi there, and he is convicted of the murder of Ruth Cruger, he will not be sent to prison for three months as punishment for this horrible crime."

FIRE CHIEF BELL'S RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

At a special session of the Lindsay council, the resignation of Fire Chief James Bell was submitted to the council and accepted.

Mr. Bell, it is understood, has a more lucrative position in view, but will not finally sever his connection with the fire department until a successor is appointed.

Several of the aldermen bore tribute to the splendid services rendered the town by Fire Chief Bell.

72 Sinn Fein Clubs Formed in Ireland

LONDON, June 21.—The Dublin correspondent of the Times telegraphs: I learn that nearly 72 Sinn Fein clubs have been established throughout Ireland during the last few weeks. It is supposed that they are intended to act as centres for political organizations in opposition to the local branches of the United Irish League.

American Army Physical Test Is Most Stringent

WASHINGTON. — America's armies will be made up of the finest physical manhood of the nation.

Army surgeons to-day estimate that nearly 40 per cent. of the men brought to the colors by selective draft will be rejected upon the first physical scrutiny, so severe are the examinations. Nearly one million must be drawn to get the 625,000 for the first levy. At present the rejections in the regular army average 40 to 60 per cent. of the applicants.

Here are the general requirements for the army: Height not less than five feet four inches nor more than six feet. Weight not less than 128 pounds or more than 190. Lungs and heart must be well night perfect. Any heart 'murmur' disqualifies. Hearing and sight must be good. Color blindness is not necessarily a disqualification. Chronic diseases or mental disorders cause rejection.

Loss of fingers, toes or an ear are disqualifications. Flat feet or deformed feet are also causes for rejection. The surgeons examine closely for any affections of the kidneys or chest. At least four molar teeth are necessary.

"This war will be won by young men," said an official of the medical corps.

Boarding House Is Now Complete

The boarding house erected by the Canadian Leonard Construction Company has been completed and is already for the tenants. The latter will arrive in the course of a few days. Local labourers in the majority of cases have their own homes and will not need to make use of the facilities provided by the Company. The building was erected mainly for the use of the outside labour, who, otherwise would find it difficult to secure accommodation.

POEM BY A LOCAL GIRL

The Alumnae Literary Branch of the Columbia University British Club held a patriotic supper and dance in the club rooms on June the eighteenth. GERMAN BUSINESS PLANS.

Companies Amassing Reserves for Post-War Activity.

Attention was directed by the Frankfurter Zeitung, one of the leading business newspapers of Germany, in a recent issue to the active preparations of German companies for the period of transition from war to peace. It was observed that special sereve funds for this purpose were making their appearance in numerous balance sheets, and that important concerns were increasing their capital by large amounts, although for the present they were only cailing up a small percentage of the new capital. The article, as quoted in London newspapers, concluded as follows:

"The fact that the companies are now, while the war is still proceeding at full pace, making such large additions to capital, shows confidence concerning the future and the definite expectation of adequate activity not only during the war but also in the coming time of peace."

Can the "Y" in Peterboro be Made Self-sustaining?

Perhaps it can. And always we are striving to make it so as much as is possible and desirable. Yet the question remains:

Will it be godd for our "Y." if it ever becomes independent of the assistance of Peterborough's citizens? War years are years of opportunity for the Y. M. C. A. to increase its service to men, and it must lean heavily on its friends.

Here are a few figures for the year 1916 showing from whence the local "Y." received its support last year:

	Senior	Junior	T'l.
Membership enrollment	325	350	675
Number taking physical training	55	272	327

Total monies received other than subscriptions (memberships, dormitories, etc.)..$4211.00

Total monies expended for all purposes ... 8687.00

Showing a dependence on Peterborough's citizens of $4476.00

Of the $8687 expended, $450 was for work among our Peerborough soldiers overseas, and much of the balance was devoted to soldiers being trained in Peterborough.

You must always remember that our "Y." is not run to make money, but to help young men and lads —to give them the kind and amount of help provided by no other class of institution—not even by home or church or school or club.

That young men of Peterborough appreciate the Y. M. C. A. is seen by the statement that the aggregate attendance in 1916 was 100,000. nearly one-third being visits from soldiers. If there were no "Y." Peterborough would be much poorer, and many a youth and lad would be furnished with nothing to take up slack hours in profitable ways. The Devil works most successfully in those communities where the "Y." is absent. Let us keep a short rein on Satan in Peterborough, for we have no boys for him to recruit.

The "Y." is really a citizens' affair. In all cities where a "Y." is found, its best citizens join gladly in keeping it up. It is interdenominational, and church men and men having no church affiliations support it. They say:

"As a citizen I want to see our young men and lads built up in right ways, and the "Y." is doing just the kind of work I believe in. So the "Y.." can have some of my money."

We must never divorce the "Y." from public interest and public support.

To do so would be to cut off the mainspring of the "Y.'s" life and strength. Besides which there are hundreds of men who actually enjoy giving to the "Y.". It fills out their idea of Doing for Others—Prevents a man from becoming self-centred.

What they very rightly ask is:
Is the "Y." well managed
Is the money we give well used?
Is the "Y." doing its work well?
Are young men and boys being helped in right ways?

Citizens of Peterborough, we have given you figures as one answer. But there is also this:

The "Y." is open to you at all times to find out for yourself who attend it, what they get, who direct and teach.

Your stewards—the men who give their time, heart and brain to the carrying on of the "Y.'s" work in Peterborough, are:

Manufacturers Urge Complete Fire Protection for the City

Advise Council To Purchase Motor Driven Pumping Unit If At All Possible — Factories Are Vital to the City and Should Be Given Protection

PREVENTION OF DISASTER

A conference of the Council and members of the Manufacturers' Committee of the Board of Trade was held last night for the purpose of discussing the merits of the fire apparatus the city proposes to purchase. Mayor Duffus presided and among those present were: Messrs. J. W. Meyers, V. Eastwood, W. H. Denham, W. R. Breyfogle, W. Sangster, Wm. Lytle, R. Denne, D. Kerneghan, B. D. Hall, Chief Howard, and others.

The Council has practically decided to purchase a motor-driven combination chemical engine and hose waggon, but the deputation strongly urged the addition of a "pumper." The obtruding presence of limited finances and circumscribing legislation was more apparent to the Council than to their visitors, who presented a strong case for a pumping engine for the mercantile and manufacturing districts. There was no immediate result of the meeting, and while the Council may yet alter its plans, it is more than likely that the present programme will be proceeded with, and a "pumper" set down in the expenses of the next year or two.

Ald. Dobbin reviwed the steps the Council had covered in its efforts to motorize and otherwise improve the Fire Department.

Mayor Duffus stated that it was the city's desire to secure a lower insurance key rate if possible. Certainly the Council was anxious to preclude the raising of the rate. Nearly half a million dollars was invested in the city's water system, a fact that demanded the highest efficiency in every branch of the Fire Department.

MR. BREYFOGLE.

Mr. W. R. Breyfogle of the De Laval Company stated that the deputation had no particular criticism of the Council's choice of apparatus. If a pumper represented only a small difference in price there should be no hesitation in purchasing it. It was required for the congested districts even if another $10,000 had to be expended.

The manufacturers were also concerned about a pumping unit and the personnel of the brigade. The Department should have twenty men —one per thousand of population, at least.

"We feel better over the recent increase in number, but we all want to urge a full complement.

MR. W. H. DENHAM.

Mr. Denham emphasized the fact that the Quaker Oats Company needed the protection of a pumper, practically at the present time. In a few weeks the construction work would have advanced to a stage that should receive consideration.

"I feel that the citizens do not appreciate the growth of this city. It has been gradually and steadily increasing, but the people do not seem to have perceived it. There are more factories in Peterborough, according to population than in Ottawa and many other cities." For that reason, Mr. Denham observed, there should be more attention paid to the protection of the industries since the city had built up around them.

Ninety-nine per cent of the fires in the city did not need the service of a pumper, but the remaining one per cent. did, and these represented calls that were very vital to Peterborough. There should be the additional protection for these cases. The Council might be anticipating too much in regard to the trouble that might arise from heavy snow falls. The additional pumping unit would take care of fires in manufacturing plants and the high buildings along George street.

Mr. Denham suggested sub-stations in the outer parts of the city where hose waggons could be kept. These could respond immediately to neighbourhood fires, and could quickly get to the nearest hydrants with lines of hose.

REGARDING THE STAFF.

A shortage in the fire hall staff presented an element of danger. If it was due to a question of pay, the men should receive more money. "We are paying $3.00 for men we used to hire for $1.50. You should figure the same way in the Fire Department. If it is not wages, you should find out what is the trouble. If there is too much discipline, that is a matter to be looked into. I have heard reports that there is too much discipline. We don't want it left to one man to say who shall work there or who shall not, or as to what the discipline shall be. If there is anything of that nature it should be corrected. Put the apparatus in the Peterborough department that Peterborough requires.

MR. VINCENT EASTWOOD

Mr. Eastwood considered it a poor policy to stint ourselves in good fire fighting equipment. The financial institutions were much interested in this question. They advance money to business concerns and they should know that their investments are protected.

Mr. Sangster advised keeping the present fire engine reserve. The city couldn't sell it for more than its value as junk. Factories on the outskirts of the city would not get from the mains the same pressure as those away up town. Hence a pumper would be invaluable to them in a case of need.

Ald. Stratton and other members of the Council pointed out that the original intention was to purchase a pumper, but the price required was greater than had been estimated and the Underwriters had advised a chemical engine at the present time.

The Council decided after the deputation had departed to give the question more consideration at a later meeting.

HOUSE OF REFUGE COMMITTEE'S REPORT

The report of the House of Refuge Committee was presented to the County Council by Reeve Walsh as follows:

On May 1st, I received from the superintendent and the matron their resignation to take effect June 1st, handed to me in writing without any solicitation from the Board.

There being no other alternative I called the Board together, who, upon accepting such resignation, authorized the asking for applications to fill the vacancies, through the newspapers.

In response we had several applications and decided to appoint Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Campbell, from Chandos, and would submit such appointment to this Council for ratification by By-law.

On the 1st of June we visited the House to meet the new incumbents, and while there we decided to have certain repairs made to the sewage disposal, water supply, and heating apparatus, that were absolutely necessary, engaging Mr. Archibald to carry out such repairs, and I have asked him to explain to the Council the necessity of the same.

There are some 40 inmates now in the House, and the report of the Grand Jury on June 18th would show that the inmates are all apparently happy and satisfied, save some two or three that should not be there, not being responsible. One, Kelly, was committed to the hospital for insane some time ago, and in response to a letter from the Clerk the Department says that unless dangerous he will have to remain out of such institution until such times as congestion lessens. In the meantime the municipality to which he belongs has been requested to remove him at once from the House of Refuge, as has also been requested of the municipality from where one, McMillan, came, also an unfit subject.

Conditions are such that I think and would recommend that the Whole Council visit the House during this session in order that an intelligent and satisfactory understanding of affairs could be obtained by all.

BUILDING COMMITTEE MAKES PROGRESS ON COURT HOUSE WORK

The report of the special building committee of the County Council, of which Reeve Anderson is chairman, reported as follows this morning:

Your Committee have carried into effect the initial proceedings necessary to reconstruction of the building that was damaged by fire December 11th, 1916.

We found that it was impossible to get the work done by day work and asked for tenders. Getting only one tender, and after carefully considering the situation, we came to the conclusion that no definite plan could be followed and friction would follow changes.

We resorted then to the commission basis, and Messrs. Finnie & Gordon have been secured from the fact that the conditions set out in their offer appeared the best to avail ourselves of.

HIGH HEELS PUT CORNS ON TOES

Tells Women how to Dry Up a Corn so it Lifts Out Without Pain.

Modern high-heeled footwear buckles the toes and produces corns, and many of the thousands of hospital cases of infection and lockjaw are the result of woman's suicidal habit of trying to cut away these painful pests.

For little cost there can be obtained at any pharmacy a quarter of an ounce of a drug called freezone, which is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus without the slightest danger or inconvenience.

A few drops applied directly upon the tender, aching corn stops the soreness and shortly the entire corn, root, and all, lifts right out. It is a sticky substance, which dries the moment it is applied, and thousands of men and women use it because the corn shrivels up and comes out without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. Cut this out and try it if your corns bother you.

Foresight consists in knowing where to borrow an umbrella when it begins to rain.

WARNED OF IMPOSTOR

The following letter, received by Dr. Robinson, proprietor of the Empire Theatre, is self explanatory:

Toronto,—

Dear Sir,—It has come to our attention that there has been an individual visiting your city, stating that he is a representative of the Mutual Film Corporation, and is going to establish a studio near your city for the purpose of producing films, and has also signed up a number of young ladies in your city for this work.

Would you kindly furnish this office a description of this man, as the Mutual Film Corporation have no such individual on the road for the purpose, and any one doing this sort of work is a fraud, and same will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law should he be caught. Thanking you for any information you can give us of this man we remain,

Yours very truly,

The "Greek Slave" Hands Over $400

Mr. Richard J. Devey, conductor of the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society, on behalf of that organization, to-day handed over to the Canadian Kitchener League, working for field comforts for our soldiers, a cheque for $400, the net proceeds of two presentations of the "Greek Slave."

This makes a total of $850 provided for patriotic purposes through the patriotic work of the Operatic and Dramatic Society during the past eighteen months—$200 from "San Toy" for the 93rd band, $250 from the "Geisha" for the Progressive Club, and $400 from the "Greek Slave" for the Canadian Kitchener League—and all for the benefit—the comfort and cheer—of our soldier boys fighting for us in far-away France and Flanders. The conductor and members of the Peterborough Operatic and Dramatic Society are entitled to great credit for their patriotic enthusiasm and sacrifices that has led them to do their bit in a way not only to delight the public with high class musical and dramatic entertainment, but to yield very substantial material results.

SINGLE MEN FIT FOR ACTIVE DUTY

National Service Cards Indicate 252,034 Between 18 and 45

OTTAWA, JUNE 20.—Of the National Service cards distributed throughout Canada, through the agency of the postmasters, 1,842,755 were returned to the National Service Commission with all the questions thereon answered in full, Sir Robert Borden told William Smith, of South Ontario, in the Commons to-day. The cards only partially answered numbered 97,640 and 105,955 cards were returned with all the questions unanswered. In most cases the names of those who sent in their cards unanswered were secured.

The Prime Minister stated that 252,034 single men between the ages of 18 and 45 years of age had indicated that they were British subjects by birth or naturalisation and apparently fit for military service, that was to say, they had normal use of their eyes, ears, feet and arms and had not suffered from illness for more than one month during the twelve months preceding the filling-in of the cards.

Sir Robert read an explanatory note from the secretary of the National Service Commission, saying, "Our figure is 252,034 single men of military age and fitness. In our record we have, at the request of the militia authorities, discarded those who are not British subjects, those who had more than three persons dependent upon them, those who suffered from obvious physical disabilities, such as defective eyes, sight, or hearing, or the loss of a limb, those who had lost more than one month from any illness whatever, during the preceding twelve months, those who on their own statement had been rejected for military service."

The note added that the commission estimated that it had received returns from 85 per cent. of the total number of males between the ages of 18 and 65 years in Canada. "It must be borne in mind, however," concluded the secretary of the commission, "that of the 20 per cent. who failed to send in cards the majority would likely be simply not apparently fit for military duty."

FUNERAL OF THE LATE FRANK HURLEY

The funeral of the late Frank Hurley took place this morning from his late residence, 296 Wolfe street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to St. Peter's cemetery. The pall-bearers were John Corkery, John Kylie, John Sullivan, Charles McDonald, Harry Clancy and Wm. Perdue.

Among those who were present from out of town were Miss Margaret Hurley and Miss Loretto Hurley of Windsor; Mr. and Mrs. McDonald of Toronto, and the following from Lindsay: T. Hurley, J. W. Diament, J. Diament, J. Twohey, Mrs. King, Mrs. O'Neill, Mrs. Mulcahey, and Miss Twohey.

NEW RULES FOR HOTELS

Candles and Drinking Water Must Be Provided

TORONTO, June 21.—New regulations governing standard hotels in Ontario have just been issued by the License Board. One of the most important affects the positions of ropes for fire escapes. The principal regulations may be summarised as follows:

Every standard hotel now has to have a candle placed in each bedroom. This is for the purpose of helping the guest who may be in the hotel when a fire breaks out and the lighting system is put out of business. There have been cases where the lights have gone out and in the confusion without a light lives have been lost.

Even standard hotels must in future keep a supply of pure cold water for drinking purposes for the guests.

Another thing is that storm windows are barred from bedrooms. The board recommends that instead metal weather strips be used, as this will keep out cold draughts in winter and dust in summer. Storm windows, it is claimed, would prevent the free opening of windows in case of fire.

The situation of ropes used for the purpose of escaping from bedrooms in case of fire has been changed. The old rule used to be they had to be fastened from the sill, but the Commercial Travellers' Association have pointed out that the danger of this to the board and the rule is now that they must be fastened from the side of the window at least two feet from the sill, thus making it easier for the guests to get out in case of danger.

In future no licensee of a hotel may sublet any portion of the hotel's premises without the board's permission.

THE WONDERFUL STORY OF "THE MASQUE OF LIFE"

Large Audiences See This Magnificent Picture at The Empire — Showing Again To-night

The large crowd that saw "The Masque of Life" at the Empire yesterday were astounded at the magnificence of the picture. It is different from others, spectacular and has its heart throbs as the following story will tell.

The prince of the realm has fallen in love with Evelyn, a circus girl, and plans to elope with her, but is prevented by the sudden death of the king and his accession to the throne. Her lover, who had been willing to renounce his kingdom for the sake of the girl he loves, is told that Evelyn and their child have been drowned and marries a woman of royal blood. Evelyn becomes a wanderer and finally joins a traveling circus. Through all the hardships she subsequently endures, Pete, a trained chimpansee, is her devoted friend. One day Pete, realizing that Evelyn is mourning for her child who has died, determines to secure one for her. So he climbs over the palace wall, snatches the king's baby from the royal crib and runs with it to the top of a 360-foot chimney. Evelyn decides to save the king's heir. Reaching the top of the chimney, she tears the baby from Pete's grasp and hurls the monkey to his death. Later, during a spectacular performance for the king, in which Evelyn is to appear, the circus catches on fire. In the panic that ensues the queen dies of shock. In the end the king gives up his crown and weds the girl who has been so faithful and devoted. Showing again at the EMPIRE to-night.

16 Murdered Babies Given Public Funeral

ONLY TWO OF THE AIR RAID VICTIMS WERE OVER FIVE YEARS.

LONDON, June 21.—Sixteen children, only two of whom were over five years old, the victims of the last German air raid on England, were given a public funeral yesterday afternoon, and their bodies were laid in a common grave in an East End cemetery, over which a monument will be placed.

Seldom, if ever, in the history of the country, have children been accorded such a funeral. Major-Gen Sir Francis Lloyd, general officer commanding the London district, attended, representing the army. There were messages from the King and the Queen, while the Bishop of London, assisted by the Bishop of Stepney, conducted the services in the church, which was a bower of flowers sent by children from all parts of the country. Many of the floral offerings bore the inscription: "To our children murdered by German aircraft."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Willard, Weary of One Ring, Buys Three -- A Circus

HOLYOKE, Mass.—Jess Willard, the master of the ring, has turned ringmaster extraordinary. Jess has only gone and bought himself a nice little circus, that's all.

Working for the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show became irksome with big Jess, so he turned right around and bought the whole shebang. Word came out here that the Willard "syndicate" has purchased the entire outfit for a mere $150,000, and, of course, the Willard "syndicate" means Messrs. Willard, Willard and Willard.

And thereby hangs a tale, mayhap. Carl Morris has been widely advertised as being the little gent who was to supplant Jess Willard as the cowboy star of the Buffalo Bill Circus. Nate Lewis, his manager, said so after the bout with Moran. Contracts were ready to be signed, sealed, and delivered. Could it be that Jess, mortified almost to death, determined to thwart the Sapulpa Giant by buying the tent over his head So it would seem.

WAR A BLOW.

In any case, Jess owns the circus now, and if little Carlos would ride a cock-horse around and around the ring of the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show it will be for Messrs. Willard, Willard and Willard of the Willard Fighting and Circus Syndicate. Wot a blow, wot a BLOW!

Why, Carl even went so far as to tell the world fair that he was quite a buckeroo; that he had silver mounted chaparejos, hair ropes, Spanish bit, red bandanna, Mexican spurs, and an old-fashioned white bone handled "fan trigger Colts six-shooter. We could almost see the spectacle of Carlos Morris breaking a broncho or breaking the broncho's back of his own neck in the attempt.

We could almost see the deposed Jess Willard and Tawn Jones sitting back in the 10 cent bleacher seats hissing the Morris "turn" like a brace of Holland ganders. And the dream isn't out. It didn't even start, for Willard doesn't like Morris and he'd never allow Carl to play on HIS lot.

PUTTING PIUTES TO BED

Old Tawn Jones and lil' Jacques Curley may have a tintype taken of themselves, arm in arm, with the little derbies on the arm, to send broadcast, labeled. "Owners and proprietors of the greatest breakneck, hair-raising, soul-stirring, heart-go-pitter-patting, heart-in-yourmouth, death defying extravaganza of the plains, but when all is said and done it will be Big Chief Moneybags Willard who will put the Piutes and bronchos to bed.

Edward Arlington owned the show and when Willard hinted that he would like to go a circusing all his natural life, whether champion or not, Mister Arlington unloaded two trains of cars, 200 ripsnortin' horses, all the equipment and the will, good or bad, of the entire buckskin business.

Willard then wired the entire world that he intends to operate the show under his management, beginning with to-day's display. Roy O. Archer, Willard's secretary, made the dicker, paid over the money, and then went into Willard's private tent and informed him that he was the first pugilistic Pay Tay Barnum in all history. Willard retained Melville B. Raymond and Arlington to assist in the management of the big daily powwow. Arlington will book and railroad the show and Tawn Jones—ah wot of him, wot of him! Tawn is general all-round Handy Andy of the outfit and will continue in that capacity.

LELANDS JOIN WAR WORKERS

Auto Manufacturers Announce Their Intention to aid the Government.

DETROIT. — Henry M. Leland, of Detroit, founder of one of the largest motor car companies in this city, announced to-day that he and his son, Wilfred C., have withdrawn from the automobile business, to devote their time to the solution of the war problems. Henry Leland has long been known as a student of aviation.

The Lelands, father and son achieved world-wide renown for their success in the development of gasoline engines. Henry Leland used a one-cylinder engine in the first automobile that he built. He and his son, coöperating with other experts, then turned out two, four, and eight cylinder engines.

U. S. TENNIS CHAMPION IN UNCLE SAM'S ARMY

BOSTON, Mass., June 20.—The Longwood Tennis Club, regarded as the oldest organization in the country devoted to tennis, has compiled an honour roll of the members who have entered the service of the United States and its allies. Twenty names are on the roll.

Heading the list is R. Norris Williams, the national lawn tennis singles champion, who is at an officers' training camp. Indications are that before the conscription law goes into effect seventy-five per cent. of the membership of the club eligible for military service will have enlisted.

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I am told I am too hard on our present Council, in mine of Tuesday. I had only in my mind the many long years of indifference to the wants of East City. Our present representatives have done well in getting the C. P. R. foot-bridge and Hunter Street bridge by-laws put through; yet I did not see that our dermen opposed any more track being laid in the west end until something is done for the East Ward line.

Yours truly,

Fox of the Balkans Is Becoming Alarmed

GENEVA, June 21.—The semi-official Balkan News Agency says that King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has been impressed deeply by the abdication of King Constantine, and considers it certain former Premier Venizelos will take office at the head of the Government, and that Greece will enter the war against Bulgaria. King Ferdinand, therefore, intends to go shortly to German great headquarters to demand assistance. Consternation has been caused in Sofia by Constantine's abdication.

Instantly Killed by Grasping Live Wire

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 21.—While engaged in the yard of the Northern Foundry, where he was a muntion worker, William Richardson, about 28 years of age, met his death instantly by picking up a live wire lying across the roadway, as a result of which 2,250 volts passed through his body. Another workman who was with him came nearly sharing the same fate, but fortunately, he had not a very firm grip on the wire and was able to let go, suffering painful burns.

T. P. O'Connor Coming on Irish Mission

WASHINGTON, June 21.—T. P. O'Connor, one of the leaders of the Irish Nationalist party, will soon arrive in this country on an important mission, and it is believed that he heads a delegation composed of members of the Irish Parliament party, which intends, it is understood, to make known to the people of America the status of the extremely complicated Irish situation.

Would Bar Applicants With Organic Defects

London, Ont., June 21.—Among various changes in canons suggested by Bishop Williams which were approved by the Synod of Huron was one demanding that applicants for the ministry must be free from "organic defects" a resolution intended to cover diseases symptoms of which might be recognised in time to prevent ministers being appointed to charges who would not be able to fill the ordinary term.

A Degree for Lord Shaughnessy

MONTREAL, June 21.—Yesterday, at Dartmouth College, New Hampshire, the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on United States Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, and Lord Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Dartmouth College is one of the oldest educational institutions in the United States, holding a charter granted by George III, in 1769.

$50,000,000 a Week Spent Here Says Lord Northcliffe

NEW YORK, June 21.—Lord Northcliffe declared that the British government was spending in the United States all the money raised in this country by loans. He said the expenditures were averaging from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 weekly.

The head of the British mission was back at his desk here after his trip to Washington, where he met President Wilson, other officials of the American goverment and representatives of Great Britain.

"I have returned from a pleasant visit to Washington, where I renewed old friendships and was most kindly received by the United States, British and allied government officials," Lord Northcliffe said. "I had the honour of an interesting audience with the President.

"A good deal is said about loans to our government, but we are spending all the money here. Our expenditures on various forms of material here is at the rate of between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 a week.

"In one day alone last week we placed one contract for $40,000,000.

"I am not here to talk. I am engaged in a gigantic task of organization which precludes my accepting the countless offers of hospitality that have poured in on me since my arrival.

"I hope to gather new ideas for transmitting to England and I shall be glad to answer any questions bearing upon the lessons to be learned from the many mistakes Britain and her allies have made since the time when they were so unexpectedly plunged into this horrible carnage."

THE MASQUE OF LIFE

Signet Films presents the greatest of all Screen Thrills

The prince of the realm has fallen in love with Evelyn, a circus girl, and plans to elope with her, but is prevented by the sudden death of the king and his accession to the throne. Her lover, who had been willing to renounce his kingdom for the sake of the girl he loves, is told that Evelyn and their child have been drowned and marries a woman of royal blood. Evelyn becomes a wanderer and finally joins a travelling circus. Through all the hardships she subsequently endures, Pete, a trained chimpanzee, is her devoted friend. One day Pete, realizing that Evelyn is mourning for her child who has died, determines to secure one for her. So he climbs over the palace wall, snatches the king's baby from the royal crib and runs with it to the top of a 360-foot chimney. Evelyn decides to save the king's heir. Reaching the top of the chimney, she tears the baby from Pete's grasp and hurls the monkey to his death. Later, during a spectacular performance for the king, in which Evelyn is to appear, the circus catches on fire. In the panic that ensues the queen dies of shock. In the end the king gives up his crown and weds the girl who has been so faithful and devoted.

Food Shortage Strikes Animals

LONDON. — Shortage of food for animals due to lack of shipping resulting from German submarine warfare, threatens to put the cattle, sheep, horses, swine and poultry of the British farmers on compulsory rations. Warning that the farmers must be prepared for a reduction this year of 1,000,000 tons in the amount of feeding stuffs for animals, has been given by R. E. Prothero, president of the Board of Agriculture. He declares that unless the farmers heed his warning and place their animals on restricted rations, the compulsory ration system will be applied. This system has been in force in Germany for two years.

Here are some of the "don'ts" to farmers, issued by the Boards of Agriculture:

No more farm stock shows must be held.

The number of cattle must be substantially reduced before Christmas, but the milking herd must be kept up.

Fat stock shows must not be held.

Auctioneers must not sell animals brought to "prime" condition by cake feeding.

No corn must be given to pleasure horses.

Cattle should be sent to market leaner than usual.

Sheep must be killed earlier.

Next season's lambing must be deferred until more grass is available.

Corn must not be given to pigs.

No more poultry should be kept than can be maintained on scraps and waste food.

The restrictions heretofore governing the sale of calves are to be withdrawn.

Outlining the reasons for these new restrictions, Mr. Prothero said:

"Owing to the lack of tonnage and the necessity of restricting imports to the essentials of foods and munitions of war, the farmer must be prepared for a reduced importation of feeding stuffs during the coming year of at least a million tons. The numbers of live stock are larger than ever before.

"In the present national crisis it is necessary to bring in human food rather than raw materials for food, such as feeding stuffs for live stock, which can only be converted into a much smaller weight of human food.

"Rationing can only be avoided if farmers generally will determine to reduce their individual demands upon the limited stock of feeding stuffs. The shortage of feeding stuffs will become more pronounced as the season advances and farmers should adopt the policy of getting their live stock as far forward as possible upon the grass, green crops and roots of this summer and autumn.

"There will be a large call for home produced meat, both for civil and army needs, as soon as it can be got ready, and stock raisers are expected to take every step to prepare to meet this demand. All cattle other than milch cows, such as sheep and pigs, that can be got into reasonable condition for slaughter on the crops grown this season, should be sent to market.

Mr. Prothero says that the concentrated feeding stuffs available this year will be only a sixth of the pre-war supply.

Social and Personal

Miss Pearl Burnham, Weller street, is visiting friends in Cavanville.

Mrs. Wm. Merrill and Miss Lillian Hurley were the hostesses yesterday of the last tea to be given by St. Peter's Ladies' Patriotic Club this season. The tea table beautifully decorated with purple and yellow, iris, was presided over by Mrs. F. Fairen, who was assisted by Mrs. E. J. McCarthy, Mrs. Roland Hunter, Miss Molly Young and Miss Madelyn Rutherford. The small tables were tastefully decorated with lilies of the valley and white lilacs. The tea was successful in every way, and it was regretted by all that yesterday should close the series of teas. A splendid diamond disc Edison loaned by Mr. Greene, contributed largely to the enjoyment of the large number who attended. The proceeds of the tea amounted to $17.00.

Mrs. E. Sherwood and Miss Pearce, who spent the past few weeks in Toronto, have returned home.

Miss Winnifred Parker, assistant secretary of the Y.W.C.A., is in Toronto for a few days en route for Muskoka to attend the Summer Conference.

Master Jack Rogers, East City, is in Frankfort, visiting his grandfather, Dr. Simmons.

Mrs. "Chic" Deyell, Providence, R.I., is in the city to spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hooper.

Lieut. Gordon Graham, Lindsay, is in the city visiting Mrs. Thomas Grieve, Brock street.

Mrs. E. E. Mansfield and two sons, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., are in the city visiting Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McFadden, 399 Smith street, for a few weeks.

Miss Margaret Turner, Bishop Strachan's School, Toronto, is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Turner, Water street.

Miss Eileen McEvoy, Lindsay Convent, is visiting Mrs. Mel. Tobin, 278 John street, en route for her home in Dalhousie, N.B.

Sir Arthur Currie, now in command of the Canadian forces, is a cousin once removed of Mrs. E. D. Lewis, city.

Miss Brown, who has been in the city visiting her sister, Miss Allison, Water street, returned to-day to her home in Chicago.

Mrs. Vernon Dawson, Downie street, has returned from a two months' visit in Toronto.

Miss Pauline Adams, Toronto, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Vernon Dawson, Downie street.

Mrs. D. J. Perry, Simcoe street, who has been in Port Credit for a few weeks, has returned to the city.

Miss Ada Lane is the guest of Mrs. Wm. Manning, Sunny Hill Farm, Woodville.

An exceedingly jolly little tea was given yesterday at St. Alphonsus Lyceum in honour of Miss Aileen Sullivan whose marriage takes place next month.

Mrs. John Coughlin, Rubidge street is in Toronto to-day to attend the wedding of her nephew, Mr. Murphy which takes place to-day.

Mrs. Richard Clegg, Mr. C. M. Walker, Miss Elizabeth Mathews, superintendent of the Wingham Hospital, Mr. J. A. MacLean, and Mr. Charles Blackwell, superintendent of the Clegg Walker Furniture Co., Wingham, Ont., who were in the city yesterday to attend the funeral of the late Mr. Richard Clegg, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Clegg, Stewart street, whilst in the city.

Hon. and Mrs. Lawrence Grahame, "Kawana," Stony Lake, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Grieve.

Mrs. (Hon.) Wallace Nesbitt and Miss Hoskin were the guests of Judge and Mrs. Huycke, en route for the "Grove," Lakefield, to attend the closing of the school, which takes place to-day. Several Peterborough people also motored to Lakefield for the closing.

Miss Rosamond Huycke, Bishop Strachan's School, is spending her vacation with Judge and Mrs. Huycke, Engleburn Park, East City.

READY TO FIGHT, BUT THEY DEMAND MONEY

WASHINGTON, June 20.—According to a newspaperman in this city, army and navy officers assert that Frank Tinney, an actor; Benny Leonard, a boxer, and Jess Willard, also a boxer, are trying to get some advertising out of the war, and their alleged intentions to fight.

Navy and army men say they are weary of reading stories that Tinney will give up $1,200 a week to join the navy, and that Leonard and Willard are eager to sacrifice their incomes in order to fight. They are merely seeking publicity, say officers here.

The newspaperman says: "So far as anybody can learn, none of this trio has gone to a recruiting station and offered to submit himself to examination. That's all they have to do, either for the navy, the army or any other branch of the military service. Tens of thousands of young men all over the country have already done so, and have given out no interviews on the subject.

"If Tinney, Leonard or Willard want to fight for their country, the Government will give them a chance, provided they will first give the Government physicians an opportunity to look them over."

Increase in Bank Clearings

The greatly increased bank clearings this week indicate greater business activities in the city than the same week last month or for several years:

Clearings for the week ending June 21st—$807,833.
Same week last month—$514,563.
Same week last year—$567,376.
Same week, two years ago—$349,976.

CAR ON YOUR RIGHT HAS RIGHT OF WAY

New Traffic Regulations That Should Simplify the Rules

The latest traffic regulation is briefly this: The man on your right has the right of way. If you are a mere pedestrian there is nothing to concern yourself about in this, but it is of importance to automobilists, cyclists and drivers of street vehicles.

For example, a car is going west on Hunter street and another is proceeding south on George street. The Hunter street man must concede the right of way to the George street car. Each driver must concern himself with the man on the right. The rule is the essence of simplicity, and on the suggestion of Mayor Duffs last night will be incorporated in the city's traffic by-law, replacing the old rule that north and south bound cars took precedence over those going east and west.

COUNTY COUNCIL A STEP NEARER GOOD ROADS PLAN

The County Council made another forward step toward the ultimate adoption of the County Good Roads system this afternoon when during a session of the Roads and Bridges committee, with Reeve Brillied of Chandos presiding, Reeve Squire of Norwood, moved, seconded by Reeve Fitzgerald, of Lakefield, that the Special Good Roads committee bring in at the November sessions the prescribed by-law with its detail of roads designated and mapped out as required.

This committee has existed for the past two years, and has kept the road fire burning with varying warmth. At times it smouldered beneath a layer of skeptical ashes, now and then breaking forth in tongues of flame that sought a real deep glow. To-day, the situation was never brighter. There is practically no opposition to the movement. The farmer members declare that the Motor League is giving it a push, but the motor is fast becoming common property in the back forties. Hence, the situation has changed somewhat Heretofore the scheme looked too big to most of the councillors. Now some of them are anxious to get all their main roads included in the system.

Anderson of Otonabee, is one of these. One main county road would be of no use to that township. There must be sufficient roads to enable the majority of farmers to share in the fruits of the money expended.

Rye, of Monaghan, is impatient to get into the work as soon as possible. The Government pays a percentage of road maintenance, and bridge building and repair, as soon as the by-law is passed. Hence, why not get in on the good thing now. Other counties have found it up to expectations.

Squire of Norwood, believes the good roads will not materially affect the villages, but he believes it will be good for the county. However, there is a great deal of preliminary work which could be prepared for presentation at Norwood.

Mr. S. L. Squire, of the Ontario Highways Department, addressed the Council this morning, giving a lucid explanation of the Good Roads Act.

ANTON LANG A SOLDIER.

Christ of Oberammergau Passion Plays Called to Colours.

BERLIN, June 20. — At last Anton Lang of Oberammergau, who is well known to many Americans as the Christ of the passion plays, has been called to serve in the Bavarian Army. He appeared yesterday in field-gray uniform before the garrison authorities.

Lang, who is a potter by trade, was reported killed in battle in 1915, and the papers of the whole world devoted columns to obituaries of him, but at that time he was safe and sound at his home in Oberammergau.

Duke Maximilian in the second quarter of the seventeenth century, when the Passion Play at Oberammergau was inaugurated because the village had been spared from a plague which had devastated the surrounding communities, entered into a covenant with the village that it should henceforth be spared the sufferings of war. This has been interpreted to mean by successive kings of Bavaria that no one who took part in the play should be called as a soldier. In the Franco-Prussian War of 1870 all of the 500 players were employed in the hospitals.

WOMEN DRIVE WAR AUTOS.

Two Hundred Will Displace Men on the French Front.

PARIS, June 20.—Between 150 and 200 women will soon be driving military motor cars behind the front. Women have tried since the beginning of the war to enlist in the automobile service. The Club Feminine Automobile was the centre of this group, and it obtained the signatures of several hundred of the thousand women in Paris who had licenses to drive motor cars. The passive resistance of war bureaus held them back until now.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS CONTINUED

THE HAGUE, June 21.—That the present submarine warfare will result in a general naval battle of immense proportions between the British and German Navies, is the opinion given out by German naval experts, writing in the Local Anzieger of Berlin.

STOCKHOLM, June 21.—The self-styled American delegates to the German called Socialist Peace Conference played directly into the hands of Germans to-day, notifying the Dutch Scandinavian Committee that they would recommend that the present conferences be made permanent throughout the period of the war. This fits exactly into German plans, which aims to have the meetings drag along in order that peace plotting may be continually carried on.

ROME, June 21.—"Whether the Ministry falls or not is inconsequential," Premier Boselli told the Italian House to-day. "What really matters is victory. Hidden snares cannot shake Italy's firm fight in the justice of her cause or her assurance of victory."
Foreign Minister Sonnino gave as Italy's peace aims: The restoration of Belgium, Serbia and Montenegro. Full security assured on Italian frontiers. The independence of Poland, and also the other previously announced Allied aims.

LONDON, June 21.—"British troops on the Western front now occupy what were formerly German trenches on more than 60 miles out of the total of 96 on which they are located," General F. B. Maurice, Director-General of Operations, pointed out to-day.
"All ridges and commanding positions are in our hands," he continued, "resulting in an enormous difference in our daily list of casualties."

PETROGRAD, June 21.—The All Russian Congress of Workmen and Soldiers to-day unanimously resolved upon an immediate Russian offensive. The unanimous vote indicates that even the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates, which has heretofore been strongly in favour of peace, has been won over to the far side in view of the overwhelming sentiment to that end developed by the All Russia Conference.

BERLIN (via London), June 21.—The capture of French positions at Vauxhallon over the width of more than a mile by a German storming attack was claimed in to-day's official statement.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Screaming "traitors," an angry mob led by Mrs. D. Richardson, attacked suffrage pickets at both the west and east gates of the White House this afternoon, ripping down their yellow banners and trampling them in the street.
These banners were ones asking the President what he intended to do for suffrage which have been displayed at the White House gates for months.

All Industries To Join In Immediate Production Of Great Aerial Fleet

Available Manufacturing Equipment To Be Utilized for Construction of Parts of Aircraft—General Goethals Favours Aernautical Department.

"10,000 AEROPLANES EQUAL TO 20,000 MEN"

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22. — That the United States government has awakened to the supreme need of overwhelming the Prussians on sea and land with aircraft, which are now recognized as the natural enemy of the submarine and the deciding factor in land warfare on the western front, to-day become more than ever apparent.

The Aircraft Production Board of the Council of National Defence in an official statement announced that manufacturing equipment in practically all available industries in the nation would be utilized wherever possible in the construction of aeroplanes for the war. Besides automobile and other motor building plants, there will be sewing machine and typewriter factories and similar concerns engaged in the great work.

Major General George W. Goethals, head of the Emergency Ship Corporation, to-day told the Senate Committee on Military Affairs that there should be a department of aeronautics, in order that the air activity of the government may be concentrated and made most effective.

More Valuable Than Men.

Frederick H. Allen, banker, of New York city, told the committee that ten thousand aeroplanes sent by the United States to France at once would help as much as 20,000,000 infantrymen.

Rapid production of aeroplanes and hydroaeroplanes in large numbers is the aim of the Aircraft Production Board. The machines are to be of a heavier and less speedy type than those constructed by the British and French. It is apparent to the officials that they can be turned out with greater rapidity than any other kind and the fact that they are needed NOW to combat the submarine evil is regarded as the important thing.

"We have no intention at the beginning to attempt the manufacture of the very speediest, highly specialized, light fighters which the Allies are now turning out," the Board announced. "We can produce in vast quantities the training planes and the heavier and less speedy battle types, which are just as essential and which will leave the British and the French free to turn more of their attention to the development of the fastest types."

Programme to Congress Soon.

Here is the announcement in part: "The facilities of many available industries capable of adaptation to motor and airplane construction will be used in the work. Orders will, of course, be given to all reliable airplane manufacturing plants capable of turning out the quality of machines which the government must have, and this will enable them to expand their factories for more extensive production.

"In all the arrangements the most intensive care has been given to the business form of the proposed contracts, so that while the firms which will be thoroughly protected from the of those machines will be assured of adequate capital to secure the expansion and adaptation of their plants wil Be thoroughly protected from the danger of paying excessive profits through an undue stimulation of prices. A detailed and thoroughly worked out business programme will be submitted to Congress at the same time the bill is introduced or shortly after.

"The whole answer to the problem before us is standardization. The American development of the airplane motor will be a standardized motor. A large percentage of the first machines will be training planes, both because we need them and because it will take time to turn out the tools necessary to manufacture in quantity the battle plane models which nearly three years of war has developed. Four to six months, however, will find us building in quantity motors serviceable for battle machines?

Field Marshal Haig Quoted.

Mr. Allen's statement regarding the value of aircraft was made before the Senate military sub-committee holding hearings on the Shepard-Hulbert bill, providing a department of aeronautics in the government. Mr. Allen, who worked with Myron T. Herrick when the latter was the American Ambassador to France, said he based his statement on a declaration by Field Marshal Haig, who said, "One aeroplane is worth two thousand men," and also upon his own observation. He said he had been on the western front in France many times since the war began and knew what the aeroplane could do.

"Spending $600,000,000 on aircraft would be the best offering America could make to the war at this time" he said

General Goethals appeared before the committee to give his views on concentrating the aero work under a single head.

"Co-ordination of this work is absolutely vital," he said. "It is essential that we secure satisfatcory results, and these can be obtained only by holding one man reponsible and vest in him complete responsibility and authority. Dicided authority is followed by trouble, because each department will try to appropriate everything to the detriment of other departments."

General Goethals declared that, while not particularly well versed in aeronautics, he had come to the opinion that the aeroplane and heavy artillery would be the deciding factors of the war.

The committee practically has completed its work on the bill and probably will recommend a favourable report on the aero department measure late this week.

PARDEE IN FAVOUR OF CONSCRIPTION BILL

Chief Liberal Whip Against Referendum Proposal—"Thousands of Young Men Not Necessary to Carry On the Business of the State" and Who Should Be Forced to Fight.

OTTAWA, June 21.—"Do the people of Canada realize to-day that they are enjoying the greatest measure of freedom a nation could enjoy, and do they realise that if Germany wins they will lose that freedom" asked F. F. Pardee, chief Liberal whip, in resuming the debate on the Military Service Act, 1917, in the Commons this afternoon, during which he stated he would support the Government measure.

"We went into the war with great enthusiasm, but is it not a fact that we have now come to take this war as a matter-of-course? We have got to have enough red blood in us to say that if the men at the front are willing to make the sacrifice, we, too, at home, should make sacrifice also. Does the rich man realise that by failing to make sacrifices he is one of the small units which are helping Germany to keep going? Canadians need an awakening and they can only get it by strong and able leadship. Failing that, our last end may be worse than the first."

MUST BACK UP THEIR EFFORTS.

"The fate of parties does not matter so long as we do our part for the cause of justice and right, and preserve our democratic institutions. These men have gone. They went voluntarily. Does any one say they went because they loved the fight? To my mind they went with the highest motive of patriotism. Now that they have gone, it does appear to me, sir, that the duty of the people and Parliament is to see to it that those who have gone shall have the backing of the men who stay at home."

SHOULD BE FORCED TO FIGHT.

"There are thousands of young men not necessary to carry on the business of the State. I say that if they are not willing to fight they have no right to be free, and if they will not fight they should be made to fight. (Applause). So far as I am concerned and great as I know the responsibility is through this vote of mine, they shall be compelled to go."

CANNOT FOLLOW LEADER.

Coming to the question of the Laurier amendment Mr. Pardee said he found himself politically in the most painful position of his life. "I have followed Sir Wilfrid ever since I knew enough to be a Liberal. I realise that among Imperial statesmen he stands high and pre-eminent. I know that he has swayed the destinies of the country for 15 years wisely and well. It may seem presumptuous on my part to differ with him, but I cannot bring myself to vote for his amendment. In taking this ground I maintain that the conviction of my friends with whom I differ are as honestly held as my own.

MUST NOT PROTECT WEALTH.

"Mistakes have been made. There has been lack of recruiting leadership. There have been blunders and lethargy in organizations. And I am sorry to say there has been the strongest sort of partizanship. We have not raised ourselves by our boot straps. And I wish to say here that the people will expect of a government which takes the responsibility of conscripting men, a consecration of itself to the highest ideals of public service. And I want to say that the people will not be satisfied if we spill the blood of youth and are afraid to spill the wealth of the rich man. Go where you will and you will find abundance of wealth. And the men at the front are protecting that wealth, though it gives them nothing."

ANOTHER VOLUNTARY EFFECT.

The Prime Minister had asked for suggestions. "I will give him some," said Mr. Pardee. I would humbly suggest that he precede the operation of the bill by a last big and sincere effort to induce young Canadian manhood to come forward voluntarily. Under direct and real leadership, and with the co-operation of all parties and all Provinces, I yet believe that Canadian patriotism would make up the complement necessary. Such a campaign sincerely carried on would, I verily believe, result in the coming forward of the 100,000 men without need of compulsion. What I say is my most sincere conviction" (Applause).

Hon. Arthur Meighen, Solicitor-General, declared that the bill had been brought on because it was the only right thing to do and for no unworthy motive or purpose.

Fluctuations In Wheat Market

Crop News From the Northwest Helped to Depress the Market —The Cattle Market

CHICAGO, June 22.—Improved crop prospects in the northwest, together with free offerings in the south-west tended yesterday to ease the wheat market. Scantiness of stocks kept the July option relatively firm. Opening prices, which ranged from the same as Wednesday's finish to one cent lower, were followed by a material downturn for September, but a slight gain for July, which, however, subsequently disappeared.

Anarchists Seize Newspaper Plant

PETROGRAD, June 22. — The newspaper Russkia Volia, Petrograd's richest and most largely circulated newspaper, was seized this afternoon by a corps of armed anarchists, who expelled the staff, destroyed all the copies of the papers and the books, and declared that they would stand siege.

The Russian Volia is particularly hated by the anarchists because it strongly supported the Provisional Government and attacked the Bolsheviki and other extremists. When the government learned of this action by the anarchists, it ordered stringent measures. General Polovtseff, commander of the Petrograd troops, sent a large force of Cossacks, infantry and machine guns and surrounded the building.

In the meantime the Congress of the Councils of the Deputies passed a resolution condemning the anarchists. The commander of the troops sent a message demanding their surrender. The anarchists entered into negotiations with the commander, and later under threat of military action, the anarchists, realizing that their position was hopeless, surrendered. Seventy of them were marched to jail.

FORD FARM NAVAL BARRACKS.

Quarters for 3,000 Militiamen Being Built at Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N.J. — Work was begun to-day by Cramp & Co., on the buildings of the naval militia barracks on the Henry Ford farm here. These buildings will cost between $500,000 and $1,000,000, and will consist of twenty large barracks and dormitories, officers' quarters, boiler house, laundry, and a hospital.

All of these buildings will be of frame and one story in height, and will be spread over 400 acres. This property was leased from Henry Ford on Monday by Mayor William L. Stevens of Cape May, who turned over the agreement to the Navy Department.

The work will be pushed night and day. The camp will take care of 3,000 naval militiamen when completed.

German Agent who Escaped Jail Sought Refuge in a Warehouse.

RICHMOND, Va. — Arnold Henckel, the German, who sawed his way out of jail at Norfolk, where he had been held as a spy, has been arrested at Danville. He was captured in a tobacco warehouse which had been surrounded by a thousand civilians and officers.

Several hacksaw blades were found sewed up in his coat.

Valves for automobile motors, made of pure carbon by two Boston inventors, are claimed to be self lubricating and to be proof against the usual valve troubles.

"The Postmaster's Daughter"

By LOUIS TRACY

"The rope and iron staple, I understand, were taken from the premises of a man who lets boats for hire on the dam a quarter of a mile away," he said casually.

Grant was astounded at his own failure to make any inquiry whatsoever concerning this vital matter. He laughed grimly.

"You can imagine the state of my mind," he said, "when I assure you that until this moment, it never occurred to me even to ask where these articles came from or what had become of them."

"I can sympathise with you," said the journalist. "A brutal murder seems horribly out of place in this environment. It is a mysterious business altogether. I wonder if Scotland yard will take it up."

Grant surprised him by clapping him on the back.

"By Jove, my friend, the very thing! Of course such an investigation requires bigger brains than our local police are endowed with. Scotland Yard must take it up. I'll wire there at once. If necessary I'll pay all expenses."

The newspaper man had his doubts. The "Yard," he said, acted in the provinces if appealed to by the authorities directly concerned. But Grant was not to be stayed by a trifle like that. He hurried to the post office hoping that Doris Martin might walk back with him.

The girl and her father were busy behind the counter when he entered. He noticed that Doris was rather pale. She was about to attend to him, but Mr. Martin intervened. It struck Grant that the postmaster was purposely preventing his daughter from speaking to him.

For some inexplicable reason, he felt miserably tongue-tied and was content to write a message to the Chief Commissioner of Police, London, asking that a skilled detective should be sent forthwith to Steynholme.

Mr. Martin read it gravely, stated the cost, and procured the requisite stamps. In the event, Grant quitted the place without exchanging a word with Doris, while her father, usually a chatty man, said not a syllable beyond what was barely needed.

As he passed down the hill and by the side of the Green he was aware of being covertly watched by many eyes. He saw P. C. Robinson peering from behing a curtained window. Siddle, the chemist, came to the shop door, and looked after him. Hobbs, the butcher, ceased sharpening a knife and looked out. Tomlin, landlord of the Hare and Hounds Inn, surveyed him from the "snug."

These things were not gracious. Indeed they were positively maddening. He went home, gave an emphatic order that no one, except Miss Martin, if she called, was to be admitted and savagely buried himself in a treatise on earth tides.

But that day of events had not finished for him yet. He had perforce, eaten a good meal, and was thinking of going to the post office in order to clear up an unfathomed misapprehension in Mr. Martin's mind, when Minnie Bates came with a card.

"If you please, sir," said the girl, "this gentleman is very pressing. He says he's sure you'll give him an interview when you see his name."

So Grant looked and read—

Mr. Isidor G. Ingerman,
Prince's Chambers, London, W.

CHAPTER IV.
A CABAL.

Grant stared again at the card. A tiny silver bell seemed to tinkle a sort of warning in a recess of his brain. The name was not engraved in copper-plate, but printed in heavy type. Somehow, it looked ominous. His first impression was to bid Minnie send the man away. He distrusted any first impression. It was the excuse of mediocrity, a sign of weakness. Moreover, why shouldn't he meet Isidor G. Ingerman?

"Show him in," he said almost gruffly thus silencing shy intuition, as it were. He threw the card on the table.

Mr. Ingerman entered. He did not offer any conventional greeting, but nodded or bowed. Grant could not be sure which form of salutation was intended, because the visitor promptly sat down, uninvited.

Minnie hesitated at the door. Her master's callers were usually cheerful Bohemians, who chatted at sight. Then she caught Grant's eye, and went out, banging the door in sheer nervousness.

Still Mr. Ingerman did not speak. If this was a pose on his part, he erred. Grant had passed through a trying day, but he owned the muscles and the nerves of an Alpine climber, and had often stared calmly down a wall of rock and ice which he had just conquered, when the least slip would have meant being dashed to pieces two thousand feet below.

There was some advantage, too, in this species of stage wait. It enabled him to take the measure of Adelaide Melhuish's husband, if indeed, the visitor was really the man he professed to be.

At first sight, Isidor G. Ingerman was not a prepossessing person. Indeed, it would be safe to assume that if, by some trick of fortune, he and not Grant were the tenant of The Hollies, P. C. Robinson would have haled him to the village lock-up that very morning. It was not that he was villainous looking, but rather that he looked capable of villainy. He was a tall, slender, rather stooping man, with a decidedly well-molded, if hawk-like, face. His aspect might be described as saturnine. Possibly, when he smiled, this morose expression would vanish and then he might even win a favorable opinion. He had brilliant black eyes close set, and an abundant crop of black hair, which, in itself, lent an air of distinction. His lips were thin, his chin slightly prominent. He was well dressed and managed a hat, stick and gloves with ease. Altogether, he reminded Grant of a certain notable actor, who is invariably cast for the role of a gentlemanly scoundrel, but who in private life, is a most excellent fellow and a good citizen. Oddly enough, Grant recognized in him, too, the type of man who would certainly have appealed to Adelaide Melhuish in her earlier and impressionable years.

Meanwhile the visitor, finding that the clear-eyed young man seated in an easy chair (from which he had not risen) could seemingly regard him with blank indifference during the next hour, though fit to say something.

"Is my name familiar to you, Mr. Grant?" he inquired.

The voice was astonishingly soft and pleasant, and the accent agreeably refined. Evidently, there were surprising points about Mr. Ingerman. Long afterwards, Grant learned by chance, that the man had been an actor before branching off into that mysterious cosmopolitan profession known as "a financier."

"No," said Grant. "I have heard it very few times. Once, about three years ago, and to-day, when I mentioned it to the police."

The other man's sallow cheeks grew a shade more sallow. Grant supposed that this slight change of color indicated annoyance. Of course the association of ideas in that curt answer was intolerably rude. But Grant had been tried beyond endurance that day. He was in a mood to be brusque with an archbishop.

"We can disregard your confidences or explanations, to the police," said Ingerman smoothly. "Three years ago, I suppose, my wife spoke of me?"

"If you mean Miss Adelaide Melhuish—yes."

"I do mean her. To be exact, I mean the lady who was murdered outside this house last night."

Grant realized instantly that Isidor G. Ingerman, was a foeman worthy of even a novelist's skill in repartee. Thus far, he, Grant, had been merely uncivil, using a bludgeon for wit, whereas the visitor, was making play with a finely-tempered rapier.

"Now, that you have established your identity, Mr. Ingerman, perhaps you will tell me why you are here," he said.

"I have come to Steynholme to inquire into my wife's death."

"A most laudable purpose. I was given to understand, however, that at one time you took little interest in her living. I have not seen Mrs. Ingerman for three years—until last night, that is—so there is a chance of course that husband and wife may have adjusted their differences. Is that so?"

"Until last night!" repeated Ingerman, almost in a startled tone. "You admit that?"

Grant turned and pointed.

"I saw, or fancied I saw, her face at that window," he said. "She looked in on me at about ten minutes to eleven. I was hard at work but the vision (as it seemed then) was so weird and unexpected, that I went straight out and searched for her. Perhaps 'searched' is not quite the right word. To be exact, I opened the French window, stood there, and listened. Then I persuaded myself that I was imagining a vain thing, and came in."

"What was she doing here?"

"I don't know."

"She arrived in Steynholme on Sunday evening, I am told."

"I heard that, too."

"You imply that you did not meet her?"

"No need to imply anything, Mr. Ingerman. I did not meet her. Beyond the fanciful notion that I had seen her ghost last night, the first I knew of her presence in the village was when I recognized her dead body this morning."

"Strange as it may sound, I am inclined to believe you."

Grant said nothing. He wanted to get up and pitch Ingerman into the road.

"But who else will take that charitable view?" purred the other, in that suave voice which so ill accorded with his thin lips and slightly hooked nose.

"I really don't care," was the weary answer.

"Not at the moment, perhaps. You have had a trying day, no doubt. My visit at its close cannot be helpful. But—"

"I am feeling rather tired mentally," interrupted Grant, "so you will oblige me by not raising too many points at once. Why should you imagine that conversation with you in particular should add to my supposed distress?"

"Doesn't it?"

"No."

"Why, then, may I ask, do you so obviously resent my questions? Who has so much right to put them as I?"

Grant found that he must bestir himself. Thus far, the honours lay with this rather sinister-looking yet quiet-mannered visitor.

"I am sorry if anything I have said lends color to that belief," he answered. "Candidly, I began by assuming that you forfeited any legal right years ago to interfere in behalf of Miss Melhuish, living or dead. Let us, at least, be candid with each other. Miss Melhuish herself told me that you and she had separated by mutual consent.

"Allow me to emulate your candor. The actual fact is that you weaned my wife's affections from me."

"That is a downright lie," said Grant coolly.

Ingerman's peculiar temperament permitted him to treat this grave insult far more lightly than Grant's harmless but irritating reference to the police.

"Let us see what 'a lie' signifies," he said, almost judicially. "If a lady deserts her husband, and there is good reason to suspect that she is, in popular phrase, 'carrying on' with another man, how can the husband be lying if he charges that man with being the cause of the domestic upheaval?"

"In this instance a hypothetical case is not called for. Three years ago, Mr. Ingerman, you had parted from your wife. Your name was never mentioned. Apparently none in my circle had even heard of you. Miss Melhuish had won repute as a celebrated actress. I met her in a sense, professionally. We became friends. I fancied I was in love with her. I proposed marriage. Then, and not till then, did the ghost of Mr." —Grant bent forward, and consulted the card—"Mr. Isidor G. Ingerman, intrude."

"So marriage was out of the question."

"If you expect an answer—yes."

Ingerman rested the handle of his stick against his lips.

"That isn't how the situation was represented to me at the time," he said thoughtfully.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE
For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Don't remain Weak, Anaemic, Nervous, Run-down

Wincarnis Offers New Health • New Life

GET a bottle of Wincarnis to-day and see how quickly it will help you to regain your former health and vitality. Wincarnis possesses a four-fold power in creating the health you need.

Wincarnis is a tonic, a restorative, a blood-maker, and a nerve food—all in one. Therefore it promotes new strength, new blood, new nerve force and new vitality. That is why over 10,000 doctors recommend Wincarnis. And it is also the reason why you can take Wincarnis with the certain knowledge that it can give you new health.

If you are weak, Wincarnis will give you new strength. If you are anaemic, Wincarnis will give you new rich red blood. If you are nervous, Wincarnis will give you new nerve force. If you are run-down, Wincarnis will give you new vitality.

Wincarnis has been famous in Europe for a third of a century. Thousands have testified that it has restored them to health and strength. Don't confuse it with the many inferior preparations of apparently similar nature; buy Wincarnis itself, the tonic that has been unsuccessfully imitated for 30 years.

12. Verse 18. What is the evidence which proves the resurrection of Jesus from the dead?

Lesson for Sunday, July 1, 1917: Isaiah's Call to heroic Service. Isa. 6th.

Careless Shampooing Spoils The Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

An Austrian claims to have discovered a new rapid tanning process with which sole leather can be tanned in seven days, calf skins in six hours and other skins proportionately quickly.

What Can Be Done When You Try

A year ago a man working on Simcoe Street bought a lot from me in South End, continuing to work every day he also started to build, with the help of a good wife and small boy had his house ready to move into in October now he has it nearly completed and intends to commence another very soon. Where there is a will a way can be found. Now is the time to see and select a lot. Now is the time to buy from me. July is close at hand – act to-day.

A PEOPLE OF CONTRASTS.

Italians, Like Their Land, Endowed With Great Physical Charm.

Province by province Italy manifests a varying charm and the people differ as widely as their surroundings. The hot blooded southerner observes a different standard of morals and hygiene, fires to anger or interest more quickly and is generally less dependable and industrious than his northern brother. Both are gifted with the black eyes and hair and the swarthy complexion as a race that is a general characteristic of the Latin peoples. But the Italian is, broadly speaking, like his country, endowed with a physical beauty and charm beyond that of most of his fellows.

In the north, however, there are exceptions—fair haired and reddish men and women, who seem strangely out of place among their dark neighbors. Cool, temperate exotics they are among the higher colored growths that somehow seem so tropical, with their sultry smiles and fathomless, mysterious eyes, in which forever broods the shadow of the purple mountains that always and everywhere dominates all Italy, even to the delightful carabinieri, or rural guards, those Napoleonic looking officials who parade always solemnly in pairs, hangers at their sides, cockades in their black beavers, the majesty of the law in every line and footstep.—National Geographic Magazine.

BUSINESS SIGNBOARDS.

They Were Used at First Only by the Inns and Taverns.

The first tradesmen to adopt the use of signs were the innkeepers, and from earliest times in England and on the continent the taverns of town and country were distinguished by signboards bearing the names of the hostelries. It was not until the sixteenth century that merchants dealing in other than liquid refreshments began to erect signs over their doors.

Once started the custom spread rapidly, and the seventeenth century was a period of prosperity for the sign painters of England. Even in London the houses and shops were not numbered, so a tradesman's place of business could only be known by a sign. The ingenuity of the merchants was taxed in such a city as London to provide an original sign that would stick in the memories of passersby.

A man starting in business considered a striking sign his most important investment. These signs, often huge in size, were sometimes slung entirely across the street. As they grew old they occasionally fell and thus became a source of danger. Such signs were prohibited by parliament in the year 1762, and after that merchants had to be content with more modest signs placed flat against the fronts of their buildings.

Sanskrit.

The Sanskrit is the language of the ancient Hindus. It is not now spoken and is understood only by the Brahmins and by scholars who have made a special study of it. It bears a striking likeness to the Greek, Latin, German, Celtic and Slavonic languages, and, though Sanskrit is not regarded as the parent of these dialects, it is looked upon as the language nearest to the original speech of the undivided Aryans.

THE HOUSE AND GROUNDS

House Planned to Suit Features of Garden Suburb

THIS house is planned in order to take advantage of the special features of a garden suburb which is arranged with interior parks between the lots at the back of the house; the streets being curved in such a way as to permit of these parks and playgrounds. The house, which faces the north, therefore, is planned to have all of the principal living rooms on the south side facing the garden and the interior park. In most cases this plan could be used to better advantage by reversing it from left to right, thus making the breakfast room on the east side of the building. This is a detail, however, and would not apply in all cases. This type of plan has become more popular as persons have developed the garden idea instead of the old-fashioned unattractive front lawn. The long house with the living room on the garden side protects the gardens from the streets and gives it privacy it would not otherwise have. The drying green or service yard is often enclosed with a high lattice, on which vines are grown or a hedge. The dining room and living room open onto a terrace, which could be protected from the sun by a large awning, the terrace being used for an outside dining room in summer time. The breakfast room is a feature that people are beginning to realize the advantage of. Potted flowers could be used in this room in profusion; making it a modification of the conservatory feature, which is sometimes used in very much larger houses.

It also gives an opportunity of making an attractive vista through the living room across the extreme dimension of the house, thus giving the appearance of spaciousness. The vista upon entering the house from the front door through the living room, and the large French windows to the garden, is also an attractive one. The kitchen is small. People are beginning to realize that a large kitchen is a disadvantage. This kitchen is planned in accordance with the principles which have been established after a great deal of study on kitchen efficiency, and is planned so as to make as few steps as possible in doing the kitchen work. The servant's bedroom and bathroom are also in close communication with the kitchen, it not being necessary for the servants to go into the family portion of the house unless it is to do the work. The square hall at the head of the stairs on the second floor could be attractively furnished and used as a small sitting room. This is especially desirable in a case of sickness, when a person is unable to go downstairs and does not wish to be confined to the bedroom. This plan is necessarily restricted in size by existing conditions; two feet extra in depth would add a great deal to the attractiveness of the house.

The street front of the building is designed to give a reserved and domestic look to the building. The lower story is stucco, cream-white in color, with a rough trowelled finish. The second story is covered with clapboards ten inches wide, painted white. The roof is shingled with dipped stained shingles; two different shades of green and one of brown being used. The entrance door is mitis green.

The interior finish in living room and dining room is chestnut stained grayish-brown, the floors of birch stained, the trim in bedrooms and service portion being painted.

This house is to cost approximately $5,000, including the masonry, carpentry, hardware, sheet metal work, painting, electric wiring, lighting fixtures, plumbing and heating. The following is an itemized estimate:—

Excavation	$160
Masonry	1,200
Carpentry	2,100
Painting	500
Plumbing	400
Electric wiring	300
Lighting fixtures	100
Steam heating	300
	$5,000

ASPARAGUS

Most persons think of asparagus as something difficult to grow and not to be considered for the ordinary garden, but it is one of the easiest vegetables to raise and can be depended upon year after year to furnish an abundance of this delicious food, which is always in demand to buy.

It has the advantage, too, of coming early in the season. It requires a rich soil; a warm mellow loam is best suited to it. Stable and other fertilizers should be used freely. The seed should be sown as early as the soil can be cultivated in the spring. When the plants have made a showing thin them out to two or three inches apart. For the permanent bed make trenches in the enriched soil six to eight inches apart and eight to ten inches deep. Set the one or two-year-old roots about two feet apart in the trenches and cover lightly at first, gradually filling in with soil and old compost. Two-year-old roots may be had for $1.25 a hundred.

After the asparagus bed has been made it should be well fertilized. Some persons think that an application of salt acts as a fertilizer, but in reality it only helps to keep down the weeds.

The plant of the asparagus is beautiful and makes a splendid background for scarlet salvias or any other bright-hued flowers in the late summer.

CABBAGE.

Any good garden soil will grow cabbage. A northern exposure is best for late cabbage and a heavy soil may be used. The cabbage is a gross feeder and there is no danger from making the ground too rich. Twenty tons or more per acre of manure can be used, and this may be supplemented with from 500 to 1,500 pounds of commercial fertiliser for an acre. Commercial fertiliser is especially advisable for early cabbage where the object is to develop marketable cabbages quickly.

If the ground has been manured for the fall and ploughed, it should be again ploughed in the spring and thoroughly worked to a depth of nine inches.

For early cabbage start the seeds about March 15. The seedlings are transplanted to two inches apart three weeks later, and will be ready for the open ground early in May. The plants are usually set on the level in rows 30 inches apart and 18 inches apart in the row. Late cabbage are usually grown from seed sown thinly in a cold frame early in May and the plants from these are set in the field about the middle of June, spacing the plants in rows 32 inches apart and 20 to 22 inches apart in the row.

The usual maintenance tillage should be given during the summer and the ground not allowed to become hard and compact or to dry out.

In the storing of late cabbage cut the heads during a dry day and store where good ventilation is possible. The air should be kept dry and the temperature as low as possible. The heads should be placed on slatted shelves far enough apart to store two or three tiers of cabbage, with a good chance of ventilation under the shelves. A confined atmosphere renders cabbage storage impossible.

CAULIFLOWER.

The cauliflower requires a cool rich loam. A northern exposure is best. Continuous growth is important, and anything that tends to check the plant in any way should be avoided. Dry weather often results in failure and where watering is possible it may be advisable. For early and late cauliflower start the seed and handle the same as for early and late cabbage, except that more careful attention should be given to detail in the development of plants. Like the cabbage, it takes about seven weeks to develop a stocky, properly hardened off plant. They may be spaced in the field the same as cabbage.

When the heads are three to four inches in diameter the leaves should be tied together over the head in order to develop a good, white flower.

CELERY.

Celery may be grown on almost any soil from light sandy to clay, and even muck or peaty soil may be used. The chief requirements are a soil retentive of moisture, but one well drained and rich in plant food. A rich sandy loam produces firm, crisp heads that keep best in storage and are superior in quality to the average celery grown in peaty or muck soils.

The objection of peaty or muck soils is that unless carefully fertilized, a pithy celery is obtained and a heavy clay is objectionable because of difficulty in working.

Farmyard manure is the best fertilizer. Twenty to thirty tons per acre may be used. The ground cannot be made too rich. Well-rotted manure is advised. Land fair in fertility with plenty of humus may be supplemented with commercial fertilisers of 1,000 to 1,500 pounds per acre. The ground should be thoroughly prepared and the manure well worked in with it by [illegible]

Plant, and Do It Now! Here Are Some Valuable Hints for the Amateur

"THE Man with the Hoe" was a phrase that had wide currency a few years ago. This year it will have to be the woman, the boy and the girl with the hoe if we are to turn out the amount of food that the government says it is our duty to provide.

The hoe should have a prominent place in the mind of every one who is a theoretical garden enthusiast. It might serve as the creat for those who propose to take up arms against hunger and famine. Those who have never tried to make the results level with their hopes and anticipations in gardening have no idea how difficult it is. There is going to be bitter disappointment among those who fancy that by donning a becoming smock, buying packages of seeds with decorative covers and putting them in the ground they are going to become benefactors as producers of food.

A woman who had been brought up in the city was overheard saying to her neighbor at the boarding house table, "It is the easiest thing in the world to raise potatoes. All you have to do is to cut them up and stick a piece in the ground and in the fall you dig it up and there are five or six whole potatoes where you put in the piece."

Now, potatoes are one of the most difficult of garden crops to grow. A man who raised them successfully last year paid out $152 an acre before he dug a single potato, and this year it would cost him more because seed potatoes and fertilisers are higher. It is of no use trying to muddle through with anything of that sort. It is not right to waste good seed potatoes in a hopeless venture. Leave them for those who know how and will put them to good use. There are other vegetables upon which you can vent your enthusiasm with a better prospect of getting something out of it.

But whatever your venture in practical gardening, do not start in unless you are able and willing to have a few backaches and to make sacrifices for the sake of your plot. Soil is a large part of the conditions for success. Good soil you must have, and if it is not good you must make it so. Even so, certain soil cannot be made good for certain crops, except at a prohibitive expense. Find out what you can grow on the soil at your command.

There are persons who know and who will give you the benefit of their knowledge. Take their advice. Planting is one of the easiest phases of gardening, next to talking about it. When your impatience vanishes before the sight of green heads showing about the brown earth, get your hoe ready and, as soon as the vegetables are well established, use the hoe diligently, not only to get rid of the weeds but to keep the soil stirred up for the good of the plants. If there is a drought work with the hoe and the cultivator will keep the vegetables from perishing. If the season is too wet, cultivation is more difficult, but whenever the soil will bear working get busy at once. Do not lose an hour, for one of the great games in gardening is to try to beat the weather. There are others—such as getting ahead of the pests, the insects, blights, &c.

There is nothing monotonous about gardening. You will not go stale if you have a garden, and the better it is the more exercise you will have.

Hopes are all right, but illusions must be cast on the rubbish heap. Stick by the hoe and your vegetables will not fail you.

Those who are enthused with the laudable desire to augment the food supply of the nation and the world will do well to remember that not only does one swallow not make a summer, but that one season's gardening, especially the amateur contribution, will not feed all the hungry mouths.

Immediate results, indeed, are badly wanted, but there is also a need for a long look ahead, a cultivation of the soil this year that will make it more productive next year; a planting that will supply future necessities as well as one for the hungry of to-day.

We have been sliding down hill agriculturally for a long time. Otherwise our bins would have been full and the replenishment of our larders would not have been so costly. We have abused and neglected the land; frequently we have abandoned it. We have not conserved its fertility. We have not set out fruit bearing orchards and vines or productive nut trees. We have gone heedlessly on our way applying efficiency to every line of business except the fundamental one of supplying an adequate amount of food.

Suddenly an emergency has confronted us and found us unprepared. Now we are panic stricken and are making haste to turn our lawns and our flower borders into vegetable gardens. Well and good. It will increase the food supply and it may arouse us to a realization of the value of keeping it as near the maximum as possible. It will be good for persons who have held themselves aloof from the soil to bend their backs in tribute to it, to feel the dirt on their hands and to learn something of the secret of tillage and of how the earth brings forth her increase.

It will be indeed worth while if it leads men and women to look beyond the pressing need of the hour and, when it has been provided for, to go on year by year doing their part to increase the productivity of the soil and to wrest from it enough food to prevent it being held at prohibitive prices by the favored few.

A crop of stones may be removed this year to make way for grain or vegetables next season.

If you are thinking of planting trees or shrubbery, put in a few apple, pear, peach and plum trees and some currants, gooseberries and raspberries. You will be helping the future food supply, which is your bounden duty, second only to helping out the present deficiency. Start a strawberry bed, a clump of rhubarb, an asparagus bed.

HERBS

Have a corner in your garden for herbs. They take up little room, endure hardships and will be found extremely useful. Most of them will do well in partial shade.

The useful mints should have a conspicuous place. The mint green (mentha vert) is the one that we depend upon for mint sauce. Although not so frequently used for seasoning potatoes and peas, it is excellent for that purpose. If prohibition does not interfere, the sprigs may be used for mint juleps. The spearmint is similarly used.

Catnip, or cat-mint, is a hardy perennial much prized by the pet cat and also used as a mild nerrine for children.

Sage is of wide use in culinary purposes, and Holt's mammoth sage never goes to seed as some of the sages do prematurely.

It is strange that more lavender is not used in this country. It is a beautiful plant. A hedge of it in full bloom is one of the loveliest sights imaginable. It should be sown early, as it is slow to germinate, and it may require a little winter protection. Nothing is nicer for scenting bed and personal linen than the dried leaves of this herb.

Sweet marjoram, sweet basil, thyme and summer savory are all sufficiently valuable for flavorings for soups, dressings and sauces to have places in the herb garden. Wormwood is used for medicinal purposes and caraway is cultivated for the seeds, which are used in cakes, confectionery and medicine.

Dill is an annual cultivated for its aromatic, pungent seeds. Rosemary is a hardy perennial with fragrant odor and a warm aromatic bitter taste. Tarragon is a flavoring much favored for salads and grows easily in most gardens.

Fennel is a herb used for the making of sauces and also as a vegetable.

One can easily sell any surplus of herbs, as there is an increasing demand and a great scarcity in the markets.

THE ONION

Among the vegetables that suddenly became luxuries this year was the lightly regarded but useful onion. Any one who is starting a garden this year should try his luck with onions. Experts say that on the average onions will make more money for the grower than beans or potatoes, ranking with cabbage.

Do not buy seed that is more than a year old, or it will not germinate readily. Select for the purpose some well known standard variety like the Red Globe. Early seeding is recommended.

You cannot grow a good onion crop on any kind of soil. The best is a rich light loam on a clay subsoil. It should have deep cultivation and the surface should be level and finely pulverized. Manure should be used generously.

Another plebeian vegetable that has taken high rank because of its high price this year is the cabbage. It will do well on drained soil if it has an abundance of manure.

In putting in the young plants set them as deep as possible without covering the hearts. This will make them firmer and protect them from winds and cold. As soon as they are well established they should be hoed and kept well cultivated. A little fertiliser will greatly stimulate their growth.

FOOD VINES

Probably you are thinking of planting vines around your little place this summer, and it will be a good thing to do. If you hesitate because you have an idea that in this time of extraordinary food need you must plant only utilitarian things, you may still have vines.

There is the grape vine. There is nothing more beautiful that covers a trellis or a pergola or grows over a porch or against a wall. An old fashioned house comes to mind, built a hundred years ago to comfort the bride, who had been transplanted to the Middle West from Virginia, very much on the lines of the old brick mansions in the Old Dominion State. There were porches upstairs and down, and over the railings of these spread Catawba grapevines, beautiful from frost to frost, and most of all when their richly hued clusters hung abundantly from the vines. Like many old places, this one had many outhouses, originally used for the various trades that had to be carried on on a self-sufficient place where numbers of persons were employed.

Probably there is no more satisfactory grape than the Concord, which flourishes in many climates and soils. Other good black grapes are the King, the Worden and the Moore's Early. Of the red or amber varieties, the Catawba, Brighton, Delaware and Regal are favored. The Niagara is the best white grape, the Winchell and Diamond being also recommended.

Even vegetables may be used as annual vines. A certain cottage had its porches covered with lima beans one season. The vine was thrifty and the yield heavy. They were very convenient to pick—another advantage.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How a Debt Was Collected

By WILLIAM CHANDLER

Among the strange people in the world the strangest to me are those who consider it their duty to give largely, but who in transactions of a business nature are inordinately mean.

Such characters are common among rich men, whose motive usually is to make something, even out of their donations—men who don't hide their light under a bushel. But Miss Euphemia Baxter was not at all such a person. Few knew of her charities. She supported an old woman for years who had been an intimate friend of her mother's. At the same time she beat her laundress down to starvation prices. She lived in a hall bedroom herself and spent a lot of money fixing up a home for an invalid aunt. It was the furniture to go into this home that I sold Miss Baxter.

Failing in sending out my regular collector, I thought I would try a woman. She came away after a tongue skirmish that decided her never to undertake such a task again.

I had a salesman, Frank Emery, in my employ, a good looking young fellow with one of the pleasantest smiles I ever saw on a man's face. Where other persons would scowl he would smile. He was invaluable as a salesman, especially since most of my customers were women. One of the other clerks used to say of him, "One of Frank's smiles sells a washstand, another sells a bureau, and when he shows his side grinders it means a whole bedroom set."

One day Frank said to me, "Mr. Ruggles, what'll you give me if I collect your debt from Miss Baxter?"

"I don't think any one can collect it, Frank," I replied. "I fancy the lady went in debt for it and has never been able to stop giving long enough to accumulate the amount of the bill. You can't squeeze blood out of a turnip."

"I'll tell you what I'll do, Mr. Ruggles. I didn't have any vacation last summer. The dull season is on now, and you can best spare me. Give me a few weeks' vacation and I'll see if I can get your money."

I acceded to his terms and, giving him a statement of the account—$142—sent him off to collect the debt in any way he might be able. The boys said that he'd get it in installments, giving a smile for each installment.

Three weeks passed before I heard a word from my collector. Then one day he came into the store, smiled and handed me the amount of Miss Baxter's indebtedness. I asked him how he had managed it, but he did not seem inclined to tell me. Indeed, he looked rather serious about it. This surprised me, for I had never known him to look serious about anything. But I got the story out of him piecemeal.

He had gone to Miss Baxter and told her he had heard that she was a tender hearted person. Would she kindly interest herself to get him employment? He was hungry and shabby (he wore a castoff suit), and he was not very strong. He could not do manual labor.

Quite likely it was the smile that did the business. Miss Baxter gave him the wherewithal to get something to eat while she was hunting a job for him. He put away the money, and she found plenty of jobs. But either they required too much strength or Frank was especially unfitted for them. He kept accepting donations from day to day, the lady having hard work to induce him to do so and only under promise that he should be permitted to return them as soon as she found a position for him. He very soon cleaned her out of all the ready money she possessed, after which she began to sacrifice what few valuables she owned, finally pawning her winter coat, which she greatly needed.

I declined to take money achieved in this way, which appeared to be a great relief to Frank. Having started out to collect the debt in his own peculiar way, he was bound to follow the matter to the bitter end. He managed to preserve his equanimity till the lady gave up her winter coat for his benefit. That broke him up. I told him to return the money to Miss Baxter. He said that could only be done in some roundabout manner, but it would be done.

Before the next season opened one of my competitors offered Frank better pay than I was giving him, and I was obliged to double his salary. Instead of giving me a single smile when I told him of the raise, smiles seemed to bubble out all over him.

"It's not on my own account alone, Mr. Ruggles," he said, "that I rejoice. I am engaged, and this raise enables me to marry."

"Who is the lady, Frank?" I asked.

"Miss Euphemia Baxter."

"Great Scott!" I exclaimed. "You don't mean it!"

"I do. The truth is that while I was getting money out of her to pay her debt to you I was getting sweet on her. At last, instead of trying to collect the debt, I was testing her to see how far she would sacrifice herself for me."

"Have you confessed that you were deceiving her?"

"You bet I haven't, and I never will. I've got the money she gave me yet. I'm trying to find a way to give it to her to help her with the trousseau."

"Hope you'll succeed. Make out a list of articles you'll need to furnish a house and they shall be my wedding gift."

SHUTTING UP THE SHOP.

No Brightly Lighted Show Windows at Night in South America.

It is rather surprising to the foreigner visiting South American countries for the first time to find most of the best and prettiest shops almost hermetically sealed at night. If the building is of the older style of construction the heavy shutters are closed and locked by iron bars; if a more modern building the flexible sliding doors and windows are completely drawn, and the passerby can see nothing within the shop.

All is darkness save the light of the street lamps. No brilliantly lighted windows help to add cheer and brightness to the street.

In European and American cities the average merchant is willing to spend money freely for nightly display of his wares and merchandise. He realizes and appreciates the publicity. The evening crowds upon our streets are highly entertained and even instructed by window displays of the busy streets.

Herein lies the difference, for, as a rule, the South American streets, busy and attractive during the day, are quite the reverse at night. Even in some of the larger cities the old custom of hermetically sealing the shop at night prevails.

Suspended Animation.

As we descend in the scale of animal life we find that what kills the higher animals does not injure the lower. Cut a polyp in two and you have two living polyps instead of one dead polyp. Break off a lobster's claw and another will grow. You may, it has been said, freeze a fly, but you cannot freeze it to death. There are infusoria called "wheel animalcules." These rotifers have many curious qualities, among which is that of suspending animation for an indefinite period without ceasing to live. Colonies of rotifers may be desiccated and rendered apparently lifeless, and in this condition they may be kept for months and years and possibly centuries. A single drop of water will restore them to life, and the wheel bearers will instantly resume their functional activity precisely at the point where it was broken off.

Hopeless Inquiry.

A stranger was questioning Helen, trying to get her to say her father's first name.

"What does your mother call your papa?"

"She calls him my daddy."

"Yes, but when she wants to speak to him what does she say?"

"She says, '650, please.'" was Helen's reply.

"I don't mean when she calls him at the office. When she tells him to get up in the morning what does she call him?"

"She says to be ready in about four minutes."—Youth's Companion.

MUST TREAT PROFITEER SAME AS BLACKMAILER.

Baron Rhondda to First Attack the Bread Problem.

LONDON. — Invited to make a statement as to his intended policy as food controller, Baron Rhondda yesterday told the press that it would be obviously premature to enter into details, but he could say that the government had given him ample powers even should it be necessary to the extent of taking over the food supply of the country and the adoption of strong measures to check all speculation in the necessities of life.

"The man who seeks to profit by the necessities of his country at this hour," said Lord Rhondda, "is nothing short of a blackmailer, and must be treated as such."

The controller added that attention would first be directed towards the securing of a reductin in the price of bread, which was the urgent need of the moment.

Nerves Weak Had Hysterics

Orillia Lady Tells of Her Pitiable Condition when the Nerves Gave Way and She Became Sleepless, Irritable and Excited.

ORILLIA, Ont., May 30.—There is an abundance of proof found right here in Orillia that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is unrivalled as a means of forming new, rich blood and building up the exhausted nervous system

At this season almost everybody feels the need of restorative, tonic treatment to keep up vitality and ward off the tired, languid feelings. This letter will give you some idea of the splendid results to be obtained by using this great food cure:

Mrs. Percy Moulding, 28 West street, Orillia, Ont., writes:

"Some years ago my nerves got the better of me. I became so bad that on one occasion, during a thunderstorm, I had a severe attack of hysterics. Then I became anxious about my condition. It was sleeplessness and nervous debility that were my trouble. Some nights it would be 1 o'clock before I could get to sleep. Knowing the good results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I commenced a treatment. I took about seven boxes, gradually I could feel my nerves becoming steady and my appetite returning. I could sleep well, and stay alone without any difficulty. Some little time ago I commenced losing in weight, and I began using the Nerve Food again as a tonic. I used only two boxes, and recovered the weight I had lost. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and when I see anyone looking ill or nervous I say, 'Get busy and use some Nerve Food.'"

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Machinery Can Do No Wrong.

The machine by which railway tickets are printed gives a very amusing little show of intelligence, or what looks to be very like it. Railway tickets are not, as might be supposed, printed in large sheets and afterward cut up.

The cardboard is cut into tickets first and printed one by one afterward. The little blank cards are put in a pile in a kind of perpendicular spout, and the machine slips a bit of metal underneath the bottom of the spout and pushes out the lowest ticket in the pile to be printed and consecutively numbered.

"It is no use trying to print a bad ticket," says the attendant. "The machine finds out an imperfect blank in an instant and flatly refuses to have anything to do with it. Look here." He tears off the corner of one of the bits of card and puts it into the spout with the others, and you watch to see what happens.

One by one the blank cards are pushed out to the printing part of the mechanism with swiftness and precision until the mutilated ticket gets to the bottom and tries to smuggle through.

On the instant the machine stops dead and refuses to budge again until somebody comes and removes the imposter.

Pull out the damaged ticket, and the mechanism will set briskly to work again.—Chambers' Journal.

Whistler Was a Dandy.

If taking infinite pains with his appearance means dandyism, then Whistler was a dandy. The very word pleased him, and he used it often, in American fashion, to express perfection or charm or beauty. Never was any man more particular about his person and his dress. He was as careful of his hair as a woman, though there was no need of the curling tongs with which he has been reproached; the difficulty was to restrain his curls and keep them in order. The white lock gave just the right touch. However fashion changed, he always wore the mustache and little imperial which other West Point men of his generation retained through life. Even his thick, bushy eyebrows were trained, and they added to the humorous or sardonic expression of the deep blue eyes from which many shrank.—Pennell's "Life of Whistler."

AN ANCIENT CLIFF CITY.

The Ruins of Its Primitive Dwellings in Walnut Canyon.

Walnut canyon, near Flagstaff, Ariz., contains some of the most interesting ruins on the continent. The canyon itself is remarkable, being a thousand feet deep, a quarter mile in width at the top and a few hundred feet at the bottom. The sides do not rise up in gentle slopes, but leap upward, tier upon tier, a giant limestone stairway. Here were conditions that appealed to primitive man. The smooth shelf or ledge formed a floor, the projecting rock a ceiling, the sloping strata rear walls. He had but to throw up front and side walls and a home was completed, with a floor that would never wear out and a roof that would never leak.

It is estimated that there are at least a thousand of these primitive dwellings in the Walnut canyon. There is but a single entrance to this cliff city. The trail leads over the face and down the sides of the cliff and on through the ruins of one of these houses. When the walls of this building were standing it completely filled the width of the ledge. As no one could enter without passing through this house or gateway, one man, armed with a primitive stone ax, might well have stood off an army.

All articles of furniture have been carried away, but there are still traces of a fireplace, and the blackened ceiling tells of its long occupancy. In the ashes and litter have been found broken pieces of pottery—red, black and gray—decorated in colors and with patterns displaying their artistic talent. In small pockets, dug out in the rear walls and carefully sealed up, are still occasionally found pieces of cloth of hemp and fiber of yucca, corncobs, squash shells, beans, etc.—Exchange.

A Prominent Socialist Explains Leaving The American Committee

Wilhelmstrasse Put Life Into Proposed Stockholm Socialist Congress, He Asserts—Stood Alone Against Russo-German Peace in Executive Body's Deliberations.

WANTS PEACE OF DEMOCRACY

PHILADELPHIA, June 22.—In a special signed article John Spargo, one of the five leaders of the Socialist party who made up the National Executive Committee, explains his action in resigning from the committee and opposing the other four members of the Executive Committee's action on the proposed Stockholm "peace" conference. Mr. Spargo writes in part as follows:

"The records of the party show that proposals to hold an international socialist congress for the purpose of bringing about peace received no support until Germany—official Germany—began to talk of peace. Then, as soon as it became quite evident that the German socialists were desirous that such a step should be taken, proposals for the holding of an international congress were made. I succeeded in preventing the proposition to hold a congress from being made the occasion of another piece of pro-Germanism. I wrote the manifesto which was adopted on the subject, a manifesto which set forth a sound socialist proposal for a congress which should aim to effect peace upon terms beneficial to the working people in all lands.

"Nothing came of our proposal for some time, during which time the majority leaders of the German socialists were unremittingly working to bring about the congress. Then came the invitation of the Stockholm congress. I was willing to vote for the sending of three delegates to that congress, upon condition that they be instructed to oppose to the full extent of their power, any and all attempts to bring about a separate Russo-German peace. Istood alone on the Executive Committee in making that demand and so withdrew my vote. I would not consent to the American socialist party being made a cat's paw of German imperialism. When three delegates were elected to Stockholm, I made another attempt to prevent that, by moving that the delegates be instructed to oppose all proposals for a separate Russo-German peace, and that they insist that the phrase "no indemnities," so much in use, should be frankly defined so as to make it quite clear that it did not preclude satisfactory material compensation to Belgium by Germany and that upon no other terms should they, in the name of the American party, agree to any programme containing the phrase. That motion did not receive a single vote besides my own.

"In view of these facts, it was something of a relief to read in the papers that, after all, the party would not be represented at Stockholm."

WANT PEACE OF DEMOCRACY

"Germany seeking peace is as sinister as Germany seeking war. She wants peace, now that she cannot have a triumph, which will leave the seed of future wars; a peace which will leave her full armed and ready to fight again in the not-far distant future. That is not the peace of democracy or of socialism. It is not the peace which this great nation will accept. The peace we want, and to secure which we must pledge our all, is the peace which victory of democratic ideals over Prussian ideals will give.

The corrupt and dark and dishonourable methods which Germany uses to make war are well matched by the methods with which she seeks pesce. One's gorge rises at the spectacle of German socialists acting as agents of the Kaiser trying to betray their Russian comrades into making a separate peace. What ignoble prostitution of a great cause; what a betrayal of comradeship.

"I venture here the prophecy that if the Provisional Russian government makes a separate peace with Germany the day is not far distant when the Romanoff dynasty will be restored. The ablest men in the provisional government realize this fully.

"Here in America the socialist party is doomed. The very word has acquired a hateful significance for many thousands of Americans who are socialists and internationalists, and neither sentimental pasifists nor apologists for German militarism.

"Fortunately there is a new party emerging, a great party of popular freedom, of industrial democracy, which will organize the social idealism and moral earnestness of America for practical achievement. This new party will be American in its ideals.

"Expressing socialism in terms of American life and experience, this new party will stand squarely for democratic public ownership and control of the things, processes and functions which are social in character. It will not cling to formulae and let the substance of the socialist hope pass by unnoticed. It will be an earnest expression of the moral vision of America, and will instinctively and consciously relate itself to the moral challenge which inhere in our social and economic life. It will make its appeal not to one class alone, but to all men and women of good will and social vision. It will be a party of the toilers, not because it sets them apart, but because its principles carried into effect must bring their emancipation."

Memorial Service at Millbrook for Signaller Harry Orr

Young Soldier Who Enlisted Here as Bandsman with the 93rd Battalion Was Killed in Action on May 9th —Impressing Service in Methodist Church

The services in the Millbrook Methodist Church on Sunday evening last were very largely attended, the auditorium being filled to the doors and many took seats in the gallery. The service was held in honour of the memory of one of Millbrook's heroes, namely the late Signaller Harry Orr, who was killed in action.

The church was beautifully decorated with flags and flowers, and the honour roll was draped with the Union Jack. The music by the choir was in keeping with the occasion, and the services, although bright, were solemn and impressive. The sermon by the pastor was earnest, eloquent and sympathetic. The following is a chief synopsis of the sermon:

"I would like to draw your attention to two passages in God's Holy Word, one, the 15th Chapter of John and the 13th verse, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends," and the other in the 14th Chapter of Romans, the 7th and 8th verses, "For none of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therfore, or die, we are the Lord's."

No man liveth to himself, no man dieth to himself. Whether he livetn or dieth, there are others concerned in the fact that he is alive, and others are deeply concerned when they hear of his death. One of our fellow citizens has given his brave young life on the field of honour, and the large number here to-night, is strong proof of the truth of the text. Your interest is proved by your presence here to-night. We are interested in the various movements in the young man's life. The more we realize that society is bound together in brotherhood we see that we do not live only for ourselves, but for others. A brother has been removed from us. We are deeply concerned as to his spiritual experiences. Our Saviour has said, "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." That is not true simply because our Saviour said it. It was a fact before our Saviour came to the earth. What more can a man do than to lay down his life. I know we may be led to say we do not know what prompted these individuals to do this. I do not think it is our place to criticize a man who has done his duty as a hero and a soldier. When we think of Thomas Dee, Arthur Hahn, Charles McCusker, and the young man, Pte. Hary Orr, in memof whom this service is being held, we think of the thousands being marshalled away in all their young manhood, laying down their lives, prompted by the spirit of sacrifice. When a young man such as Pte. Orr, residing in your village, educated in your schools, interested in the public affairs of your village, listens to the call for manly young men, and after deliberately and carefully thinking it over, gives himself, with the knowledge that there is a possibility he will never come back, what is he doing but sacrificing. He knew that he contributed his part in enlisting. He knew the sacrifice he was making. A young man of bright intellizence, scarcely more than 20 years, he naturally could have looked forward to happiness and expect that in his staying in this great country there was a bright future for him, but of his own free will he takes his fortune on the field of battle, and we say is it worth while? Sometimes we hear people say if they knew what they were going to, they would stay at home. I do not know of anything that Pte. Orr has ever sent in a message home to this effect. Was it worth while that he make such sacrifice? If he were back again do you think he would say no I will not do it? For what then did he give his life? All these men have practically said, I am willing to die for our Empire, King and friends. I would not only speak a message to the friends of one whose name has been mentioned to-night, but we think of the many who are on our honour roll and the many thousands who have gone.

Yes, he sacrificed something. He left things behind which we all hold dear. First of all he went to fight for honour against dishonour. For 26 years past we have heard critics say, the age of chivalry is past, we are becoming commercialized until commercialism has become a vice, but I thank God that the critics were wrong, for we still have men and women of honour in our Empire. They are worthy sons and daughters of worthy fathers and mothers. The nation's honour was at stake, and so I say he went to fight against dishonour. The Germans sacked the defenseless towns of Belgium and France. They have dishonoured in ways that are nameless the women and children in the countries over which they have run. By their awful acts they have proven themselves to be a dishonourable foe. He went to sacrifice his life for freedom. There has been growing now, for a century, the recognition of the rights of the single individual. One man has as much right to live an honourable life as another. The Kaiser believes he is different from other people, called of God, given divine right to rule, whose acts, whose deeds no one has any right to question. And during all these years of war he has surely used the name of Almighty God as though they were partners in this awful business. Now, if it had been for Pte. Orr and others, if it had not been for the gathering of the lion's whelps, I believe that that mighty force would have stretched itself out until we would be under German despotism.

He went to fight for right against barbaric might. We have been led to think that right is right and wrong is wrong. We have always been taught that the only fit and proper thing for men to do is the right thing, no matter what the consequences may be. Not so in Germany. They are taught that the might to do a thing gives them the right. I say he left all behind, he went to fight for honour against dishonour, for freedom against despotism, for right against barbaric might. As we think of our homes, as we thing of the virtue, and morality in our land, we think what it would mean if the ideal of Germanic despotism ever got control. I know we have a few who say it will make very little difference if it makes any. They do not know what they are talking about. Thank God we have had men who have been moved by their love for righteousness and homes, as we think of the virtue, and have gone forward to answer honour's call.

He went to fight for God against idolatry. In Germany it is practically Ceasar worship over again. I think to-night, of the times a year ago last winter, when we had so many of the young men at our morning service, and the reverent attention they paid, and although I hear some things about their conduct, I also think of them in the front line of trenches, before the battle, some of them thinking of home, some of them thinking of their mothers, and some praying.

Here we are to-night honouring the memory of one who has given his life. God forbid that we should not give him the honour he deserves. God forbid that we should not continue to pray for these boys. Do you know that every moment there is being burned in upon these poor fellows, what it means to lay down their lives for their friends. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." They feel it, they know it, they experience it.

I suppose none of us will ever forget this memorial service we held here to-night, for one who has given his life for his king, country, honour, village and home, for his own mother and friends, and we must not forget it is no light thing. Who can measure the value of a life. God forbid that the awful brutality of war should ever make us think lightly of a human life. God has given to some, the strength to help the weak. Even the weak are to be protected, therefore the strong men are willing to fight. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Pte. Orr, side by side with others, has filled a soldier's grave in France. God grant that the mother may yet have that righteous pride which belongs to a mother of that class, a mother of a son who has given his life for his country. May we feel to-night that in as much as no man liveth to himself, no man dieth unto himself. May we never forget our Canadian soldiers across the seas, in our prayers."

The singing of the National Anthem and the pronouncing of the Benediction closed one of the most solemn and impressive services ever held in the church.

PIMPLES and BOILS

ALL OVER FACE AND BODY

When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples and boils will break out all over the body, and although they are not dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Miss Sylvia Swanson, Theodore, Sask., writes: "I am letting you know what great value your B.B.B. has been to me. A year ago I started to grow pale and weak, the cause being bad blood. I got so many pimples and boils all over my face and body that I would not let strangers see me, and I used to avoid company. I tried many remedies but all seemed a failure. I read about how good your B.B.B. had been to thousands of people so I got a bottle and after I had finished the second one my pimples and boils had all disappeared. People thought it a miracle how well I looked.

"Your grand old remedy sure has been as good as gold and better, to me".

Burdock Blood bitters has been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name appears on the wrapper

GERMANY.

Temple of science we named you,
Proudly your banner unfurled!
Leader in progress we claimed you,
Teacher and priest of the world,
Science concentred on slaughter,
Thus was the carnage begun,
Scorn in the eyes of your daughter,
Pride in the heart of your son.

Lover of art and of reason,
Prince of philosophy crowned.
(Ah, God, the depth of the treason
That leveled Art's fane to the ground!)
Reason bent solely on slaughter—
What have her votaries won?
Grief in the heart of your daughter,
Rage in the eyes of your son.

Preacher of law and of order,
Training your sons to obey,
Poverty forced from your border,
Nation in battle array,
Fattened like beasts for the slaughter!
See what your culture has done.
Dust in the mouth of your daughter,
Blood in the eyes of your son!

DRESS NOTES

Stunning evening dresses are being made of dotted net. Each dot is embroidered in a colour.

Many of the smart gingham frocks pushing their way into prominence are made with short sleeves.

Wrist puffs add a crisp daintiness to summer frocks of printed voiles. As a rule the puffs are of white organdie and are tied with black velvet ribbon.

Very beautiful are the new pearl buttons, in which rainbow tints are noticeable. These are an effective trimming on new wash skirts.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no strangling for breat at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Brown Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"For years I suffered so sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. At times I could hardly walk, for if I stepped on a little stone I would almost faint. One day I did faint and my husband was sent for and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I would faint just the same and had the same pains.

A friend who is a nurse said for me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home."—Mrs. W. C. THE BRITISH RAID GERMAN POSITIONS

FRENCH STOP HEAVY ENEMY ATTACKS

Successful Raids At Several Points Made By The British

General Haig Reports Casualties Inflicted on the Enemy and Prisoners Taken---Germans Stage Another Violent Assault on French Positions ---Penetrate the Front Trenches But Are Driven Out the French Official Communique Announces

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, June 22.—British forces last night made successful raids on the German lines at different points on the British front, Field Marshal Haig reported to-day. "South-east of Quesnt, in the neighbourhood of Wesve Chapelle, and near Armentieres, we made successful raids, inflicting casualties on the enemy and securing prisoners," he reported.

PARIS, June 22.—Another violent German assault—the second in two days against commanding position on the French front—was launched yesterday east of Mont Tetion, on a front of a quarter of a mile, the War Office announced to-day. "The enemy penetrated our front trenches, but was driven out," the statement concluded. The attack was made after heavy artillery fire. The statement also declared sharp fighting east of Vauxhaillon, where yesterday the German attack centred and a spread of sharp artillery fighting over the region south of Rhein.

At night, south of Le Fere, a successful French raid brought back prisoners. Enemy raids in Reniores Wood (Lorraine) were fruitless.

Special to the Examiner:

(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE (via London), June 21.—The enemy is still very nervous along the Western front. The slightest sign of an abnormal movement on the part of the British or Canadian troops brings down what the official report characterizes as "hurricane barrage," the enemy depending chiefly upon his guns for the holding of the line. To counteract this, our heavy artillery is taking an daily for destruction several of the enemy's more aggressive barriers. Enemy guns, large and small, are ranged along the Canadian front and in the rear. Some are over six miles behind the enemy trenches, and the duty of the aviators sent out to check up the condition of the German batteries is no sinecure. Its peril seems to be an added attraction, for there is no lack of candidates for admission to the ranks of Eagleta.

The drafts from the Canadian depots in England to make good the wastage in the corps are of good quality. I hear nothing but praise for the new men, especially the artillery drafts.

ATHENS, June 22.—President Venizelos, of the Provisional Government, has left Salonika and arrived at Keratsini, presumably on his way to Athens.

ROME, June 22.—All doubt of the permanence of the Boselli Cabinet appeared to have been swept away to-day by the enthusiastic reception accorded in Italian newspapers and by the people to the war aims expressed in Premier Boselli's and Foreign Minister Sonnino's speeches to the Chamber. Sonnino was hailed as Italy's man of the hour in editorial comments.

LONDON, June 22.—Nicholas Romanoff, former Czar, is to be placed on trial, according to the Labourite members of Parliament, returned from Petrograd to-day. They are James Thorne and James O'Grady. Minister of War Kerensky was quoted by them as asserting that papers had been found proving that the former Czar and a number of other officials planned a separate peace. A number of members of the Court party also must stand trial, it was said, for their efforts to deliver Russia to Germany's hands.

(By Wm. G. Shepherd.)

PETROGRAD, June 22.—"I and the citizens of Petrograd pessimistic, but I think the situation in Russia is improving," declared Former Senator Root, chairman of the American Mission, to the United Press to-day. "The only danger comes from Germany. The incident of the deportation of the Swiss Socialist, Robert Grimmis, is very significant. Through the failure of his efforts, Germany has lost all hope of a separate peace."

The Petrograd press to-day was filled with enthusiastic comments over the extremely meagre reports indicating almost a revolution for democracy in Spain. The people are eager for fuller details.

LONDON, June 22.—"Britain might just as well make up her mind that there can be no sudden diminution in the loss from German submarines," the Times warned its readers to-day. The lesson is, the "thunderer" added, that strict economy must be practiced by all, in both this country and France. The arming of merchant vessels is making rapid progress, and there is fair prospect of a substantial increase in the available merchant tonnage of the Allies at no distant date. The editorial asserted the Admiralty statistics show clearly that the menace of enemy submarines has in no sense abated. "We have had only two worse weeks than last week."

DETROIT, Mich., June 22.—The directors of the Ford Motor Co. to-day decided to donate five hundred thousand dollars worth of Ford ambulances to the United States Red Cross for war purposes.

LONDON, June 22.—Official reports from Rome indicate that the Italians are again active on the Dolomites and Julian fronts, carrying spur and summit of hills in surprise actions, and advancing some distance in many parts of the line.

I MAKE MEN

I am the moulder of manhood.

I take boys and young men in the plastic, impressionable period and enlighten them in the art of living—fit them for success by teaching them how to be clean, strong, efficient.

I am a trellis to which the tendrils of youth can cling in healthy, happy, well-ordered growth, avoiding snarls and tangles due to ignorance, idleness, neglect.

In an age notable for powerful allurements of the forces of evil, I constantly present virtue in its true attractiveness. I mix morality with mirth, flavour discipline with fun, and exalt always the glory of strength—physical, intellectual, spiritual.

Less than a century ago I was but a thought in the mind of a man. To-day I influence for good a million members, touching every civilized nation, and growing—growing—growing.

I am a grain of seed which a man to. and cast into his garden, and it grew and waxed into a great tree, and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.

I am at work in Peterborough, thoroughly equipped and organized for the service of young men and boys.

I am the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

CAPT. BURNHAM TALKS OF CHANCES OF AN ELECTION

Member For West Peterboro' Discusses the Conscription of the "Financial Slacker" in the Course of Yesterday's Debate

NO "ARTFUL DODGER"

OTTAWA, June 22.—In the debate on the Conscription Bill yesterday, J. H. Burnham, of West Peterborough, who a week ago intimated that he would not support the bill, because it did not conscript wealth as well as man power, made a speech that was chiefly marked by a lengthy and involved argument that if a mandate from the people was necessary it should be a mandate given by way of a general election rather than a referendum. The Government should assume responsibility and not try any "artful dodger process" such as a referendum. There could be no question of justification of the Government's course in going to the people if that was decided upon.

Mr. Burnham had something to say about the "financial slacker" who was just as much in need of compulsion as the man who would not enlist. He characterized as "rot" the arguments that conscription of wealth was an abstract phrase unintelligible to those who used it so glibly. Mr. Burnham admitted that there was something in the argument of those who claimed that 100,000 men could not be taken without injury to Canadian industry and quoted along that line the opinion of Sir Joseph Flavelle that the sending of further men overseas might be expected to result in some impairment of industrial efficiency.

TRUCKS ARE LOADED BY MEANS OF HOPPER

Little Time is Lost in Hauling Gravel to the City—Rebuilding the Roads of North Monaghan

It takes about an hour and a half to make a round trip with one of the big five-ton trucks of the Quaker Oats Company. The trucks are at present hauling gravel from the Company's pit in North Monaghan to the site of the new plant. The trucks are loaded at the pit by means of a hopper. Scrapers are used to fill the hopper. By the time the Company get through they will have built up one of the finest roads in North Monaghan. Men are employed each day in roadmaking and all the gravel necessary to make a good job is being used. As the Reeve of North Monaghan remarked the Company reconstructed one of the culverts in a more substantial manner than the township would have done, using heavy square timbers and double planking on top.

PTE. TOM ALLEN OF MILLBROOK MAKES THE SUPREME SACRIFICE

Son of Rev. Canon Allen Who Went Overseas With a Reinforcing Draft For the Princess Pats, Dies of Wounds ---7187 Members of C. E. F. Under Care of Hospital Commission---To-day's General Military News.

His many local friends will hear with deep regret that Pte. Tom Allen of Millbrook, who was reported wounded several days ago, is now officially reported to have died of wounds in France. Pte. Allen was well known in Peterborough, having been a law student in the office of Mr. R. R. Hall. Pte. Allen enlisted in one of the University Companies which left Canada as a re-inforcing draft for the Princess Patricias, Canadian Light Infantry, and was at the front with that famous unit for a long time.

LIEUT. MORRISON HOME.

Lieut. D. E. Morrison of the Royal Flying Corps, is home on a short leave, the guest of his brother, Mr. Robt. Morrison, 599 Bolivar street, and is being given a hearty welcome home by his many friends. Lieut. Morrison originally enlisted as a private in the Mechanical Transport Section of the Canadian Army Service Corps at Ottawa, in April, 1915, and afterwards was made Corporal at Valcartier Camp. In order to get overseas quickly he transferred to the 41st French Canadian Battalion, and went to England with that unit in October, 1915. In England he was transferred to the headquarters staff of the 4th Canadian Division as a driver, and served in that capacity in France until February of this year, when he returned to England and qualified as a lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps. He will return overseas in a short time.

LONDON, June 21.—The new list of certified occupations for the guidance of English tribunals in granting exemption from military service, issued to-day, will interest Canada in view of the similar system proposed under the Canadian compulsion scheme.

This system of certifying certain occupations as being considered to be of national importance has been in existence here since the adoption of compulsion. The latest list merely a revision of former ones, the main matter being the necessity of getting more men for the army. Certain trades have been left out or the age at which men should be exempted has been raised. The inclusion of an occupation in the list does not automatically exempt anybody. Each person must obtain personal exemption.

Trades to which general reservation applies comprise engineemen, boiler firemen, electricians, machine and toolmakers, chemists, coopers and carters, especially those carrying heavy goods and food. Reservations in particular trades are varied, including workers in mines, quarries, metal, engineering, shipbuilding, textile, clothing, agriculture, printing, transport, building, cement, pottery, glass, firebrick, chemical, oil, paint, leather and food trades and workers in public utility services. There are also recommendations to tribunals concerning the exemption of men in new medical category. Every applicant to the tribunal is expected previously to submit himself to the recruiting medical board, otherwise the tribunal must deem him fit for the general service.

OTTAWA, June 21.—Figures issued by the Military Hospitals Commission to-day show that on June 13 there were 7,178 members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force under the commission's care. Of these 5,916 were convalescents, 838 were patients in sanatoria for tuberculosis and 424 were in other institutions, chiefly general hospitals. The total shows an increase of 35 since June 8.

A report received from the Director of Medical Services in London shows that on May 25 there were 22,732 members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, including 765 officers in hospitals in the United Kingdom. This figure is only 18 higher than the corresponding total for May 18.

The new total is made up thus: In Canadian primary hospitals, 3,499; in Canadian special hospitals 1,816; in Canadian convalescent hospitals, 5,011; in special sanatoria for tuberculosis, 76, and in "British," that is, non-Canadian hospitals, 12,160.

Of the 22,562 patients, 11,146 were sick and 11,416 were wounded.

GALT, June 21.—At a largely attended meeting of the Galt Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, the following resolution was unanimously passed: "That the Galt Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada considers that time should no longer be wasted in temporizing on the methods to be adopted by this country in the vigorous prosecution of the war, and we, therefore, call on the Government to put into force immediately conscription, and that copies of this resolution be sent to the Premier and Mr. F. S. Scott, M.P."

Mr. Wm. Saxby has received a telegram from Halifax to the effect that his son, Lance-Corp. W. Saxby, who went overseas with the 21st Canadian Battalion, has arrived in Canada. He will likely reach home next week. A number of other wounded Peterborough soldiers have reached Canada in the last draft of invalided men.

Festival of St. John the Baptist

Address by Bro. Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D

Impressive Scenes In House Yesterday

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Led the Applause That Followed Pardee's Speech, Paying Respect to the Profound Conviction Expressed By Liberal Whip.

FEATURES OF DEBATE

OTTAWA, June 21.—Parliament, for weeks attuned to politics, to-day paid tribute to convictions. Members on both sides of the Chamber sat in respectful and sympathetic silence while Mr. E. F. Pardee spoke the earnest words which recorded the first difference of a lifetime with his distinguished leader. The close association and affection of the Chief Liberal Whip for his "Chief" has been a parliamentary tradition for years. To both men Parliament threw off its customary cynical cloak. It yielded homage. Mr. Pardee's voice choked twice as he paid his feeling tribute to "the man I have been proud to follow since I was a boy and knew enough to be a Liberal," Sir Wilfrid Laurier bent his head upon his hands, and frankly drew his handkerchief and wiped his eyes. And when the young Liberal lieutenant concluded his impressive eighteen minute speech with the declaration: "I have thought on these matters so long and so earnestly that my conclusions are no longer opinions—they have become convictions," it was the veteran leader, paying respect to profound conviction, who led the applause in which a moved and sympathetic House enthusiastically cheered and unanimously joined.

RESPECT FOR THOSE WHO DIFFER.

Mr. Pardee supported conscription and opposed a referendum. He answered affirmatively his own question: "Is Canada prepared to say, so far as she is able, she will stand —with all her resources in men and money—between German rule and Canadian freedom?" He voiced his respect for French-Canadian Liberals who differed from him, alluding to the patriotic fight they had waged in their native Province against the ominous and insidious doctrines of agitators whose aims were parochial and whse objects were detrimental to Canada and the Empire.

WHY OPPOSED TO REFERENDUM.

He stated with the utmost frankness the reason for his opposition to a referendum. Conscription had been peremptorily hurled at a people unprepared for it—a people who had received repeated Government assurances that it would never come—without any preparatory education to bring the public mind to a state of calm and sober judgment. Under these conditions, he believed conscription would be defeated on a referendum, "and the door shut absolutely in the face of recruiting, and in the face of all other kinds of conscription which ought to be enacted." Mr. Pardee faced the objection that he was going against the will of the people by expressing his conviction that the crisis called for leadership.

HONEST EFFORT DEMANDED.

The Chief Liberal Whip spoke plainly and without recrimination.

AN INVITATION TO CAR OWNERS

Turn out with your car on July 2nd and give the returned soldiers—the Great War Veterans—a good time at the big celebration at the Exhibition Grounds. If your car will be available to carry any of the soldiers, ring up F. L. Roy or R. Cotton and say how many you can accommodate. Every car owner in Peterborough is asked to decorate his car with flags and join in the parade.

THE GOVERNMENT MAY ACCEPT MR. PARDEE'S SUGGESTION

May Try a Last Great and Serious Effort to Secure Required Number of Men Under Voluntary System Before Introducing Conscription

TO-DAY'S SPEAKERS

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., June 22.—There is an impression this morning that the government considers accepting the advice tendered to it at the conclusion of Fred Pardee's earnest utterances yesterday. Mr. Pardee seriously advised the government to precede the enforcement of the conscription bill by a last great and serious effort to secure the required number of men by means of the voluntary system. He declared it to be his opinion that if such a campaign were launched with the conscientious cooperation of Canadians of all classes, parties and provinces, Canadian patriotism would make the actual enforcement of compulsion unnecessary.

To-day's speaking order on the conscription debate will probably be as follows: Hon. George P. Graham, Liberal, against the Laurier amendment; W. W. Cockshutt, Conservative, for the bill; Manley German, Liberal, for the referendum amendment; Col. James Arthurs, Conservative member who "went over" at Vimy, for the bill; E. W. Nesbitt, Liberal, for the bill, and probably against the amendment, though he has made no announcement.

Dr. Michael Clark has a stong anti-referendum speech almost ready, but will probably keep it for Monday.

To-night Mr. Achim. of Labelle, who seconded the Barrette amendment calling for a six months' hoist, is due to speak. H. Boulay, of Rimouski, is also due to support the hoist, so that there will be a regular Nationalist love feast with A. A. Mondou of Yamaska on deck for Monday.

Commissioner Is Appointed

W. H. Hamilton to Control Operation of Fernie Mines

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 22.—W. H. Hamilton, prominent Vancouver contracter, has been appointed a commissioner to control the mines in the Fernie district and with instructions from the government to have them resume operation without delay. Mr. Hamilton will proceed to the scene of the trouble at once. He will have power to direct the operation of mines on the basis of allowing the owners a fair margin of profit. It is expected that details as to the authority given to Mr. Hamilton will be announced in the House this afternoon by Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour.

WHEN IN DOUBT.

It is generally understood that each person is furnished with only one pair of eyes, yet every day we see someone taking chances with their sight, by wearing glasses not made for them it is like drinking some one else's medicine, so as not to waste it. THE PROFIT OF PASSPORTS.

The system requiring a passport to permit Canadians eligible for military service, leaving the country for the United States, is useful for more purposes than preventing the evasion of the requirements of conscription. Among the excuses for needing a passport, is that the applicant is on his holidays and wishes to see the country to the south. A Canadian who wishes to indulge the natural desire to see things in a foreign country, should first see his own country. The old Greek injunction, "Know thyself," applies equally to one's country. The policy of Canada for Canadians will never gain full recognition without a general knowledge by Canadians of the immense extent, inexhaustible resources, incomparable grandeur of scenery of Canada, and the varied means of enjoyment at home. This much for the sentimental side of home holidaying. There is however a practical side; the vacation money, that is generally spent with a liberal hand, will be spent in Canada; and, to refine the material idea, it is to be remembered that the lessened demands of passenger travel or transportation capacity will improve freight services to the extent, perhaps, of facilitating a better supply of coal for next winter. It is thus seen how intimately associated and interwoven are our national interests. Even conscription, though opposed by many, has other good features than providing soldiers. It requires the passport system, and the indirect effect of this seems to lead indirectly to keeping ourselves warm at our own firesides next winter.

Sir Robert Borden has announced Saturday sittings of Parliament. Sunday sittings might provide our politicians with the chance of breaking almost the only one of the commandments they have not already broken, one way or another.

POLITENESS AND POLITICS.

Sir Sam Hughes, great soldier as he is, energetic as he is, has a way with him that antagonizes his usefulness. He complained in the House of discourteous treatment from his leader, Sir Robert Borden, and expressed his view on the subject in these words: "As soon as the Prime Minister treats me in a courteous manner, I will act in the same way towards him." In this regard Sir Sam is beginning at the wrong end, in assuming that our practice of the obligations of courtesy or any other duty, is dependent for approval or condemnation upon the action of others. In this matter, if we are honest and earnest, we shall do our duty in spite of the action or attitude of others. It makes a man no less a boor because he imitates the same quality in others. The discharge of duty is a personal matter, essential in ourselves, without reference to any exterior consideration. We have no authority to neglect the demands of a plain duty because someone else does not do his duty. One man is not relieved of the duty of military service because another does not do his; and no man can call another to account on this score, if he has not done his part.

If Sir Sam, in the matter of courtesy, wants to put himself in the right place, he must set the example and then, whatever happens, his skirts are clear. To give Sir Sam credit he has followed this condition in his official capacity, especially in the matter of recruiting. According to his own account, he has set an example to the government of a practical and lively interest in promoting recruiting for the overseas forces, and any blame for failure for lack of bona fides or earnestness, does not fall upon him. If the government, as Sir Sam charges, by its apathy, indifference and interference made recruiting ineffective, then the government has to bear the blame. If, as Sir Sam Hughes charges, he was hampered in his efforts to promote recruiting by the mistakes of his former colleagues and by cabinet bickerings and "meddlers" in the Borden cabinet, and there was a deliberate intrigue to slow down recruiting, then the government in adopting the extreme measure of conscription is making tardy amends for its failure to give the voluntary system a fair test. Sir Sam's story may be subject to some trimming, some removal of exaggeration, but with all his faults he has the reputation of being honest and sincere, and there may be a large element of truth in his charges. If the government made many and material mistakes in the administration of the voluntary system, can it be said to have thereby become qualified for effectively administering a conscription measure, which affords as much opportunity for ineffectiveness and "muddling," and greater opportunity for unfair application?

An Anglican Synod has voted for the conscription of wealth—more unholy hands laid upon the ark of conscription.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

Because the action of Hon. J. W. Hanna, Canada's new food dictator, going to Washington to negotiate for joint control of food stuffs, by the two nations is contrary to the Conservative battle cry, in which he joined in 1911—"no truck and trade with the Yankees," that is no reason why he has not done the obviously right thing. The United States and Canada, intimately associated in trade intercourse, are now more than ever united as allies in a great cause that demands united and resolute action. Hon. Mr. Hanna is a very capable man. In spite of his mistakes of partizanship when he was a member of the Ontario government, he was a good administrator and organizer of service. When Sir James Whitney died, he left behind him in his cabinet, one man, Mr. Hanna, who was in the matter of executive ability and mental ability head and shoulders over any of his colleagues, and if his party had recognized his comparative ability, as the present Ottawa government has done, he would have been made the Conservative leader.

The war and the times have changed many things and while it has not changed the vital importance and fact of our naturally intimate trade relations with the United States, it has changed the attitude of the party politicians in their play upon the cry of loyalty, and brought in recognition of the fact that in 1911 the attitude of such politicians was wrong, and that the Liberal contention for closer trade relations, was not disloyal and dangerous, but an obviously logical advocacy of relations of mutual advantage, all the greater the closer trade interests are coordinated. Nearly all our emergency activities, due to the stress of the war situation are founded upon principles that could be applied in times of peace, and with great advantage. Hon. Mr. Hanna's action in taking counsel with our big neighbour, is an auspicious opening of his mission. We may expect results from such a beginning, not less important and desirable than increased military forces; for, broadly considered, commissariat efficiency goes hand in hand, if, indeed, it is not a precedent condition of military efficiency and success, not to speak of the popular interests involved in having living commodities made more freely accessible at reasonable prices.

Ottawa has staged a surprise celebration of the golden jubilee of confederation that will either strengthen the cords or create a perilous tension.

A Battalion of Russian Women

PETROGRAD, June 21.—"The Command of Death," which is the official title of the women's regiment raised by the twice wounded girl officer, Vera Buitchkareff, will be reviewed to-day by Minister of War Kerensky. The regiment will have its first public parade on Sunday and will leave in a fortnight for the front, probably for the Minsk sector.

The Associated Press correspondent who visited the barracks in Torgvaya street, found posted at the gate a little blue-eyed sentry in a soldier's khaki blouse, short breeches, green forage cap, ordinary women's black stockings and neat shoes. The sentry was Marya Skrydloff, daughter of Admiral Skrydloff, former commander of the Baltic fleet and Minister of Marine. In the courtyard, 300 girls were at drill, mostly between 18 and 25 years old, of good parentage and many of them pretty. They were entirely shaved. They were drilling under the instruction of a male sergeant of the Volynsky regiment and marched to an exaggerated goose step.

Commander Lieut. Buitchkareff explained that most of the recruits were from the higher educational academies or secondary schools, with a few peasants, factory girls and servants. Some married women were accepted but none who had children. The girl commander said:

DISCIPLINE IS RIGID.

"We apply the rigid system of discipline of the pre-revolutionary army, rejecting the new principle of soldier self-government. Having no time to inure the girls gradually to hardships we impose a spartan regime from the first. They sleep on boards without bedclothes, thus immediately eliminating the weak. The smallest branch of discipline is punished by expulsion in disgrace.

"The ordinary soldier's food is furnished by the guards equipage corps. We rise at four and drill daily from seven to eleven and again from one to six. The girls carry the cavalry carbine, which is five pounds lighter than the regular army rifle.

"We are fully official and are already entered on the list of regiments. Yesterday the commander of the Petrograd military district reviewed us and expressed his satisfaction. I am convinced that we will excel the male fighters."

Asked as to the attitude of the male army, Commander Buitchkareff said that only the Volynsky regiment, which led the Petrograd revolution, was really favourable

Dear Mary—

Is your ice box strictly up-to-date? If it is not shove it out and get a new one; It is a necessity.

You see, proper "air drainage" is necessary in an ice box. This keeps the foods fresh and prevents the breeding of poisonous "germs."

Open the door of your refrigerator and if there is the least "smell" buy a new sanitary one. You'll save enough in foods that won't spoil and ice in one season to pay for it, and you'll save expensive doctors' bills. I know.

We cater to young men especially because they're clothes enthusiasts. They know superior clothes when they see them, and we feel repaid for the time and study we spend searching the leading markets of the world for them. We expect a good deal of appreciation this Summer by young men for LeBrun's Brand Clothes

There's a dash, a vigor, a sprightly personality about these striking models that's captivating to young men—and men who stay young.

They are designed by an artist—a man who is young enough to enter into the spirit of the young men's age, and whose experience fits him to create the models that young men want.

In the admiration of the perfect style and swing you forget mere details of workmanship—you scarcely realize the care with which these garments have been made. But the workmanship is there, for it is this added feature of LeBrun's Special Brand Clothes by which the style-beauty of each garment is TAILORED in.

Ask us to show you the new Summer Styles. Try them on. Note the beautiful fit, the distinctive cut, the smartness, the just-enough "swagger" that mark LeBrun's Clothes as so different from ordinary clothes. You'll find yourself well repaid when you see them.

Provisions Of The Highways Act Which The County Council Is Preparing To Accept

Probably Within the Next Year a System of Roads For Improvement Will Be Assumed Under This Legislation ---City is Largely Concerned and the Details of the Act Should Be in the Hands of Farmers and Citizens Alike--How the Cost is Divided.

Within the next twelve months Peterborough County, including the city, will, in all probability, adopt the Good Roads system inaugurated under the Ontario Highways Act. This week the County Council instructed a special Roads Committee to designate the roads to be assumed by a by-law which is to be submitted at the November session. With this promise of action the following details of the Ontario Highways Act should be in the possession of every citizen of the county to whom it is suggested that this article be preserved for present and future reference.

Township Councils, in the earlier history of the Province, depended largely on statute labour for road improvement; this system having been created by the first parliament of the Province (then Upper Canada) in 1796. Money expenditure, raised by general levy on the township assessment, has been steadily increasing.. At the present time townships are spending annually over $1,400,000 in cash, and 1,100,000 days of statute labour; having a total estimated value of $2,500,000 angually.

Township Councils have authority to pass by-laws to commute or abolish statute labour. About one-quarter of the townships have done so, while the number is steadily increasing.

The Highway Department is encouraging all townships to place their road expenditure in charge of a permanent road superintendent or foreman, and to this end will pay (under the Ontario Highways Act, 1915) one quarter of the salary of such an official; the provincial grant not to exceed $150 annually.

Provincial aid to road construction is given principally through County road systems, under the Highway Improvement Act. Twenty-five counties out of the thirty-seven which are eligible, are carrying on construction, having assumed 5,000 miles of road, of which about 2,000 have been substantially built. Expenditure to the end of 1915 has amounted to $6,000,000, including $1,200,000 for bridges. Work is now being carried on at the rate of $900,000 annually. It is anticipated that all counties will be operating under this plan within a few years and that the annual expenditure will be doubled. The chief features of this Act are as follows:

A county council is authorized to assume by by-law a system of roads for construction and maintenance; the province contributing 40 per cent of the expenditure on construction, and 20 per cent. of the cost of maintenance.

A by-law adopting such a system may be passed by a two-thirds majority of a county council representing at least one-half of the total equalized assessment of the county.

The roads assumed are usually such as will accommodate the greater part of local market travel, creating a system of main market roads. They are roads radiating from local market centres and shipping points. They should be connected as far as practicable to serve the needs of through traffic of the locality.

The mileage of roads assumed by a county is usually from 12 to 18 per cent. of the total mileage of the county.

The direction and superintendence of the work is placed in charge of a county engineer or capable superintendent appointed by the county council. A committee of the county council should cooperate with advise and direct the road superintendent.

Roads are to be built in accordance with the regulations of the Department of Public Highways. The construction should be suited to local material and traffic. A standard type is regarded as a roadway well drained, graded to a depth of 24 feet between ditches, with broken stone or gravel in the centre to a width of from 9 to 18 feet, and consolidated by rolling.

The cost varies with local conditions, but is in general proportionate to the width and kind of metal.

The system of roads assumed, and the by law fixing the plan of improvement are subject to approval of the Provincial Department.

When roads are assumed by a county council under this Act, township councils cease to have control over them, nor should they pay any expenditure on them. The county council is thereafter responsible for construction and maintenance.

The Provincial grant is paid annually, and is based on a statement of expenditure for the year, submitted to the Minister of Public Works and highways by the county council and included all costs of labour, material, engineering services, salary of road superintendent, machinery, and bridges on the designated system of county roads.

The cost of purchasing and reconstructing toll roads may be included in the expenditure.

The county council may by by-law make grants to towns and villages not separated from the county, for the improvement of extensions or connecting links of county roads in such towns and villages, and certain of such grants may be included in the statement of annual expenditure. Grants eligible for a Provincial subsidy are those made to villages having a population of over 1,500, provided the improvement is carried out on suburban streets passing agricultural land.

SUBURBAN ROADS.

Provision is made under the Ontario Highways Act that a city may co-operate with the county council in improving the leading county roads adjacent to the city, and thereby obtain a more substantial type of construction for such suburban road The procedure is as follows:

A county council, by resolution, makes application to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council, asking that a commission be selected to deal with the suburban roads, or portion thereof, in the county system adjacent to the city, towards the construction and maintenance of which the city in question should contribute.

The Department of Public Highways submits the application to the city in question and considers their views in the matter.

Should the commission be recommended by the Department and authorized by Order-in-Council, it is made up of representatives chosen by the city and county councils. In the case of a city having a population of less than 50,000 it would be composed of three persons, the county councils selecting one member, the city selecting one, and the two agreeing upon a third. In case of cities of over 50,000 population, the commission would be composed of five persons selected in a similar manner.

The first duty of the commission would be to determine the roads, and the length of each adjacent to the city to which the city would contribute; the commission forming a board of arbitration for that purpose.

It is then the duty of the commission to determine the work to be undertaken each year and to estimate the amounts required for construction and maintenance.

The county council would first approve or amend this estimate and authorize expenditure. It is then the duty of the County Council, not later than the first day of March in each year, to notify the city of the amount required.

For construction the Province contributes 40 per cent., and the county and city each 30 per cent.; for maintenance and repair the Province contributes 20 per cent., and the county and city divide the remainder equally between them.

The section of county road designated as "suburban" remains a county road for which the county is responsible; the work of construction and maintenance to be carried on under the County Road Superintendent, but subject to the instructions of the special commission.

PROVINCIAL HIGHWAYS.

A system of provincial highways has been authorized by a recent act of the Legislature, with a view to the construction and maintenance, under the Highway Department, of a net-work of leading highways throughout the Province would be the main artery of such a system, with suitable connecting branches leading to other parts of the Province, and joining up county towns, cities or other important terminal points. The Act gives the Provincial Highways Department, with the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor-in Council, power to take over, on behalf of the Crown, any public highway, by filing a route plan of the road in the local registry office, and giving notice in the Ontario Gazette.

The Department, through is officers, is thereafter responsible for the proper construction and maintenance of the highways so assumed. For this purpose the Department has the usual powers of municipal corporations to widen or deviate the road allowance, procure material for construction, purchase machinery, and in general to control the use of the highway under the usual responsibilities placed upon municipalities.

HOW COST IS BORNE.

Adjacent to cities the cost is borne in the proportion of 40 per cent. by the Province, 50 per cent. by the city, and 30 per cent. by the municipality through which the road passes. Outside of the suburban section, the Province assumes the proportion levied on the city thereby paying 70 per cent., and the local municipality 30 per cent. In the case of bridges, the local municipality is placed on the same basis as in the case of a county road; viz., the local municipality pays 60 per cent. of the cost of a bridge suitable for county purposes, and the Province pays the balance. In cases where a special type of pavement is desired by a locality, provision is made for levying any excess part of the cost of a frontage basis. Various contingencies are provided for with, in general, a right of appeal to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

All cost of surveys, the purchase of machinery, plant and equipment, land for widening or deviating, general overhead and staff expenses are to be borne entirely by the Province. Thus the local municipalities will be in effect, required to pay less than 30 per cent. of the total cost.

FOR LOCAL REQUIREMENTS.

A fundamental basis upon which the cost is thus distributed is that each local community should be required to pay for a road suited to local requirements. It is unfair to the rest of the province to levy less than that amount. It is unfair to the local municipality to require it to pay the entire cost of a road carrying an excessive amount of through traffic. The difference between the cost of a road suited to local requirements, and one of a character suited to the traffic of a main road, is therefore to be levied upon cities immediately served, or is to be met by the Province from the revenue from motor vehicles. A main road from the county of Essex to the Quebec boundary with branches to St. Catharines and Ottawa, passes through urban and rural municiplities having half the population of the Province, and over 60 per cent. of the assessment.

A GRADUAL DEVELOPMENT.

The building of the Provincial Highway System will not be undertaken as a huge work of continuous construction, but will be a matter of gradual development and extension. Wherever conditions are favourable systematic maintenance will be applied so as to make the most of any reasonably good sections as they now exist. Construction will be taken up in sections where traffic is especially heavy, or where the road has heretofore been neglected. One type of pavement throughout is not contemplated. An effort will be made to construct in proportion to traffic, making the best possible use of local materials.

The immediate need is for a reasonably good trunk road system, joining up cities and local road systems, and making it possible for each local community to be a unit in such a trunk system without carrying an excessive or burdensome share of the cost.

PROVINCIAL COUNTY ROADS.

Co-operative with Provincial roads but under county control, certain roads may be designated by the Highways Department as "Provincial County Roads." To such roads the Province will contribute 60 per cent. of the cost of construction, and maintenance. These roads are intended to enable the more equitable maintenance of certain county roads, carrying a considerable proportion of through traffic, but which the county may efficiently maintain, and of which are not of sufficient importance to be classed as Provincial, or which it is not desirable or expedient for the Province to assume, as provincal highways. They continue to be county roads bue because of heavy through traffic, receive an increased subsidy.

CITIES SHARE IN THE COST.

Suburban roads and the assessment of cities for main road improvement is an interesting feature of Ontario legislation, and as it is now to most parts of the Province, the reasons for such requirements are of interest.

The development of main highways has, in every county required the co-operation of cities. This has been true in countries in Europe, such as England, France and Belgium. In the United States, the city of Detroit is paying 85 per cent. of the cost of roads in Wayne County. Cleveland is paying $800,000 annually for road construction outside of the city. In New York, the cities are paying 85 per cent. of the State expenditure. Similar conditions exist in other States.

In case of cities in the United States, they are, as a rule, not separated from township and county organization, so that a considerable part of their expenditure on main roads is automatically arranged. In Ontario, however, with cities separated from township and county organizations, it has been necessary to devise the system of suburban road contributions provided for in the Ontario highways act; in order that the existing municipal organization might not be disarranged.

Roads should be built and maintained in proportion to the traffic over them. Roads within two or three times the ordinary expenditure of the county on roads, and this extra cost is difficult for the county to finance without co-operation from the city.

The object of a city's contribution would not be to relieve the county of the expenditure which they are now making, or which they may equitably be called upon to make, but rather to improve the standard or roads radiating from the city, and to permit them to be maintained in a condition suited to the traffic over

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Honsburg 10 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

them. Traffic accumulates to a considerable density on the main roads immediately adjacent to the city, and it becomes an unfair charge upon rural districts to construct and maintain roads suited to such accumulated traffic.

Thus the county, with Provincial aid, may be spending for ordinary roads, $5,000 per mile; made up of $3,000 from the county and $2,000 from the Province. By calling upon the city to contribute equally with the county, the two provide $6,000 which entitles them to a provincial subsidy of $4,000. In this way roads costing $10,000 (or $20,000) per mile become possible, to the very great advantage of the cities.

ROADS THROUGH CITIES.

It has been suggested that the Province should contribute to the cost of continuing main roads through a city. But wealth is concentrated in cities. Cities in Ontario have an assessment of $1,035,117,544, and a population of 1,019,627; whereas townships have an assessment of $697,372,855, and a population of 1,-087,230. With the comparatively small amount which cities are asked to pay to the construction of connecting links within the city, at the cost of the city.

The building of expensive pavements within the city does not absolve the city from its obligations with respect to main roads in the open country. City pavements are not designed for traffic requirements; but are expensive largely because of the advantages of curbing and good boulevards to adjacent property; the cost being reflected in increased property value. Comparing a $4,000 per mile road in the country with a city pavement costing $60,000 per mile, under ordinary conditions of land occupation in Ontario, with four farms per square mile on each side of the road, the cost, if levied on a frontage basis, would be twice as great to the farmer as to the owner of a 40-foot city lot.

CITY AND RADIATING ROADS.

The mileage of radiating roads to which each city should contribute will depend somewhat on local conditions. Consideration may be given to the local trade traffic entering the city; or to points of local interest close to the city; or to an area approximately that required to maintain the city with local farm produce. It is estimated that one square mile, as commonly framed in Ontario, will support a popuation of about 300 persons; from which the radius of the supporting area may be estimated. Broadly, it would appear feasible to require the smaller cities to give proportionate support to about six miles of road for each mile of radius of supporting area, or on another basis, two miles to each million of assessment.

The Ontario Highways Act came into effect in January of last year, and there is considerable negotiation to be carried out in order to effect organization in all cases.

The counties in which suburban roads have been settled are: York, in which Toronto contributes to the entire county road system, with a special grant of $250,000 to the Toronto-Hamilton highway; Frontenac, in which Kingston contributes to approximately 60 miles of road; Waterloo, which contributes to 25 miles, and Kichener to 12 miles, Essex, in which Walkerville has contributed to about eight miles, and Windsor with which negotiations are now in progress. Hamilton has contributed $50,000 to the Toronto-Hamilton highway, and negotiations are in progress with the county with respect to other suburban roads.

THREE-FOLD CLASSIFICATION

It will be seen that the general trend of recent road legislation in Ontario has been toward a three-fold classification, so desirable for management, distribution of cost, and which is being evolved in the following manner:

1. Local or township roads, each carrying the traffic, or little more than the traffic which is created by the farms adjoining the road; such roads to be controlled by and at the expense of township councils.

2. Leading market or county roads, the roads radiating from local market or shipping points, which carry a considerable accumulation of traffic; such roads to be controlled by and at the expense of the county councils and cities, aided by a Provincial subsidy.

3. Main roads between important cities and other terminal points, under the control of the Provincial Department of Public Highways.

Southern Ontario has 56,000 miles of road in the open county, of which 40 per cent. have been surfaced with gravel, broken stone or other more permanent material. It is a conservative estimate that in the past ten years $25,000,000 has been spent on rural roads, of which less than one-quarter remains as bonded debt. This is a record very creditable to municipal government of the Province and with the construction of leading Provincial highways to join up the systems of improved local and county roads, will place Ontario in a very enviable position with respect to good roads. The provision now made for Provincial highways rounds out the legislation of Ontario to an ideal system of road organization.

What United States Could Do To Beat Germany In Air

LONDON, June 21.—How the United States could play a most important role in defeating Germany by carrying out an invasion is the topic among prominent airmen here. The plan calls for the sending to France of an air division solely for the purpose of bombardment and infantry raids.

Six hundred pilots on modern bombarding aeroplanes or even one hundred at the beginning would make the strength of the United States more promptly felt than any other means of offensive, while inside a year the force could be increased to such proportions that Germany would find it impossible to keep the constantly shelled munitions factories in repair.

COULD ATTACK FACTORIES

All attacks would be aimed at works which are the chief source of the enemy's strength.

This is the suggestion. "This is America's greatest opportunity to help, and credit for success would be her's undividedly. It is quite possible to train and send to France six hundreds pilots and twelve hundred gunners this year; also to build in America an ample number of bombarding machines. Six hundred pilots, with their ranks continually filled and increased, could be counted on to furnish an active average of three hundred daily. Flying would be chiefly at night. These three hundred could drop from six hundred to nine hundred of explosives on the enemy, the quantity depending upon the distance of objectives from American air centres.

"The same machines which can easily carry twenty men each could be used in pairs to execute infantry or engineer corps' raids in various parts of Germany. Very little of this kind has been attempted so far, but it is sure to be employed within a years. There is nothing to prevent reconnaissances. An aeroplane could report a certain locality as safe for such an attack. Then the big machines could plane noiselessly down to the solitary spot. The raiders could attack sentries, say at important railway bridges, before an alarm could be given, and destroy communications, get safely away. Surely there would be no dearth of volunteers for such work.

BRITISH RAIDS SUCCEED

Successes of British air bombardments of German land, sea, and air bases in Belgium were so great that during a fortnight all of the machines employed returned safely. I am not permitted to give the numbers that took part, but it was notable. Machines of a particular type were employed. Compared with chasing machines, they are not difficult to operate in service, and pilots to run them could be trained in less time.

Forty Thousand Russian Workers Idle in Capital

STOCKHOLM, June 21.—From authentic sources in Petrograd comes a thrilling picture of M. Kerensky's struggles, in the face of heavy physical disabilities, with the immense Governmental problems. Often the Minister of War is carried on a litter to transact public business. At times he pulls himself upright and addresses great assemblages with blasing fervor, until suddenly he swoons.

"This," says an observer, "produces a terrific emotional effect on the sensitive Russian heart, but the people are all asking for something else—namely, bread and peace."

Strikes and plundering are said to be spreading. Rich persons in Petrograd are afraid to move to their country seats because these are often attacked by plunderers. Forty thousand workmen are idle in Petrograd, and it is predicted the number will reach a hundred thousand in a fortnight.

The paper rouble has shrunk to 20 cents of American money. Swedish agents just returned warn against a credit business in Russia, declaring the threatened counter-revolution will be followed by anarchy and bankrupcy. Nobody will accept the post of Minister of Commerce.

Electric traction has been applied to one of Spain's most important mineral carrying railroads.

GRADUATING EXERCISES OF ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL

Three Young Nurses Are Warmly Congratulated on Receiving Their Medals and Diplomas Last Night.

AN ENJOYABLE FUNCTION

After three years of what is perhaps the most exacting and strenuous training any profession comprises three young ladies the Misses Alice Moloney, Laura O'Brien and Teresa Fallon received their medals and diplomas at the Graduation Exercises at St. Joseph's Hospital last night. The presentation took place in the men's ward, which was transformed into a minature theatre, the platform of which was virtually smothered in the beautiful flowers received by the young ladies—tokens of the undying gratitude of patients, whom the young ladies had nursed back to health, and from admiring friends.

The clergy present for the occasion were His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, Father McAuley, Father J. O'Brien, Father Ferguson, Warkworth, Father Maguire, Enniamore, and Father McCarthy, Norwood.

DR. McNULTY, CHAIRMAN

Dr. McNulty, chairman of the evening in a brief speech said that he felt sure the new graduates possessed the qualifications which their predecessors have proved themselves to possess, sympathy, attention to duty, and gentleness. Nursing is a modern profession and one which through the war has become enshrined in the hearts of the world. Nursing practically had its birth in the Crimean war when Florence Nightingale and her little band raised the standard fromh crude attention to th suffering to a glorious calling. Dr. McNulty said he felt sure the young ladies, graduating last night, would establish such sympathy as Florence Nightingale.

BISHOP O'BRIEN

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien congratulated the young ladies and said it must be a great pleasure and gratifying to them that they have done so well and so successfully that they are ready to go out to practice in the glorious calling they have undertaken. It is a satisfaction to the hospital to know that the work of the institution will spread and he felt assured the new graduates will uphold the reputation of the hospital. It is a satisfaction, too, to know that though the numbers are small, the works are good. Nursing through the influence of the war, is now looked up to and regarded as never before, likewise are doctors. The profession received wonderful admiration at the time of Florence Nightingale, but it really dawned with Christianity. The virtues necessary for nursing are not found amongst the pagans. The virtue which must be found in a nurse is essentially Christianity. The ancient Roman's idea of a man's worth, was his worth to his state and when it became nil the man was quietly done away with, the Christian church prolongs life. Side by side with the spread of Christianity we find nursing—as far back as Constantine—we find the foundation of a hospital in Rome, and from then the profession has spread.

There are two virtues essential in a nurse, skill and charity. Skill depends upon the training. The nurse must be so devoted to her duty that no thought of salary enters into her consideration, but a higher motive than money, that of devotion to charity. His Lordship said that the doctors are to be thanked immeasurably for the interest they have shown in the hospital and in the classes of the training school. The school and hospital are grateful for the lecturers they have given to the young graduates. He concluded by saying that in nursing we are doing our duty and that when we read of the awful sacrifices in battle it should increase our devotion to those who suffer at home.

His Lordship was then called upon to present the diplomas.

CONGRAGULATORY ADDRESSES.

Congragulatory speeches to the nurses, doctors and sisters in the hospital were also made by several of the clergy and by the doctors present. Dr. Neal calling attention to the fact that during the past few months he had visited the large hospitals in the United States where he found a large percentage of the head nurses were Canadians and several graduates of small hospitals. He said that we have in Peterborough as good nurses as are to be found any where and as good hospital equipment as any on the continent. He said he doubted if better X-ray equipment could be found than that of St. Joseph's Hospital. Dr. Cameron after congragulating the graduates gave a word to the public regarding the consideration due to the nurses. He said that a nurse is only human and must have relaxation and if she takes a walk she has not forgotten her patient, but will come back reinforced to attend to her duty.

At the conclusion of the evening dainty refreshments were served by the nurses and friends to the large number who attended the Graduation after which the young people enjoyed a delightful dance.

An excellent musical programme was provided by the entertainment committee. The following programme was presented:

Piano Solo—Miss Aileen Sullivan.
Vocal—Miss Leahy.
Recitation— L'Habitant—Mr. E. Desantel.
Duet—Misses McCauley and Leahy.
Solo—Mr. Edward Hanrahan.
Solo—Miss O'Donnell.
Piano Solo—Miss Gorman.

IMPRESSIVE SCENES IN HOUSE YESTERDAY

He demanded the conscription of wealth and national resources. He unequivocally declared that mistakes had been made, that leadership ha been lacking, that organization had been faulty, that lethargy had been dominant, and that partizanship had run riot. He demanded from Government and Parliament honest, efficient and concentrated effort. "the men," said he, "who have assumed the tremendous responsibility of calling citizens to the colours by compulsion must themselves consecrate all their abilities, all their endeavors, all their energies, to the cause for which they demand that their fellow-citizens shall fight."

SUGGESTION IS OFFERED.

In concluding, Mr. Pardee accepted Premier Borden's invitation to the Opposition for suggestions. He urged that, before proceeding with the operation of the bill after its passage, "a last big and sincere appeal should be made to the patriotism of young Canadian manhood." He believed that, under direct and real Government leadership, with the co-operation of all parties, classes and Provinces, the needed 100,000 men could thus be saised, and a situation fraught with serious possibilities of schism and strife be saved.

A SIGNIFICANT STATEMENT.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Solicitor-General, who followed, referred to Mr. Pardee's utterances as a speech "which will live long in the records of this Parliament." The Solicitor-General made the significant statement that the bill, in his opinion, would "work more lightly on Quebec than on any other Province of Confederation," and intimated that the Government was still ready to meet opposition in a friendly and lenient administration.

THINKS IT WOULD HINDER.

Hon. Charles Murphy, who warmly supported the referendum, stated that his opposition to conscription without the backing of the people, was based on the conviction that its principle, as well as its administration, would hinder rather than help in the winning of the war. The debate was continued well on into the night, and goes on again to-morrow. The general impression is that the vote will not be reached till well on into next week, nearly all the the members being indisposed to cast a "silent vote" upon this important national issue.

MR. McCRANEY FOR CONSCRIPTION.

The evening sitting was marked by he declaration of another of Sir Wilfrid's strong supporters in the House, Mr. McCraney of Saskatoon, that he, too, had reluctantly to differ from his leader on the referendum and conscription issue. Mr. McCraney was for the conscription principle, but he strongly urged the Government, with a view both th national and war considerations, to postpone any attempt to enforce it until a general election had been held and the people's mandate had been given to a new Parliament.

Mr. Gauthier of St. Hyacinthe emphasized the grave national situation which would be precipitated by any attempt to pass and enforce conscription under present conditions. He solemnly warned the Government that unless they heeded the demand from Quebec that the people should first pronounce upon the issue, there would be the "direst consequences" in his own Province.

Martial Law Declared in Western Siberia

PETROGRAD, June 22.—Martial law has been proclaimed in Tomsk, Western Siberia, because of wholesale murders and robberies committed by criminals who had been granted amnesty, and had joined the forces of the militant anarchists. More than 1,500 of these pardoned criminals have been arrested, with about 800 others. Twenty persons were killed and a number wounded.

The arrests followed the exposure of a plot to plunder all the banks and shops and assassinate the leaders of civic organizations. The 800 associates of the criminals were dragged from the haunts of the latter. The casualties occurred when some resistance was offered to the arrests.

Aviator Loses Bearings; Alights in Wheat Field

NEWMARKET, June 22.—An airplane alighted in a wheat field near Newmarket yesterday. About a thousand people from the country around were attracted by the descent, and much curiosity was displayed, as many had never seen an airplane at close range before. The aviator had apparently lost his bearings, as he did not know where he was. After making sure of his locality, the flyer soared again into the blue, amid the cheers of the admiring multitude, making in the direction of Toronto. Newmarket is on the line of flight from Toronto to Camp Borden, and planes are frequently seen flying north or south at a great height. The pilots follow Yonge Street as a land mark, running north and south, but this lost pilot must have missed his mark.

NEW YORK, June 22.—The sinking of the Danish steamer Orion, 1,848 tons, by a German submarine was reported to-day by a Dutch ship which rescued the Orion's crew.

There wil be an admission fee. The publis generally is invited.

Annual Closing Of Grove School

Interesting Gathering Held Yesterday at Lakefield

The annual closing of the "Grove," Lakefield, was held yesterday, and with the perfect weather and large and congenial number who attended, it was a closing long to be remembered. Those invited from out-of-town were His Lordship Bishop and Mrs. Roper, Ottawa; Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt and Miss Hoskin, Toronto; Judge Huycke, Mrs. Massey and Mrs. Covert, Cobourg; Mrs. Heron and Miss Heron, Toronto; Mrs. Hope, Hamilton; Mrs. Claude Rogers, Mr. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. Robertson, Peterborough.

In the evening splendid and inspiring speeches were made by Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, Mr. G. B. Hilliard, and A. H. Stratton, after which the prizes were presented. These were won by:

All-round championship presented by Hon. Walace Nesbitt—C. MacMichael, 4th form; Cockshutt, 2nd, and Rankin Nesbitt, 3rd.

Sports Hamilton, Maj., Peterborough—General perficiency—4th form Cockshutt, 3rd Nesbitt, 2nd MacAvidy, Max; 1st B. Lowden.

Swimming race—George Greening.

Tennis championship—MacMichael, Max.

Sailing race—Keith Tate.

Canoe single—Tate, J. Langley.

Mid-Summer Day Fete Was Great Success

Verulam Hall, the beautiful home of Mr. J. J. Lundy, 236 Burnham street, East City was thrown open to the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. for what was quite the fete of the season, a garden party. The velvety lawns with the beautiful terraces rolling down to the Lake, presented a most fascinating apeparance with the attractively decorated booths and throngs of gaily dressed ladies who came over. All afternoon the ladies in charge of the booths and those who assisted were kept busy and continued to be until a late hour in the evening. In the evening a most attractive musical programme was given including selections by the 57th band. A vocal solo by Miss Lillian Eastwood, rose petal dance by little Miss Elaine Mennell, and the Faust dance by some of the gym class, trained by Miss Caroline Littlefield.

The "tea" booth, always a busy spot at such a fete, was in charge of Mrs. D. N. Carmichael, whilst Mrs. Boucher and Miss Edwards, who poured tea were assisted by Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. Whitehouse, Mrs. (Dr.) Morgan, Miss Buchanan, Mrs. Fersenden, Miss Eileen Wedd, Miss Elinor Collins and Miss Grace Reinhart. The daintily painted menu cards were the work of Miss Wedd. Next to the tea booth for popularity came the "palmistry booth," of which Mrs. Grant was convenor. Those who assisted her in foretelling the future were Mrs. Goodwill, Miss Archer, Miss Florence and Miss Gretchen Gladman and Miss Ruth Robertson.

The flower booth was in charge of Miss Helen Dennistoun and Miss Lillian Hurley, the ice cream booth Mrs. Aylmer and Mrs. Chris Graham, the apron booth, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Adam Hall, the fish pond, Mrs. Brewer. Mrs. McDiarmid and Miss Nan Hall, and the lemonade booth, Misses Jessie Spence, Margaret Eastwood, Georgie Stevenson and Margery Hatton.

In the spacious drawing room those who had reserved tables played bridge the prize winners of the afternoon being Mrs. Peter Campbell, Mrs. Robert Stuart, Chicago, and Mrs. D. J. Perry.

Ms. Bond, Mrs. Thompson and Miss Irwin had charge of the candy booth.

Financially, socially and in every way the affair was an unbounded success and will long be remembered as a perfect day. The proceeds amounted to about $260.00.

Two Inmates of House of Refuge There Because Asylums Are Full

Two of the inmates of the House of Refuge are men of unsound minds whom the County Council considers should be removed to an asylum for the insane. Efforts to have them transferred to one of the Government's institutions have thus far been unsuccessful for the simple reason that the asylums are already overcrowded. Mr. James Thompson, M.P.P., has used his influence, but without results, and the men are being cared for at the House of Refuge where they give the superintendent a great deal of trouble. Neither facilities nor attendants are available for such patients, and they require attention which the County Council admits the Superintendent should not be asked to devote to them particularly in view of the fact that the regular duties of caring for the inmates are sufficiently onerous.

The problem was discussed ineffectually at this morning's session of the Council. Since the accommodation for the province's insane is inadequate, it was felt that the number of institutions should be increased.

Vegetables Grown By Four Young Ladies Sold For Patriotic Object

Early in the seeding season four young ladies conceived the idea of planting a lot on Albertus Avenue, west of the Exhibition grounds, and to use the proceeds from the sale of their produce for Red Cross or some other patriotic purpose. This week they have reached the market with lettuce and radishes which they are selling and as the other vegetables ripen they will also be offered for sale. This quartettes of farmerettes are Misses Mabel Patterson, Jessie Cressman, Irene Scott and Helen McLaren. They had the land plowed and harrowed, raked the small beds into the forms used by amateur gardeners and sowed the seeds. The season has been favourable, and the modest crop has come through with generous returns. House to house motor delivery is part of the service, and the market gardeners need not fear any price cutting competition for these young ladies, nor worry about their loading and "bearing" the market.

Committee To Report On The Insurance Rates

HAMILTON, June 21.—The High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters to-day disposed of the insurance rates matter by referring it to a committee that is to make a report not later than December 31 next. This Committee is to submit a schedule of rates that will place the Order on a sound actuarial basis. The committee comprises the following members: J. W. Stewart, T. W. Gibson, W. E. Gowling, G. T. Graham, and A. E. J. Bissonette. A motion to dispose of the Supreme Tent of Organizers until after the war was lost after a discussion, but it was decided to take another vote later. The need of a medical certificate in transferring from one court to another was done away with.

"LET THE LIGHT IN."

Editor, Examiner:

Such exhibitions of political trickery have seldom been exhibited in Canada as that now being placed before the public by the Peterborough Review.

If the press of this country is ready to jeopardize this land to please the whims of disappointed politicians at such a critical time as the present, then I say let the public rise up and have such papers suppressed and the management interned.

Did not Capt. Burnham make a mighty stroke when he forced the government to consent to bring in a bill to conscript wealth?

Why should we who have sons and brothers shedding their blood for the defence of those who are making millions out of this terrible war, be taxed to death, while this wealth goes practically scott free? There are scores of wealthy men in the country making a harvest at the expense—yes of the lives, of others, while their own sons are helping at home to reap the harvest, under the guise that their services are indispensable in turning out munitions.

Can the Review, or those political traducers, who are playing with fire produce one argument why wealth should not be conscripted?

JUSTICE.

Presented With A Writing Desk

Mr. Max Schleuter Leaving Cressman Co. to Conduct Business in Preston

Mr. Max Schleuter who has been connected with the Cressman Co. Ltd., for nine years, leaves on Tuesday for Preston to conduct a business in that city.

Last evening the employees and firm presented him with a handsome fumed oak writing desk, and enthusiastically wished him every success in his new undertaking. The following address was read and Mr. Schleuter briefly, but fittingly, expressed his appreciation.

Peterborough, Ont., June 20, '17.

Mr. Max Schleuter,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Friend,— For nine years you have associated with us in our business duties, some in our midst witnessed your arrival, and you in turn witnessed the coming of others. Those of long and short experience unite in expressing regret that circumstances necessitate your departure.

This occasion has presented an opportunity for us to convey our appreciation of the cheerfulness and good fellowship that have been so characteristically yours. Therefore, we ask you to accept this writing desk, which inadequately expresses our sentiments

Trusting that continued success will greet you in your new field of endeavour, we remain—

The Employees and Cressman Co. Ltd.

RED SOX BEATEN BY THE YANKEES

Bagby Outpitches Cicotte, and Cleveland Defeated Chicago.

NEW YORK, June 21.—New York won a nip and tuck game from Boston here to-day, 5 to 4. The Yanks scored their winning run in the eighth inning on Pipp's single, Miller's infield out, and Peckinpaugh's double. Boston filled the bases with one out in the ninth inning, but Gardner, who had made three hits, ended the game by hitting into a double play. The score: R.H.E.
Boston . . . . . 011002000—4 9 1
New York . . . . . 00103001x—5 10 1

Batteries— Shore, Pennock and Agnew; Love, Shocker and Nunamaker, Walters.

At Chicago— Bagby outpitched Cicotte in a pitchers' duel to-day, and Cleveland shut out Chicago, 1 to 0. The visitors won the game in the first inning. Bagby allowed only three hits, and not a Chicagoan reached second base after the initial inning. The support behind the Cleveland pitcher was faultless. The score: R.H.E.
Cleveland . . . . . 100000000—1 5 0
Chicago . . . . . 00000000—0 3 2

Batteries— Bagby and O'Neill; Cicotte and Schalk.

At Detroit—Austin's wild throw, with a bunt by Veach, permitted Cobb who had obtained a scratch single, to score from first in the ninth inning to-day with the run that enabled Detroit to win, 5 to 4 from St. Louis. Sothoron and Severoid were ordered from the field for disputing a called ball. The score. R.H.E.
St. Louis . . . . . 00000031—4 12 2
Detroit . . . . . 01000121—5 12 0

Batteries — Sothoron, Davenport, Koob, Hamilton and Severoid, Hale; Ehmke, Boland and Spencer, Stanage.

At Washington —Philadelphia beat Washington to-day, 3 to 0, bunching hits off Dumont in two innings. Bush always had something in reserve when threatened. The score: R.H.E.
Philadelphia . . . . . 00000120—3 8 0
Washington . . . . . 00000000—0 8 3

Batteries — Bush and Meyer; Dumont, Ayres and Henry.

"LORD" BYRON STILL CHASING PLAYERS

Police Have to Disperse the Fans at St. Louis After Reds' Win.

ST. LOUIS, June 21. — St. Louis could do nothing with Toney to-day and Cincinnati won, 7 to 1. Manager Huggins was put off the field by Umpire Byron for protesting a decision on balls and strikes in the seventh and a moment later Betzel was ordered to leave the field. A crowd of about 300 waited outside the park for Byron after the game and it was necessary for the police to use force to disperse them. No one was hurt. R.H.E.
Cincinnati . . . . . 02000020—7 10 1
St. Louis . . . . . 01000000—1 7 1

Batteries—Toney and Wingo; Watson, Packard, Murchison and Snyder.

At Philadelphia—Brooklyn bunched hits off Alexander in the second and third innings and won to-day's game 4 to 2. Marquard was very effective, except in one inning, and then a fine running stop by Cutshaw and a great running catch by Hickman held the rally down to two runs. Score. R.H.E.
Brooklyn . . . . . 012010000—4 10 1
Philadelphia . . . . . 00020000—2 6 1

Batteries—Marquard and Miller; Alexander and Killifer.

At Pittsburg— Chicago easily won from Pittsburg to-day, 12 to 4. Miller and Grimes were ineffective, Miller being hit for five runs in the first two innings. Poor support, however, was the factor in this scoring. Grimes held the opposing side until the seventh inning, when they tallied four runs on two singles and three triples. Score: R.H.E.
Chicago. . . . . 330010410—12 16 1
Pittsburg. . . . . 30010000— 4 8 5

Batteries—Hendryx, Seaton and Elliott; Miller, Grimes and W. Wagner.

At Boston—Boston made but three hits, all singles, off Tesreau to-day and were shut out by New York, 4 to 0. The home team hit the ball hard, but this was offset by the visitors' sensational fielding.

Only two Boston players reached second and noen reached third. Score: R.H.E.
New York . . . . . 10000200—4 10 0
Boston . . . . . 00000000—0 3 0

Batteries—Tesreau and Rariden; Ragan, Allen and Gowdy.

DECORATION FOR MRS. T. H. BELL

Wife of Former Peterboro' Boy Receives Royal Red Cross

The Manitoba, Free Press says: Mrs. T. Herbert Bell, wife of Dr. T. H. Bell, of Winnipeg, formerly of Peterborough, has been decorated by King George with the Royal Red Cross in recognition of her services as a military nurse in various hospitals in the western and eastern theatres of war. Both Dr. and Mrs. Bell, who made their home at Ellsmere Court, Hargrave St., left Winnipeg shortly after the outbreak of the war, the doctor going at once to France to take up advance field work. Mrs. Bell was in a French hospital for some time before being sent to Gallipoli, where she experienced some of the hardships of the war. For two months she was very ill from the effects of her privations and on her recovery she was taken to England, where she assumed charge of a London hospital.

Mr. Robert Dobie tested the box at 2.30 this afternoon with the satisfactory result that within three minutes and thirty seconds the firemen arrived and had a line of hose laid.

SAYS COAL WILL BE PLENTIFUL

WASHINGTON, June 22. — The Senate Interstate Commerce Committee to-day decided to begin hearings next Tuesday to include not only coal prices fixing, but also steel, copper, iron and other supplies.

"Coal should be plentiful this fall and winter," Interstate Commerce Commissioner Meyer said.

A fluorescent microscope invented by an Austrian scientist for use with ultraviolet rays enables the recognition of differences in matter not perceptible by ordinary light.

Some seeds have such hard coverings as to be almost impervious to water, but an Iowa man has invented a machine to scarify them and thus improve their germinating qualities.

A three-handed watch of French invention tells both 12-hour and 24-hour time, one hour hand being used for each kind on separate dials while a single minute hand does for both.

As a variation on the non-refillable bottle a New York man has invented attachments for ordinary bottles that prevent their contents being poured out if they have been refilled.

For the heaviest duty motor trucks wheels carrying three tires have been designed.

A.O. Foresters' Excursion

The committee in charge of the preparations for the Ancient Order of Foresters' Excursion to Stony Lake on Monday, July 2nd, are as follows: Jas. Hendry, C.R.; Hugh McWha, Treasurer; Andrew Brotherson, Roy Anderson, Alfred Day, C. A. Thurston and F. Pratt, Secretary.

This annual event of the A.O.F. has proved a gratifying success, due as much to the good workers on the Committee as it has been to the delightful nature of the outing on the lakes. Further particulars in a few days.

PORTUGUESE ARE TRAINING.

Troops on the French Front Prepare For Active Service.

LISBON, May 20.—Major Norton de Mattos, the Portuguese Minister of War, has gone to France to visit the Portuguese troops serving there. After visiting the French front he intends to go to London for conferences concerning Portugal's active participation in the war. His post is filled during his absence, by Dr. Alfonso Costa, Premier and Minister of Finance.

Letters published in the Portuguese press from soldiers to their families, are all most significant and full of courage and faith in the victory of the Entente Allies. In a letter received here from an English officer, whose residence is in Lisbon, and who is now acting as interpreter with the Portuguese troops, the following occurs:

"I have been several times to the front with the Portuguese troops sent there with English for practice so that they may be trained in the methods of war. I am glad to be able to say that the Portuguese soldiers are not 'funks' and all that is necessary is strict discipline and organization."

According to the military convention between the English and the Portuguese governments a fixed number of troops will be sent out every month. A decree has been published calling upon all classes, with a certain degree of education, between 20 and 45 years of age to attend military schools for eight hours a day during three months.

RED SOX BEATEN BY THE YANKEES

Bagby Outpitches Cicotte, and Cleveland Defeated Chicago.

NEW YORK, June 21.—New York won a nip and tuck game from Boston here to-day, 5 to 4. The Yanks scored their winning run in the eighth inning on Pipp's single, Miller's infield out, and Peckinpaugh's double. Boston filled the bases with one out in the ninth inning, but Gardner, who had made three hits, ended the game by hitting into a double play. The score: R.H.E.

Boston	01100200	4	9 1
New York	00103001x	5	10 1

Batteries— Shore, Pennock and Agnew; Love, Shocker and Nunamaker, Walters.

At Chicago— Bagby outpitched Cicotte in a pitchers' duel to-day, and Cleveland shut out Chicago, 1 to 0. The visitors won the game in the first inning. Bagby allowed only three hits, and not a Chicagoan reached second base after the initial inning. The support behind the Cleveland pitcher was faultless. The score: R.H.E.

Cleveland	10000000	1	5 0
Chicago	00000000	0	3 2

Batteries— Bagby and O'Neill; Cicotte and Schalk.

At Detroit—Austin's wild throw with a bunt by Veach, permitted Cobb who had obtained a scratch single, to score from first in the ninth inning to-day with the run that enabled Detroit to win, 5 to 4 from St. Louis. Sothoron and Severoid were ordered from the field for disputing a called ball. The score. R.H.E.

St. Louis	00000031	4	12 2
Detroit	01000121	5	12 0

Batteries — Sothoron, Davenport, Koob, Hamilton and Severoid, Hale; Ehmke, Boland and Spencer, Stanage.

At Washington —Philadelphia beat Washington to-day, 3 to 0, bunching hits off Dumont in two innings. Bush always had something in reserve when threatened. The score: R.H.E.

Philadelphia	00000120	3	8 0
Washington	00000000	0	8 2

Batteries — Bush and Meyer; Dumont, Ayres and Henry.

"LORD" BYRON STILL CHASING PLAYERS

Police Have to Disperse the Fans at St. Louis After Reds' Win.

ST. LOUIS, June 21. — St. Louis could do nothing with Toney to-day and Cincinnati won, 7 to 1. Manager Huggins was put off the field by Umpire Byron for protesting a decision on balls and strikes in the seventh and a moment later Betzel was ordered to leave the field. A crowd of about 300 waited outside the park for Byron after the game and it was necessary for the police to use force to disperse them. No one was hurt. R.H.E.

Cincinnati	02000120	7	10 1
St. Louis	01000000	1	7 1

Batteries—Toney and Wingo; Watson, Packard, Murchison and Snyder.

At Philadelphia—Brooklyn bunched hits off Alexander in the second and third innings and won to-day's game 4 to 2. Marquard was very effective, except in one inning, and then a fine running stop by Cutshaw and a great running catch by Hickman held the rally down to two runs. Score. R.H.E.

Brooklyn	01201000	4	10 1
Philadelphia	00020000	2	6 1

Batteries—Marquard and Miller; Alexander and Killifer.

At Pittsburg— Chicago easily won from Pittsburg to-day, 12 to 4. Miller and Grimes were ineffective, Miller being hit for five runs in the first two innings. Poor support, however, was the factor in this scoring. Grimes held the opposing side until the seventh inning, when they tallied four runs on two singles and three triples. Score: R.H.E.

Pittsburg	30001000	4	8 5

Batteries—Hendryx, Seaton and Elliott; Miller, Grimes and W. Wagner.

At Boston—Boston made but three hits, all singles, off Tesreau to-day and were shut out by New York, 4 to 0. The home team hit the ball hard, but this was offset by the visitors' sensational fielding.

Only two Boston players reached second and noen reached third. Score: R.H.E.

New York	10000200	1	10 0
Boston	00000000	0	3 0

Batteries—Tesreau and Rariden; Ragan, Allen and Gowdy.

DECORATION FOR MRS. T. H. BELL

Wife of Former Peterboro' Boy Receives Royal Red Cross

The Manitoba Free Press says: Mrs. T. Herbert Bell, wife of Dr. T. H. Bell, of Winnipeg, formerly of Peterborough, has been decorated by King George with the Royal Red Cross in recognition of her services as a military nurse in various hospitals in the western and eastern theatres of war. Both Dr. and Mrs. Bell, who made their home at Ellsmere Court, Hargrave St., left Winnipeg shortly after the outbreak of the war, the doctor going at once to France to take up advance field work. Mrs. Bell was in a French hospital for some time before being sent to Gallipoli, where she experienced some of the hardships of the war. For two months she was very ill from the effects of her privations and on her recovery she was taken to England, where she assumed charge of a London hospital.

NEW ALARM IS INSTALLED

Mr. Robert Dobie tested the box at 2.30 this afternoon wiht the satisfactory result that within three minutes and thirty seconds the firemen arrived and had a line of hose laid there with English for practice so that they may be trained in the methods of war. I am glad to be able to say that the Portuguese soldiers are not 'funks' and all that is necessary is strict discipline and organization."

According to the military convention between the English and the Portuguese governments a fixed number of troops will be sent out every month. A decree has been published calling upon all classes, with a certain degree of education, between 20 and 45 years of age to attend military schools for eight hours a day during three months.

A.O. Foresters' Excursion

The committee in charge of the preparations for the Ancient Order of Foresters' Excursion to Stony Lake on Monday, July 2nd, are as follows: Jas. Hendry, C.R.; Hugh McWha, Treasurer; Andrew Brotherson, Roy Anderson, Alfred Day, C. A. Thurston and F. Pratt, Secretary.

This annual event of the A.O.F. has proved a gratifying success, due as much to the good workers on the Committee as it has been to the delightful nature of the outing on the lakes. Further particulars in a few days.

PORTUGUESE ARE TRAINING.

Troops on the French Front Prepare For Active Service.

LISBON, May 20.—Major Norton de Mattos, the Portuguese Minister of War, has gone to France to visit the Portuguese troops serving there. After visiting the French front he intends to go to London for conferences concerning Portugal's active participation in the war. His post is filled during his absence, by Dr. Alfonso Costa, Premier and Minister of Finance.

Letters published in the Portuguese press from soldiers to their families, are all most significant and full of courage and faith in the victory of the Entente Allies. In a letter received here from an English officer, whose residence is in Lisbon, and who is now acting as interpreter with the Portuguese troops, the following occurs:

"I have been several times to the front with the Portuguese troops sent

WEDDING BELLS

CARSON—STEWART.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Stewart, 406 Sheridan street, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday evening, June 21, when their eldest daughter, Bessie, became the bride of Mr. R. B. Carson, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. G. Carson, of Halifax. Promptly at 6 o'clock the bride, looking very sweet gowned in white, and wearing the customary veil, entered the beautifully decorated drawing room leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by her little sister, Laura. The attendants of the bride were Miss Bell Thompson of Hastings as bridesmaid, and little Helen Thompson, of Toronto, made a charming flower girl. Mr. W. D. Stewart ably supported the groom.

During the signing of the register, Miss Annie Waddell sang beautifully, "A Perfect Day," after which all adjourned to the dining room and did full justice to an excellent dinner.

The happy couple left on the midnight train for Halifax, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will reside at 406 Sheridan street.

BURKE—McMILLEN.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place this morning at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, when Miss Mary E. McMillen, daughter of Thos. McMillen, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Patrick J. Burke, son of Michael Burke, of Peterborough. The bride was attended by Miss Florence Leahy, of Peterborough; while Thos. McMillen, Jr., acted as groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Burke left on the 3.10 train for Norwood, and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

McILVEEN—LANCASHIRE.

On June 20th, 1917, at Cedar Dale Farm, Otonabee, Rev. A. K. Edmison united in marriage Margaret Lancashire, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lancashire, Otonabee, to Mr. Wilbert McIlveen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McIlveen, Tranton.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert McIlveen will reside at 81 St. John's Road, Toronto.

Express Messengers Held Up and Robbed

TWO ROAD AGENTS GOT AWAY WITH JEWELS AND MONEY TO VALUE OF $30,000.

CHICAGO. — Two "road agents" who disregarded the fact that the frontier had been moved several hundred miles west, were $30,000 richer to-day. They held up two express messengers on the Burlington flyer in the West Side yards of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway, and escaped with a quantity of money and jewels.

According to R. M. Smillie and R. A. Andrews, the two express messengers, the bandits were masked, and heavily armed.

After binding Smillie and Andrews they opened the safe by means of a combination dial. The robbery was discovered when the train reached the union station. Smillie and Andrews have been held for investigation.

RAISIN SANDWICHES.

These sandwiches are delicious and rich in nutriment. Wash well one cupful of seeded raisins and be sure there is not a seed in them; mix with one cupful of walnut meats free from any bits of shell, put all through the food chopper with the finest cutter in, and mix to a paste with three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Spread on thin buttered slices of bread, placing a crisp leaf of lettuce between.

County Assessment Increased To Meet Local Assessment

The County's equalized assessment was generally increased by the Council action this afternoon required to bring the aggregate abreast of the total of the local assessments of the municipalities. The present equalized assessment for the villages of Lakefield, Norwood and Havelock, and the townships of Belmont and Methuen, Burleigh and Anstruther, Chandos, and Galway and Cavendish are increased one per cent., and the other municipalities the frontier townships increased two per cent.

The last report of the Equalization and Assessment committee gave the aggregate of local assessments at $9,252,467.00 and the equalized assessment aggregate at $9,091,005.

Mr. E. A. Peck, County Solicitor, pointed out this morning that this gap would have to be closed up, in order that the two aggregates may be at least on even terms.

Mr. Squire, Reeve of Norwood, agreed to the action, although he did not consider it fair. Norwood's local assessment was $260,260, and its equalized $326,755. There was very little disparity in those figures he contended, but turning to Lakefield and Havelock he held their figures up as examples of disproportion. Lakefield's local assessment was $512,470, and equalized $364,735, while Havelock's was probably worse with $400,000 of a local assessment and only $168,399 assessment for county purposes.

Reeve Griffith pointed out that it was the difference in the assessment of Havelock and Lakefield that required the present increase.

Reeve Squire stated that unless those villages brought their figures to a more equable basis he would certainly protest on the next occasion they were considered.

FUNERAL OF J. C. CHITTICK.

Was Very Largely Attended Yesterday Afternoon to Lakefield Cemetery.

The farmers of Smith township paid a splendid tribute to the memory of John C. Chittick by attending his funeral yesterday afternoon in exceptionally large numbers. From all sides of the township and from neighboring communities, even as distant as Peterborough, they gathered as an evidence of their esteem for the late dairyman. The pallbearers were Messrs. Robert Duff, Thompson Braden, William Fowler, T. T. Milburn, Chas. Robinson and Bert Rosebrough. The services were in charge of Rev. Mr. Barrett of Lakefield and Rev. G. McKee of Bridgenorth. The remains were interred in Lakefield cemetery.

Yes, Builds You Up in 5 to 10 Days

Iron For the Blood and Phosphorus For the Nerves

Weak, anaemic, run-down, nervous persons will be glad to know that they can be restored back to their youth vigor by the discovery of this new drug called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron.

It is spring time now and every person needs something to build them up. Now you know as well as any doctor will tell you, the curse of spring time is impure blood. It takes many people to their grave, ruins health, makes you weak, runs you down and finally you are a physical wreck.

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus. The iron acts directly on the blood while the phosphorus soothes and strengthens the nerves. You start today and take two or three tablets of Bonised Phosphorus with Iron after meals and in 5 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent. stronger.

This drug does not act like other iron tonics you have taken, but instead, it does not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach or make you constipated. This new drug is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterborough.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in Canadian Grocer this week:

The Market at a Glance.

With a sagging tendency in the wheat market during the week flour was in a weaker position. Demand for this commodity is light in the face of the fluctuating market. Some Ontario mills are shipping flour into the United States and this is keeping them fairly busy. Demand for millfeeds is lighter on account of the excellent grass pasture for stock at present. Sugar declined 15c per hundred. Local demand is still very light. Reports of the sinking of 40,000 tons of sugar in ten days by submarines has put a measure of firmness in the market by reason of the fact that supplies have been decreased by that much. The rainy season has now set in on the Island of Cuba and production of raw sugar will diminish from this time forward.

Butter and eggs were in easier market, in the latter commodity considerable declines being recorded, due to the unexpected increase in production. Cheese held steady at recent prices, but there was a disposition on the part of dealers to pay slightly more to the factories for their output. Demand for poultry is light and prices on live hens and spring chickens have been easier in consequence. Condensed and evaporated milk have again been increased in price. Certain brands of baking powder have been moved upward and cut tobaccos of various kinds quite generally are selling at higher quotations.

Business during the week has been slow, wholesalers attributing the slackness to the fact that retailers are carrying sufficient stocks to meet their needs for a time. Wholesalers are not anxious over the situation as they have been doing an excellent business ever since the beginning of the year until within the past three or four weeks. The situation has induced lower prices in rice, quotations being down in certain quarters.

When Money is Tight

Practically all classes of investments—bonds, stocks, debentures, real estate—depreciate in value to a ruinous extent. Investors are often forced into bankruptcy at such times through conditions over which they have no control.

But an Imperial Life policy never depreciates. On the contrary, it continues to increase in value from the day it is issued until its maturity, no matter what financial conditions may be.

If you would like to know more about this "panic-proof" investment fill out and return the coupon below. We'll send you some interesting literature by return mail.

Russia Will Do Her Part In The Conflict Against Prussianism

Boris Bakhametieff, Special Ambassador, Outlines Purposes of New Democracy—Expresses Gratitude to American People—President Wilson Entertains Russian Mission at State Dinner in White House.

WILL ADDRESS THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 23.—The provisional government of Russia, determined to reject offers of a separate peace, will marshal its resources to prosecute with vigor the war upon Prussian autocracy.

This declaration of purpose was made by Boris Bakhmetief to the people of the United States through the Washington newspaper correspondents.

It is virtually the reply of new Russia to the message of President Wilson appealing to the democracies of the world to unite their efforts to bring about a lasting and stable peace and a challenge to the German government that its conspiracies to disassociate Russia from her Allies will be of no avail.

The mission headed by Mr. Bakhmetieff was entertained by President Wilson at a State dinner in the White House with members of the Cabinet, Congressional leaders and high officials of the army and navy present.

Will Address Senate.

Ambassador Baghmetieff yesterday accepted an invitation from Vice President Marshall to address the Senate next Tuesday. This afternoon he received a visit from William J. Bryan, who happened to be passing through Washington.

Secretary Baker, accompanied by Major General Bliss, Assistant Chief of Staff, today returned the official call paid upon him by Lieutenant-General Roop, the military member of the mission, and thanked him for his greetings from the Russian Army.

The head of the Russian mission, which has undertaken the task of bringing about the closest co-operation with the United States, announced the aims of the provisional government with every indication of confidence in the belief that they would be attained. He asserted that the new government has the full support of the democratic masses of Russia, that it is made up of the strongest representatives of all the important parties, and that it is daily growing stronger.

Convinced that the people are back of it, Ambassador Bakhmetieff declared that the provisional government was ready to take preparatory steps for an agreement with the Allies founded upon its declaration of March 27, an agreement to carry on the war to a definite conclusion

Will Fight to End.

As evidence of the intent of the Russian people, as well as the government he pointed to the decision of the Russian Congress of the Workingmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, the decision of the Duma, the voice of the country as expressed in the press and in resolution adopted at various conferences and congresses.

"All these," says the Ambassador, "confirm their full support to this national programme and leave not the slightest doubt that Russia is decided as to the necessity to fight the German autocracy, until the conditions for a general and stable peace in Europe are established."

The difficulties which confront the provisional government are not minimized in the statement of the Ambassador. He explains that in the wake of the old government was left an array of economic and technical disorganization "which weighs yet heavily on the whole country." But he insists that the energetic work of reconstruction is now being carried out and that much has already been accomplished in the way of supplying plants with raw materials and fuel, distributing food supplies and alleviating financial distress. It is made clear that the assistance of the United States in solving these and other problems is sought.

Conferences to this end were begun today with various officials of the United States government.

Expresses Gratitude to America.

"In behalf of the Russian Provisional Government and in behalf of all the people of new Russia," said Mr. Bakhmetieff, "I have been first of all sent here to express their gratitude to the government of the United States for the prompt recognition of the new political order in Russia.

This noble action of the world's greatest democracy has afforded us strong moral support and has created among our people a general feeling of profound appreciation.

'Close and active relationship between the two nations based upon complete and sincere understanding encountered inevitable obstacles during the old regime because of its very nature. The situation is now radically changed with free Russia starting a new era in her national life. The natura land deep feeling of sympathy which always existed between the people of the two great nations will grow new, by the force of events, into a stable friendship—into permanent and active co-operation."

MRS. PANKHURST NOW IN RUSSIA

PETROGRAD, June 22. — Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the British suffragist leader, made an unexpected arrival in Petrograd. She appeared in the best of health, and at once called upon the Root Commission and discussed at length what might be done to assist Russia in directing all the forces of the new democracy toward the struggle with the common foe.

In a conversation with newspaper correspondents Mrs. Pankhurst said that she had come to Russia to explain to the men and women of the new republic the attitude of the British democracy toward the war. She added that it was too early to announce exactly how she aimed to accomplish this but she planned to appeal directly to the people and would probably address street audiences.

One of Mrs. Pankhurst's first appointments will be with Madame Kerensky, wife of the Minister of War. She is greatly interested in the formation of the women's regiment and the report that Madame Kerensky is about to join it. In recounting the incidents of her trip from England Mrs. Pankhurst announced with evident satisfaction that she had been present when sailors refused a passage of Ramsay Macdonald, the British Socialist leader, who intended to confer with Socialists in Stockholm and Russia.

"Macdonald's attitude in this war," she said, "is purely political. He remembered that Lloyd George gained popularity by opposing the Boer war and he decided that it would be possible for him to play the same role in this war. He has failed since the Boer war was unpopular and this is a struggle of the people."

FIRMER TONE CATTLE MARKET

Partial Recovery This Week From Recent Declines—Some Quality Cattle Yet to Come

There has been a firmer tone and more life and activity to the trade during the present than for two or three weeks past. The result was a partial recovery in prices, though not to the full extent of the recent decline from the top peak reached in the month of May. The full advance for the week would average about 15 to 20c., a few extra choice lots making perhaps 25c. better than they would have made the week before, but the advance on the bulk of the cattle sold would not be more than 15c. This advance became well established as the week advanced, with a firm steady tone prevailing in the closing market. The moderately light runs contributed to the steadiness of the market. There are probably quite a few cattle still in the stables and if these should be marketed almost all at one time the market would probably soon feel the effects of any sudden overloading. But if the deliveries are distributed well over the next few weeks there is no reason why present prices should not hold practically steady and perhaps a bit better. There appears at present at all events to be a strong, healthy demand for real choice quality well finished beef cattle.

With the better demand for butcher cattle there has been a slight improvement in the demand for good breedy stockers and feeders, and prices stiffened slightly for the best feeders around 900 to 950 lbs.

Milch cows and springers have been in an easier market for the past two weeks, but prices steadied during this week.

The calf trade continues active and strong.

Sheep and lambs steady to firm except for heavy fat sheep.

The recent steady declines in the hog market were checked in this week's Thursday market when a recovery and advance of 25 cents was made. Select hogs were quoted firm at $15.25 fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts for the week, 414 cars with 3,853 cattle, 748 calves, 7,968 hogs, 558 sheep and lambs, and 1,027 horses.

City Cattle Market—44 cars, with 594 cattle, 204 sheep and lambs, 206 hogs, 346 calves, and 143 horses.

GERMANY ASKS FOR FUND.

COPENHAGEN, June 23.—German newspapers print an initial appeal for the collection of a great national fund to supplement pensions for war cripples and the families of soldiers in the same fashion as widows and other dependents of fallen soldiers are now assisted from a fund collected by popular subscription.

The Government pensions are described as utterly inadequate, and instances are cited by figures from the Rhine district, where the pension for men with families is only 87 marks.

The Vorwarts calls it a crying shame and a disgrace to appeal to private generosity for the relief which a grateful fatherland should grant adequately from a public treasury.

Wheat Markets Develop Strength

Weather Reports Continue Favourable For Growing Crops

Wheat markets yesterday suddenly developed strength, chiefly on reports that arrangements were being successfully carried to increase the tonnage available for the moving of the new crop. Outside of this there appeared little reason for the strong upturn in the market which took place. Weather reports continue most favourable for the growing crops, and harvesting in the winter wheat belt is proceeding under satisfactory conditions, threshing having commenced in some sections.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"The Postmaster's Daughter"

By LOUIS TRACY

Grant was still sore with the recollection of the way in which the superintendent of police had forced him to confess the pitiful scheme whereby a woman in love had sought to gain her ends. He refused to sully her memory a second time that day even to gain the upper hand in this troublesome controversy.

"I neither know nor care what representations may have been made to you," he retorted, "I merely tell you the literal truth."

"Possibly. Possibly. It was I who used the word 'lie,' remember. But if you are ungracious enough to withdraw the offensive phrase let it pass. We are not in France. This deadly business will be fought out in the law courts. I am here to-night of my own initiative. I thought it only fair and reasonable that you and I should meet before we are brought face to face at a coroner's inquest, and it may be, in an assize court....No, no, Mr. Grant. Pray do not put the worst construction on my words. Someone murdered my wife. If the police show intelligence and reasonable skill, someone will be tried for the murder. You and I certainly will be witnesses. That is what I meant to convey. The doubt in my mind was this—whether to be actively hostile or passively friendly to the man who, next to me, was interested in the poor woman now lying dead in a wretched stable of this village."

The almost diabolical cleverness of this long speech, delivered without heat and with singularly adroit stress on various passages, was revealed by its effect on Grant. He was at once infuriated and puzzled. Ingerman was playing him as a fisherman humours a well hooked salmon. The simile actually occurred to him, and he resolved to precipitate matters by coming straightway to the landing net.

"Is your friendship purchasable?" he inquired, making the rush without further preamble.

"My wife was, I was led to believe," came the calm retort.

Grant threw scruples to the wind now. Adelaide Mulhuish was being defamed, not by him, but by her husband.

"We are at cross purposes," he said, weighing each word. "Your wife, who knew your character well, I am convinced, thought that you were open to receive a cash consideration for your connivance in a divorce."

"She had told me plainly that she would never live with me again. I was too fair minded a man to place obstacles in her way when she wished to regain her freedom."

"So it was true, then. What was the price? One thousand—two? I am not a millionaire."

"Nor am I. As a mere matter of pounds, shillings and pence, it was a serious matter for me when my wife's earnings ceased to come into the common stock."

"My first, if rather vague, estimate of you was the correct one. You are a good bit of a scoundrel, and if I guess rightly, a would-be blackmailer."

"You are talking at random, Mr. Grant. The levying of blackmail connotes that the person bled desires that some discreditable, or dangerous, fact, should be concealed."

"Such is not my position."

"I—I wonder."

"I can relieve you of some oppressive doubt. I informed the police some few hours ago that you have appeared already in a similar role."

"Oh, you did, did you?" snarled Ingerman, suddenly abandoning his pose, and gazing at Grant with a curiously snakelike glint in his black eyes.

"Yes. It interested them, I fancied."

Grant was sure of his man now and rather relieved that the battle of wits was turning in his favor.

"So you have begun already to scheme your defense?"

"Hadn't you better go?" was the contemptuous retort.

"You refuse to answer any further questions?"

"I refuse to buy your proffered friendship — whatever that may mean."

"Have I offered to sell it?"

"I gathered as much."

Ingerman rose. He was still master of himself, though his lanky body was taut with rage. He spoke calmly and with remarkable restraint.

"Go through what I have said, and discover, if you can, the slightest hint of any suggested condonation of your offenses, whether avowed or merely suspected. I shall prove beyond dispute that you came between me and my wife. Don't hug the delusion that your three years' limit will save you. It will not. I wish you well of your attempt to prove that I was a consenting party to divorce proceedings. I came here to look you over. I have done so, and have arrived at a very definite opinion. I, also, have been interviewed by the police, and any unfavorable views they may have formed concerning me as the outcome of your ex parte statements are more than counteracted by the ugly facts of a ghastly murder. You were here shortly before eleven o'clock last night. My wife was here, too, and alive. This morning she was found dead, by you. At eleven o'clock last night I was playing bridge with three city men in my flat. When the news of the murder reached me to-day my first thought after the shock of it had passed, was: 'That fellow, Grant, may be innocently involved in a terrible crime, and I may figure as the chief witness against him.' I am not speaking idly, as you will learn to your cost. Yet when I come on an errand of mercy, you have the impudence to charge me with blackmail. You are in for a great awakening. Be sure of that!"

And Isidor G. Ingerman walked out leaving Grant uncomfortably aware he had not seen the last of an implacable and bitter enemy.

It was something new and very disturbing for a writer to find himself in the predicament of a man with an absolutely clear conscience yet perilously near the meshes of the criminal law. He had often analyzed such a situation in his books, but fiction diverged so radically from hard facts that the sensation was profoundly disconcerting, to say the least.

He did not go to the post office. He was not equal to any more verbal fireworks that evening. So he lit a pipe and reviewed Ingerman's well-rounded periods very carefully, even taking the precaution to jot down exact phrases. He analysed them, and saw that they were capable of two meanings. Of course it could not be otherwise. The plausible rascal must have conned them over until this essential was secured. Grant even went so far as to give them a grudging professional tribute. They held a canker of doubt, too, which it was difficult to dissect. Their veiled threats were perplexing. While their effect, as apart from literal significance, was fresh in his mind, he made a few notes of different interpretations.

He went to bed rather early, but could not sleep until the small hours. Probably his rest, such as it was, would have been even more disturbed had he been able to accompany Ingerman to the Hare and Hounds Inn.

A small but select company had gathered in the bar parlor. The two hours between eight and ten were the most important of the day to the landlord, Mr. Tomlin. It was then that he imparted and received the tit-bits of local gossip garnered earlier, the process involving a good deal of play with shining beer handles, and attractively labelled bottles.

But this was a special occasion. Never before had there been a Steynholme murder before the symposium. Hitherto, such a gruesome topic was supplied for the most part by far-away London. To-night the eeriness and dramatic intensity of a notable crime lay at the very doors of the village.

So Tomlin was more portentous than usual; Hobbs, the butcher, more assertive, Elkin, the "sporty" breeder of polo ponies, more inclined to "lay odds" on any conceivable subject, and Siddle, the chemist, a reserved man at the best, even less disposed to voice a definite opinion.

Elkin was about twenty-five years of age, Siddle looked younger than his probable thirty-five years, while the others were on the stout and prosperous line of fifty.

They were discussing the murder, of course, when Ingerman entered, and ordered a whiskey and soda. Instantly there was a dead silence. Looks and furtive winks were exchanged. There was talk of a detective being employed. Perhaps this was he. Mr. Tomlin knew the stranger's name, as he had taken a room, but that was the extent of his available information.

"A fine evenin', sir," said Tomlin, drawing a cork noisily. "Looks as though we were in for a spell o' settled weather."

"Yes," agreed Ingerman, summing up the conclave at a glance. "Somehow, such a lovely night ill accords with the cause of my visit to Steynholme."

"In-deed, sir?"

"Well, you and these other gentlemen may judge for yourselves. It will be no secret to-morrow. I am the husband of the lady who was found in the river outside of Mr. Grant's residence this morning."

Sensation, as the descriptive reporters put it. Mr. Tomlin was dumbly but unanimously elected the chairman of the meeting, and was vaguely aware of his responsibilities. He drew himself a fresh glass of bitter.

"You don't tell me, sir!" he gasped. "Well, the idea! The poor lady's letters were addressed to Miss Adelaide Melhuish. Perhaps you don't know, sir, that she stayed here?"

"Oh, yes. I was told that by the local police constable. Have I by any chance been given her room?"

"No, sir. Not likely. It's locked, and the police have the key till the inquest is done with."

"As for the name," explained Ingerman, in his suave voice, "that was a mere stage pseudonym, an adopted name. My wife was a famous actress, and there is a sort of tacit agreement that a lady in the theatrical profession shall be known to the public as 'Miss' rather than 'Mrs.'"

"Well, there!" wheezed Tomlin. "Who'd ever ha' thought it?"

The landlord was not quite rising to the occasion. He was, in fact, stunned by these repeated shocks. So Hobbs took charge.

"It is a sad errand you are on, sir," he said. "Death comes to all of us, man an' beast alike, but it's a terrible thing when a lady like Miss — Mrs. —"

"Ingerman is my name, but my wife will certainly be alluded to by the press as Miss Melhuish."

"When a lady like Miss Melhuish is knocked on the 'ead like a —"

Mr. Hobbs hesitated again. He also felt that the situation was rather beyond him.

"But my wife was flung into the river and drowned," said Ingerman, sadly.

"No, sir. She was killed fust. It was a brutal business, so I'm told."

"Do you mean that she was struck, her skull battered?" came the demand, in an awed and soul-thrilling whisper.

"Yes, sir. An' the wust thing is, none of us can guess who could ha' done it."

"Lay yer five quid to one, Hobbs, that the police cop the scoundrel afore this day fortnight," cried Elkin noisily.

Then Mr. Siddle put in a mild word.

"Gentlemen," he said, "let me remind you that we four will probably be jurors at the inquest."

That was a sobering thought. Elkin subsided, and Hobbs looked critically at the remains of a gill of beer.

Ingerman took stock of the chemist. He might easily induce the others to believe that Grant was the real criminal, but the quiet man in the black morning coat and striped cloth trousers was of finer metal. He knew instantly that if he could persuade this one "probable juror" of Grant's guilt, the remainder would follow his lead like a flock of sheep.

But there was no need to hurry. Next day's inquest would be a mere formality. The real struggle would begin a week or a fortnight later.

"You have said a very wise thing, sir," he murmured appreciatively. "Even my feelings must be kept under better control. But this is no ordinary murder. Before it is cleared up there will be astounding revelations. Mark the word — astounding."

Hobbs, whose heavy cheeks were of a brick-red tint, almost startled the conclave by a sudden outburst which gave him an apoplectic appearance.

Asparagus Not A Luxury

Asparagus is so delicious a vegetable that it runs the danger of being classed with the luxuries, and therefore being tabooed in these days of forced economy. This is, however, a mistake; for the delicate stalks of the asparagus contain quite an astonishing degree of nutriment. One trouble about the cooking of asparagus is that it is frequently not cooked enough. In the desire to have it look well, the housewife often boils the asparagus till tied in a bunch, by which means the inner stalks are not as tender as they should be. This can be obviated by using the long shaped enamel ware kettle, which is also invaluable for fish. This kettle contains a tray on which the asparagus can be spread and so cooked through thoroughly and yet be perfectly whole when served at the table. In the spring it is better to cut down on sweets or fancy desserts and to use vegetables, like asparagus, which help to avoid doctors' bills.

OAT MUFFINS.

One cupful hot cooked oatmeal, one cupful flour, one-quarter cupful sugar, four teaspoonfuls baking powder, one teaspoonful salt, one-third cupful milk, two tablespoonfuls melted butter. Mix and sift the flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together twice, then add the hot cooked oatmeal and work with the fingers until thoroughly blended. Add the remining ingredients and beat all well together. When thoroughly blended turn into hot, well greased gem pans and bake in a hot over about twenty-five minutes.

The old miser in the story, who dropped a $5.00 gold piece in the plate at church, mistaking it for a nickel, could get no great satisfaction out of the deacon, as will be recalled, but was not the man to give up easily. Accordingly he sought legal advice with a view of instituting a suit at law. But the lawyer whom he consulted was one of those rare and gifted souls who would rather be witty than rich, or almost anything else, for that matter. "Sir," said he at once, "you have no case. You are guilty of contributory negligence."—Chicago Daily News.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Food Suggestions: This is the last of the articles on selection of foods as given in Department Bulletin No. 808 and well sums up the lessons:

"It is believed that it is impossible to plan the meals for a family wisely without at least as much knowledge of how different kinds of food serve the body as this bulletin has given and that the safest, short cut to good planning lies in considering foods in the five groups here described. Ways of making economical use of the materials in each group cannot be discussed in this bulletin, but a few general suggestions for getting the most from one's money in the matter of food may be made here.

Use cereals (flour, meal, cereal breakfast foods, etc.) freely taking pains to prepare them with great care and to vary the kind used from day to day if necessary to keep people from tiring of them. Remember that a quart of whole milk a day for each child, to be used as a beverage and in cookery, is not too much. Remember that while skim milk should never be substituted for whole milk as the principal food in a child's diet, it is as valuable as whole milk as a source of protein and mineral matters in the general diet. Remember that, except in the case of milk for children, the amount needed of foods especially useful for body-building purposes—that is, meats and meat substitutes, fruits and vegetables—is not large, but what is needed is needed very much.

Do not be ashamed to plan closely. Thrift in food means providing enough food, neither too little nor too much. Notice carefully how much of such staples as flour, sugar, milk, cooking fat, etc., is used each week for a month and see if there are any ways of cutting down the quantity consumed. Buy nonperishable materials in quantities if better prices can be secured and there is a good storage place in the home. Neighbors can sometimes club together to get lower rates. Try to make the dishes served of such size that there will be enough to satisfy the appetite of the family and no unnecessary table and plate waste. Do not be above noticing whether anything usable is thrown away with the garbage, which always shows how thriftily food is used in a household. Many inexpensive materials can be made attractive and the diet can be pleasantly varied by a wise use of different flavouring.

"Finicky" tastes in food often prevent the use of many valuable materials which might be the means of saving money. Good food habits are an important part of personal hygiene and thrift. Children get such habits by having suitable amounts of suitable foods served to them and then being expected to eat what is set before them. True economy lies not only in buying wisely but also in making the fullest possible use of what is abought.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5039 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents postage.

Dear Doctor: I have been interested in the Home Health Club for a long time and now wish to trouble you a little. My daughter has a baby boy about two months 'old. The whooping cough is in the neighborhood and she is worried for fear her baby may take it. In case he does, what would be best for her to do?—Mrs. B. G.

(Answer) It is not likely that your daughter's baby will contract the Whooping cough, for as a rule children under 6 months old are not susceptible to the ailment, especially if they are nursing.

Whooping Cough is generally taken through direct contact with the sick patient and not through exposure to the sick room. All weak and delicate subjects are more susceptible to the disease. One attack usually makes the child immune. A long period elapses between the time of exposure to Whooping Cough and the appearance of the first symptoms. This may be from two days to two weeks. It begins like an ordinary cold in the head with coughing, which increases. It is generally followed with vomiting spells. The attacks last from a few seconds to one or two minutes. Occasionaly there is no whooping at all, only fits of coughing. Sometimes it lasts many months, especially in the winter time. Under no condition is the disease contagious after two months. There are many complications, and great care should be taken so that the respiratory organs do not become weakened, for the trouble is often followed by bronchitis, pneumonia, etc. In children over 2 years of age no dangerous sequels need, as a rule, be feared. Owing to its many complications, whooping cough may be considered a serious disease, as it causes many deaths among children. For prevention as well as cure follow the methods described in the Home Health Club Book, Volume 2.

Dear Doctor: Will you oblige a reader of the Home Health Club department by giving some account of the disease known as St. Vitus dance. Is it caused by some mental or bodily strain? Would one whose mother and grandfather have had it be certain of also developing it? Can any treatment prevent it?—S. T.

(Answer) St. Vitus Dance is, as a rule, due to perepheral causes—that is, external causes. Ninety per cent. of such can be cured. I have not as yet found a case which has not yielded to proper treatment. In fact the great majority of cases to which I have given personal attention I have found been due, in males to Phimosis and in females to a Hooded Clitoris or Adherent Prepuce. Overcoming these conditions and following directions given in detail in my Volume 2 of the Club book on the subject, has affected a complete cure. Some cases are due to eye strain, others to worms or constipation and still others to local irritations. The only thing that would cause a tendency to it in a hereditary sense would be a highly sensitive or nervous organism transmitted from parent to child. Anyone suffering from the trouble or disposed to it should be very careful of his diet. He should ubsist largely on juicy and laxative fruits, whole wheat bread and breakfast foods, with plenty of vegetables, very little condensed foods, such as cheese, meats, pastries, candies, etc., and absolutely no tea or coffee. Careful massage or manipulations of the muscles along the entire length of the spine are also very beneficial.

A MAN'S CHOICE.

Grim war has come while I am here on earth,
Just as it came to others, long since dead,
And gives to me a chance to prove my worth
As they proved theirs, whose blood was bravely shed.

If war must be—and since the dawn of life
Wars have been parceled in the nature plan—
It brings to me the recompense of strife—
The chance to fight, and prove myself a man.

Death comes but once, and only weakling hearts
Shrink from the horrors that in battle blend:
Within my veins the thrill of triumph starts—
Far better this than an ignoble end!

If war must be, and history repeat
That in man's might progression's laurels lie,
'Tis mine to choose for victory or defeat—
Mine to win bravely or as bravely die!

NOW FOR THE GIRL GRADUATE

Net and Lace-Trimmed Frocks Most Popular This Season

The Girdle An Important Feature

NEW YORK, June 16.—The same excitement, the same eager planning the same thrills of pleasure and happiness are going on in the minds of the youthful graduates of this year, just as they have every past year, and as they will in every year to come. Only the girls are different, and only the frocks they wear are different.

Many a fashion authority, I am sure, is being consulted already as to how the graduation frock should be made. First the material, then the style. These are the two important items in planning the graduation frock.

© McCall's

Crisp Organdy Fashions this Dress.

The choice of the material depends on how much is to be spent on the dress; the choice of a style depends on your figure and your individual taste. The simplest cotton frock may be made to look just as distinctive as a dress that costs very much.

Very charming indeed are the sheer, filmy materials. Chiffon, Georgette crepe, silk voile, silk marquisette, organdy, batiste, and fine voile are the materials most in vogue. This year organdy is a prime favourite and net is another, and sometimes both of these are combined in a dress.

Net Frocks and Laces Most Popular

There is a great deal of lace used; lace flouncing, banding, allover and narrow edging used in the various different ways all tend to make a dress more elaborate, and just the essence of daintiness that every girl pictures her frock to be in her mind's eye.

Nets of all kinds are in use this season, including very fine nets, coarser nets and the open square-meshed nets which combine especially well with filet lace, one of the very fashionable laces this summer.

Net dresses are usually worn over silk slips, but some are worn over slips of very fine batiste, while very elaborate dresses are made with the new silver cloth foundations.

The Important Girdle.

Girdles are a very important feature of frocks this year and consequently there are many styles from which to choose. The long, narrow, beaded girdles are particularly pretty with frocks of Georgette or chiffon. With net, organdy and voile dresses, soft girdles of wide ribbon are most effective. There are a number of ways in which they may be arranged. Some are caught in loops at the right or lef side, others are wound around the waist, brought to the centre front, and arranged in a loose knot with the ends hanging down the length of the skirt. Frequently the ends of ribbon girdles are finished with silk fringes.

An example of the beauty of extreme simplicity is seen in the frock of organdy in the first sketch. Just sheer organdy and a tiny picot edge of fine lace—nothing more—fashions this dainty frock. It is completed by an underbodice of lace and a crushed girdle of soft ribbon. The waist is made with body and sleeves in one and a surplice front, and the skirt is cut to give the effect of the oval silhouette.

BELITTLES SIMS'S FLEET.

German Writer Says it Merely Typifies Allies' Unity.

Commenting upon the arrival of American war vessels in European waters for service in the submarine zone, Herr Endress, military writer of the Frankfurter Zeitung, said in that paper recently, as translated by The London Daily Mail:

"Allied newspapers proclaim the arrival of the 'American Fleet' with great pomp. As was to be expected this consists of light forces which are to typify the unity of the allied front at sea just as the Russian brigades on French soil were to have done on land.

"More important is the Balfour mission in the United States, which is to be taken altogether seriously and which is to deal, besides financial questions, mainly with transport matters. It is planned to nullify the effect of our U-boats by sending a large number of small ships from the United States to many different destinations. In addition, all available German ships in American waters are to be used. Transport for long journeys requires so much tonnage that even at the most feverish rate of new construction numerous trips across the ocean will be necessary. That means the danger of being torpedoed by our submarines will increase correspondingly.

"Much as we are convinced that our U-boats will continue to do their duty with great success, it would be equally idiotic, as is the habit in certain circles, to condemn all the plans of our enemies as nonsensical and futile. It is courage to recognize the strength of ones enemy and defy it. It is a sign of stupidity, or something worse, always to deny its existance."

Russia has 137 centre electric stations, serving nearly 15,000,000 persons.

WHY DREAD OLD AGE?

IT should be the pleasantest time of life and if coupled with good health it is. Many of our most remarkable men and women have won fame and prominence after reaching the sixties, and in lots of cases they have not been robust in youth.

The secret of health in old age is the prevention of bowel disorder. Constipation is the foe to be dreaded. Care in diet is necessary, also the avoidance of harsh cathartics, which only aggravate the trouble.

The ideal laxative for aged people is Chamberlain's Tablets

On account of their mild and gentle action, you hardly realize that a medicine has been taken. Yet the effect is none the less certain, and the tonic properties of these Tablets so build up and strengthen the digestive system that the health is greatly benefitted. Try a bottle today.

SUNDAY SERMON

For Those Who Do Not Go to Church

In taking up this subject, this text has been impressed on my mind to write a sermon. In Trinity Methodist church there is a beautiful stained glass window, with Jesus as the central figure, with a little lamb in his bosom. There are a number of other beautiful figures of Shepherds and others bringing sheep and lambs into the fold. it would take an artist and the pen of a ready writer to describe the beauties of this lovely scene. Every Sunday as I take my seat in the church my mind and eyes are drawn to look at this picture and a feeling of peace and rest comes over me. I thought of the little lamb being in the place where the beloved disciple often leaned on that sacred bosom of Jesus, and of our little lambs who are "safe on His gentle breast." Christ speaks this parable of similitude taken from the custom of the east, in the management of sheep. In the parable we have the marks of a thief and robber, that comes to do mischief to the flock and damage to the owner. He enters not by the door, but climbs up some other way—how industrious are wicked people in their evil ways. This should rouse Christians to be active, earnest and faithful in the service of God. The rightful owner enters in by the door, as one having authority, and he comes to do them service. The Shepherd finds ready entrance. They had sheepfolds within the outer enclosures of their houses for the greater safety of their flocks, so that none could come to them the right way, but such as the porter opened to. Then we see the care He takes, and the provision he makes for his sheep. The sheep hear His voice. He calls his own sheep by name, and He leads them out to the green pastures. He does not drive them, but as is the custom in those countries, he goes before them to prevent any mischief or danger that might meet them and they follow Him, and are safe. The sheep attend to the Shepherd, for they know His voice and discern His mind by it, and know it from a stronger's, suspecting some ill design, they will flee from Him, knowing it is not the voice of their own Shepherd. From the parable itself we see good men are fitly compared to sheep, men, as creatures, depending on their Creator, are called the sheep of His pasture. The church of God in the world is a sheepfold in which the children of God that were scattered abroad are now gathered together. This fold is well fortified for God himself is a wall of fire round about it, Zech 2-5. This sheep-fold is exposed to thieves and robbers, crafty teachers that lead astray cruel persecutors that devour and destroy gracious wolves. Acts 20-29. The great Shepherd of the sheep takes care of the flock—God is the great Shepherd. Psalms 23-1 and 80-1. He knows them that are His, calls them by name, leads them to feed and to rest, speaks comfortably to them, guards them by His providence, guides them by His spirit and word, and goes before them to set them in the way of His steps. The under Shepherds entrusted to feed the flock of God, ought to be careful in the discharge of that trust. Ministers must serve the sheep in their spiritual interests, must feed their souls, with the word of God faithfully, opened and applied, and with Gospel ordinances duly administered. The spirit of Christ will set before them an open door, give them authority in the church, an assurance in their own bosoms. They must know the members of their flocks by name, and watch over them and in their walk and conversation, be an example to them. Those who are truly the sheep of Christ will be very careful and cautious with strangers. They follow their Shepherd for they know His voice, having an obedient heart. Those who have experienced the power and efficacy of Divine truths, upon their souls have wisdom to discover Satan's wiles. The eastern Shepherd generally calls each of his sheep by a separate name, and in leading them to pasture. He goes before, they follow and obey His call. The attention given by ancient Shepherds to their flocks is shown by the classical mode of Kings the Shepherds of their people. The Jews were not aware whom our Lord meant by the thieves and robbers and whom by the Good Shepherd, many who hear the word do not understand it, nor do not wish to, because they do not wish to live by its teachings, if any lack of wisdom, let him ask of God who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him. James 1 Chap. 5 verse. Christ in the parable distinguished the Shepherd from the robber by this that He enters by the dor. In explaining the parable He makes himself both the door by which the Sheperd enters, and the Shepherd that enters in by the door. Christ is the door. He says so to the Jews, who would be thought God's only sheep and to the Pharisees, who would be thought their only Shepherds. I am the door of the sheep-fold—the door of the church, and what greater security has the church of God than the interposal of the Lord Jesus between it, and all its enemies. He is an open door for passage and communication. By Christ as the door we have our first admission into the flock of God. Chap. 14-6. We go in and out in a religious walk, assisted by Him, accepted in Him. By Him God comes to His church and communicates himself to it. By Him as the door, the sheep are at last admitted into the Heavenly Kingdom. Matt. 25-34.

More particularly, none who come not in by him, are to be accounted pastors, but thieves and robbers. Verse 1. This refers to those who had the character of Shepherds in Israel, but exercised their office without regard to the Messiah, or other expectations of him than what were suggested by their own carnal interest. Those who were spiritual and Heavenly and sincerely devoted to God and godliness, could by no means approve the traditions of the elders, for nothing is less pleasing to a soul, truly devout, than hypocritical devotions—Christ is the door of the sheep. By me, through me, as the door, if any man enter into the sheep fold, as one of the fold, he shall be saved, and shall be safe and happy. Here are plain directions, how to come into the fold: We must come in by Jesus Christ as the door; by faith in him as the great Mediator between God and man we come into covenant and communion with God, none are members of the Kingdom of God among men, but those willing to submit to the grace and government of the Redeemer. Precious promises to those who observe this direction, they shall be saved hereafter, that is, the privilege of their home. These sheep shall be saved from being a prey; they shall be forever happy. In the meantime they shall go in and out and find pasture, that is the privilege of their way. In public, in private, they have the word of God to converse with by which their spiritual life is supported and nourished, and out of which their gracious desires are satisfied. God our great owner, the sheep of whose pasture we are, by creation has constituted His Son, Jesus to be our Shepherd; here he owns the relation again and again Christ has all that care of His church and every believer, which a good Shepherd has of His flock, and expects all that attendance and observance from the church and every believer, which the Shepherds in those countries had from their flocks. In return Christ came to give his life for the sheep, to give them eternal life and is ever mindful of them in the intercession He ever lives to make within the veil.

Yours sincerely,
JAMES SUTHERLAND,

Nickajack Cave.

Nickajack was once the name of an important Cherokee town on the bank of the Tennessee river. The Cherokees, who had aided the British in the Revolutionary war and had been well paid for their assistance, clustered their wigwams at this point about 1780-82, and the village was known as one of the "Chickamauga towns." The meaning of the name is now lost, though it was probably of Cherokee origin, as it occurs in the annals of the tribe as a man's name. This name is also given to a creek and to a very remarkable cave, the latter being situated very near that point of the southern boundary of Tennessee where it is intersected by the line separating the states of Alabama and Georgia. Nickajack cave, though but little known, is one of the wonderful caves of the world, being of even more imposing proportions than the Mammoth cave of Kentucky.—Argonaut.

The First Music.

The father of song, music and dancing, all three, was the savage who first clapped hands and shouted in time at some rude festival of his tribe. From that clapping and shouting has been evolved the whole art of instrumental music, including even the entrancing complexities of the modern symphony. From that shout or rudimentary emotional utterance has proceeded by a kindred evolution the whole art of vocal music down to the modern opera or oratorio. From the savage leap has come every variety of dancing.

HEALTHIEST ONE IN THE FAMILY

No Sign Of Dropsy And Kidney Trouble Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

HATTIE WARREN

Port Robinson, Ont., July 8th, 1915.

"We have used "Fruit-a-tives" in our house for over three years and have always found them a good medicine. Our little girl, Hattie, was troubled with Kidney Disease. The Doctor said she was threatened with Dropsy. Her limbs and body were all swollen and we began to think she could not live. Finally, we decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". She began to show improvement after we had given her a few tablets. In a short time, the swelling had all gone down and her flesh began to look more natural. Now she is the healthiest one in the family and has no signs of the old ailment. We can not say too much for "Fruit-a-tives" and would never be without them".

PUSHBALLS ARE COSTLY.

If They Were Cheaper the Game Might Be More Popular.

If some one could invent a pushball that could be made at a reasonable cost the game would be more popular. The enormous cost of pushballs has made it possible for only a very few to own them, and they have been rented out at a high price to those wanting to use them. The pushball is six feet in diameter and costs $300.

The outside covering of a pushball is made of cowhide leather. This covering is composed of twenty strips, which are sewed together by hand. Each of these strips is between nine and ten feet long, or half the circumference of the ball. The strips are widest in the middle, tapering uniformly to points at either end, the poles of the ball, where they are further secured by leather caps sewed over them.

To get the leather needed for a pushball it is necessary to cut up five or six hides, which makes the cost of the cover very high. It takes two men the better part of a week, moreover, to sew this material together.

The bladder for the ball is made of the best rubber, which is cut into strips and cemented together in such shape that when inflated it will form a globe fitting the leather covering, which is practically indestructible. The very best rubber bladders may give out in two of three years, and a new bladder costs $150. A large cylinder foot pump suitable for inflating this mighty ball costs $10.

The game originated in America. The first pushball was made in Newton, Mass., in 1894. This ball had a covering of leather shaped on a wooden form built for the purpose. Four big hides were required. These were cut to form six zones, which were put together with belting hooks. The bladder was made of rubber cloth cut in sections and cemented together. The materials for this ball cost about $175.

The game is played on a field with a goal at each end, each team trying to push the ball through the opponents' goal. It is sometimes used to get baseball teams in condition during the early days. The game is played in Europe, both in England and on the continent.

One of the most spectacular and thrilling variants of the game is that played by horsemen in the west. It requires two teams of mounted players, whose object also is to drive the ball through the goal of the opposing side. It is pushed by the horses, which must be as well trained as polo ponies to maneuver it dexterously, and the game calls for great expertness in the riders. Cowboy saddles and dress are the correct outfit for this game.—St. Nicholas.

How Flying Fish Fly.

The popular notion that flying fish beat their "wings" is a mistake. It appears that the wings are not true organs of flight, but rather play the part of a parachute or an aeroplane. The whole motive power is supplied by the tail, which acts as a propeller, and the vibration or quivering of the wings in the air currents and their occasional shift of inclination are not phenomena connected with the propulsion of the fish in its aerial flight.

Until a little while ago she thought them unavoidable. If you have corns don't blame yourself too much. Many an old person has had them fifty years.

YET they have done what you do—pared them and used old-time, useless treatments.

But what folly it is when nowadays about half the world keeps free.

The chemist who invented Blue-jay made corns forever needless.

Last year some 17 million corns were ended in this simple, easy way.

Just try one corn.

Apply a Blue-jay plaster in a jiffy. Then forget it. It will never pain again.

In two days take the plaster off. The corn will disappear. Only one corn in ten needs another application.

You will laugh at the old ways when you try Blue-jay. You will wonder why people ever let corns hurt. Please start tonight. You have suffered long enough.

WARNS OF GERMAN ERRORS.

Underestimate of Britain Costly, says Herr Koehler.

Among the many articles which have appeared in the German press of late pointing out mistakes and miscalculations made by the German authorities in the early stages of the war and laying emphasis on the necessity of appreciating the enemy's strength was one in which Herr Kohler, the author, remarked, as quoted in The London Times:

"We assuredly must reckon with the reaction which will follow on the hard blows suffered by such a capable and determined nation as the British. Only dreamers think of an England 'lying on the ground.' If the further development of the war really brings England to the decision 'thus far and no farther,' she will devote her whole strength to reconstruction, and she will not shrink from strong measures, showing the energy and toughness of which she has given an example in the indisputably complete success of her system of conscription.

"If we are just, we cannot hide the fact that we seriously underestimated England. If we really thought at the beginning of the war in August, 1914, that we should have finished the war by Christmas, such a view depended absolutely on the assumption that England would appear in the Continental theatre of war only with a tiny army. It was generally thought that such an army could be estimated at about 60,000 men. People wiped out of their memories the great experience which England had acquired in her numerous colonial wars, and they made the mistake of leaving history out of account. The general public cannot of course know to what extent our authorities were clear about English armaments and the transport problem, but it was only gradually that we arrived at the certainty that were in any case opposed by an enemy which, militarily, was extremely capable."

A WONDER WORKER.

"It heals like magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

When You Market Consider Your Less Fortunate Neighbor.

"Every citizen who uses more in his household than his household actually needs is increasing the cost of living for those less fortunate, and he is hindering the prosecution of the war."

Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance.

THE well-to-do woman who sits at her phone and orders provisions lavishly, regardless of price, is abusing the power of money as a bully abuses brute strength!

No longer can we help ourselves as we see fit from an unlimited food supply—we are either limiting our buying to our own real needs or "hogging" someone else's share.

Extravagant buying by those who can afford it, with waste in some kitchens, and excess at some tables, will inevitably bring still greater hardships to those who cannot afford the prices, and hunger to those who must live on less.

Buy for your household as carefully and economically as your husband buys for his factory, store or office. Study food values as well as prices—make it a point to know just what you are getting—eliminate waste—and you'll find that you can feed your family well on far less than you spend now.

Invest the saving in Canadian War Savings Certificates and you will be doubling your service to the nation.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% Interest.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Ludington's Rough Diamond

By DONALD CHAMBERLAIN

Edgar Ludington was born—not with a silver, not with a golden, but with a diamond spoon in his mouth. No one knew what his income was, but all knew that it was fabulous. But Ludington was a good deal of a man for all that. He had been graduated at a college which prides itself on its democracy and had resolutely refused to be considered favorably on account of his wealth. He had also made friends of his classmates, irrespective of either his social or financial standing. His chum was the son of a backwoodsman.

When Ludington left college he spent a year in New York associating with persons of his own social position, though he himself had descended from ancestors prominent in colonial times, while most of his set were of the newly rich. Indeed, he was about the only young man in New York who was both very rich and of blue blood. He found his time principally occupied in escaping girls who wanted to marry him, and, tiring of this, he went west to become a rancher.

At the end of a couple of years he returned to New York to spend the cold season. He was not forgotten by his associates—rich men are never forgotten—and since he was fond of social doings entered into the season's pleasures. In January he opened one of his country places and invited a party of young fellows and girls to spend a couple of weeks with him there. When they were assembled he said to them:

"I've taken up in the west with a rancher who is a rough diamond. He may not have the ways of the rest of us, and his clothes are certainly not of the latest cut, but I assure you he is a fine fellow whom I am proud to know. I've invited him to be with us, and I trust that you will all treat him as my friend."

When Cuthbert Bradshaw appeared he gave evidence of having roughed it for the greater part of his life. It was not that he was made of coarse clay, for if properly dressed he would have at least looked like a gentleman. It was that he had associated with rough persons so continuously that he had become rough himself. From his first appearance it was evident that none of the guests could stomach him. He might be a rough diamond, but Ludington's friends had never been able to see the spiritual beauties of his rough diamond friends, and they did not propose to put up with Mr. Bradshaw.

The party had not been together twenty-four hours when they began to turn upon their host. The men could not use him, for they had all the money they wanted; the women, any one of whom would have been glad to add his fortune to hers, would have borne with him, but not with his friend, and they felt aggrieved that Ludington should have spoiled an otherwise pleasant house party by bringing Bradshaw into it. Besides, they felt that their skirts were soiled by contact with his unpolished boots.

There would not have been open warfare between Ludington and his guests had he not given as much of his time to Bradshaw as to any of them. And to make matters worse, in proportion to their giving Bradshaw the cold shoulder, Ludington gave him more of his time. At last Ludington became so incensed at the treatment of his favorite that he ignored them a good deal of the time to be himself with Bradshaw.

If Ludington's guests had all the money they wanted there was one thing still to be desired—a foreign title. This was beyond the hope of the men, but not the women, some American girls having paid millions for men from whom they were constrained to secure speedy divorces. What was the house party's surprise to see one morning, under an announcement from London of the death of the Earl of Bablington, that, the earl dying childless, the title would fall to his nephew, "Cuthbert Bradshaw, now ranching in New Mexico."

As soon as it was evident that Mr. Bradshaw was a noble lord of high degree all the women of the party about faced and sought an opportunity to do him honor. But he went about among them without taking any notice of them for the few hours he remained in the house and when he went out of it simply raised his hat politely to the group that stood on the porte-cochere to see him off. When he was gone the women vented their spite on Ludington for having deceived them as to Mr. Bradshaw's family connections.

Some declared that it was a frameup on them; that Bradshaw knew better than to wear his ranch clothes among them and make a boor of himself on purpose. There may be some truth in this, but he had certainly been turned loose on the world when very young and had seen some rough usage. Ludington would give his guests no satisfaction about the matter, simply answering that he had concealed nothing and they were as bound to treat Bradshaw, their fellow guest, as well while he was Bradshaw as when he had become the Earl of Bablington.

Anyway, if the Britisher was rough while in America he became suddenly refined in England, and it goes without saying that you can't make a person refined in a hurry.

After his friend's departure Ludington went back to his ranch and has not since been seen in New York.

First Wheel Clocks.

Some say that Archimedes made the first wheel clock as early as 200 B. C., says the London Electrical Age. Others give credit to Wallingford, who lived so late as the beginning of the fourteenth century. But the most perfect water clocks were, long before the latter period, furnished with wheels, so that the only improvement was the substitution of a solid body to act as a moving weight instead of water. It is not to be wondered at that the application of a weight to clocks as a moving power should attract so little attention, as water and sand were undoubtedly thought more convenient by contemporary writers. The oldest complete clock moved by weights is probably that sent by the sultan of Turkey to Frederick II. in 1232. In the thirteenth century many of the church steeples in Italy were furnished with clocks moved by weights, which struck the hours. Hele of Nuremberg is supposed to have constructed the first watch in 1500, and to him must also be given the credit of the spring clock. The fusee was probably invented in England about the end of the sixteenth century. But it was not until the middle of the seventeenth century that the pendulum was first applied to clocks by Huyghens.

FLIES FLEE FROM BLUE.

The Germ Laden Pests Either Fear or Hate That Color.

The Arabs have long known that flies fear or hate the color blue, and that is why the houses in many of their towns are calcimined in a light blue tint. Before the French Academy of Sciences recently Messrs. Galaine and Houlbeert described the results of their observations on the eyesight of flies. The only light that these insects see really well is white; their eyes do not see violet and indigo at all; the vibrations of the blue and green rays are disagreeable to them, and red has the effect of darkness. Yellow alone of all the colored rays is tolerated as well as white.

The solar spectrum as seen by the eyes of a fly begins at green and ends at bright orange. The practical conclusion to be drawn from this is that when a room has blue window panes the flies therein become as inactive as if it were dark. If a slat of a blind be opened to let in a ray of white light the flies will rush toward it and go out through the blind.

In Japan they hang curtains made of beads of blue glass mixed with tubes of painted bamboo at the entrances to butchers' and pastry cooks' shops. These let the air in, and the flies go out through the interstices between the beads, but do not re-enter.

Equine Pedometers.

The whorls of hair on the coats of horses and other animals are natural pedometers, inasmuch as they register the locomotive activities of the animals on whose bodies they are found. The best examples and the greatest number of these hairy whorls and crests are found on the domestic horse. A notable instance is the graceful feathering that extends along the hollow of the flank, dividing the trunk of the animal from the hind quarters. There are also crests and whorls on the horse's chest and other parts of its body. A study of the action of the underlying muscles explains the origin of these peculiarities in the lay of the hair and furnishes the justification for calling them pedometers, although the analogy is, of course, merely superficial.—St. Louis Republic.

Asking Too Much.

George is employed in his father's clothing emporium. On his return from lunch a few days ago his father called him into the office and said: "While you were at lunch your tailor called to collect a bill. I was surprised and pained, sir, to learn that you are in arrears. Isn't it possible for you to live on your salary?"

"Certainly it is, sir," replied George coolly, "but you don't expect me to support my creditors too?"—Exchange.

SHOD WITH SILENCE.

Big Bull Moose Can Traverse a Thick Forest Without a Sound.

Although taller than an ordinary horse, weighing more than half a ton and adorned with wide spreading antlers, the bull moose stalks with ghostly silence through thickset forests, where man can scarcely move without being betrayed by the loud crackling of dry twigs. In summer it loves low lying, swampy forests interspersed with shallow lakes and sluggish streams. In such places it often wades up to its neck in a lake to feed on succulent water plants and when reaching to the bottom becomes entirely submerged. These visits to the water are sometimes by day, but usually at night, especially during the season when the calves are young and the horns of the bulls are but partly grown.

Late in the fall, with full grown antlers, the bulls wander through the forest looking for their mates, at times uttering farreaching calls of defiance to all rivals and occasionally clashing their horns against the saplings in exuberance of masterful vigor. Other bulls at times accept the challenge and hasten to meet the rival for a battle royal. At this season the call of the cow moose quickly attracts the bulls. Hunters take advantage of this and by imitating the call through a birch bark trumpet bring the most aggressive bulls to their doom.—National Geographic Magazine.

Church Theaters.

Few people know that plays in England, Germany, Italy and France were fostered for religious purposes by the church centuries before they were taken up as a separate secular business. Moreover, few visitors to St. Paul's cathedral, in London, realize that that church during Elizabeth's reign and the first years of the reign of James I. set aside one of its adjacent buildings for use as a secular theater. Its little stage was famous, and the company of choir boys as actors presented many of the great plays of Shakespeare's time. They acted from about 1598 to 1608 under the management of Edward Pierce, their great master in music, who as church almoner had business control of these adjacent buildings owned by the church.—London Standard.

Big Company Starts For American Relief

College Students Will Help Raise Money For Armenia--Regular Grants Are Needed to Save the Country From Starvation.

Twelve hundred college students have volunteered their services during the summer months to the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, to organize local committees throughout the country for the raising of funds. Included in the list of these volunteers are men from practically every large American college and university.

The Committee, whose headquarters at at 1 Madison Avenue, New York, desires to establish branches in every state in the Union. Hundreds are already in working order and bringing in good returns, but the calls for relief from abroad grow more numerous daily and special efforts are being made to meet them. Generally speaking the volunteer helpers will work under the direction of the Committee's regular staff of field men, numbering more than sixty.

Christians and Mohammedans, driven from homes in the eastern field of war to seek safety in Persia are now working side by side to resettle themselves in occupations, according to a recent despatch from a relief worker in Urumia to the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief.

"The most common request," runs the despatch, "is for help in food, then for seed, cattle and implements with which to work. I am able to be go between and arrange matters between landowners and tenants, Christians and Moslems, etc. One of the novel fetures of our work this year is getting the Kurds to help the Christians by plowing for them. The Christians are to furnish a part of the labour and the crop is to be shared, we helping by giving seed. This has been done in scores of instances and promises to work well."

SOME PROBLEMS IN RELIEF WORK.

"May we count upon one hundred thousand dollars monthly for next four months? Missionaries all localities safe, well, and relief institutions Constantinople, Beirut, working as before. Important plans for material aiding relief work in Turkey through helpers from Swiss Committee. Failing favourable action to this request (for money) work must soon cease resulting withdrawal all missionaries."

This message has just been cabled by a relief worker among the Armenians and Syrians of Asia Minor. Mr. C. V. Vickrey, who directs the efforts in America for raising funds for this need, commenting on the message to-day said:—

"Requests of this nature, and many of them come to us, reveal the most perplexing problem confronting relief organizations to-day. How can we plan our work? What promises, covering months in advance, are we justified in making, especially when the treasury is empty? That there is necessity for planning ahead is obvious. Agents cannot gather thousands of refugees, open orphanages and undertake relief operations on a large scale without some definite assurances. On the other hand people are starving by the hundreds and thousands. The Committee is, therefore constantly moved by conflicting emotions. What is greatly needed is a steady flow of funds that will make close planning possible and thus insure greater economy in distribution."

Yesterday the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief appropriated $200,000 for various centers in Western Asia practically exhausting the available cash in the treasury, though providing less than half of what was called for.

$5,000 GOES TO SYRIA.

The Syrians of Kingston, Jamaica, have recently raised the sum of $2,500 to be used in relief work among Christians and Jews in Syrian Palestine. This money has been cabled abroad through the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, 1 Madison Avenue, with $2,500 additional which the Committeel will devote to relief in this section.

Two smaller contributions received by the Committee during the past week are of especial interest. Five dollars came from a Civil War veteran on his seventy-ninth birthday who, as he wrote, knew what hunger means as "I have had to march and fight on a ration of one ear of parched corn. Another cheque for fifty dollars was received from a preacher who had been sixty years a missionary among the American Indians.

VIENNA, June 23.—Russians becoming more active on the eastern front. Heavy firing in Galicia.

Astounding Story Of Impersonation

An astounding story of how a doctor had been, it was alleged, successfully personated for some years, was told at Bow street, when Thomas Coffey of Swansea, wearing the uniform of a lieutenant in the R.A.M.C., was charged with issuing false certificates of the deaths of three women and a man.

Mr. Bodkin, who conducted the case for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said the falsity lay in the fact that defendant had signed them the name of Dr. William Joseph Geehy. It was astonishing that a person like the defendant, who possessed no medical qualifications, should have been able to practise in a district like Swansea, associating with medical men there, obtaining public appointments, and finally receiving a temporary commission in the Royal Army Medical Corps. The real Dr. Geehy was registered in 1902, and in that year he became an assistant to the defendant's brother, Dr. Richard Colley, at Barrow-in-Furness. While there he became intimately acquainted with the defendant and learnt from him that he had studied medicine in Dublin and passed certain examinations, but he did not go through the final examination. On August 20, 1915, a person alleged to be the defendant applied in the name of Dr. Geehy for a commission in the R.A.M.C., representing himself to be a public vaccinator, and a Poor Law medical officer, with a panel and a private practice. He was accepted and sent to Egypt, where curiously enough the defendant's brother was serving as a major in the R.A.M.C. On February 11 last the real Dr. Geehy applied for and was granted precisely the same position. The War Office authorities, noticing that there were two appointments in that name, questioned the real Dr. Geehy, and in consequence of his answers they sent for the defendant, who was then at Suez. He was called upon to make a report and afterwards ordered home. One of the most remarkable facts in this case was that the handwriting of the two men was almost identical. The real Dr. Geehy had been practising in Oldham-road, Manchester.

Mrs. Ann Gilbert, who acted as housekeeper to the defendant, said he was a very busy doctor, between twenty and thirty persons calling every day to see him, and he had the reputation of being very clever.

The accused, who pleaded "Not guilty," and reserved his defence, was committed for trial.

Home Health Club

By Dr. David H. Reeder

Back to the Farm: I am inclined to think that a vast amount of the profit received by city folks from the garden patches and small farms will be increased health and a more intimate acquaintance with the hard work, long hours and small profits that have been the lot of the American farmers for many years.

The press and the government bulletins have all been urging the farmers and gardeners for years to grow more food for the people, more hogs, more cattle, more poultry, more grain, more fruit, more vegetables, and the government has employed many excellent systems of showing the farmer how to produce more. It has for a long time been a constant source of amusement to see the apparent indifference of the farmers to all this. To those of us that could get down to the fundamental principles of the proposition, there was nothing at all surprising about the farmer's attitude. Year after year his experiences were the same. If an enormous crop were grown the price dropped accordingly and when buying or contracting for the crop or the animals the buyer would show the government crop reports to prove that there was such an enormous supply that the dealers would be lucky if they got their money back. Then the farmer would sell at the low figures. As soon as all contracts had been secured the commission and storage men would give to the newspapers a careful lot of reports that would make the government reports look sick. The prices would skyrocket, and the consumer pays the freight. The farmer gets a living and the dealers get rich. During the year 1913 the farm value of the crops grown were a little in excess of $6,000,000,000. The consumers paid over $13,000,000,000 for it.

Now, a portion of the farmers have solved the problem for themselves and will sell only to the consumers or to the retail dealers, but these are few compared to the great number of producers.

The present unexcusable prices profit the farmers but little, but the speculators are fat and flourishing. I have many times urged co-operation among growers' organizations, and co-operation among the producers of milk would enable them to deliver their product in the large cities at a discount of at least 20 per cent. to the consumers and an increase of at least 20 per cent. for the product.

It is said, and I am a firm believer in the saying, that there is good in everything. Out of the present terrible war good will came. The best thing for the producer and consumer will be a complete understanding out of which will develop a simple and practical method of distribution through organization and co-operation. I sincerely trust that one of the results will be to forever stop speculation in food stuffs and that the true dignity of food production may be so fully recognized by both producer and consumer that to be a farmer will be in reality as well as in theory the most desirable profession that any man can select.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from readers of this publication if same are addressed to Health Club, 806 Cottage Grove Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents in postage.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it from spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

Could Not Lift Stick of Wood

WOULD ALMOST FAINT FROM SEVERE PAIN IN THE BACK —DOCTORS COULD NOT GET THE KIDNEYS SET RIGHT.

Benton, N. B., May —. — A great many people suffer the results of deranged kidneys and do not understand the cause of trouble or the way to obtain cure. The writer of this letter suffered excruciating pains in the back and in vain his physician tried to cure him. For some reason or other his medicines did not have the desired effect.

Mr. Olts' brother was a merchant selling among other medicines, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and he heard his customers telling about how they were cured of kidney derangements by their use. This led to Mr. Olts putting them to the test with the splendid results reported in this letter.

Mr. E. C. Olts, Benton, Carleton County, N. B., writes: "I am glad to let you know how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered from my kidneys which at one time were so bad I could not lift a stick of wood without getting on my knees, and then would almost faint from the pain in my back. I consulted a doctor about it, and he gave me some medicine but it did not help me. My brother who is a merchant, and carries all your medicines, advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I got one box and they helped me so that I got another and kept on until I had taken five boxes, which cured me. I have had no trouble with my back since and am never without Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house. Last summer I also suffered from piles. I used three boxes of your Ointment and it cured them. I can certainly recommend Dr. Chase's Pills and Ointment."

Reid's "Shure two Slip" Cravat
PAT. MAY, 1916.

A Neater Tie-Knot!

If you are in the least way particular about your tie-knot you will welcome this new Reid creation—the "Shure-two-slip" cravat. It is tailored to a new idea that saves tie, time, temper.

Slides Freely at a Touch

Where other ties are thickest, the "Shure-two-Slip" is thin—very thin. The neckband is made of strong smooth satin—both sides.

Where old style neckbands are cut on the bias, the "Shure-two-Slip" is tailored straight.

It slides freely at a touch, in any fold collar. Without any strain or tug, without crushing out of shape.

Isn't it natural that "Shure-two-Slip" cravats last longer, look neater, hold their shape better.

Big Business Means A BIG MARKET

The one has always followed the other as day follows night. It is inevitable that a wave of commercial prosperity should find reflection on the exchanges where the stocks of the prosperous corporations are traded. American business is already readjusting itself to war conditions, and the readjustment is proceeding with a minimum of disturbance of our everyday affairs. Already the market is tending upward. Sooner or later market prices of stocks adjust themselves to company earnings. The ratio between earnings and market prices at the present time shows conclusively that the market can still expand by a good many points before reaching a stage where prices may be considered too high. Judging the future by the past (and there is no other way of judging it) the crest of the market has by no means been reached and higher prices may be looked for all along the line, but particularly in these stocks that are on a producing and earning basis.

Feared She Wanted to Realize on Policy.

"What's the matter, old man? You look worried."

"Well, to be honest with you, I am. You know, I took out some life insurance last Thursday."

"Yes," replied the sympathetic friend, "but what has that to do with the wobegone expression on your face?"

"Well, the very next day after I had it written my wife bought a new cookbook. Possibly it's all right, but it certainly looks suspicious."

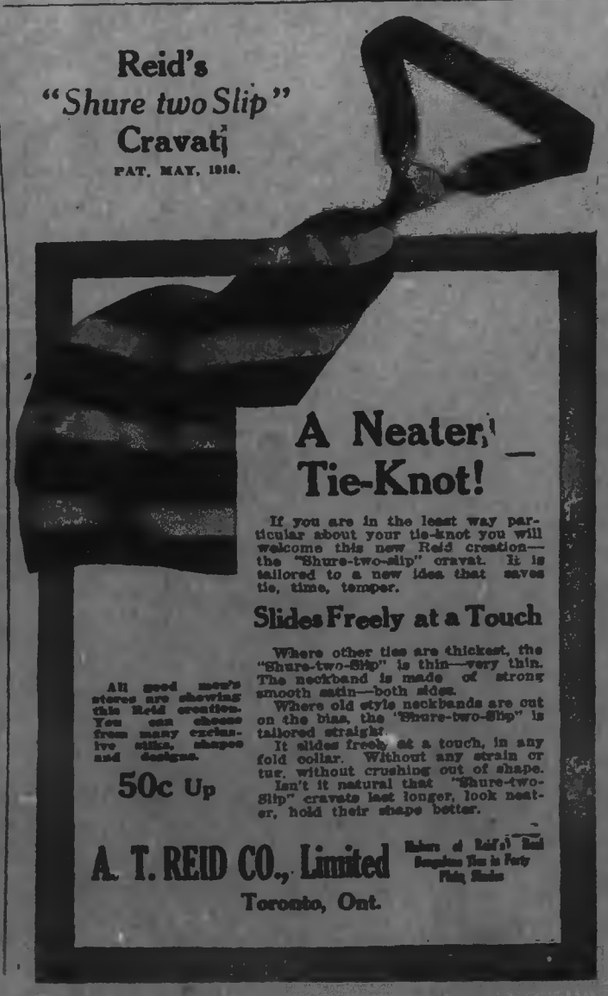
Reid's
"Shure two Slip"
Cravat
PAT. MAY, 1916.



A Neater, Tie-Knot!

If you are in the least way particular about your tie-knot you will welcome this new Reid creation—the "Shure-two-slip" cravat. It is tailored to a new idea that saves tie, time, temper.

Slides Freely at a Touch

Where other ties are thickest, the "Shure-two-Slip" is thin—very thin. The neckband is made of strong smooth satin—both sides.

Where old style neckbands are cut on the bias, the "Shure-two-Slip" is tailored straight.

It slides freely at a touch, in any fold collar. Without any strain or tug, without crushing out of shape. Isn't it natural that "Shure-two-slip" cravats last longer, look neater, hold their shape better.

All good men's stores are showing this Reid creation. You can choose from many exclusive silks, shapes and designs.

GERMAN COUNTER-OFFENSIVE FAILS

Heavy Attacks Against French Are Fruitless

A GENERAL GERMAN COUNTER OFFENSIVE AGAINST FRENCH

Enemy Make Series of Attacks at Different Points But All Are Fruitless---Heavy Losses Inflicted on the Enemy Says French Report---Attacks Are Taking Place Over a Front of Eighteen Miles

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

PARIS, (French official). — Germany's assault against the French lines reached the stage of a general counter offensive movement to-day, with violent fighting around Vauxhailton, Filain, Royier, Chevigny, Chevreaux and other points. The French official statement to-day declared the attack was everywhere fruitless..

PARIS, June 23.—Americans are talking too much about that vast fleet of aeroplanes, and not paying enough attention to the equally vital infantry and artillery arms of offense, in the opinion of a high member of Major General Pershing's staff. After reading cables to French papers on the nation wide agitation in America urging Congress to approve huge aeroplane fleet plans, he declared to-day. "While supremacy in the air is imperative aeroplanes alone are not going to win the war. There are three big elements—infantry, artillery and aviation. The three should be considered in balanced coordination. One arm is as important as the other."

PARIS, June 23.—Violent night bombardments were followed by a series of enemy attacks in the regions where there has been machine fighting recently, near Vauxhaillon and south and south east of Filian. The statement says: "All were fruitless and we inflicted heavy losses on the enemy." Other attacks east of Chevreaux, Cavaliers de Courcy and Chambrettes also failed. French raids at various points were successful.

For nearly a week the Germans have apparently been preparing for a powerful drive in the region where the French forces in thir great offensive encroached close to Laon. The fighting has been extending over nearly eigtheen miles of this front. Three days ago the Germans began making powerful drives at various points where the French commanded the higher ground. To-day apparently these scattered attacks have been coordinated into a general drive.

MONTREAL, June 23.—Le Canada answering to-day editorially, the question, what will happen if the conscription bill passes, recalls the North West Rebellion of 1885, which resulted, says Le Canada, when Sir John Macdonald turned a deaf ear to warnings. The Canadian people, says the editorial, are now agitating and clearly showing their resentment because the majority in parliament seems ready to usurp their righs. "If, without taking that into account, parliament adopts the Borden project it is to be feared that these demonstrations will become disorders and perhaps riots."

"One should also take into account the fact that it is not only in the province of Quebec that these manifestations are taking place and that disorder may be provoked. Organized labour from east to west is absolutely opposed to conscription and it is perhaps from them more than from the peaceable population of the province of Quebec that trouble is to be feared. There is none deafer than he who will not hear."

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Two "Pacifist" organizations have launched a huge campaign that if carried out would, officials said to-day, greatly undermine the selective draft law. These organizations, it was stated, are attempting to open up a channel of escape from military service. More than 10,000 have enrolled in the propaganda. Agents of the Department of Justice are to-day fixing their attention upon the activities of the organizations.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Declaring that it is a "question of a very short time before the government must commandeer all the oil and coal in the country,' Secretary Daniels to-day told the Senate Public Lands Committee that the oil situation is serious.

NEW YORK, June 23.—German submarines are taking a heavy toll of Greek shipping. An official report to the State Department to-day stated that nearly one-fifteenth of the entire Greek tonnage has been sent to the bottom in the last three months. Since April 12 ships representing a tonnage of 31,542 have been torpedoed and sunk by German and Austian U-boats.

BERLIN, via London, June 23.—German forces succeeded in penetrating French positions along the Chemin des Dames, southeast of Filian, to a depth of one third of a mile over a front of approximately a mile, to-day's official report claimed.

Presentation To Major McKennor

COBOURG, June 22.—The officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 8th and 9th drafts of the Cobourg Heavy Battery, before leaving for another training centre, presented Major James McKinnon, O.C. Cobourg Heavy Battery with a handsome kit bag with gold lettering. Lieut. Payne gave the address, and Sergt. Gordon made the presentation. McKinnon in responding, thanked them and said that he had been rewarded for anything he had done by the fine type of men who had voluntarily responded to their country's call and enlisted in the battery.

57TH BAND TO DISCONTINUE THEIR FRIDAY CONCERTS

Hundreds of Citizens Were Disappointed Last Night Because Recent Action of Council Resulted in the Calling Off of the Weekly Entertainment

WILL REFUSE $300 GRANT

As a result of the action of the Committee of the Whole Council, in reducing the annual grant to the 57th Regiment Band, to $300, there will be no more concerts by the band in Victoria Park. Hundreds of people were disappointed last night, the Park being crowded at 8.15 o'clock and hundreds waited until after 9, waiting for the band which, however, failed to materialize. The members of the 57th organization have decided to refuse the grant of $300, and to discontinue the concerts with the result that the Friday night entertainments which have been given by the Band for many years, and which have proved such a popular attraction, may now be considered as things of the past.

That the Band has been forced to adopt this course as a result of the action of the Council, will be a matter of deep regret. For many people the Friday night concerts have been the big event of the week, and hundreds of citizens will hope that the matter may be re-adjusted in some way. Last year the 57th Band was given a grant of $450, and the Salvation Army Band, $150. At Wednesday's meeting of the Committee of the Whole, it was decided to split the $600, fifty-fifty, thus taking $150 from the 57th grant.

However, the matter is not definitely settled as he by-laws failed to carry last night

When the by-laws authorizing the grant of $300 to each of the two bands were introduced at last night's Council meeting, Ald. Weir moved an amendment that the 57th Band receive $400, leaving $200 for the Salvation Army Band. The ensuing vote divided the Council evenly, the amendment being supported by Aldermen Weir, McIntyre, Langford and Mayor Duffus; those opposing it were Aldermen Stratton, Smith, Dobbin and Taylor. Ald. Saunders, Duncan and Worth were absent.

The corresponding by-law authorizing the grant to the Salvation Army Band of $300 was then read. It reached the third reading only to split the Council into the same opposing quartettes.

Accordingly, progress was reported.
